Checking for Mines Before Plowing the Land

As Korean farmers return to the soil on what was once a battleground, the land must be checked for mines before plowing can be started. Here Sgt. Floyd Lockwood, of 103 South Korean farmers who have been resettled within the U.S. 7th division area, and who are now engaged in plowing paddy areas for spring planting, is seen above receiving instructions from Sergt. Floyd Lockwood, of Lachine, Mich., on the use of the modern mine-detector. (Central Press Canadian).

PRIZE WINNER

RCAF May Use U.S. Jet As Front-Line Fighter

A reliable report from Ottawa indicates the new speedy U.S. F-100 Super Sabre jet, capable of flying about 1,000 miles an hour, eventually may replace the F86 Sabre as a front-line day fighter for the RCAF. The new, plane, now being produced in the U.S. for the U.S. Air Force, is being given close scrutiny by the RCAF. However, informants expect that if Canada decides to adopt it, production will be placed in the hands of Canadair Ltd. of Montreal, manufacturers of the F-86 Sabre. The supersonic F-100, seen above, is bigger and more powered than the F-86.—Central Press Canadian.

They said they were called when the boys, Jimmy McCollum and Larry Routly, ran home from the field on Notre Dame St. East and told their parents.

Poet Laureate Joins in Welcome To Our Queen

LONDON (Reuters)—Poet Laureate John Masefield Friday joined the rest of Britain in welcoming home Queen Elizabeth from her six-month Commonwealth tour.

To mark the occasion, he wrote a poem, entitled: "On Our Sovereign Lady's Return to These Islands."

It read:

Once, when the sign of England was the rose,
She bore immortal roses, white and red.
Who is she bearing now for Man's delight?
What rose, red or white?
Alas, what flowers blossom under snows
For barking foxes in a winter night?

We have a radiant rose, our royal head,
Now coming from the summers of England,
After such welcome few have ever seen.
She is our rose, our Queen,
O soul of England, waken from the dead.
Let a land worthier of her reign be born,
A land at one, for harvests springing green,
In all wise ways a garden for the rose.

ONT. HIGHWAYS PROBE TO BEGIN SECOND SESSION

Committee Members To Come Out Fighting

TORONTO (CP)—Round two of Ontario's highways department investigation opens Monday and opposition members of the Ontario legislature's select committee are expected to come out fighting.

Their attack on the alleged irregularities within the department was fired last week by the laying of conspiracy charges against 13 men and three contracting companies.

However, the Progressive Conservative government's move to make the first move Monday; the committee will receive the reports of provincial auditor Harvey Colcam and J. D. Woods and Gordon Gall, Toronto chartered accountants appointed by Premier Frost to investigate the department.

Chairman Kelso Roberts (PC—Toronto St. Patrick) said the committee would sit for three days.

Departmental officials are expected to testify.

The committee met initially April 14 and adjourned after a fag-long hearing to May 17.

Albert Wren (Lib.-Ash.—Kenora) last month drew out the first evidence of irregularities heard by the committee when A. Hamilton, chief engineer of maintenance for the department, who told of 70 cases of payroll and other irregularities in the maintenance division at the lakehead during the last three years.

Development in the last two weeks added more fuel to the opposition's fire.

Premier Frost announced the appointment of J. D. Millar, deputy highways minister, Ottawa, as deputy minister of public works.

The premier also defended R. G. Elson, 44-year-old mining engineer.

Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver branded the move a demotion for Mr. Millar, and, at a meeting of the Toronto Liberal Businessmen's Association Tuesday night called for the resignation of Highways Minister Doucett.

Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, sent a letter to Mr. Frost asking for a royal commission inquiry into the department's activities.

Seeking Ruling On Ministers Entering Politics

GUELPH (CP) — The question of whether Presbyterian ministers should become candidates in provincial or federal elections may soon be submitted to the supreme court of the Presbyterian Church of Canada.

The Canada Presbytery said Friday it will study a recommendation from Rev. Fred Williamson of Guelph, that an opinion be submitted to the general assembly, meeting in Montreal June 3, on the question.

Mr. Williamson said the policy of certain governments in Canada bars ministers from becoming political candidates has "never worked out."

The Presbyterian church in Scotland and Ireland is against the policy, he added.

Artificial Heart and Deep Freeze Give 'Poor Risk' Patients New Hope

TORONTO (CP)—Two Toronto surgeons are collaborating on an artificial heart and "deep freeze" technique which could give new hope to poor-risk patients in heart operations.

Dr. W. G. Bigelow told delegates to the closing sessions of the Ontario Medical Association convention Friday night of how he reduces patients' body temperatures drastically to lower the demand for oxygen in heart operations. This gives poor-risk patients better chances for survival.

Dr. W. T. Mustard explained a series of operations using an artificial heart machine perfected by a group at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

Using the artificial heart, Dr. Mustard pumps used a successful operation on a blood clot in the heart. The machine takes over the heart's job of blood circulation but also oxygen requirements supplied by the lung. In the operation, Dr. Mustard stopped the function of the heart for five minutes even though it continued to beat.

Only monkeys and dogs have been used as patients in the deep-freeze and heart machine union so far. Although the mortality rate is hypothermia has been reduced in medical word, has been only 25 per cent, known to indication of a group at Toronto's Hospital for the method's success.

Western Delegates to Study Change in Russian Position

By ROBERT R. TUCKMAN

GENEVA (AP) — Western delegates took advantage of today's recess in the Geneva talks to make careful study to Russia's sudden shift in position on an Indo-China peace settlement.

The Allied group also took time out to chart its strategy for a series of private bargaining sessions with the Communists on the Indo-China issue. The first closed door meeting is set for Monday.

Western sources voiced hope that the Soviet switch and the closed-door talks next week will bring the three-week-old parley to the hard bargaining stage and thus ease the fear that they are using it as a propaganda forum.

Foreign Minister Molotov uncovered the new Russian position Friday. He agreed to international supervision of any Indo - China peace settlement.

Molotov proposed supervision by a neutral commission without naming the countries that would serve. Previously the Russians had backed Vietminh proposals for a international commission of Communist nats. and non-Communist Indo-Chinese.

Western spokesmen reacted cautiously to the Russian move although a French delegation source said it represented a concession on a most important" point.

FERMED ADVANCE

British delegates called it an advance beyond the earlier Communist position.

An official United States spokesman at first labelled Molotov's proposal a "slight change," but later withdrew this and said the U.S. deegation had no comment.

The restricted talks starting Monday the nine delegations involved, the Big Four, Red China, Laos, Cambodia, Viet Nam and the Vietminh rebels, will each be allowed to send their chief delegate and three advisers.

France, it is reported, will advance a detailed proposal for an Indo-China cease-fire at the outset.

The talks were set up Friday by Britain's foreign secretary Eden, who has been increasingly active as a backstage intermediary between the West and the Communists.

McCarthy Asks 'Complete Story' in Army Dispute

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator McCarthy today demanded the "complete story" of any part the United States Justice department played in triggering army charges that he sought favored military treatment for Pie. G. David Schine, a former aide.

And Senator J. Ken McCellan (Dem, Ark.), senior Democrat on the Senate investigations sub-committee, said that if the Eisenhower administration blacks out details of a Jan. 21 top-drawer conference on the dispute between the army and Wisconsin Republican senator it will have to "take the responsibility for deep" and possibly unfair facts."

The double-barrelled demand on the administration came up in the heels of testimony Friday(17th day in the inquiry proceedings) that the executive branch of the government has clamped a secrecy lid on the now-famous huddle in the Justice department.

Attending the January meeting there were Attorney-General Herbert Brownell and the deputy attorney-general, William P. Rogers; the White House chief of staff, Sherman Adams and White House aide Gerald Morgan, United Nations ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and counsel John G. Adams.

SAYS SILENCED

John Adams, who testified to this Wednesday, said Friday that he has been silenced by higher ups and can't go beyond his previous statements. Senator McCarthy suggested compiling a written record of the army's troubles with McCarthy and his assistants.

McCarthy, referring to the presence of Brownell and Rogers at the January get - together, told reporters after the hearings recessed for the week-end:

"I think it is important to know everything that went on at that meeting. The sub-committee must have the complete story of what part the justice department took in getting the army started, since the department is being called on lately to pass on vital questions.

The senator said that it will be up to Brownell to decide whether perjury has been committed in contradictory charges made under oath, and whether there are grounds for contempt charges.

New Ferry Will Be Christened 'The Loyalist'

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario highways department said Friday that the province's newest passenger ferry will be launched today at Erieau, about 15 miles southeast of Chatham on Lake Erie.

The ship will be christened "The Loyalist" about the middle of next month on arrival at Adolphustown in the Bay of Quinte arm—Adolphus Reach.

Highways Minister Doucett will make the christening address.

The Loyalist is a sister ship to the Quinte.

Descendants of Major Peter Vanalstyne, leader of United Empire Loyalists who settled at Adolphustown in May, 1784, will attend the Erieau ceremony from Ontario.

They will be guests of Bryan L. Cathcart, MPP for Lambton West.

Major Vanalstyne was first member of the Ontario legislature from Prince Edward-Lennox, after he took his seat at Toronto June 16, 1792.

The Loyalist will provide ferry service to traffic on No. 33 highway between Picton and Kingston.

MEMBER CHARGES PATRONAGE IN POST OFFICE DEPT.

Cote Advised to 'Chop Some Heads Off'

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF member of Parliament has charged the post office department with practising political patronage and has advised Postmaster-General Cote to "chop some heads off."

Alistair Stewart, Winnipeg North Centre, made the charge in the Commons Friday, basing his case on a file of government correspondence concerning appointments of sub-postmasters in his constituency. Mr. Stewart produced the file and tabled in Parliament recently by the government.

Mr. Stewart read a series of letters, requests to individuals to nominate suitable people for sub-postmasters.

In most cases, he said, the letters went to defeated Liberal candidates Peter Kaszaba and Frank Chester in Winnipeg. He said many were signed by R. H. MacNabb, director of the post office department's operations branch.

Mr. MacNabb, he said, was a "sort of political commissar for the Liberal party."

CONSIDER APPLICANTS

"The letters, written at various times in the last few years, also said that if there were no nominees the department then would consider those who had applied for the jobs.

Mr. Cote, who has been post master - general since February, has said that for years the department has asked advice on appointments from many people, including the Canadian Legion, defeated candidates, members of Parliament and people in the locality.

There was a considerable difference between a recommendation or suggestion and the actual appointment, which was made only after an objective study by department officials.

Mr. Cote said he does not know the names of most of the others mentioned in the correspondence file.

Mr. Stewart said he has never been asked to recommend any individual for a post office job and doesn't want to be. It was a bad system. Department officials knew much better where appointments should go.

Open Tenders In Front Of Newspapermen

TORONTO (CP)—Highways Minister Doucett Friday broke precedent by calling in the press to come to witness what he described as a typical meeting to open tenders for Ontario highways department contracts.

He said 182 tenders received for 48 contracts.

Four senior officials of the department were present. One took down each figure read for immediate checking for mathematical errors.

The invitation to the press followed published criticism of the alleged "secret" method of opening tenders.

Tanned, Smiling Queen Home From Triumphal Tour

Thousands Camp Out All Night to Greet Monarch

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth came ashore in London at Westminster pier at 10.18 a.m. EDT (15.18 GMT) at the triumphant river-borne procession up the Thames ending a six-month global tour.

LONDON (CP) — Queen Elizabeth, tanned and smiling, sailed up the Thames on this pleasant May morning into a warm-hearted welcome home from her capital after a six-month world tour.

The royal yacht Britannia, in which she travelled from Tobruk in North Africa, entered the four-mile wide estuary of the river shortly after 9:30 a.m.

From the mouth of the river to Westminster pier, where she was to disembark this afternoon (10.15 a.m. EDT), the shores were densely lined with watchers, many of whom had camped out all night to greet the monarch.

THOUSANDS WATCH

It was a warm hazy day. The hills were green after recent rains.

Ships and buildings along the route were gaily decked with flags. Naval vessels were drawn up on both sides of the river. Pleasure steamed slowly past.

Whistles shrilled a welcome and guns thundered a salute from positions on the shore.

The Queen, with the Duke of Edinburgh, stood on a platform before the Britannia's wheelhouse.

The slight haze partly obscured the view of the thousands of watchers as the ship passed southend and moved up stream through the sooty factory districts and docks.

SUNNY IN LONDON

London burst forth with gay decorations used for last year's Coronation.

Many Londoners waited through the night to get a good sight for front-row positions at the Queen's state drive from Westminster pier to Buckingham Palace.

Prince Charles Nearly Tumbles Into The Thames

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Charles was excited at homecoming celebrations today for his mother that the heir to the throne nearly tumbled in the drink.

As the royal yacht Britannia arrived under Tower Bridge, the four-year-old tot spied Queen Mother Elizabeth, his "granny," waiting on some aboard.

The prince hauled himself up on the rail and leaned over the side, a picturing what would have happened if Charles had wound up in the river.

Federal Govt. Will Not Enter Contract Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government as yet has no plans for intervening in the contract dispute between the railways and their non-operating unions that has a general strike threat throwing a shadow over the deadlock.

At this stage, a federal information said Friday, the cabinet is not planning any move in the hope that the disputants will work out their difference between themselves.

The current situation is that the railways and unions representing 145,000 non-operating employees are as far apart as they were before the labor department set up a conciliation board early this year to deal with their deadlocked contract negotiations.

Will Support Widow

TORONTO (CP)—George Schuler, 30, sentenced Friday to two months for dangerous driving, said in court he plans support the widow of the passenger killed in his truck in an accident on Christmas Day.

The director, Mrs. William Jardine, came to Belleville many years ago from Toronto. She is a graduate of "cum laude" of the Royal Conservatory of Music in speech, arts and drama, and has completed two separate courses under the celebrated Herbert T. Scott, of England.

Scott, who last taught some of the world's leading actors, including Charles Laughton and Lawrence Olivier, taught Mrs. Jardine his system of instruction and she is fully qualified as a teacher of drama.

Mrs. Cowley was an assistant director and teacher with the Midland Players, a Toronto stock company, and later formed her own company, Video Players, before her marriage and her coming to Belleville.

Injured Girl Slightly Better

Hospital authorities here reported this morning that there had been a slight improvement in the condition of Miss Audrey Knox, aged 20, seriously injured in an automobile accident on Thursday night. Because of her semi-conscious condition it has been impossible to make an X-ray examination, but Miss Knox is believed to have suffered a broken jaw and a fractured shoulder, as well as facial lacerations. She was a passenger in a panel truck which left the highway near Bayside about midnight on Thursday. There were three others in the truck, Mr. Beverley McTaggart, the driver; his brother, Mr. Willard McTaggart, age 21, and Mr. Morley Langman. Of these three only Mr. Langman was injured, suffering lacerations. He was admitted to the Belleville General Hospital and will be discharged today.

Long before the Britannia entered the river, the crowds outside the palace were so dense that it was impossible to move. Many had come from distant parts of England the crowds.

Britain. Scores of foreign tourists

The stinny weather brought a chest. It poured on Coronation Day—June 2, 1953—and rain has also marred many other of the Queen's state appearances.

Costumed in suits and dresses heavy with pearl buttons — the pearly kings and queens—made great splashes of woe in the drabber crowds.

People boiled tea over camp stoves, ate sandwiches, dozed on the sidewalks, gossiped with their neighbors and joined in sing-songs to while away the hours.

10,000 lbs up early

Police and troops lined the processional route from Westminster to the palace. Long before the first Queen's arrival it was lined with more than 50,000 people.

Others had been afoot all waiting too much, and there was a bustle in the flats of Kensington, Hyde

St. James' Park, on the Queen's route to the palace, was jammed with beds of mixed red and grey low tulips. Another popular gathering place for crowds was at Tower Bridge, where a launch waited to take Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret to the Britannia.

The destroyer escort left the Britannia in the river mouth between Dunnet Head and Duncansby Head. The Queen signalled to HMS Duchess, last of the destroyers to drop behind: "Good-bye and thank you for your escort from Gibraltar."

PRINCE, PRINCESS, WAVE

Prince Charles and Princess Anne, wearing bright canary yellow seaters, waved goodbye to the Duchess as she turned away.

The Queen was then seen having a brown coat and had a scarf over her hair. Then she wore the same form of an admiral of the fleet. As the Britannia entered the Clyde estuary, ships sirens screamed a welcome. For a full 20 minutes the boat sirens blasted out their fanfare—"God save the Queen" and "Land of Hope and Glory."

Ferry boats and other vessels sounded their hooters. Amid the din a solemn note was struck as one large section of the crowd on shore sang "God Save the Queen."

At Grayfordness the convoy was joined by launches of London's Metropolitan police.

Every available inch of space on shore was taken up by watchers. They scrambled for newspapers which reported the early stages of the royal tour with headlines which proclaimed: "... And So She Came Home" and "This Happy Day."

FM CHANGES PLANS

Prime Minister Churchill apparently was overwhelmed by the occasion. He had planned originally to slip off the yacht, which he had joined in the channel Friday, and hasten to London for the official greeting of Her Majesty after. But this morning he changed his mind and remained with the young Monarch for her triumphal ride up the 50 miles of river.

Children among the crowds shone the river yelled with excitement as they spotted the Queen [illegible] and Princess Anne with their parents on the saluting platform. High-ranking naval officers stood nearby and kept an eye on them.

In the wake of the Britannia the normal life of the river returned.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSON. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, who passed away four years ago, May 15th, 1950.

There is no death, what seems so is transition;
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life elysian,
Whose portal we call death.

—Ever remembered by the hearts of those they leave behind.

DERYAW. — In loving memory of Ernest W. Deryaw, who drowned May 16th, 1953.

Sweet memories with fast falling tears
Of a devoted husband, dad and comrade-in-arms.

When memories come so dear, your bright shining smile
Were a blessing and a guiding life worthwhile.

Also in loving memory of our dear son, Ernest.

In the flower of your youth, God took you home.
Never forgotten while lonely years roll on.

Our hope is to meet you in the sweet by and by.

Stories of Famous Hymns

Pull For The Shore

Light in the darkness, sailor, day
Is at hand!
See o'er the foaming billows fair
Haven's land.
Drear was the voyage, sailor, now almost o'er,
Safe within the life-boat, sailor,
Pull for the shore.

Trust in the life-boat, sailor, all else will fail,
Stronger the surges dash the fierce gale,
Heed not the stormy winds, though loudly they roar;
Watch the "bright and morning star", and
Pull for the shore.

Bright gleams the morning, sailor,
up lift the cry;
Clouds and darkness disappearing,
glory is nigh;
Safe in the life-boat, sailor, sing evermore;
"Glory, glory, hallelujah!"
Pull for the shore.

The story of a ship wreck gave Philip Bliss, the singing evangelist, the theme for his favorite old hymn.

As the last life-boat, heavily laden with seamen, was leaving the doomed vessel, according to the tale, a sailor remembered some belongings which he had left on board. He asked to be allowed to return to the ship but the captain who was also in the life-boat warned against it. He said:

"The old ship is sinking. All we can do now is pull for the shore".

The phrase, "pull for the shore", appealed to Bliss as a hymn theme and soon after hearing the story he wrote the words and music to his famous song. Many of his other hymns were inspired similarly by Bible verses which caught his fancy or by sermons and anecdotes of pulpit orators to whom he listened.

He wrote his hymn, "Whosoever Will", after hearing Dr. Henry Moorhouse of London preach on the immortal text in John 3:16: "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." The story of the royal armor bearer of Jonathan, as told in I Samuel gave him his theme for "Only An Armor Bearer", "Hold The Fort" and "Almost Persuaded" had similar backgrounds.

Born in Rome, Pa., in 1838, Bliss showed his love of music even in his earliest years. In 1864, he went to Chicago to join the music firm of Root and Cady, of which George Frederick Root, composer of the tune of "Ring The Bells Of Heaven", was the head. In 1874, with Major W.D. Whittle, he led revival meetings up and down America. Two years later, with Mrs. Bliss, he visited his mother at Rome and it was while returning to Chicago from that visit that he lost his life. The train on which he and Mrs. Bliss were riding plunged into the river while passing over a bridge near Ashtabula, Ohio. Bliss escaped through an open coach window but returned to the wreck to rescue his wife. Both were lost in the disaster.

For a number of years Bliss was without question the most famous gospel hymn writer in America. One popular evangelistic song book of his day carried 33 tunes which he had composed for the hymns of other writers, as well as 34 hymns for which he had written verses and music. Ira Sankey, member of the famous trio, as those of Philip Bliss".

Moody-Sankey partnership, once paid him an unusual tribute. He said:

"Never in the whole course of Christian history have any songs been the means of bringing salvation to so many lives, in so brief a period, crowd is howling you down—think how that helps.

HAD A FRIEND

Charles Kingsley, when asked how he kept up during his long struggle for social reforms, answered simply, "I had a friend." When the world is in fear, the morale of our families and friendships becomes all the more important.

Years ago a church organist lost his sight and after a while he lost his touch. He was a good technician, but because of his blindness he could not see the reaction of the congregation. As often happens, the thoughtless churchgoers never took pains to express their appreciation. The result was that the organist's confidence in himself seeped away. We simply cannot keep up our courage in isolation. We need those who put heart into us by appreciation and encouragement.

IMPART COURAGE

More than the possession of courage is the power to impart it to others. A number of years ago a friend of mine engaged an instructor to teach him to fly. My friend tells me that he was a competent pilot—as long as the instructor was in the plane. But he was somewhat less than competent up there alone in the "wild blue yonder."

Last Sunday, as the director of the Hall of Fame for Great Americans, I took part in unveiling the bust of Theodore Roosevelt in the great colonnade of the Hall at New York University.

The ceremony served to reinforce my courage with memories of the intrepid Teddy. We do well in these days to let our minds keep company with the brave spirits of bygone days. Let Americans recall the calm courage of Lincoln and Lee. Let Canadians revive the memories of Montcalm and Wolfe at Quebec. And remember that courage is not confined to battlefields and wars.

FRANKLY FRIGHTENED

When commercial aviation was still in its infancy, I flew from Duluth to Minneapolis. It was a night flight in a new plane not yet fully equipped. I was frankly frightened. But one thing helped to keep up my courage.

Between the luminous dial on the dashboard and myself, the profile of the pilot was visible to me. As long as I could see that his features were calm, I felt that all was going well. When I landed and had time for sober second thought, I came to consider that pilot a pretty good symbol of a man in my profession.

Why? Because the pilot was between the light and a frightened passenger And I as a minister stand between the Christ who was called "The Light of the World" and the frightened passengers of a pretty dark day. Hence it behooves me to keep my chin up.

A Lift for Living

Contagious Courage

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Brave men do not usually talk much about courage. I venture to believe that men in the armed services resent hearing speakers at home holding them up how to be brave. And you who are putting up a stiff fight against economic woes, or physical pain or devastating sorrow are not much helped by some glib speaker saying that you need be afraid of nothing, that you can have anything you want if you only have the courage and faith to claim it.

Those who live safely and smoothly have no warrant for shouting about courage to those who are up against real and deep distresses which try men's souls. But now is the time when all of us are summoned to share what courage we have. So great is the danger in our world situation that one false move could start an avalanche of disasters. From the White House comes the call to keep calm.

We need the contagion of courage. And like charity, courage begins at home. Everyone who has enjoyed the love of another knows how that love puts heart and nerve into the soul. To know that there is one who keeps tryst with you in thought even when absent in person: to know that there is one who believes in you when the

SALVATION ARMY SEEKS HELP

Use caution in filling out your cheque stubs this month.

If you just scribble "Sally Ann" your wife may be miffed—until you explain that the cheque was a donation to the annual Salvation Army Red Shield Campaign. Then, of course, she will not object. Nobody ever begrudges the Salvation Army a donation, because the Salvation Army always gives better than full value for the assistance which it receives.

Recognition of this fact is the reason why the Salvation Army, every year, finds prominent citizens from outside its ranks willing to spearhead its appeal for funds. This year the general chairman for the campaign in Belleville is Col. Roscoe Vanderwater, a resident of this city serving the community as a whole, are many other public-spirited citizens.

Officially the objective for this year's campaign is $8,000, the same as last year. But there is no law against Belleville citizens over-subscribing their quota—and every cent they give will be put to good use. The campaign opened on May 10 and will conclude on June 5th. The drive is just now getting into full swing—but already the response has been gratifying.

Of course, none of the money collected in this Red Shield Appeal is used to finance the internal operations of the Salvation Army. Not only is all this publicly-subscribed money used for the Army's charitable work but the Army members dig deep into their own pockets to supplement it.

It was its work for members of the armed forces, in two Great Wars, which led to the Army being affectionately dubbed "The Sally Ann" by veterans. Thousands of civilians have reason to regard it with equal affection.

Among the projects which the Red Shield donations will finance are homes for the aged, for orphans or children from broken homes and for unmarried mothers. Hedgwood Home in Kingston is one of the institutions which cares for unfortunate girls who, otherwise, might find no help in time of trouble. The Salvation Army also stands ready to assist victims of fire or flood. And, despite all our progress in social security measures, the need for private charity has not been eliminated. Salvation Army officials here report a great increase in welfare work right in Belleville this winter, as the result of increased seasonal unemployment. Red tape never hampers the Red Shield.

NON-BATHING BEAUTIES

Dr. Earl D. Osborn, a skin specialist from Buffalo, N.Y., is almost certain to replace Hop-a-Long Cassidy or Space Cadet as the idol of American boyhood.

The good doctor, in an address at the American Medical Association convention in Oklahoma City, said that "daily bathing is the worst thing you can do to your skin, especially if you use soap."

A respectful silence is requested at this point for all harried mothers who now are faced with scientific backing of a conclusion all small boys reach at the age when they can defy protest against soap and water.

The doctor, in as complete an assault on the daily bath as has ever been launched, went on to say that statistics show countries in which people seldom take baths have the least number of skin infections and diseases. The clincher in his argument was that the alkali in soaps often causes infection of certain sensitive areas of the skin.

It must be remembered that these statements are made by a skin specialist who stands to suffer if people take his advice, quit bathing, and thereby reduce the number of skin infections he may be called upon to treat.

This new concept of soap and water might be bound to alter everyone's thinking. From now on a dirty face, grubby hands, and all the unpleasantness against which soap companies have inveighed for years, reign supreme as preventive measures against skin infection. But the big difficulty in all this is, of course, how will we appreciate blemish-free skin when it lies under two or three layers of soap-free dirt?

RACE PREJUDICE "INOCULATION" DIFFICULT

Rev. Stephane Valiquette, S.J., addressing a human relations seminar at the University of Montreal this week, said people should be inoculated against racial prejudice in the same way as they are inoculated against smallpox.

The idea is interesting, but its execution may prove difficult.

Father Valiquette placed his finger on one of the sore spots when he said that many prejudices originate in the home and school. It is precisely in these places that "inoculation" must be carried out, if it is to be done at all.

Children are free from racial prejudice, until such time as they catch the disease from an adult.

POWER

He strode the world with head

A man of muscle and of might,
Who found in power his chief

He'd rather frighten than be fair.
He'd rather bully than be

So used to being strong he grew
That pity from his bosom fled.
"Mercy is for the weak," he said,
"I do what I have power to do.
Strong men should lead and

But he who lives by strength alone

Walks blindly to his sure

Soon comes the day when he

A force that's greater than his

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Biologists refer to the balance of nature. But they seem to fight a losing battle. Nature upsets the rights of nature, the rights of each living thing to its place in the battle, the way of life. It has always been a little difficult for Europeans and Americans, which includes us, to avoid looking at all life as being either the prey, the servant or the convenience of mankind. Maintaining this attitude, we have done more than we have exterminated most of our enemies, including most of the microbes and viruses as well as the sabre toothed tigers, wolves, bears. Those species that got in our way, such as the buffalo that required the prairies, which we wanted, we have reduced to a few zoo specimens. A few creatures, such as the whooping crane, which appear to have become sick and tired of the earth the way we run it, seem to be determined to vanish. This irritates us, and we are going to some lengths to preserve them, whether they like it or not. Possibly we do not wish to face the reproach of their extermination. Possibly our concern over them arises from the fact that they are an enemy's enemy, rare in consequence of our beautifully mastered earth.

No living thing has any rights other than those conferred upon it by man. But there are rebels.

Weeds and insects and microbes still persist in the notion that man is their lawful prey. Certain birds seem to defy man's use: house moths, locusts, the cankerworm, the cutworm, slugs. We could go on. We might need more than our ten figures to tick them off.

In the Rockies, in recent weeks, I have seen grizzlies both golden and bald. They ride very high over the peaks, higher than any hasting aircraft, and more secure. They don't have to hasten.

Rocky Mountain men have just told me dark tales about the eagles.

"When the sandhill cranes come down," in the fall, in their great flocks, the eagles ride above them, and every now and then, one drives, and knocks, a crane into the abysses. The cranes with the wild geese: the eagles drift aloft, and then single out one goose and dive.

"I have seen an eagle catch a young mountain sheep right on a pinnacle, in their fashion. The eagle dives and buffets the sheep, trying to startle and tumble it over the cliff. . ."

The eagle, of course, is strictly within his rights.

'Herb Doctor' Explains Cures

(Gall Reporter)

The ministry of public health in Florida, which is now conducting a very vigorous campaign to stamp out quackery and eliminate "cures," has encountered the following case in a town in the state recently. A certain "herb doctor" had set up a practice there and was administering to the patients he examined secret herb remedies. Business grew and grew more and more people and soon the "magician's" business became quite extraordinarily. Then an enemy lodged a complaint against him with the authorities at Ibague, capital of Tolima, and an inspector was sent to investigate the case.

The "magician" received the inspector with the greatest amiability, invited him to virt his consultation room, which was filled with the most extraordinary and weird chiromantic drawings. When he was alone with the official, and out of hearing of his credulous patients, the "curer" revealed his secret.

"Look at my diplomas. I have a degree of a Bachelor from a national university at Bogota. I have also made additional studies at the Sorbonne in Paris. When I give herbs to the sick, I am careful not to tell them that I mix those herbs with the medicines I buy at the pharmacy. Naturally, it is the medicines which cure, but my patients prefer to believe it is the herbs . . . What can I do?"

Turned Tables On Woodpecker

(Minneapolis Tribune).

Early one recent morning, a man we know well was awakened by a loud hammering at his door. (Please, Mr. Printer!). It happens that this man was the last person given to raising windows the better to savor the first glad notes of heaven! What a hard-hitting awakening ear that day was not a hearing.

The herald whereof we speak was, in fact, a woodpecker. He had discovered that the sheathing of our friends' roofpiece for a tuneup session. Investigation, as we advised, may conservatively be described as the discovery that the rackets made by a pneumatic drill and an hysterical door bang.

We sympathize with our friend. But, we are happy to say, not with sympathy to offer him—and such of our readers as have a woodpecker problem.

If driven to extreme measures, they can try this remedy employed successfully by another man who found his peace thus beleaguered; he learned where the energetic bird holed up at night, and then one evening he went out and played a tattoo on the tree with a stick. That woodpecker may still be going, for all we know.

Personal Health Talks
By DR. WM. BRADY
PLEASE, NOT SO MEDICAL

You may think I should be the last to question the propriety and wisdom of discussing medical matters in a newspaper. But that's what I think.

I'm confident that a comparison of all papers in a progressive newspaper health department with those that mind their own medical day by day, month by month.

Once in a while I have fallen under the spell of a real doctor who reports extraordinary effects from the use of a new drug and I finally decide to tell about it here.

Some readers may remember that I extolled a new remedy for chronic arthritis here a few months ago. I had seen for myself some astonishing improvement in the condition of a few victims, so I hastened to tell about it. I thought, to all readers.

But not until a month or two later that I learned of the bad side effects, in some cases, of this marvelous effects of the medicine, and of the relapse of even those cases in which I had seen such remarkable temporary improvement. I wished then that I had not discussed the new remedy at all.

There is plenty of material for a doctor to talk about in a newspaper without risk of doing anybody any harm. So many questions of physiology, hygiene, prevention of disease, the nature and causes of diseases (pathology), diet, nutrition, everybody's physical training and minor ailments for which people generally do not seek medical advice.

A doctor may display phenomenal knowledge of medicine surgery and the various specialties by plucking stuff out of the medical journals and printing it in the newspapers, but what is the effect of such blow-hot on the informed or half informed people?

The Professor at the Breakfast Table and the Autocrat sketches by Oliver Wendell Holmes, which were originally published serially in magazines, were my inspiration to write on health for the newspapers. Dr. Holmes never published anything that did any harm.

My guiding principle ever since has been the one that has been the injunction of Hippocrates as interpreted by the great Dr. Abraham Jacobi:

Do Good If You Can But Do No Harm.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

POETRY'S SOUL

Poetry is melodious song. It composes as it is thought and written. It is far more concentrated than prose. This same quality is illustrated in drawing and painting. All art is poetry and is all expression where the soul is invited in! Who can look upon the beautiful marble sculptured in Belvidio without interpreting a poem there? Who can look upon "the Sailor's Hand of God."

The Bible is filled with poetry. Examples are to be found in Solomon's sayings and the Psalms of David. There is a spiritual quality to all great poetry. It is striking in Keats, Robert Burns, and some of the shorter poems of Poe. We who love beauty in all expressions, be it in nature or the heart of man, can thank God for our appreciative mind.

There is poetry in every flower, every leaf and tree, and even in a blade of grass. Viewed from the mountain height is an epic poem! There is poetry even where we look in nature. In the forest, the river, and the sea. It is interpreted in every song from the throats of birds. And you listen to it in the whisper of the wind. God put color into the world to appease the hunger of the eye. In the hearts, for there are sparks of poetry, perhaps, in us all awaiting some moment to burst them into flame!

Expressive is the unfolding of every Springtime! Like throwing open the doors of a cage to the full cloining of the day in full array. Every single simple leaf from any plant or tree and note the formation—perfect in detail—a poem in itself. What discovered man has made in delving into the heart and soul, and minute substances of beauty and utility he has discovered, but if man loses its significance in the end!

Poetry's soul is to be revealed in all life right up to the door of the human heart, if that heart is wise enough to take note and open the door for the soul's inspiration. Only as we have learned to wonder, can we learn to appreciate. It is the one great step to human happiness.

Conservation Briefs

A series of little known facts about conservation, under the heading of "Conservation Briefs" will occupy this space weekly. These briefs are being written by Moira Rivers Conservation Authority to let you, the people, know what your Conservation Authority stands for.

DID YOU KNOW that the grazing of woodlots has a very serious effect on their worth? Returns are lower and so is their sale value.

In a recent survey of southern Ontario woodlots 63 ungrazed woodlots yielded an average annual return of $10.21 per acre, while 65 grazed woodlots yielded an average annual return of $5.83 per acre.

Nothing could be more revealing than these figures gathered by the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Without varying the actual damage done to woodlots by grazing let us look at the quantity and quality of pasturage provided by woodlots. The quantity of pasturage provided by a woodlot as compared to that provided by an open field or equal area is 1/8. The quality or nutritional value of the woodlot plant area is 1/5 of the quality of the average open pasture plants. Therefore, one acre of open pasture would provide the same quality and quantity of pasturage as would a 30 acre woodlot.

If a man is short of pasture land he would be better off to clear one or two acres of his woodlot for open pasture and keep his livestock out of the woodlot.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

OWN UP!

One of the charges which our statesmen and newspaper editors are fond of making against the Communists is that they are "face-saving." In our eyes, at least, the Chinese frequently seem to be willing to admit to their errors by fantastic claims and boasts. It is a weird admitting of it, but they have ever made mistakes.

But the Communists are not the only ones who hate to admit that they are wrong. Most of us feel the same way. It is never pleasant to stand in the pillories for our grievous ignorance or bad judgments.

Yet human progress and human character often depend on the public acknowledgment of our mistakes. If we do not admit it to others when we are wrong, we are being less than honest; and we either compromise our standing with them or else find no support to the error.

Still more important is the acknowledgment to ourselves: "I was wrong!" Personal integrity and character depend upon candid honesty. And our future may depend upon it, for we cannot correct or escape error until we recognize it as error. When we see what is wrong and admit it, we can avoid it and do better.

Let's admit it—we all make mistakes. And as Cicero said, "Any man can make a mistake, but only the foolish man will continue to make it."

Let us furthermore, let us realize that progress and growth originate in our capacity to admit error. When we lose that capacity, we die.

Construction of New Wing to Start Early in Fall

Above is a picture of the architect's scale model of the proposed additions to the Belleville General Hospital and their relationship to existing hospital installations.

Close Up Shot of New Hospital Construction

This close-up picture of the architect's model of proposed new additions to the Belleville General Hospital shows the main addition of sub-basement, ground floor and three stories running due west from the present west wing behind the nurses' residence. A feature of its construction is outside buttresses permitting smooth inside walls, large window area and a marquee overhanging the ground floor level in front and at the sides of the building.

Centre-foreground is the four-story addition to be projected northward from a projection in the present west wing immediately to the west of the main entrance. This addition will house the X-ray department on the ground floor, pediatrics on the second floor, surgery on the third floor and obstetrical and delivery rooms on the fourth floor.

Seen at the rear is a model of the new buildings to house the kitchen, dining rooms and vitally needed storage rooms.

The black areas in the left hand corner indicate location of the present main building. The structure in the foreground to the right is the present nurses' residence.

General Plan of New Wing Belleville General Hospital Approved by Committee

Approval of the general plan of the new wing of the Belleville General Hospital and authorization for the architects to proceed with the drafting of final plans prior to the calling of tenders, was given by the executive committee of the hospital at its regular meeting yesterday.

J. E. Buchan, chairman of the property committee, F. M. Keenleyside and G. Duke, of the architectural firm of Gwinn, Fergusson, Lindsay, Kaminker, Langley and Keenleyside, presented the plans to the executive committee along with a scale model of the proposed construction.

Final plans for the building will be worked out by the architects in consultation with members of the medical staff, department heads, and hospital officials.

FOUR-STOREY WING

The new plan calls for the erection of a large wing composed of a sub-basement, ground floor and three stories rising due west from the present west wing behind the nurses' residence, and the construction of a four-storey wing due north from a projection of the present west wing directly to the west of the hospital's main entrance. Construction is expected to begin early in the fall.

Plans to construct the new wing to the north of the present building on the hospital's front lawn were abandoned because such a plan failed to provide adequately for present needs and future expansion.

"The present plan gives us the most effective use of space, more patient beds in a new building, and is the only plan which will provide for all necessary units at a price we are able to pay," said J. E. Buchan, chairman of the property committee, in outlining reasons for the changes made in the location of the proposed new wing.

"Putting the new wing in front of the hospital would have necessitated a complete re-arrangement of the X-ray, surgical, and obstetrical departments, and the construction of a corridor around them," said Mr. Buchan. "This would have meant, in effect, a double corridored and the construction of a building that is too large and too costly for amount of working space it would have provided."

NEW KITCHEN

Mr. Buchan pointed out that a new kitchen was needed and that the only place to build an efficient kitchen was at the rear of the hospital. Lack of adequate storage space, the proper placement of central supplies, the need of a nurses' locker room and adequate hot water and electrical supplies for the new wing meant that all these departments requisite space. It was decided that these units be built into the new wing.

"When these adjustments were made much of the proposed T-shaped wing at the front of the hospital would have been occupied, forcing a reduction in the available bed capacity," said Mr. Buchan.

"However, we had to have a basement in the new wing and with the present plan, the configuration of the ground makes it possible to have windows at ground level at the rear of the building, making it possible to locate centrally many of the maintenance departments without loss of bed capacity.

"All other plans had some major defect," said Mr. Buchan. "In this plan, alone, was it possible for us to have all the necessary and desirable features of the client plans with the money we have available."

Advantages of the present plan include isolation of the four departments in the northside projection, separation of the out-patient and emergency departments, provision for future expansion, and a more attractive and better-looking building until on a site farthest back from No. 2 Highway.

INCREASED FACILITIES

The four-storey projection to the north, to be located just west of the present entrance will house the X-ray department on the ground floor, and pediatrics ward on the second floor, increased operating room facilities on the third floor and increased obstetrical accommodation and delivery room facilities on the fourth floor.

Room is also available for still further projection of this wing in the future if necessary without disturbance to existing hospital buildings.

"Building on the front lawn of the hospital meant that any future westward extension would have required tearing down the present nurses' residence," said Mr. Buchan, "and we feel that that would entail unjustified expense. With the present plan for a westward extension we do not disturb the nurses' residence and leave ourselves considerable room for future extension."

Mr. Buchan pointed out, too, that the L-shaped plan for the front lawn of the hospital would have meant that patients on the inside of the building would have had to face on a courtyard.

"With the present plan patients in the rear of the building will have a view of the bay, while patients in front rooms will be looking out over hospital grounds," he said, pointing out at the same time that such construction places all patients at a maximum distance from the highway and the noisy passage of traffic.

LABOR-SAVING PLAN

Mr. Buchan also explained that in the new plan central location of the kitchens and laundry, and the installation of automatic trayvevor equipment for meals and dumb waiter service for sterilized goods, will result in increased savings through a reduction in staff and decreased maintenance costs. Elimination of ward kitchens on each floor and expensive food tables will reduce initial cost of such an installation.

Re-location of the supply department and store rooms will make it possible for suppliers to deliver products directly into the proper areas reducing handling costs.

Location of the present proposed buildings will also result in a minimum interruption in roads and driveways serving the hospital. The only road to be cut off a new road construction that would have been entailed had the new wing been located in front of the present hospital.

The new wing, to be built of reinforced concrete, will be constructed in such a way that another storey can be added in future if necessary.

"All water, heat, electric and elevator services will be designed to serve an additional floor through extensions that can be completed without disturbance to present construction," said Mr. Buchan.

Mr. Buchan stated that six fundamentally different plans had been studied thoroughly by the architects and the property committee and that the plan as approved by the executive committee yesterday "offers more for the money than any other."

HOSPITALS STUDIED

He stated that members of the property committee had visited other hospitals in order to assess the latest improvements in hospital design and construction. He noted, too, that the architects engaged in designing the new wing are among the most experienced hospital architects in Canada and bring to their work on the Belleville hospital experience gleaned from such recent achievements as the design of the Toronto General Hospital, the new Mt. Sinai hospital in Toronto and the Peterborough Civic Hospital.

The only portion of the hospital to suffer from the present improvements will be the entrance, which will remain as it is unless sufficient funds remain after construction, for modernization.

The parking area at the front of the present hospital will be improved by a paralleling system for visitors to the east end of the present building. A doctors' parking lot will be provided at the western end of the new extension.

Mr. Buchan expressed the conviction that careful study of the plans has resulted in a great saving to the people served by the hospital. He noted that there was no additional expense to the building committee in considering alternate plans and that the thorough planning of the building has resulted in the elimination of what might have proven serious and costly defects had construction proceeded according to any other arrangement.

COMMUNITY EFFICIENCY

"The whole aim of the committee in planning the new wing has been to get more patients into a fireproof building and provide for the best possible patient care with a maximum of efficiency at the lowest possible cost. We feel that the present plan provides us with everything we need and want and is the best plan for future growth of this hospital," said Mr. Buchan.

A radio interview of members of the firm of architects designing the new wing of the hospital, and of the hospital's board of governors, property committee and, public relations committee will be heard over radio station CJBQ this Saturday evening at 7 p.m.

Not marked on the above plan is a visitors' parking lot currently being levelled to the east of the existing building immediately north of the existing laundry, and a doctors' parking lot to the west of the new west wing.

The plan shown above provides for future expansion westward and northward without disturbing existing hospital buildings. Provision has been made for construction of an additional storey should same become necessary.

The new wing, which will provide maximum patient capacity at the present possible distance from Dundas St., is to be built of reinforced concrete and will be completely fireproof.

In co-operation with this newspaper.

All questions submitted are answered anonymously by members of the medical advisory board or special technical sections of the HEALTH LEAGUE.

The "Health League Question Box" grew out of questions submitted over the years to the Health League of Canada—a unique voluntary lay organization which enlists the advisory support of leading specialists in every field of medicine to combat preventable sickness by means of public education. All questions submitted to the "Question Box" are answered by medical or scientific experts and checked for accuracy by members of the specialized technical sections of the Health League.

The Health League, in presenting this weekly newspaper feature feature, hopes, by making good medical advice available, to counteract the bad advice on health matters freely offered by non-professional passersby and old wives. Readers are invited to submit questions to the above address. Of course, the "Question Box" cannot undertake to diagnose specific ailments by mail. However, all questions will be given courteous attention and answered as fully as possible.

HOT MEALS VS. COLD

Say "nutrition" to some people and they will answer "vitamins." Vitamins were all the rage during the 1920's and 1930's. One might have gathered from some of the food-conscious that the whole secret of scientific victorian sustenance was the way to live a long and sparkling life was to replace the kitchen with the medicine cabinet and subsist wholly on vitamin pills.

Nutritionists "of course. never expounded such shocking theories; they were generated by over-enthusiastic speed-readers. If nutritionists paid attention to nothing but vitamins nutrition could easily become as great a killer as malnutrition.

One should never underestimate the need of the human machine for vitamins, but one should also remember that too much poisoning, undulant fever and dental caries have come from food containing vitamins. A dose of vitamin A in a spoonful of potassium cyanide might cure one of night blindness but not in this world. Grass is rich in vitamins, but the human factory, Nebuchadnezzar to the contrary, cannot digest it.

COMBINATIONS VITAL

All these considerations are important in the study of nutrition. And there are many others. A nutritionist must be a physicist as well as a chemist.

The sister of the lady who submitted the following question has apparently been subjected at some time to an over-emphasis on vitamins, and may be surprised to learn that eating is a trickler business than it seems.

Question: "I have been having an argument with my sister about hot meals for children. Her children eat more or less the same foods mine do in the way of meats, vegetables, fruits, etc., only she serves her dinners cold, "picnic style," because she says her children prefer them that way and eat more. I have always been taught that there is no substitute for a hot meal, but she says its the vitamins, hot or cold, and it's all the same temperature by the time it's chewed up and swallowed. Who is right?

Answer: If we work in unison with body demands we give the body into the stomach at normal temperature. Digestion begins when the food reaches normal body temperature, 98.6 degrees F. Some foods are easily soluble, hot or cold, but if a 'solid, chewy food is eaten cold some of it will be passed to the intestines and wasted before it has time to reach digestion temperature.

PANACEA FOR ALCOHOLISM?

The following question, received by the Health League technical section on alcohol, seems almost to be hinting for an individual diagnosis, which is something the Health League Box must always avoid. The lady appears to want to be told her husband is not a victim of alcoholic disease. Two bottles of whiskey (plus or fifths?) over a weekend is not precisely "light" drinking, but a qualified doctor would have to see and talk to the man to determine whether it should be called "uncontrolled" drinking. Fortunately, however, the answer to the lady's specific question would be the same with or without accurate diagnosis.

Question: "My husband drinks more than is good for him. He doesn't go out on sprees with the boys, but he does drink at least two bottles of whiskey at home on weekends and gets quarrelsome and harsh with the children. Is there a pill I could put in his coffee or food to break him of this habit?"

Answer: You may have read of clinical treatments involving the use of antabuse. This is a complicated treatment which requires full consent and co-operation of the patient. Home use of any such drug could be dangerous. You should make an effort to have him seek advice from one of the public or private clinics that now treat these conditions.

Weddings

CINKANT — MOORE

Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, May 8th, at 2.00 p.m. for a very pretty wedding when the Reverend L. Irwin Hall, minister of the church, united in marriage before a background of tulips, daffodils, snapdragons and ferns, Shirley Marjorie Moore, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Donald Moore, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Moore, to Harry Anthony Cinkant, of Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coleman Cinkant.

The wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Mr. William Connor, M.A., who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Ida Darling, of Massassga, Ontario, who sang before the ceremony, "Because," and during the singing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You."

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. William Moore, the bride was charming in her floor-length bridal gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon tulle over taffeta, fashioned with bouffant skirt, fitted bodice topped by a lace jacket having long, pointed sleeves. A tiara of lily-of-the-valley held her floor-length veil of tulle illusion. She carried a bouquet of red roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. Bruce Moore, of Belleville, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, gowned in pastel blue nylon tulle over taffeta; Mrs. William Moore, Belleville, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Marge Cinkant, of Ottawa, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. The former was in yellow nylon tulle over taffeta, and the latter in mauve nylon tulle over taffeta. The attendants' gowns were fashioned alike with bell-shaped skirts and bouffant skirts, with lace jackets. They carried nosegays of spring flowers.

Mr. Robert Cinkant, of Ottawa, attended his brother, with Mr. Bruce Moore, of Belleville, brother of the bride, and Mr. Howard Cinkant, of Ottawa, brother of the bridegroom, acted as ushers.

For the reception, held at the bride's home, which was attractively adorned with spring flowers for the occasion, the bride's mother received in a gown of rosewood Swiss taffeta, black accessories and yellow orchid corsage. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in navy crepe with navy accessories and corsage of white gardenias.

For the wedding trip to New York City, the bride travelled in a pale blue ensemble, with rosewood top coat, accessories and corsage of navy feathered carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Cinkant will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Windsor, Peterborough, Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal.

Prior to the marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Bruce Moore, Sinclair Street; at a crystal shower, given by Mrs. Ross White and Miss Carol Shorey at the latter's home.

SAGRIFF—SODERBERG

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the scene of a lovely, double-ring wedding ceremony on Saturday, April 24th, at 10.00 a.m., when the Reverend J. J. Buckley united in marriage Clara May Ingerborg Soderberg, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbie E. Soderberg, to Charles Austin Sagriff, of Belleville R.R. No. 5, sgt. of Mr. P. Petersburg. The church was beautifully adorned with spring flowers.

Sister Wilhelmina provided the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Robert Burke, who sang, Schubert's "Ave Maria"; "On This Day O Beautiful Mother" and "The Wedding Hymn", before the ceremony, and during the signing of the register, "Oh Lord I Am Not Worthy."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her lovely gown of white, Chantilly lace in rose motif, fashioned with fitted bodice and bouffant skirt, featuring a qualot collar and long, sheath-like sleeves terminating in lily points. The tapering, bouffant skirt opened to a cascade of pleated nylon net. She wore a matching lace headdress and finger-tip veil, and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and white lace on ribbon.

Mrs. W. Trumpour, of Belleville R.R. No. 5, sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor was attired in yellow nylon net over taffeta with matching cape and gloves. She wore a headdress of yellow nylon tulle over taffeta and carried a nosegay of goldilocks sweetheart roses, orchid pom pom mums, white hyacinth florets and yellow gladioli tied with feather-edged streamers.

Mr. Michael Holland, of Belleville, cousin of the bride, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Vincent Sagriff and Mr. Patrick Holland, both of Belleville, were ushers.

The wedding dinner was held at Colden Arms Tea Room, Bond Road, where the bride's mother, wearing a navy blue suit, with white accessories, and wide shoulder of Bellerose tone roses, received the guests. She was assisted by Mrs. Sagriff who was attired in navy blue with white accessories and corsage of Bellerina roses.

The toast to the bride was proposed by her father Herbie, and responded to by the bridegroom.

For the wedding trip to the Thousand Islands, the bride donned a grey suit with navy and white accessories, and corsage of Bellerose roses. Mr. and Mrs. Sagriff are residing in Belleville.

Guests were present from Toronto, Kingston, Enterprise, Wellington, Deloro, Frankford and Hawkestock.

No Signs Yet Of Singer Losing Voice

By ALEX DIMEO

Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Six years ago a doctor warned Jeanne d'Arc Charlebois she would lose her voice if she continued to sing in the style that made her an international favorite.

But since then the statuesque Montreal-born leader of international Canadian troops in Germany, worked for network television in Paris and appeared at New York's famed Palace theatre.

Jeanne d'Arc combines banjos, trumpets and tap dancers, or sings humorous songs in a foghorn-like voice.

The doctor's warning was prompted by a tumor on her vocal chords.

SANG IN EUROPE

A Montrealer, Jeanne d'Arc appeared first at Canada's largest night club after returning to Europe and New York.

She seemed undisturbed at the possibility she might lose her voice almost anytime.

"I'll quit if I keep on singing for another four years or so until my children grow up," she explained, she said. "Then I'll want to be around to help with his homework."

But this doesn't mean the Guimond-Gallery husband, Lt.-Col. Olivier Guimond—will be out of show business completely. Her husband is "Ti-Zoune," a French-speaking comedian who has made a name for himself in Quebec and Montreal.

Her two children, Richard, 2, and Marc, 10 months, may not be headed for entertainment careers but Jean d'Arc says they're "good little troopers."

She took both of them on her European tour.

"I took a maid along and she and the children stayed in hotels while I worked, I'd arrange to spend as much of my time as I could with them, so we all had quite a time."

The children, however, will not join with Jeanne for a tour of Japan this spring. She plans to spend six weeks there with the Canadian forces and perform visit other Asian countries. She will return to Canada for a few weeks and then go off to France again.

"French television is wonderful" she says.

"There are no long, drawn-out rehearsals. They report to the studio about 15 minutes before broadcast time, look their lines over, get a few tips from the director and that's it."

She's an old hand at television, having appeared on New York and Montreal network shows.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

This year, the boys everywhere have started something new in the form of chain letters. Basis of the chain game is to mail a fishing plug to the name at the top of the list and keep the chain going by sending the required number of letters to other friends. A friend of ours is already quite embarrassed. It seems he sent only a 50c plug. Within a few days, he has received no less than 11 new plugs, each of which is more valuable than the one he sent. Some must have cost the senders two or three dollars. It's a real game for fishermen and quite a catch. Get your husband to start a plug chain.

APPLE PIE

If you were told to go out into your own kitchen and bake a fresh apple pie without any apples, could you do it? We could. Because we've just been given the recipe And it's delicious.

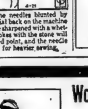
Follow these instructions carefully. The pie filling will look like an awful mess before it's baked, but don't let that worry you. It comes out fine.

Line your pie with bottom crust (uncooked). Keep aside an upper crust. . . Boil together for two to three minutes, 1½ cups water, 1½ cups sugar, 1½ teaspoons cream of tartar. Set aside to cool. (make sure you let it cool.)

On unbaked pie crust in the pie plate place 8 to 12 soda crackers, each broken into quarters. Dot with one teaspoon margarine (you can use melted margarine to dot). Sprinkle over 1 teaspoon cinnamon.

Pour cooled liquid over all. Cover with top crust. Bake at 400 degrees for 25-40 minutes or until top crust is brown.

RUBBERS



There are new children's low rain rubbers in gay colors which are fastened over the instep to fit two or three sizes of shoes. They won't tear and wear like steel. Cost 98c

BI-LINGUAL NATION

Maybe officially, but do you know that there are actually 70 different languages and dialects spoken in Canada? This fact comes from the Upper Canada Bible Society which is currently collecting funds to distribute more Bibles to more and more people.

Uncle Frontenac says one of the rarest birds these days is one who doesn't owe a cent to anybody.

Mrs. Frederick, Trent Road, was hostess on Thursday afternoon for an interesting meeting of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid.

A challenging devotional period was conducted by the program committee, Mesdames Elgwidge and Simpson, assisted by Mrs. Lang.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HER UNHAPPINESS MANIFESTS ITSELF IN STRANGE FEARS

Dear Miss Fairfax: Because of insecurity can mean different things in many ways, I often take strange forms.

In the case of a woman who married at 18 to marry an unhappy home situation, her insecurities and fears have translated themselves into a dread of fire.

"I live in fear that the house will get on fire," she writes. "I won't go to bed at night unless my husband is here to check everything for fear I will leave something on the fire, or won't get the keys of the stove turned off hard enough, and the house might get filled with gas. I check and recheck the gas fires and then worry for fear they are not all right. I am afraid the lampshades might catch on fire and the bulbs under them are on. I am in constant fear that my little girl will get her clothes on fire and get burnt. My child is my whole life, my only interest on this earth, and my life is obsessed with doing things for her and getting things for her. I have a constant fear that she will get hurt, or that she'll feel hungry, or want something she doesn't get, and I am always feeling as though I am wronging her, although actually I know that I am a more conscientious mother than most."

Now the background of all this lies in the fact that such an unhappy marriage was superimposed on top of that unhappy and insecure childhood.

"My husband lies to me and constantly shows in every way that he cares nothing at all for me," is the way she sums up the situation, adding that, "he says he loves me, but actions speak louder than words. What is wrong with me that my parents didn't love me and that now my husband doesn't love me?

"I can't leave my husband because my child loves him and needs him, and it would break her heart if I took her away from him. Furthermore, I have no place to go and no one to care for her if I had to work.

"Physically I am in good health, because I had a complete check-up, and I know my fears are within me. But what am I to do? I feel hopelessly defeated. Can this be the cause of my peculiar actions, or is it my nerves or mind? I have read that when married people live together after they quit loving each other, mental illness often follows."

First, let me try to put this distraught woman's fears at rest on the score of her last statement. I can assure her that mental rest on the score of her last statement. I can assure her that mental illness by no means necessarily results from continuing to live with a marital mate one no longer loves. Many more nervous wear and tear a person undergoes in such a situation depends entirely upon his or her own attitude.

It is certainly true that if, for example, a wife keeps herself in a state of ferment and upheaval over the fact that she is living with a husband she no longer loves, she may damage her nervous and mental health to a serious extent. But if, on the other hand, she takes the attitude that, during the period while she is trying to come to a decision about what she shall do, she will do her best to hold her emotions in check, she generally comes through all right. So I hope this wife will cease worrying on that one score, at least.

As for her problem in general, she definitely needs the guidance of someone right at hand to help her understand herself and also to help her figure out what the best thing would be to do in regard to her relationship with her husband. It takes an expert to ferret out the source of fears such as are torturing this woman, and a marriage counselor, psychologist or psychiatrist would be the one to do the job, I suggest that, if at all possible, she consult such a person, who will listen sympathetically and with understanding to all the details of her unhappy childhood and marriage, and show her how her fears can be dispelled and her prospects bright to satisfaction. This, I am sure is the answer to her present desperate plight.

If she is willing to do this, but does not know how to find the right person, I wish she would write me a personal letter so that I can send her a direct reply, and I will try to make further suggestions.

Above all, "hopelessly defeated" though this woman may now feel, she does not need to remain that way. There definitely is help for anyone who will seek it, and follow it up.

ANSWER: You need not have apologized for your letter. I thought you were a pet. Here goes 1) creamed salmon on toast or chicken on toast with dainty little green salad, 2) Scotch woodcock (process cheese on untoasted side of 1 slice of bread, with 2 or 2 strips bacon, broiled) and celery hearts. 3) Clam Chowder with rye toast and tomato jelly mould on lettuce 4) Meat sandwiches, chicken salad, bran muffin, dill pickle. 5) French toast and crisp side bacon and carrot strips, hot cocoa.

For the lunch box: 1) Cold baked beans with fat on that meat is on both sides of one rib; white cheese and jelly whole wheat sandwich; sweet pickles; apple pie, cheese, coffee 2) Corned beef whole wheat sandwiches with lettuce and mustard; dill pickle; hard-cooked egg; fruit cup, chocolate brownies. 3) Hot cream of tomato soup on vacuum bottle; individual homemade beef or chicken pie; celery hearts; orange, cookie 4) Fried chicken leg and thigh; lettuce and white cream cheese, whole wheat sandwich; strips of raw carrot, cucumber and green pepper, banana, fig bars, hot cocoa. 5) Sliced pickled tongue and lettuce sandwich on whole wheat, cole slaw, apple turnover, Swiss cheese, coffee.

I hope these ideas help. When you have worn them thin write again.

QUESTION: I am a business girl who has just acquired a new stove with a fully automatic oven and would appreciate if you could give a few menus for oven dinners (for two persons) . . . enjoy your articles roc calorie watchers of which I am one. . . . D. F. F.

ANSWER: You certainly came to the right source. My two sisters have an automatic oven and use it to perfection. They say to walk in the front door and smell dinner cooking is next best to having another there. I phoned my sister Peady, read her your letter, and she told me the menus she had prepared in the oven during the past week. 1) Veal cutlet with 2 cup undiluted tomato soup over, 1 small baked potatoes. She heated in top of double boiler small can of corn niblets and served fresh fruit cup and cheese and crackers for dessert. 2) Baked chicken breasts, casserole of rice and mushed broccoli, casserole of beets, (parboil and peel these, then quarter, add 1 tablespoon each sugar and butter,salt and pepper), baked apples. Oven temperature 350 deg. for 1 hour. 3) Meat loaf, glazed carrots (parboil carrots 10 minutes before adding glaze and putting in covered casserole), coarsely diced parboiled potatoes in cheese sauce (white) fruit cup. Oven temperature 350 deg. Fahr. 1 hour.

For the rice casserole use ½ cup regular long-grain rice, ½ cup boiling water, 1/3 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon butter. Put in covered casserole. It will swell, cook and each grain will be distinct and delicious.

QUESTION: Our group wish to serve an evening lunch of fruit salad plate. Would you please tell me what amounts we need for 50 ladies. We will use 10% oz. tins. . . . please give amounts in ounces. Tinned fruits are peaches, pears, cubed pineapple and apricots. . . . also ½ bananas sprinkled with maraschino cherry, stuffed prune and possibly cheese ball. How many heads lettuce . . . E. H.

ANSWER: Two things I want to be sure to say: 1) spread the banana pieces with mayonnaise sparingly then roll them in nuts. Otherwise nuts won't stick and bananas will darken. 2) Be sure to serve cheese ball or wedge of Gruyere. Fruit salads made with canned fruit need it. You will need 6 big heads of lettuce to get 50 perfect cups. You will have waste here but the ladies can take imperfect leaves bonnes. Cut out core and flood water through bottom to gently loosen leaves, then dry them thoroughly. Figures on pieces of fruit in 10% oz. tins are approximate because size of fruit varies. Peaches 23 halves per can; apricots 61; pears 20; pineapples slices 43. Use one-half piece of all but pineapple; ¼ slice pineapple.

SHOULD SHE GIVE A SHOWER?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I have just seen the announcement in the newspaper of the engagement of a friend of mine. We are both close friends, and as a matter of fact, I have not seen her in the last six months. However, will it be proper for me to write her a letter to wish her luck?

2. Also do you think it would be proper for me, and a few friends of mine, to give her a shower?

C.C.

1. Yes . . do write this engaged girl a note, telling her how delighted you were to read the happy news of her engagement, and wishing her every good wish for her happiness.

2. Correctly a shower should be given by an intimate friend of the bride-to-be, or by a group of her intimate friends. Since you do not know the engaged girl very well, it would be better to tell her, or write you the news of her engagement after it was announced publicly. . .and since I judge also that the group of your friends you would invite to such a shower are not close friends of the bride-to-be, I do think it would be quite inappropriate for you to give her a shower. However, her reply or appreciation for your note of good wishes may give you a better lead as to whether or not you should be the giver of closeness-of-friendship.

FAMILY GREETING CARD SIGNATURE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have one child, a boy of six. When I send greeting cards for any occasion, from my husband, our child, and myself, should I sign them "Mary, John, and Tommy"? That is, our son's name first. I thought this was correct, but I've been told that a child's name should come first.

Wife-and-mother

When a child's name is included in the signature with the parents' names, the father's name comes first, then the mother's name . . .and last, the child's name. For example: John, Mary, and Tommy.

MEANINGLESS TO HAVE MONOGRAM ENGRAVED ON ENVELOPES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our cousin sent me for a birthday present this week a wonderful big box of writing-paper, two sizes, letter-paper and note-paper. She had it beautifully engraved with a monogram, and the store enclosed the monogram-die. Only the paper was monogrammed, and I am wondering if it would be correct for me to have the envelopes also engraved with this monogram die—that is, on the flaps of the envelopes, and myself?

No, . . .not correct to have the envelopes monogrammed. And it would be meaningless on enclopes. If you particularly wish you may have another die made with your address, and have this engraved on the back of the envelopes. Or, more usual, write your return address on the envelopes when it is necessary.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

THE DOUBLE CHIN

Middle age is likely to bring its own beauty problems. Facial tissues are not quite so firm as they used to be. Perhaps you have neglected your beauty routine or you didn't start it early enough. Wrinkles, for instance, should be treated before you get them. A little foresight will forestall old Father Time, the enemy of youthful appearance.

That little fullness under the chin is a sign, a portent, a signal that the chin is about to take unto itself a mate.

How come? Negligence in watching the bathroom scales, for one thing; overindulgence in the good things of the table, too much fat or too many starchy elements in the diet; dipping into the bonbon box between meals. Those outlaw curves on the body can be corseted, strapped down and camouflaged, but that antipose below beneath the chin is right there in the open for every one to see. Don't let it happen to you!

Molding, two chins into a state of single beauteousness can be done all the time in beauty shops—that is, when the customer is mindful of diet, avoids elements that are fattening. These treatments can be self-administered. The candidate for better facial contour must not expect results in a hurry. But, with care, neater lines can take the place of fullness south of the jaw line, in the course of time.

After a soapy face washing, a warm rinsing, a thorough drying, spread a heavy massage cream over face and neck. With thumbs and first fingers pick up the excess flesh and roll it firmly. Pinch lightly from each side. Pat, using the knuckles of the first finger, on either side of the sparse chin, iron outward with the fingers. Do brisk tapping and slapping.

While the cream remains on drink an ice cube over the flesh. There's nothing like chilling the tissues to make the blood streams bring nourishment to the tissues and harden them.

Coming-Out Party Ends On Quiet Note

By FERN RICH

LONDON (Reuters)—There was nary a mouse in the house, and little of other traditional mischief, at this year's coming-out party for London's debutantes last night.

Last year a flock of demure debs in white gowns and gloves released an army of equally dazzling mice, to the consternation of the Duchess of Gloucester who presided at the annual Queen Charlotte's Ball.

But last night more than 1,000 guests, anticipating excitement at any moment, were slightly disappointed. The only unconventional gate-crasher was a toy zebra who came to-the plush ball tied to the shoulder strap of Miss Susan Clark's gown.

"I never face any ordeal without Baron Mathew Van Cinzano," she explained.

DEB DIDN'T SLIDE

Another deb, Elizabeth Webb-Brown, had fully intended to make her formal entrance by sliding down the elegant bannister. The idea was not received kindly and she walked down, sedately, with her friends.

Escorts for the ball-were carefully screened this year by the mothers, who took extra pains to keep the "wolves" on the other side of the door.

The ball ended without mishap at 1 a. m. But most of the girls disappeared into night clubs and didn't get home until dawn.

BELLEVILLE INDUSTRIAL, HOME AND

Basements And Sidings

By "Home Builder"

There are several important considerations in the construction of a basement and the erection of the framework of a house with which the prospective home builder should be familiar. To those having their home built by a contractor, such considerations might seem unnecessary.

However, there are certain building specifications which must be followed when building with National Housing or Veterans Land Act assistance. Sometimes building inspectors are too busy to check all jobs as often as they would prefer and for this reason alone it is best for the prospective home-owner to be well versed in the different sizes, grades and types of materials as well as the building practices which will be used in the construction of his home.

Such knowledge will enable him to assess accurately the work of the work contractor while satisfying himself that construction is progressing favorably and according to requirements.

PREVENTS DELAYS

Such co-operation between the builder and the home owner may prevent delay in actual construction not to mention delays in the receipt of progress payments from a mortgage company or worse still, delays for replacement of faulty workmanship.

There are 1001 things that can go wrong in the construction of a house. It is of prime importance that the home builder have a good set of working blueprints and specifications; that he should understand them and whether or not he is building the house himself, refer to them at every phase of construction to avoid guess work. If in doubt the prospective home builder should consult the local building inspector or a well-informed builder or architect and avoid sidewalk superintendents.

The foundation for your home may be built of concrete block, solid concrete, or both. Block foundations are more economical and if properly coated on the outside, make a satisfactory job. Be sure block has a pressure test and are of uniform size. If using solid concrete be sure the proper proportion of cement and gravel is used.

MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS

A minimum thickness of nine inches is required by most building laws for the basement wall under most homes. The size of the concrete footing under the wall depends on the type of soil on which it is resting, but for average size is 16 by 6 inches. The proportion of gravel and concrete in the ordinary type foundation should not be less than one part cement to six parts of sharp sand and two parts of sand and four parts of crushed stone up to two inches in size to one part of cement by volume.

On completion of the concrete block foundation wall a plaster consisting of one part of cement to three parts of sand and 15 per cent lime by volume is applied over the exterior of the blocks and coned where the footing meets the wall. An asphalt foundation coating should be brushed over this application from footing to grade level. Only an asphalt covering is required with a solid concrete wall. The concrete mix for the plastering of the blocks is the same as that used for mortar except that it is mixed to a plastering consistency.

CHOOSING FLOOR JOISTS

On top of the foundation wall, and resting on a flat wood sill of 2 x 4 or 2 x 6 planks, are the floor joists. The size and spacing of the joists depends on the span from one bearing wall to another. For example, a maximum joist span of 12 feet will require floor joists of 2 x 8 at 16 inch centres. These joists are doubled at all parallel partitions and around all openings. They are held in place by rows of 1 x 2 cross bridging not over 12 inches apart.

Over the floor joists, and the sub floor is laid diagonally. It is usually a tongue-and-groove spruce flooring grade lumber about ¾ inch thick.

The structure above the sub floor requires 2 x 4's for the exterior and interior partitions and more floor joists. The usual spacing for studding is at 16 inch centres unless the partition is a bearing wall in which case 12 inch centres are required. Studs are doubled at all corners and window and door openings and a single 2 x 4 will suffice for a sole plate are required on all partitions.

STRUCTURALLY STRONG

The size of the upper floor joists and the rafters may be obtained from tables compiled by National Housing and V.L.A. and must be followed closely.

It is important that all materials used be structurally strong and of the right size. The tables previously referred to cover all framing members of a house and are calculated for the protection of the home owner and to insure that his house will last him a lifetime.

It is important, too, that correct bracing, supporting and tying together of the building be obtained if the house is to withstand the wear and tear imposed by nature as well as human elements.

The ¾ inch thick roof sheathing is applied longitudinally on the rafters and 210 pound asphalt shingles on top of this insure a sturdy, weather-resistant roof. It is important to follow the manufacturers' instructions when applying asphalt shingles so as to avoid short cut methods and cheap types of application.

Exterior wall sheathing is important, too. A builder may use lumber for this job applied either longitudinally or diagonally, the latter being stronger but more costly. However, a number of prepared exterior sheathing boards are now on the market. These boards are weather-resistant, economical, good vapor seals and insulators.

EXPENSE SAVINGS

The use of prepared sheathing offers the builder a saving on the initial cost of material, the cost of labor in erecting it, and the absence of a certain amount of wastage as is the case with lumber.

However, there is no economical substitute for lumber in the structural part of the house—that is in studs, joists and rafters. It should also be remembered that prepared sheathing may be used only under brick and such sidings as can be nailed through the sheathing to the studs.

The actual framing of this type do not hold a nail. Sidings such as Insl Brik and Celotex require wood sheathing or furring strips while wood sidings are frequently applied over plain or sheathing.

The most common species of structural lumber in use today are (1) hemlock, which is structurally strong, holds a nail well and is reasonable in price. (2) Spruce, which is structurally very strong holds the nail satisfactorily but is more expensive than hemlock and (3) lower grades of pine which are not as strong structurally but otherwise equal to hemlock and spruce.

Western fir is expensive due to shipping charges but is often used in long lengths in other woods are not available. Its structural strength is excellent.

Before leaving the subject of framing it should be emphasized that care be taken when placing the floor joists and studs to make allowances for the work of other trades. Be sure plumbing, heating and wiring sub contractors are contacted before framing begins to avoid added expense and unnecessary cuttings and changing.

Patio May Be Surfaced With Concrete Squares

By J. RALPH DALZELL
Author of Books on Home Building and Repair

Attractive and serviceable grid patio floor can be made of concrete and wood. The illustration shows a portion of such a floor at X. Part Z shows one of many possible patterns. Concrete may be plain or colored, and the top edges of the wood plain or painted.

The simple pattern shown at Z is practical and easy to build. We assume the area is nine by twelve feet. Three-foot squares create the pattern.

EXCAVATE

The surface is generally flush with the lawn, so excavation is needed. Excavate about two inches deeper than the 2x4s in clay soils, and fill this depth with well-tamped cinders or gravel. In cold climate this will tend to prevent frost cracking. No cinder or gravel bed is necessary in sandy or rocky soils. Make sure the excavation is bed is level, and use a carpenter's level on a long straight 2x4 to check it.

BUILD GRID

Buy kiln-dried 2x4s. To prevent the wood from absorbing moisture and swelling and shrinking, which will result in cracks, seal all wood with shellac. The two end 2x4s AD and BC are exactly nine feet long. The side 2x4s, AB and DC are 12 feet minus the thickness of the two end 2x4s. See dimension d. The 2x4s at EF and GH are also twelve feet long minus the thicknesses of two 2x4s at the ends. The short 2x4s such as IJ, are three feet long minus one and one-half thicknesses of the 2x4s. See dimension e.

Assemble the pieces in the excavation as at Z. Assemble outside pieces first, then nail in pieces EF and GH, and finally the short pieces, such as IJ. Nail the butt joints (at U) with three-inch nails.

After assembly drive three-inch nails at eight-inch intervals from the outside of 2x4s AB, BC, CD and DA shown at W. Drive one nail near the top, as at g, and another near the bottom, at h. Alternate along the 2x4s. Drive nails just far enough so their sharp ends break all outside 2x4s (EF, GH and IJ) drive three-inch nails about eight inches apart alternately from the sides of the 2x4s. See a and b in Y. The nails tend to prevent the concrete and forming cracks.

POUR CONCRETE

Check the grid for levelness and correct any fault. Use a concrete mix of one part cement, two parts sand and four parts crushed rock. Your dealer will tell you how much you need from the dimensions of the patio floor. Fill one square at a time.

For a rough surface, fill to the top of the grid. Push a 2x4 across the tops of 2x4's as shown at R. Then smooth with a board. For a smooth surface, fill to within an inch of the tops of the 2x4 grids. Mix one part cement and three parts sand, and add color if you like. Level the tops with a steel trowel. Place this topping within an hour after the concrete has been placed. Clean off any topping or concrete from the 2x4s.

Stains Popular For Fir Plywood Wall Finishing

Fir plywood panels can be finished to match any decorative scheme but a popular finish is use of stains to soften the grain contrast yet retain friendly beauty of the natural wood.

Water clear lacquer can also be used to create a gleaming natural finish which does not darken appreciably. Apply successive coats of lacquer slightly thinned and use steel wool between coats. Then wax the surface to bring out deep, warm, Douglas fir plywood grain.

Wipe down wax stain and allow a few minutes for the stain to penetrate. Now wipe down to the right shade. Some manufacturers offer clear stain wax that can be used to retain natural grain pattern and texture or can be tinted with delicate colors.

The attractive "blond" wood effect can be obtained readily with a wiped-down white undercoat. The plywood panel should then be sanded and finished with a coat of white shellac or flat varnish.

In fact all types of woodwork paints, stains, varnishes and enamelt can be applied with success if proper methods of application are followed. For paints and enamels a good primer coat is recommended.

Floor Finishes Need Solid Base Of Fir Plywood

The expendable stilts you've been using to finish will need good floor covering. Linoleum, wall-to-wall carpet or asphalt tile could be the answer.

Whichever you choose, the resilient surface needs a good solid base. Manufacturers of such floor covering often recommend fir plywood. The large Douglas fir panels come in 4 by 8 foot sheets that cover floor areas quickly.

The joint-free panels give a solid, durable base, with the smoothest surface for floor coverings and the result is a better looking floor.

Open shelves in kitchen, utility room or bathroom can easily be dressed up with permanent Douglas fir plywood edges cut to desired design and painted to match the room.

closet and flush tank during hot weather?

A.—It can't be prevented during humid weather. Cold flush water lowers the air temperature next to the closet and the humid air deposits its moisture on the enamel.

FIRST BABY

Do you remember when your first-born was put into your arms? There are few moments in all of life which can compare with that experience. There are none greater!

Mother forgets the long months of waiting, the hours of child birth in the joy of feeling this warm, vibrant little bundle, with the soft hair, the long lashes sweeping the delicate pink cheek, the miniature nose and mouth. She slips one of her fingers into a tiny shell-like palm, and baby's fingers close tightly around hers.

"I had no idea a new baby was so small!" a young father said recently. "But when I looked through the hospital nursery glass at my son asleep in the tiny crib, did I ever feel big!" Many a father is almost as relieved as a mother, that the baby is safely born and is perfect in every way. If father had been counting on a boy, and a daughter arrives, any scene of disappointment soon disappears. Little girl babies have ways of casting a spell over their fond fathers!

LOVELY WISH

One of the loveliest of good wishes for a child's future appeared in "Antony, A Record of Youth" by The Earl of Lytton. Anthony writes these lines to Lady Gage, after the birth of her son. "May all the best things in the world be his always, and life fall on his shoulders like a brave, rich, and beautiful cloak."

"The best things in the world" —all parents want just that for their children, and whether or not boys and girls will receive the heritage depends to a great extent upon the character and ideals of the parents. The mother or father must try to be what they want their children to become, because example is so much more effective than precept.

A well-adjusted, happy successful individual usually comes from a home where parents enjoy their children. It is not easy to enter imaginatively into their joys and sorrows and try to understand the reasons for desirable or undesirable behaviour. A good parent views problems objectively and not with a personal or emotional bias.

FOUR DOLLARS WEEKLY

In a recent book Mary Lincoln, Biography of a Marriage by E. B. Randall, there is a chapter "Four Dollars A Week" in the unemployed life of the future president of the United States.

The author writes:

"One can picture the anxiety in the deep-set eyes at the birth of his first-born, and then their lighting with the joy of father-hood. A basic human experience had come to the Lincolns to bind them together; but the event over which perennial miracle of a newborn baby, flesh of their flesh. From this time on the name "Molly" disappears from the record. Sometimes Lincoln called her playful pet names like "Puss", "child-wife", or "little woman", but mostly after this he called her "Mother".

Frede Newton Bunner, a Canadian poet who is the mother of three children has echoed the emotions of many parents as they look down on the lovely little form of their baby in a thoughtful lines which are quoted by special permission:

NEW-BORN

This is our child—at last!
The dream is ended in past.
And now he lies—a person—in my arms.
What have we done! What have we done!
Brought a new soul to birth,
To face a lifetime on this earth.
All lies ahead. And what's ahead?
Oh God! What glory, or what dread?
What can we do?
We are not wise enough, we two, We both each day.

Bright Newlyweds Parlaying Hunch Into Big Business

By DOROTHY ROE

NEW YORK (AP) — What interests most people most?

People, say Joan and Stuart Hoover, of Rowayton, Conn., a couple of bright newlyweds who are parlaying this hunch into a big business.

Examining current modes and moods, they noted several popular trends: (1) psychoanalysis, (2) television and (3) staying home.

This, decided Joan and Stuart, was the psychological moment to invent a parlor game including elements from each. The result is a game called "analysis."

It's a sort of panel quiz game, in which players try to guess the identity of a person, male or female, living or dead, real or fictional, through narrowing down descriptive categories. It's a board game, with cards, and any number may play. Says Stuart, who recently quit his advertising job to devote full time to his game:

"I got the idea one night while I was dressing for a date with Joan, before we were married. I was thinking of a ring from the Philippines, a coat made in Lee Angeles, and a hat from Italy, made in New York, and I happened to think that if I got hit by a car people would have a hard time figuring out where I lived.

"I mentioned it to Joan and we started figuring out just how a person's location could be established, and decided there were only four categories needed to describe anybody: geographical location, profession, personality traits — that's where psychoanalysis comes in and physical description.

SOLD FIRST GAMES

"Most of my courtship of Joan was mixed up with the game. We worked out the descriptive words for each category, and it turned out the first sets from home, getting the cards and boards printed by a local printer, and then last fall Joan and I went to nearby stores and sold them a few games apiece.

Our friends all took it up and started plugging it. All of a sudden we started getting orders from stores in other towns. Now we've taken over a little factory in Norwalk, Conn., and the going looks great."

Joan and Stuart analyze their rapid success this way:

"Everybody who watches a TV quiz always thinks he knows the answers before the panelists do. Now every man can be a quiz master in his own living room."

CAMPBELLFORD
'Retail Grocery Business' Talk Heard at Rotary

CAMPBELLFORD — A classification talk on the retail grocery business by Hector Macmillan occupied a portion of the noon luncheon meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club here on Monday.

Mr. Macmillan, who operates a grocery business in the town, told of the problems involved in operating such a business, and the methods employed to make it a success.

Rotarian William McComb gave a report on the district convention held in Toronto on May 3, saying that 55 out of 60 district clubs were represented.

The delegates were entertained by Ray Tippett, district governor-elect.

To guide this precious life we have begun.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

GAPING AND REGURGITATING

The gaping of a person is due to yawning, staring open-mouthed, or giving an imbecile look of inconprehension by simply letting down the lower jaw. Owing to their physical construction and habits, birds have other reasons for gaping, and probably the adult cormorant has the best one of all—its nostrils were closed at an early age.

It is therefore quite usual to see a group of these large, dark, long necked birds all sitting with their mouths open, because this is the way they breathe. Why Cormorants have no external nostrils is one of nature's secrets. ut we may guess. Perhaps it is so that they will not have to hold their noses when they dive into the water for their fish dinners!

Nature has given us sweat glands, and when we are too warm these glands throw out moisture to cool the skin. Animals have different cooling systems...

You must be well acquainted with the appearance of an overheated dog. His tongue lags out and drips. But birds have no sweat glands, and their tongues are not long enough to hang out. Instead, they open their bills and pant.

NOT REALLY ILL

It is therefore not alarming to see Mrs. Robin on a hot day with her bill open, and panting. She is really not ill.

Birds also open their mouths quite often for the purpose of regurgitating. But this does not mean that they are sick. They have other very valid reasons. Great blue herons, pelicans, gannets, vultures, and wood ibises are all said to regurgitate food if startled, the reason being to lighten themselves for flight. However, even nesilings sometimes regurgitate their food when alarmed.

The American ornithologist, T. Gilbert Pearson, told of attempting to climb a tree to see into the nest of mourning doves. The young birds were so frightened that they disgorged on to him fragments of their last meal of insects.

Very young birds cannot assimilate solid food any more than can very young children, and so they are often half partly digested food. A great variety of vessels use this method: goldfinches, eagles, herons, and so on.

Strangely enough, a number of them are fish eaters. Baby pelicans put their bills way down inside their mother's to get dinner; but for 2½ weeks parents have bills too short for that. Until they can reach down the parent's throat predigested fish is dropped to them as the mother flies over the water. Other babies have to try to feed themselves.

Army Counsel Involves White House In Dispute

Testifying at the Senate investigation of the army-McCarthy controversy in Washington, D. C., Army Counsel John G. Adams, above, linked the White House with the development of the dispute, marking the first time that the top office of the executive had been involved in the televised hearings. Adams told the Senate subcommittee that President Eisenhower's chief adviser, Sherman Adams, made the first official suggestion last January that the army prepare a documented report on pressures and threats by McCarthy and his staff for preferential treatment of Pvt. David Schine. This was six months before the army report became known and the present inquiry was ordered. — Central Press Canadian.

Space Stations Are Feasible Says Official

OTTAWA (CP)—The man who operates Canada's "flying saucer" observatory says space stations are feasible and he would not be surprised if there are already some in existence.

W. B. Smith, senior transport department radio engineer, said today that he personally has seen neither space stations nor flying saucers in the sky.

"But from what I know of research that is going on in the United States, I would not be surprised if some major power, such as the U. S. or Russia, has already constructed a space station," he said.

The question of the feasibility of space stations developed out of a Washington dispatch Thursday night in which space writer Donald Keyhoe, retired marine corps major, said the earth is being circled by one or two artificial satellites.

REPORT DRAWS DENIALS

Mr. Keyhoe, in a radio interview, said U. S. Air Force Secretary Talbott has personally seen a "large, shiny, disk-shaped object" in the sky and that Canadian government scientists have asked the Americans for the last two weeks to be especially alert in reporting radar station at nearby Shirley's Bay, Ont.

Mr. Talbott promptly denied ever seeing a flying saucer. Mr. Smith said the police to Canadian sky watchers appears to have been a normal action, following recent completion of new ground observer corps by the RCAF.

Mr. Smith runs the government's long-range radar station at nearby Shirley's Bay, Ont.

Are Afraid U.S.-French Talks May Be Blame-Fixing Fight

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Differences appear to be developing between the United States and France over Indo-China as Communist gains in that Asian war impose new strains on U.S. and French nerves.

Diplomatic authorities here are confessed about the danger of injury to French-U.S. co-operation in Europe as well as in the Far East.

The problem they foresee is how to keep forthcoming talks on the Indo-China policy of the two countries from turning into exercises in blame-fixing for the unfavorable course of the fighting.

The private talks are to take place in Paris initially between U.S. officials and French leaders. A French spokesman here said it is "imperative" to have the discussions in order to determine just what U.S. policy toward the Indo-China war is.

The talks will be concerned with the possibility of internationalizing the war, which means bringing a number of other powers into it, notably the United States, and with U.S. conditions for countering intervention.

State Secretary Dulles told French ambassador Henri Bonnet a week ago that conditions which Dulles had outlined in a recent speech were basic U.S. policy. Wednesday Bonnet notified Dulles that the French government, then facing a confidence vote, would like to consult with the U.S. government about the situation. The way was cleared when Premier Joseph Laniel got a narrow confidence vote Thursday night.

FULL FLEDGED FORCE

Meanwhile military reports make it clear that the Communists in northern Viet Nam are no longer operating as guerrillas but are a full-fledged military force. This puts enormous pressure on the French and U.S. governments.

The danger which some diplomatic experts now see is that the French government may manoeuvre to pin responsibility as far as possible on the U.S., and that U.S. officials may engage in recrimination against the French.

There is already evident in French quarters a tendency to talk about the failure of the U.S. administration to do anything but talk so far. There is a tendency to emphasize the U.S. turn-down of a French request for air aid in bombarding the Communist attackers of Dien Bien Phu last Easter. The French then argued that U.S. air strength could save the fortress.

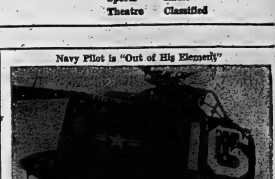
On the U.S. side there is a tendency to stress that the French were never willing to bring the United Nations into the war and never got a moral sanction for wider action.

Doctor Testifies Cough Medicine Gave Soft Glow

TORONTO (CP) — Cough medicine drunk by Dr. Ward Smith, director of the Ontario attorney-general's crime laboratory, gave him "a pleasant, mellow glow," he said in court Friday.

The doctor testified at the trial of a Toronto firm, Lusade Products Ltd., charged with "having and selling" intoxicating beverages. The cough mixture is an exhibit in the case.

Dr. Smith said he mixed the medicine with soft drinks and found the intoxicating effect double that of ordinary whisky.



Evidence was the medicine contained 56.4 per cent alcohol. Ontario standard liquors contain 26 per cent alcohol.

The case is continuing.

GUILTY IN SLAVE CHARGE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Two brothers were found guilty Friday night of holding Negroes in slavery. Sentencing was postponed until June 4. Fred N. Dial, 25, and Oscar Edwin Dial, 34, were convicted of conspiracy to hold Coy Lee Tanksly and Hubert Thompson in voluntary servitude by acts of violence, forcing the Negroes to work for them.

Navy Pilot is "Out of His Element"

Lieut.-Cmdr. Norman C. Eversfield of Victoria, B.C. and Toronto, is whisked from the gundeck of the destroyer HMCS Crusader by a U.S. navy helicopter off the east coast of Japan. Minutes later he was on the flight deck of the U.S. carrier USS Nendova, observing flight operations. The helicopter pilot was no novelty for Lieut.-Cmdr. Eversfield, who is veteran pilot of the RCN. — Central Press Canadian.

France's Grip on Tonkin Delta More Shaky Than Ever Since Fall of Dien Bien Phu

By BORIS KIDEL

PARIS (Reuter) — France's slender grip on the Tonkin delta, her last remaining foothold in northeastern Indo-China, has become more shaky than ever since the defeat at Dien Bien Phu.

With at least 80,000 Communists roaming in virtual freedom through the delta's 6,000 square miles, French staff officers admit freely that the situation in this rice granary is grim.

And they also concede that France would be unable to defend it singlehanded against an all-out Communist offensive.

But they still hope that the monsoon rains, which last until September, will avert an immediate Vietminh assault against the principal French bastions in northern Indo-China, Tonkin's capital Hanoi and its supply port Haiphong.

About 40,000 Communist elite troops with a powerful array of artillery and anti-aircraft batteries now are free to launch out against the delta after finishing off Dien Bien Phu.

GLEAM OF HOPE

The only gleam of hope is the belief that these troops were so badly mauled during the 57-day siege of Dien Bien Phu that they will need six or eight weeks replite before going into action against Hanoi, 180 miles from their present location.

By then, the French high command reckons, some solution may have emerged from the Geneva conference—either a cease-fire or internationalization of the war with direct American participation.

But meanwhile the estimated 75,000 French Union troops, the majority of them Viet Namese, are watching helpless the increasingly daring exploits of the Vietminh inside the delta. Whenever they venture out from their defence the Communists vanish among the brown-clad peasants tilling the soil.

FRENCH CONTROL LIMITED

Gen. René Cogny, the French commander-in - chief in northern Indo-China, is in fairly solid control of only the main cities, such as Hanoi, Haiphong, Kienan and Nam Dinh, in the rest of the vast delta plain, including the immediate outskirts of towns, the French hold is limited to their defence outposts and day-time control of the main roads.

When darkness settles over the hundreds of villages of the delta and the French Union troops have returned to their barbed wire-protected strongholds, the Vietminh rules most of the area. Communist ... surge from their local guerrillas in sabotage operations, in driving for new recruits among the villagers and in requisitioning rice and other food.

The whole weakness of the French position was shown up a few weeks ago when Vietminh commando units raided Hanoi's two airfields, Gia Lam and Bac Mai, and destroyed about 20 planes on the ground despite French security precautions.

REELS CUT LIFELINE

Another sign of French impotence is the fact that Vietminh regulars have been cutting vital has been given to such a move.

CHARGED

George Norgan, millionaire Vancouver distiller, is one of nine men, including two others from Vancouver, charged with evading $17,400,000 in taxes on profits made from the sale of Canadian whisky in the United States. Norgan is the owner of the Portland baseball club in the Pacific Coast League. (CP Photo).

Hanoi-Haiphong road communications almost nightly during the last three weeks. In fact the French authorities dare to use rail and road communications between the two cities only during daylight.

Gen. Cogny hasn't sufficient men to patrol in strength every inch of the road, to search and occupy the villages dotted along it, or enough bombers to raze to the ground the fortified Communist hideouts in the rice fields.

Premier Frost Must Take Rest At Lindsay Home

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost, of Ontario, under treatment for an old war wound in his left hip, is expected to leave hospital Sunday and has been ordered by doctors to spend a leisurely two weeks at his home in Lindsay.

Mr. Frost entered hospital last Thursday for treatment of a bullet wound he suffered in the Fifth Great War.

He said he has managed to carry on with much of his government business while in hospital and intends "to keep my fingers on things" while resting at his home about 65 miles northeast of Toronto.

Commenting on rumors around Queen's Park that a fall session of the legislature is being arranged, Mr. Frost said it is "wishful thinking."

Fortress Angel Alive and Well Says Report

HANOI (Reuters)—French nurse Geneviève de Galard Terraube, the "angel of Dien Bien Phu," is alive and well, according to Vietminh rebel authorities in control of the Indo-China fortress.

Nurse Monique Gilles said today she received this information Friday from a Vietminh officer after flying to the fortress to help evacuate the wounded. Nothing had been heard of the 29-year-old Geneviève, only woman in the fortress, since Dien Bien Phu fell to the rebels eight days ago.

Duplessis Says He Will Talk Over Income Tax

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis Friday held out hope for a settlement in the dispute with the federal government over income tax rights and indicated he is ready, under certain conditions, to discuss the issue with Ottawa.

Mr. Duplessis told his weekly press conference he is willing to talk over the situation with federal authorities "at an appropriate time, appropriate place and under proper conditions."

However, he declined to state what the "proper conditions" for the meeting would be.

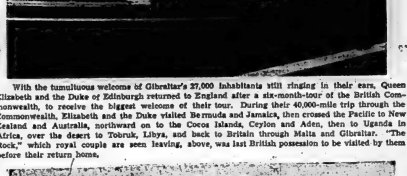
This was the first indication that a settlement was possible in the long-standing dispute that has resulted in Quebec residents being doubly taxed.

A new provincial income tax, equivalent to about 15 per cent of the federal tax, was made effect April 1. Only five per cent of it is deductible from the federal levy under the existing law.

Ottawa, while insisting on federal rights in the field of direct taxation, has said it is willing to talk over the situation.

Mr. Duplessis also announced the government has given out more than $9,000,000 in grants this year to universities and classical colleges.

The University of Montreal got $1,200,000 and McGill University $1,500,000. U. of M. will also receive grants for a huge diagnostic centre, to cost "several million dollars" and to be attached to the university's medical faculty.



Laval University in Quebec City received $1,000,000 in grants and a promise of $2,000,000 for its new faculty of medicine.

The grants are the first under the new income tax, which provides that $15,000,000 from the tax be spent on education, health and social legislation.

London Plans Biggest Celebration Since Coronation to Mark Return of Queen

With the tumultuous welcome of Gibraltar's 27,000 inhabitants still ringing in their ears, Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh returned to England after a six-month-tour of the British Commonwealth, to receive the biggest welcome of their tour. During their 40,000 mile journey around the Commonwealth, Elizabeth and the Duke visited Bermuda and Jamaica, then crossed the Pacific to New Zealand and Australia, northward on to the Cocos Islands, Ceylon and Aden, then to Uganda in Africa, over the desert to Tobruk, Libya, and back to Britain through Malta and Gibraltar. "The Rock," which royal couple are seen leaving, above, was last British possession to be visited by them before their return home.

Aboard the royal yacht Britannia as it steamed up the Thames to London, Princess Anne excitedly points out something of interest to undistinguished sailor at her side, while Prince Charles looks on, seemingly unimpressed. The young children joined their parents at Tobruk, North Africa, for the return journey home.

Thousands of Britishers travelled by train and special buses to Plymouth to watch arrival of royal family after their six months absence. In holiday mood, huge crowds weighing harbor approaches cheered nightly as this beautiful yacht slipped by the harbors. Overhead, squadrons of RAF planes dipped their wings in salute. The royal yacht Britannia anchored for the night in St. Anell Bay, then, the next day, sailed along the English coast and up the Thames for a royal welcome home in London. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

French Continue Evacuation Of Wounded from Fortress; First of 450 Already at Hanoi

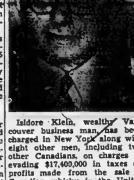
By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI (AP) — The French mobilized all available helicopters and light planes in Indo - China today to push the evacuation of seriously wounded from captured Dien Bien Phu.

The first contingent of the 450, who are expected to be flown out by agreement with the Communist-led Vietminh, arrived here by U.S. C-47 transport. Two eight wounded men included French paratroopers, Algerians and foreign legionnaires.

The French rushed helicopters and light monoplanes to Lungprabang, royal Laotian capital 115 miles southwest of the fallen base to proceed with the mercy lift. In Hanoi the French forbade any interviews with the wounded until possibly next week because of their "critical condition."

DELAY SPARKS RUMORS



The French said the helicopters from Dien Bien Phu was "blocked in" for hours by bad weather. The delay caused rumors that the Vietminh rebels were raising their price for carrying out the evacuation agreement reached between French and rebel negotiators at Dien Bien Phu Saturday.

But a French spokesman here denied knowledge of new rebel demands.

(Informed military and civilian sources in Saigon voiced fears today that the Vietminh commander, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, is trying to gain important military advantages from the evacuation operation. This interpretation stemmed from Giap's insistence that the French retreat from bombing 70 miles of strategic highway from Dien Bien Phu to Sonla, east of the Indo-China fortress. The Vietminh said their own wounded are to be moved along that route.)

As a result of French and Vietminh negotiations at Geneva, Giap agreed that 450 wounded men could be evacuated from Dien Bien Phu.

THE EVASION

Isidore Klein, wealthy Vancouver business man, has been charged in New York along with eight other men, including two other Canadians, on charges of evading $17,400,000 in taxes on profits made from the sale of Canadian whisky in the United States. Klein's brother, Hyman Harvey Klein, of Los Angeles, also has been indicted. (CP Photo).

Governor-General Sends Message To Her Majesty

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Vincent Massey today sent the following telegram to the Queen Elizabeth on her return to London from her Commonwealth tour:

"With my humble duty to Your Majesty I beg to send you on behalf on behalf of the people of Canada my deep, and heartfelt good wishes on the safe return of Your Majesty and His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh from your great and memorable Commonwealth tour which we have followed with so much pride."

JURY DISCHARGED

South Korea Making Little Or No Progress

By IAN STEWART

SEOUL (Reuters)—South Korea is making little or no progress towards a stable economy.

About $400,000,000 in the form of goods and cash has flowed into South Korea since the first relief programmes were formed in the early days of the war. But there is little to show for it.

On the credit side, trains are running again and there is some form of transport, communications and lighting in the main cities.

Brick dikes and ditches of bombblasted rice paddies have been rebuilt and enough farm tools and fertilizer imported to bring most of the pre-war agricultural areas back into production.

These steps paid off last autumn, when South Korea had her biggest rice crop in 12 years.

TWO TEXTILE MILLS HELD UP

Two textile mills are back in operation with 34,000 spindles imported by the United Nations Korea reconstruction agency, and cement briquette factories are in production, also with imported equipment.

As far as major rehabilitation projects are concerned, however, there is planning but no progress.

The planners agree that South Korea urgently requires power. South Korean power plants now produce 80,000 kilowatts an hour. This is not enough to light the country's homes, far less to provide power for its factories.

Congregation Rallies to Church's Cause

Four years ago the people of the village of Corona, Ont., worked hard to raise $13,000 to renovate Corona United Church, a handsome red-brick structure. No sooner was it finished, and admired, than the church burned to the ground. A month later Crononsleton raised $58,000 in a single day. Three months later they started rebuilding, two years ago they dedicated their new church, and on May 17 they're "burning the mortgage." Only there is no mortgage, and never has been. By faith and hard work, and not by mortgages, did the congregation raise the $87,000 necessary to rebuild the church. One of many hard-working members of the congregation, Harry Maxwell, is seen installing a stained glass window, while Mary Ann Armstrong looks on. (Central Press Canadian).

U.S. Air Force Chief Says Soviet Force World's Biggest

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Gen. Nathan Twining, U. S. Air Force chief of staff, says the Soviet Air Force "is by far the biggest in the world."

Twining makes the statement in an address he is scheduled to deliver here Saturday, marking Armed Forces day. Text of the address was released today.

Twining says Russia now has "thousands more combat planes" than all the U. S. services combined. He mentions no figures but recent estimates have set the total Russian air strength at 20,000 planes in active service and 20,000 in reserve compared with a total of 53,000 U. S. planes.

In this year's Moscow air parade, the Soviets "unveiled nine new medium jet bombers comparable in size and design to our own B-47."

"Even more significant, however, was the new heavy jet bomber that they displayed for the first time in flight. . . .

The general says the Reds' medium bombers can reach "any important target in Europe or Asia or North Africa."

"They would need the new heavy bomber only to reach important targets in the United States. . . .

"We still have a considerable lead over the Reds in long-range air power as well as in weapons that can be delivered by long-range air power. We can maintain this advantage if we are willing to pay the price in material resources and in the human resource of hard work."

CAMPBELLFORD

Board Unable To Make Decision On Insurance

CAMPBELLFORD — All members were present at the May meeting of the Public School board, Dr. W. W. Baker presided.

The resignation of Miss Ann Wilthun was accepted with regrets, and her name added to the list of supply teachers for the term, starting September 1st.

The application of Miss Marie Sharpe, at present teaching at Peterborough, was accepted to fill the Grade 1 vacancy. The secretary was asked to write a letter of thanks to the other applicants.

The board agreed to pay half the local Public School prize money for the Seymour Agricultural Society, as done in previous years.

The property chairman, Mr. Dennis, reported that bulletin boards had been constructed and placed in each of the rooms during the Easter vacation. Plans also were being made for a guard rail at the school corner and for sodding the southern bank.

Mr. Tatham, convener of the insurance committee, reported the findings from tenders submitted for insurance on the schools.

It was found impossible to make a decision on the insurance owing to several difficulties, and consequently five local agencies and the F. Cowan Insurance Co. of Woodstock were invited to tender again, giving quotations on tariff or non-tariff, maximum insurable value $305,562.50, as given by the Cooper Appraisal certificate. All tenders must be in the hands of the secretary by May 19, no tender acceptable after this time, and no tender is to be opened until after the stated time. A meeting will follow that evening and the lowest tender is to be accepted.

A letter from ten members of the Public School staff asked that their original request regarding maximum salaries and annual increment be considered again. The matter was left over until it could be studied further, but will be decided on May 19th.

A very gracious invitation from the staff to the board to be their guests at a supper to be given in their honor at 7 p.m. on June 2nd, just previous to the June meeting, was accepted with sincere thanks by the chairman, Dr. W. W. Baker.

Two Injured As Truck Turns Over in Gravel

CAMPBELLFORD — A Campbellford man was taken to hospital and another was shaken up late Monday afternoon when the truck they were riding in went out of control and rolled over, twice on the Campbellford Hastings road, two miles west of here.

Dante Pace, 28, driver of the light panel truck, is in Campbellford Memorial Hospital with a broken ankle, shock and bruises. His passenger, 25-year-old Eugene MacDonald, received a shaking up and bruises.

Pace, driving east along the gravel road in his delivery truck, was passing an east-bound car, and his vehicle skidded on loose gravel, when he tried to avoid a collision with an oncoming car driven by Cecil Bedell, of Campbellford.

The careening truck raised the Bedell car and turned over at least twice on the south side of the road. Pace was temporarily knocked unconscious. Heavy damage was caused to the truck which came to rest upside down and on its right side. The roof and left side were crushed and the right front fender and hood were flattened.

Flying gravel from the skidding truck damaged the paint on the front of Bedell's late model car.

Pace was taken to hospital by a passing motorist.

Some Hints on Culture of Roses

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

You have decided to plant a red rose. What red rose? You may ask. There are so many, it is difficult to decide which is the best. We asked local nurserymen which they considered the best. Most of them named two or three, or more. We will name a dozen which seem to be generally favored. However you may pick others and be quite happy in your choice.

Crimson Glory—a hybrid tea, everblooming rose. It has large, vivid, crimson blooms. It is considered the most famous of the red hybrid teas and is the highest rated in the American Rose Society.

Chrysler Imperial is the 1953 All-American Award winner. The Chrysler Company of Canada has planted 450 of these roses, in their administrative centre at Windsor, Ontario.

This is a well-balanced, compact bush. It has a five-inch bloom of velvety maroon opening to rich crimson.

NEW ROSE

Etoil de Belgium is a new red rose from Europe. It has large double blooms of bright red. Another species is Esa Harkness, National Rose Society winner for 1945. It is a free-blooming, very fragrant, rich crimson-scarlet rose.

OTHER HYBRIDS

Also in the hybrid tea is Flamingo, a double, high-centered rose in geranium red—a fragrant, gold medal winner. Mirandy also a general favorite is an award winner, and very dark red. Richly fragrant, this red rose slows up in very hot weather, but puts on a very fine display again in the fall.

New Yorker is a magnificent large red rose which keeps its color to the last petal. It blooms profusely from June to frost is fragrant, and good for bud and in flower.

Red Ensign a gold medal winner of the National Rose Society has a very large and double bloom a high center and is one of the most fragrant roses.

DISEASE RESISTANT

Queen of the Lakes is a Brownell hybrid. These are bred back to hardier than the average hybrid tea, and disease resistant. It has superb red buds opening to crimson blooms.

Red Duchess, considered the most fragrant of the Brownells, has a vigorous bush, four feet high, and fine foliage, which acts as a good background for the rose-red blooms. It is a very fragrant, prolific bloomer from June to heavy frost.

In the floribundas, Eutin will produce countless clusters of fine red roses, dark foliage and carmine red flowers. It blooms all season. Ming Toy, and upright bushy rose with large trusses of deep red roses, is fragrant too.

Do buy your roses from local growers. The plants are fresh, and are suited to local conditions. Plants bought from catalogues and from the bargain counters have been dug for months and stored in a basement. They have lost a lot of vitality, and in the case of the bargain counter rose have often lost their name.

Recently we talked to a man who bought twelve at 50 cents each. Now, three years later he has one of these roses, lett and has begun to develop a rose bed. A few plants each year which he is buying from local nurseries.

In many areas potted roses are offered for sale. These are ready to set into the ground and have been pruned and packed to minimize the shock of transplanting.

TO PLANT ROSES

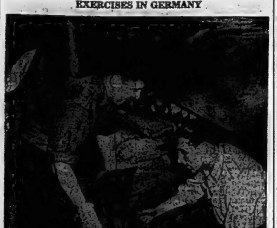
To plant your roses you will need to dig a hole 15 inches deep, and 15 inches wide. Of course, you have selected a sunny position where the roses will have lots of sun and air. Planted too close to buildings, or a solid fence, or wall they tend to develop mildew.

Clay soil suits most roses, though some do well in sandy soil.

Take the top soil and mix into it a half inches wide, or set the rose in the hole—the graft two to three inches below the soil surface—and pack around it several big handfuls of wet peat moss before filling in with top soil. Tramp down and water well.

See that there is a shallow depression around each plant to catch and hold rain. Hilled up soil will send the water to run off before it can soak into the roots.

Mix two cups of dried sheep manure with the soil before you replace it, or sprinkle in a circle around the plant—and work in lightly before watering.



As the summer comes on and the buds form apply liquid manure to feed the blooms. Soak the sheep manure in a pail of water and dilute to the color of weak tea. Apply every six weeks through the summer.

Wellington on the Lake

STAY WITH US, MAY

Stay with us, May, oh! do not haste away,
For you we've longed through many a wintry day.
Now you have brought the blossoms on the tree,
The wood flowers, the soft and soothing breeze,
And meadow grass is springing fresh and green
Where'er the impress of your foot is seen.
And at your call the oriole returned
And a deep joy for which the spirit yearns.
For you have shown that the dead winter earth
Is waiting for a springtime's glad re-birth;
And in the heart where hope and faith had died
And every earthly dream had been denied,
Now heart and spirit, too, may find the spring
And join the earth in May-time carolling.

— Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — In the magazine, "The Ozark Mountaineer," which comes to me regularly from Missouri, a writer expresses the thought that the month of May contains several days set apart for special observance, among them the chief being Mother's Day and Memorial Day. In Wellington, the former was duly observed in the United Church by a large congregation, the pastor Rev. Alfred Poulter taking as his subject, "Counsel to Parents, and the Nation's Need for Christian Homes." Many children were baptized.

Memorial Day in the U.S. is observed on May 30, and we read that this began at the close of the Civil War, when southern ladies decorated the graves of their fallen lovers with flowers. There was one solitary grave of a lone Yankee and this was included in the decoration. Following this example, May 30th was set apart in the U.S. in 1868 as Memorial Day.

"Roses they plucked from the blue
And lilies they twined for the grey."

Thus in death, the Grey of the South, and the Blue of the North were united.

Wait and Mrs. Dean. At the close a social hour with refreshments was enjoyed. All were delighted to welcome Mrs. Arthur Bilsden, a new resident of Wellington.

Mother's Day guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris were Mr. and Mrs. C. Harris and Mr. and Mrs. G. Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bailey are removing to their new home recently purchased from Mrs. Alice Bilsden, Mrs. Bilsden will reside with her son in Ottawa. She will be missed by her many friends.

The passing of Mrs. Semuel Dorland removes a highly-respected resident. Born in Ireland she had many interesting tales to tell of the Emerald Isle and the hospitality of its people. Sympathy is extended to her large family.

St. Andrew's Choir Presents Fine Concert

FRANKFORD — The Evening Auxiliary of Frankford United Church were sponsors of a recent musical concert by St. Andrew's United Church choir, of Peterborough. The program was composed of two parts, the first sacred, and the second, secular music. The choir opened the sacred half of the concert with three numbers, "Behold, Now Praise the Lord," "Worship", and "Jesus, Lord, We Adore Thee." The choir was ably led by Mr. H. Northrop throughout the program.

The ladies' quartet sang "One Day When We Were Young" and "I Love a Little Cottage." A piano duet by Messrs. T. Northrop and H. Northrop, "March From Tannhauser." The men's chorus rendered two numbers with Mrs. R. Fleming rendering a solo in "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny."

Mrs. L. McLaren, soloist, sang "The Lovely Songs My Heart is Singing." The men's quartet gave three numbers, "May Day Carol," "High Barbary" and "The Battle of Jericho."

The choir closed the second part of the program with "Sing a Song of Sixpence" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Cincinnati, Detroit Tigers Surprise Teams Of Major Baseball Leagues'

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

LOOK, WHO'S COMING!

Don't look now, kiddies, but one of baseball's most colorful figures will put in an appearance here, somewhere in the vicinity of the first week in July.

He is the man with the rubber arm, the quick advice, the unquenchable spirit and whose years on this mortal coil have no number. He is the ageless, tireless, irrepressible Satchel Paige.

"Ole Satch" is embarking on a barnstorming tour of the United States and Canada with his famous "Harlem Globetrotters" and the itinerary includes this part of Ontario. The Trotters will play in Toronto and Peterborough the same week.

The only thing that is holding up definite arrangements and a date is the lack of the Windsor-Ontario Senior Baseball League schedule, which has yet to put in an appearance down Oshawayy. However, Manager Jack Carson, of the Senior Belle Club, tells us the Trotters definitely will be here the first week of the seventh month.

The "Trotters" are a highly rated negro baseball organization and some claim they are on a par with some of the best white professional squads.

However, Ole Satchmo is the star attraction, and although his mighty right flipper may have lost some of its "rubberyness" the hatfooter arm is still capable of whipping the famous "smoker" across the plate.

Many, wild and varied have been the "guesses" as to when Satch first saw the light of day. Some say the old boy doesn't know himself the exact date of his birth. He should. He was there. Or was it another guy?

Almost from the date of his unconditional release from the Baltimore Orioles last winter, baseball folks began reviving the ancient cliches regarding Satch's age.

Dutch Reuther, former well known New York Giant hurler and now one of the chief scouts of the "years from Coogan's Bluff," opines Paige "cannot be less than 55." He says, "I hit against him at Jo Pirron's old White Sox park in Los Angeles in 1924. That was 30 years ago and Satch was pitching there for Bert Kerr's team."

But the ex-Giant paid a fine tribute to the ageless youth, "How good a pitcher, was he? Next to Grover Cleveland Alexander he was the best pitcher I ever saw. He was smart, fast and had fine control. When I was managing Seattle in 1936 we played Satch's barnstorming team. Before the game I made a bet with one of my players that Satch would strike out 18 men in nine innings. I was wrong, but I won the bet. He whiffed 21."

Satch has not only been seen by every big league player of note during the past 30 or 40 years, but he has seen plenty of them, too.

Asked whom he thought was the greatest batter he had ever seen, Satch Wm. Winkle of baseball said, "That's easy. Ted Williams. All kinds of ball. Josh Gibson, Joe DiMaggio? He went nothing for 66 against me. Good pitchers? Not many around any more, But I'd put Robin Roberts up there with the great ones—Dizzy Dean, Lefty Feller. But the best pitcher I ever saw was a fella named Slim Jones. He played in the negro leagues around Philadelphia in the thirties. He came along too early. Yeah, like me."

As far as we can ascertain the July jaunt will be the first safari of the immortal Satch to these parts. The Globe Trotters, we understand, are under the management of the famous Abe Saperstein of Globe Trotters basketball fame, and if the directors of the club is half as celebrity sold sivver as the basketball squad, then fandom here is in for a half-day of sterling entertainment.

GALS' GAME!

The Belleville District Softball Association, too, is readying some stellar outside attractions for city and district fandom. The Norlowe girls' softball club of Toronto, Canadian champions and representatives in the world's championship series, are slated to play here on June 1. On the roster is one of the best girl softball pitchers ever to come out of Belleville. She is Marie Genereaux, half of the famous Kay-Marie duo that starred for a long time with the famous Toronto Sunday Morning Class team. The Norlowes will play a mixed team of all stars in a game that gets under way at 8.30 p.m.

STOX JOX

If you are thrill-hungry this evening you can whet your appetite at the Exhibition Grounds, where Dick Burrowes' stock car jockeys toe off in their creaking steeds somewhere in the vicinity of eight o'clock. Some twenty entries, it says here, will be on hand for the chilly-spilly-thrilly events and these include the best and nerviest the district can produce. Drivers from Kingston and Picton also will be here.

HELP WANTED!

Herby (The Ole Clucker) Heem of the Northern Electric softball team is badly in need of a few players. He says a special practice is being called for Monday evening at the Alexandra Field starting 6.30 and players are urgently requested to turn out. He intimated that there had been talk of the team disbanding, but the boys are going to take another whack at the business. So any of youse guys who want to play softball, call around Monday evening. You will be welcome.

Bowling

Stewart Warner Egg Heads captained by Keith Bertrim were successful in winning the Lorne McDougall trophy for the best mixed team of the Bowl-O-Drome on Tuesday night.

Seven teams in all competed for the trophy, each team being winners of their own respective leagues.

Keith helped pave the way for his team by bowling a neat 376 in the first game. Teams finished in the following order: Stewart Warner Egg Heads, 3,181; Mixed Commercial Shoe Circuits, 3,163; Northern Electric Dodgers, 3,003; Quinte Mixed Old Timers, 3,011; Saturday Night Downhills, 2,834; Belleville Lock Hopefuls, 2,765; Corbin Lock Levers, 2,765.

Both Clubs Cellar Dwellers In Respective Loops Year Ago; Giants Score 6th Win in Row

By Ben Pelegan

Associated Press Sports Writer

With the major league pennant races just into their second month, nine of the 16 teams find themselves better off than they were at this stage a year ago.

They are all even with their 1953 pace. Even the five who have fallen behind aren't too far back of where they were after the first month of last season.

Based on games behind first place, Detroit Tigers have made the biggest gain. A dreadful last at this point in 1953 when they were 13 games behind, the Tigers now find themselves only a game and a half off the pace of the first-place Chicago White Sox in the American League.

In the National League the most improvement has been made by Cincinnati Redlegs with the surprising New York Giants a close runner-up. The Redlegs were last, seven games behind, now they're only one game back, even though they are lying fifth in the tight circuit.

SIXTH STRAIGHT

The Giants, who moved Friday night into third, first-place tie with Philadelphia by winning their sixth straight, 6-5 in 13 games better off then in 1953.

The Yankees, trimmed Detroit 4-4 in the only game Friday, in night action Cleveland beat Washington 6-5, Chicago shaded Philadelphia 4-3 in the American League.

The Giants defeated the Cubs 8-5, Cincinnati trounced St. Louis 10-1 thrashing by the Cardinals, Cincinnati edged Milwaukee 4-3 and Pittsburgh broke a seven-game losing streak at the expense of Milwaukee, 3-2 in 10 innings, in the National League.

A run in the ninth, inning on singles by Cass Michaels and Minnie Minoso plus an error enabled the White Sox to down the Athletics and pull a full game in front in the American League. Chicago had two two-hit shutouts to its credit as a starter, picked up his fourth victory while working relief.

KATO GROMEK

The Yanks stayed Steve Gromek, who had won five in a row for Detroit, with a dozen hits in the first six innings. Gene Woodling led the barrage with a double and a triple.

Bob Turley won his fourth game and raised his league leading strikeout total to 53 by fanning 11 as the Orioles whipped Boston. Five runs in the eighth inning broke up a 3-3 tie.

A grand slam home run by George Strickland against Washington made it easy for Lemon to win his fifth of the year. The Indians scored all five of their runs in the first inning.

It was a long time in coming, but when the Cardinals scored their first victory at Ebbets Field since September of 1953 they did it in fine style, with Al Dark, Stan Musial hit his 11th home run and drove in three batters.

Al Dark and Don Mueller combined for nine hits in the Giants' success against Chicago. Dark hit a home run and four singles in five times at bat and also stole two bases.

Art Fowler of Cincinnati blanked the Phillies with eight hits as he protected a one-run lead from the first inning.

Havana Kings Take Twin Bill; Leafs Nip Ottawa

By The Associated Press

Havana's Cuban Sugar Kings are throwing their weight around the ball parks in their first year in the International League.

The Kings moved to within half a game of the second-place Rochester Red Wings as they swept a doubleheader from Syracuse Chiefs 2-0 and 4-2 here last night. Havana now is only one game off the pace-setting Chiefs.

Montreal Royals dropped the Red Wings 5-2 while in the only other game Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Ottawa Athletics 8-5. The second-listed game was postponed because of rain.

Maurice Fisher blanked the Chiefs with two hits in the opener.

In the second game Havana came from behind to score three runs in the eighth to gain the victory.

Outfielder Sandy Amoros banged out a ninth-inning home run that touched off a four-run rally and gave Montreal its first victory over the Red Wings.

Bill Powell gave up three Ottawa home runs but Toronto managed to gain 11 hits off three Athletic pitchers.

TeePees Favored for Memorial Cup As Series Enters 4th Game Tonight

TORONTO (CP) — The money boys were just about ready to close shop on junior hockey today and give St. Catharines TeePees the Memorial Cup for the first time in history.

That's how the form experts sized up things as TeePees prepared for their fourth game against Edmonton Oil Kings in the best-of-seven final. They lead the series 2-0 and Oil Kings will have to come up with some classy hockey to extend it.

Edmonton coach Ken McAuley, who guided Oil Kings to a glittering record of 61 victories in 65 games in the western Canada league this season, was still confident his boys could get back in the series. Oil Kings dropped the first three games 9-2, 5-3 and 4-1, the worst record they've had all year.

"We're not going to lose this thing four in a row," McAuley said at the team's motel headquarters. "I think we can still come back. If we didn't have that 16-day layoff, we'd murder those guys."

Not so, says Rudy Pilous, Tee-Pee coach. He comments:

FOUR-GAME SERIES

"If it is at all possible, we'll wind it up in four games. I know my players want to get it over with as soon as possible and if we ever start playing like we can, I don't think Edmonton will have a chance."

On form, TeePees must be rated as favorites to end it tonight.

However, if Oil Kings win the fifth game will be played here Sunday afternoon.

McAuley says he still doesn't rate TeePees a better team than Oil Kings.

"I don't think they're a bit better than some of the teams we met in the west," he said. "But, we're not playing the same kind of hockey, neither. We're making too many mistakes."

Penticton Slight Favorites To Nip Wolves for Allan Cup

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — The Allan Cup will be on the line here tonight when Sudbury Wolves and Penticton V's tangle in the seventh and deciding game of a slam-bang series that has seen the V's stage another of their miracle comebacks.

Each team has won three games and tonight's tussle will decide the issue.

The amazing V's, darlings of this hockey-crazy peach city, rule as slight favorites to take their third straight win in the best-of-seven series and the Canadian senior amateur hockey championship.

Faced with what seemed to be almost certain defeat when the rugged Wolves grabbed three of the first four games, the Warwick brothers led V's back with a pair of desperation wins to tie it up.

Friday night's victory was the most impressive of all. Down 4-0 going into the final 30 minutes, Penticton rapped in four unanswered tallies to sew it up and set the stage for the big game.

In the fifth game at Penticton, only 17 seconds remained in overtime when Cecil McGuire fired a goal that gave V's a 6-5 win.

It's been the same story all along the playoff road for V's. They went eight games before polishing off Nelson Maple Leafs for the British Columbia title, and then won out in a marathon duel with Winnipeg Maroons for the western Canada crown.

That's a record that places Sudbury squarely on the spot tonight.

Canada's Boxing Representatives At Empire Games Announced Tonight

By KEN ROMAND
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Jim Saunders, a burly, two-handed puncher, fought his way into the heavyweight finals of the Canadian British Empire Boxing championships here last night with a second-round technical knockout over Bob Richardson of St. Catharines.

Saunders will meet Montreal Gerry Buchanan tonight in the finals of the three-day event. Winners in the 19 classifications will represent Canada at the British Empire Games in Vancouver.

Buchanan had stopped Pete Piper, the man who stopped Saunders in the Manitoba Provincials trials. When Saunders didn't make the provincial team he hitch-hiked from Winnipeg to defend his Canadian amateur heavyweight title won last year.

Saunders pounded Richardson along the ropes with a vicious flurry of blows. The St. Catharines fighter was on his knees when the bell ended the first round. The referee didn't allow him to start the second.

THREE KNOCKOUTS

The 24-bout three-round card on the second night of the trials produced three knockouts, four technical knockouts and some bruising fighting. The final 14 bouts will be fought this afternoon.

Montreal's Mickey Bergin upset Willie Barbole of Toronto with an unpopular split decision in the lightweight class.

Welterweight Bill Stone of Vancouver, who twice picked himself off the canvas in the first round, let go with one looping right to catch Phil Vena coming off the ropes. The RCAF whirlwind flyer from Greenwood, N.S. was counted out at 2:09 of the opener. It was the only punch that Stone had thrown in the fight.

Steve Phare started British Columbia off on a perfect night when he knocked out Nova Scotia's Joey Aitkins in the second round. Five men from the British Columbia team won matches.

STOPS FOWERS

Vancouver's welterweight Norm Jorgensen picked up his second technical knockout of the trials when he stopped Gene Fowers of Toronto. The western coast team still has eight of 11 fighters in the finals.

A technical knockout was also scored by Charles Gilbody of Belfort, Sask., over Tom Palmer of Champion, Alberta, in the third round. It was the same for Edmonton's Wilf Greaves over John Pope of Lockeport, N.S., in the second round of their bout.

An unpopular split decision gave Des Archer of Regina the nod over Lloyd Lawrence of Toronto. The fight looked like a lightweight middleweight champion Paul Chyrz of Winnipeg.

The decision was strongly protested by the crowd as was Sweeney's Hugh Lindsay's decision over Fred Deegan, of Nova Scotia.

Panthers Shade Majors 7-6

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener Panthers Friday night scored six runs in the last two innings to defeat London Majors 7-6 in a pro-schedule game here between the two Intercounty senior baseball teams.

The victory was the fourth win in five starts for Kitchener, winner of the IC title for the last two years.

London led 6-1 in the eighth before Panthers hopped on pitcher Bob Kennan for four runs and then added two more in the ninth.

Heart Attack Takes Pioneer Football Great

TORONTO (CP)—Football men from all sections of Canada today paid tribute to Wm. C. (Billy) Foulds referee-in-chief of the Big Four Football League and pioneer worker in the Canadian Rugby Union who died early Friday.

The 66-year-old football executive suffered a heart attack last Tuesday and failed to rally in hospital.

Dr. W. A. Campbell of Kingston, president of the CRU, said Foulds's death is "a terrible loss to Canadian rugby."

Roy Robertson, president of the Big Four and of the Montreal Alouettes said he knew of no one who could replace the referee-in-chief.

"There just isn't anyone I can think of who can take his place. . . . Every time I had to call on him he was there, ready to help with his vast experience in the game."

MOST RESPECTED

Norm Perry of Sarnia, past president of the CRU, said Foulds was "one of the most respected football men in Canada."

"He will be greatly missed," said Ken Montgomery, president of the Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial League.

Arthur Chipman of Winnipeg, CRU past president, said Foulds "always had the best interests of football at heart."

Ottawa's football fraternity was shocked to learn of the sudden death.

F.P. McCaffrey, a veteran Ottawa football club official, said Foulds was "one of the main pillars in the rules of the CRU for the last 30 years and that it will be difficult to find a man to replace him who would take the interest and the time that Billy Foulds did."

Galt Terriers Edge Royals

GUELPH (CP) — Galt Terriers edged Guelph-Waterloo Royals 3-1 in senior exhibition game here on Friday night.

Jack Colvin singled behind two Guelph errors in the fifth frame to give Galt a 2-0 lead. They added their third run in the eighth when Schindler, Art O'Connor and Jack Larronde connected for successive singlets.

The Royals scored in the eighth, Auggie Herchenrather singling Bob Fischer home.

Larronde went the distance, picking eight loyal hits. He has now permitted only one run in 18 innings of pro-season hurling.

Al Gerringer started for Guelph and yielded two runs and six hits in seven innings before being replaced by a pinch hitter Jon Fanis who finished the game.

The Royals had the bases loaded with two out in the fifth but Larouche struck out Fischer to end the threat.

WILLIAMS BACK

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ted Williams will be in left field today for the Boston Red Sox, "If it's warm enough," manager Lou Boudreau announced. Williams hasn't been able to play since breaking a collarbone early in spring training.

STRANGLEHOLD WINS

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Coming with a rush in the stretch, Stranglehold knocked off the heavily favored Inlaw and went on to capture the $27,700 Premiere Handicap at Hollywood Park Friday.

Atomic Bombs and the Weather

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

Last February 26th we arrived at Key Largo for our annual visit to the Florida Keys. We don't take summer vacations anymore. Instead, we come to Key Largo where, we hope, we can escape the cold weather, and where I can gather new material for our lectures, having to do with what used to be the fabulous fishing hereabouts.

This year the fishing, at least for bonefish and tarpon, has been abominable. In the hands of expensive guides, I have been to the fishing banks on the Gulf side eight times. In all those trips, spread out over a period of a month, I saw one school of bonefish, in a shallow channel and travelling fast, and four scattered fish on the flats.

Under normal conditions, those same eight days, with the same guides and in the same territory, would have shown me certainly not less than four hundred bonefish, probably more.

Last year we had three weeks of good tarpon fishing during March The same guides, the same boat and over the oyster bars in the back country, ready to do business. This year one of these things have happened.

WEATHER STAYED COLD

For the first three weeks of our stay, I didn't recall ever having been more continuously incomfortable. We came down to escape the cold weather, but it was cold when we arrived, and it stayed cold—a damp, penetrating cold from which there was no escape. Small electric heaters simply will not heat a large house when the temperature outside is in the forties and there is a strong wind blowing.

The weather was unsteady and the weather vane on the boathouse roof spent its time swinging around the compass. Hard rains lasted sometimes for two full days. Sweaters, wool shirts, and raincoats were worn all day and all night. We had a miserable time of it. All of the Key Largoites complained. We have talked agree that it was the worst March in the memory of the oldest "conchs."

A good many years of observation has taught me that animals, birds and, fish, particularly fish, know a great deal more about the weather than we do. I have seen trout in a stream and bass in a river predict heavy storms and resultant floods several days in advance of the most sensitive barographs recordings.

FISH KNOW WEATHER

There is no question in my mind that the fish here—tarpon, bonefish and snook—knew perfectly well that something of an unusual, unprecedented nature happened to our weather during March Otherwise, they would have returned to the shallows in numbers. Just as they have done for centuries past. As I say, they know more about weather than we do and they evidently were unwilling to expose themselves in the shallows until things had returned to normal.

You will recall that on March 1st last the atomic boys let loose a bomb that was a great many times stronger than the one which flattened two Jims. Newspaper reports varied, but some said that it was 800 times more powerful. Even the men in charge are quoted as admitting that the thing did get "out of control"—a modest understatement if I ever heard one.

Any scientist will tell you that weather is basically electrical. Mix up the atmospheric electrical set-up and you are bound to have badly jumbled weather until things get themselves back in line again. About three years ago the atomic-bomb men set off a series of experimental jobs at the proving grounds in Arizona. A few days after the first explosion, one of the large film companies in New York State found that new film was coming through dotted with tiny spots that indicate exposure.

RADIO ACTIVE WATER

They tested the air for radioactive particles. Nothing doing. Then they tested the water that was pumped in from a near-by lake. In that water, which was used in processing film in their laboratories, they found radio-active particles in quantity.

I talked to a radiologist about this. He said it was impossible. Isotopes—radioactive particles, call them what you will—cannot be carried that far by the wind and then dumped into water without neutralizing themselves. Yet there they were, active as ever.

You know that for the past five years we have been having all manner of weather upsets. Glaciers are changing and things are going generally haywire weatherwise. Unprecedented rains with resultant record floods; dry spells that last for months on end; record hot days; record cold days; tornadoes at unusual times of the year—all of these things surely indicate that something is basically wrong with the weather.

Naturally the Weather Bureau has been consulted. No correlation, they say, between the hydrogen and atomic bombs. Absolutely nothing in the records to show any direct association. Frankly, I regard that one with a raised eyebrow.

WEATHER—CONSCIOUS

Our house is on a hill in central Pennsylvania, completely exposed to the weather. The result is that we are somewhat more weather-conscious than most folks. We have been keeping fairly close track of the weather we have had directly following these atomic-bomb experiments.

Weather Bureau to the contrary not withstanding, it seems to follow a set pattern. On the day following the bomb explosion we get the weather would become cloudy and threatening; that would become cold weather and high winds. Sometimes we would have rain and sometimes not, but always there were exactly the same as ours.

Out of control," the atomic boys said. Brother, they're not kidding! What will happen eventually if they keep on knocking things out of control is anybody's guess. Meanwhile, I'm thinking of sending to Atomic Energy Commission a bill for three weeks of the vacation I believe they ruined for me.

E.P. Taylor Bred Last Five Winners of the Queen's Plate

TORONTO (CP) — Horse racing has more than its share of maxims, adages and superstitions but, around Toronto, smart money bets on the almost-inevitable victory of a Taylor-bred in the Queen's Plate.

There's justification for this now but potent adage. E. P. Taylor, Ontario sportsman - industrialist, has bred the last five winners of the Queen's Plate. He holds a strong hand again this year with six horse-bred colts and fillies still eligible in the Canadian turf classic at Woodbine June 12.

In his barn at Woodbine, Taylor has a colt which may prove to be the fastest horse ever to set hoof on a Canadian track. The name of this chestnut flyer is Queen's Own and, although he hasn't yet made an official appearance before a Canadian crowd, he is being quoted at only 3 to 1 in the future book.

To understand all this enthusiasm for Queen's Own, it is necessary to know his sire, the best horse of his career at Belmont Park, New York, last Oct. 30.

When Queen's Own went to the post that day he was opposed by 22 rivals over the six - furlong course. Queen's Own finished second behind a phenomenal equine named Mister Gus.

They whizzed down that straight stretch in the almost-incredible time of 1.08 3-5, only one-fifth of a second behind Hilarco's world record for the distance.

Queen's Own was beaten but there is little doubt that he ran the fastest six furlongs ever recorded by a Canadian-bred of any age—not to mention a Canadian-bred two-year-old.

In all, the Taylor colt started only four times—all in the United States. In his second start, he finished second again, beaten by Supercolossal. He then was shipped to the Jamaica course and Hedley Woodhouse of Vancouver rode him to win by a nose from Chrysolite.

Throughout his short two-year-old campaign, Queen's Own was trained by Charlie Hatton who handles the American division of the extensive Taylor stables. Since reports say he will be back there conditioned by Gordon (Pete) McCann who handled the two renewals of the Queen's Plate with Major Factor and Canadiana.

Incompatible may not be the word, But it sure pops into my nut when I think of the bridge score gap between major and minor suits.

A difference between no-trump and any suit, yes. No-trump has no ruffing (trumping). With one less method of taking tricks, it makes sense when game needs less tricks in no-trump than in suit.

Exactly the same methods of play are used for taking tricks in either a major or minor trump suit. Yet, only ten tricks are needed for game in a major whereas game in a minor takes 11 tricks.

So, where game in a minor is indicated, many bridge pairs are inclined to gamble with game in no-trump. Even the highest rated of the high rated players seem addicted to this kind of dope.

From the Summer nationals, deal number 4 is seen here:

♠ Q 6
♥ J 10 9 6 3 2
♣ K 5

WEST
♥ K Q 4
♦ A K 9 3 2
♣ J 6 5

EAST
♠ A 10 8 5
♦ Q J 8
♣ A K 9 7 2

SOUTH
♠ K 3
♥ A 7 5
♦ 10 7 5 4

Correct bids will show that the final contract is safest in diamonds. But 24 of the 36 tables were in no-trump.

Of these, 20 stopped at three-no-trump and four went to four no-trump. Two were doubled and made 11 tricks each. One went down.

Of the others in no-trump, two seemed to be able to take no more than nine tricks. One took ten tricks. The rest (except one who got 12 tricks) got a heart lead and picked up 11 tricks.

At two tables, south or north played in four-no-trump doubled and went down two. Only one table was in three clubs and made four. Only one table was in five clubs and made five.

One table in six hearts doubled, went down four. One table at five diamonds went down one. One table at six diamonds was doubled went down two. One at six diamonds went down one.

Four tables at six diamonds made their small slam. And diamonds is the contract that bidding would show is safest. But there is no telling the experts so in this particular case.

RE-ELECT FIRE HEAD

MONTREAL (CP) — D. Kemp Edwards of Ottawa Friday was re-elected president of the Dominion Fire Prevention Association, at the closing session of the organization's annual meeting here.

AT THE McCARTHY.

Movie audiences have grown up, according to Glenn Ford, starred with Gloria Grahame and Jocelyn Brando in Columbia Pictures' "The Big Heat," hard-hitting drama now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. "There was, and not so long ago, when fans refused to accept a movie without a happy ending. "Currently, for example, I'm playing a tough cop in 'The Big Heat' and the girl I love is killed in about the third reel. There is no added romance for the character I play. I end up at the finish alone, with no one to share the fictional clinch."

Ford feels that audiences have matured because of world conditions.

"People, faced with stark reality in their daily lives, now accept a reasonable amount of reality in their fiction and movie fare," he states. "Fans no longer insist on escapist stories."

Glenn also believes that this relatively new attitude on the part of the audiences has made the actor's personal life easier and more pleasant. "There was a time, when fans expected actors to be impossibly romantic off screen, as well as on," Ford points out. "Hollywoodians were expected to drive luxurious cars, live in mansions and, generally conduct themselves like characters out of cheap fiction. Why, no actor of the silent films could publicly admit he had a calm married life, or that he was the father of a family. Such admissions supposedly would ruin his boxoffice draw—and in many cases they did."

Glenn thinks that today actors are happier than they've been in the history of the movies. "We get to play human beings on the screen—and we're permitted to act like human beings in our private lives. What more could an actor ask?" Glenn wants to know.

Featured in support of the stars of "The Big Heat," the story of an ex-cop's single-handed attempt to destroy a powerful gang, are Alexander Scourby, Lee Marvin and Jeanette Nolan. Based on the Saturday Evening Post serial by William P. McGivern, "The Big Heat" screen play was written by Sydney Boehm. Fritz Lang directed the new Columbia shocker for producer Robert Arthur.

"Hell and High Water", in CinemaScope, Technicolor DeLuxe.

CinemaScope has chalked up a new winner in popularity with the showing Today for the last times at the Belle Theatre, of Twentieth Century-Fox's "Hell and High Water".

The film, a modern spy drama, presents a series of breath-taking events ranging from the explosion of an atom bomb, a sea battle, a collision of submerged submarines to the startling introduction of an exotic, mysterious new screen personality, Bella Darvi.

Another film precedent is shattered with Miss Darvi journeying upon the screen not only in her first starring role, but indeed her first acting assignment as the only woman aboard a submarine in the company of such great stars as Richard Widmark, David Wayne, Cameron Mitchell, Victor Francen and Gene Evans.

TOURNAMENT OF THE ROSES.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, MAY 16, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mild indications, but artistic matters, the arts, music, good reading and, of course, religious services sponsored by benefic Venus rule. Day should be restful, pleasant on the whole.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Whether you live in the city or the country, try to diversify your interests. Improve your cultural side, take part in community affairs. Moon is reasonably benefic, favors rest, prayer.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Encouraging for wholesome hobbies, outdoor recreational activities, correspondence, reading, church affairs. Necessary tasks need not be a hardship; that's up to you. Pray.

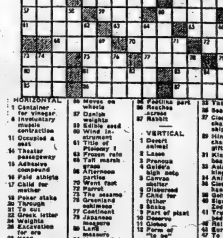
July 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Children's interests, parties, social gatherings, household, garden activities under friendly aspects. First of all should come your church services, prayers for world peace.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Should be exciting nor dull today. Usual home and Sunday interests should have more earnest thought, energy. And remember community, neighborly obligations. Necessary work favored.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Reading, writing, poetry, painting, all the higher arts honored by Venus' generous rays. Pay attention to personal appearance, health. Nourish your soul with prayer.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — One does not need to have a gay existence every day to be successful and content. We should however, have stability, loyalty to God's laws and a proper evaluation of life's good things.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Atmosphere generally promises restfulness. Avoid strenuous activity. You can do much good with your natural charm and helpfulness where needed.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — When we turn from mundane affairs to indulge in such uplifting reading such as the Bible we find illuminating facts and learn the purpose for which we were created. It is indeed stimulating!

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — The day holds no dark forebodings but neither does it promise "the moon." However, it does favor wholesome interests, healthy outdoor activities and friendships.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Good day? Yes, it you help make it so. Emphasize your pleasant traits, take good fun for youngsters, help church and charity affairs. Domestic and other urgent duties rate high.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Today may not be auspicious for brilliant ideas but it can impel us to better our thinking and ambitions and go forward more progressively, purposefully. Start day at church. Have fun.

YOU BORN TODAY have strong will power and individuality; are capable, receptive to higher learning; are naturally practical, reasonable and sympathetic. You are not, as a rule, verbose or egotistical. You win friends readily and keep them. You like and will work for personal comfort; will also help others to attain benefits. Guard against over generosity, spending. You may have to curtail luxurious habits lest you undermine future security. You can shine bold a position of trust and authority; are practical in business and finances. Many Taureans are toys in literary attainment. Birthdate: Wm. H. Seward, American statesman, Sec'y of State under: Pres. Lincoln.

Speaking during consideration of post office estimates, he said when he first raised this question of patronage Mr. Cote was pained, astonished, astounded and horrified and said there is none in the post office.

Rev. Dan McIvor (L—Fort William) said that he was not consulted when a new postmaster was appointed in Fort William recently.

"I had enough good sense to sit back and let the civil service pick its own man," he said. The city's deputy postmaster was chosen.

"FAR CAESAR'S WIFE"

Said Mr. Stewart:

"The minister protests his innocence; he is virtuous; he is as shoves suspicion as Caesar's wife . . . I have never seen such innocence . . .

"I have given my honorable friend all the details. He may not have known about them but now that I have told him his eyes will be opened and he can go into the post office now, take a very sharp cleaver and start to chop off some heads. If he does that we might have a post office in this country without patronage."

Mr. Stewart said letters asking for job nominations also were sent to John Simcott, Liberal member for Springfield, Man., in the last Parliament, and to D. W. W. Ravie of Winnipeg, manager of the Manitoba Liberal Progressive Association.

Mr. Karaska was an unsuccessful Liberal candidate in 1949 against Mr. Stewart in Winnipeg North and in 1953 against CCF member Stanley Knowles in Winnipeg North Centre. Mr. Chester, unsuccessful Liberal candidate in Winnipeg North last year, since has been appointed chairman of the Canadian farm loan board at Ottawa.

POINT OF LIBERALISM

Mr. Stewart said in one case the department apparently did not like the members of Mr. Chester and went "to the very front and origin of liberalism in Manitoba"—to a cabinet minister from Manitoba. He did not name the minister.

(Justice Minister Garson is the only Manitoba member with a cabinet post. He was not in the House when Mr. Stewart spoke.)

Wallace Nesbitt (PC — Oxford) said former Liberal members or defeated Liberals are often chosen to announce government plans to build public buildings. He quoted a newspaper report that A. C. Murray, his Liberal predecessor in the Commons, had announced that the government planned a new post office in Beechville, a town in the Ontario constituency of Oxford.

Mr. Nesbitt said the newspaper story quoted Mr. Murray as saying he had received word from Postmaster-General Cote of the plans.

OTHER CRITICISMS

The postmaster - general faced other criticisms and complaints during the day's sitting.

Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) accused the department of glaring inefficiency and inexcusable delays. The post office should jack up its service if the government insisted on postal rates so high they were resented by the public. His reference was to the April 1 rate increase, including an increase of one cent an ounce on letters.

Mr. Cote said postal service is done by humans and errors are unavoidable.

ONT. HIGHWAYS

Mr. Wren said he had uncovered other irregularities on his own and would testify under oath "at the proper time." Other committee members indicated they would ask Mr. Wren to take the stand.

Last week, three companies—Tomlinson Brothers Ltd., of Winnipeg and Fort William, Standard Paving Ltd. of Toronto and Bergmann Construction Co. Ltd., of West Hill—were charged with conspiracy, reportedly in connection with six contracts totalling between $2,000,000 and $4,000,000.

Remanded in Fort William to May 31 on similar charges were W. S. Tomlinson, vice-president of Tomlinson Brothers; C. W. Taylor, Tomlinson official; and Arthur M. Mills, suspended engineer of the highways department's Fort William division.

To appear in Whitby court again June 1 are Harry Phipps, retired highways department engineer; Walter Bergmann, president of Bergmann Construction; John A. West, superintendent of the company; Cecil H. Hickey and Port Hope, former chief engineer of the highways department. Donald H. Patterson, suspended Huntsville division engineer for the department; and William Bredin, highways department instrument man at Huntsville.

SCHEDULED TO APPEAR

Elmer Birdsall, vice-president of Standard Paving Company, and R. F. Peterson, federal government highways construction supervisor, are scheduled to appear in court in Toronto Tuesday.

The investigation began last fall when the department itself uncovered irregularities in the Fort William division. Five department employees were arrested. The books of nine contracting companies were seized. Mr. Patterson was suspended at Huntsville, as was C. Dubeau, patrolman at Ottawa.

The federal government withheld payments on trans-Canada highway contracts in the Fort William division.

During the spring sitting of the legislature, Premier Frost announced the formation of the 11-man select committee.

FRANKFORD

Relatives, Friends Honor 40th Anniversary

FRANKFORD — On Saturday evening, May 8th, about 60 relatives and friends gathered at the Anglican Parish Hall in Frankford to celebrate the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Osterhout of Murray township.

Rev. H. C. Secker was master of ceremonies for the evening and after a sumptuous banquet, he called on Mrs. A. Caskey who read an address after which Mr. and Mrs. H. Morrow presented the gifts which included a chair, a table lamp, and a satin cushion.

The couple were taken completely by surprise. Mr. and Mrs. Osterhout both voiced their thanks for the pleasant evening and gifts and after a short program many of the friends enjoyed a game of cards.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT NEW TITAN WHITE
ONE COAT HOUSE PAINT

$8.30 PER GAL.

A beautiful white—a brand new paint, Lowe Brothers TITAN WHITE has extra high Titanium content that actually gives it the hiding power of two coats of normal paint over previously painted surfaces. No need now for those high repainting estimates. You can do the job yourself simply by cleaning the surface and brushing on one coat of TITAN WHITE, saving half the time and labour expense of normal 2-coat repainting. And TITAN WHITE's new warm tone contrasts attractively with harsh, stark whites.

SELF-CLEANING . . . STAYS WHITE

Season after season Titan White retains its original beauty and whiteness. Microscopic particles of paint film are gradually washed away by rain, carrying with them surface dirt and grime. A controlled chalking process ensures that only enough of the paint film is washed away to keep the surface free of dirt . . . the surface is still adequately protected for the life of the paint film. The gradual wearing away of the paint film keeps the surface smooth and free from checks and cracks . . . eliminates burdensome surface preparations before eventual repainting.

WHAT'S BEST FOR YOU... ONE COAT or TWO?

If you are painting over previously painted surfaces in fair condition, one coat of TITAN WHITE will give completely satisfactory hiding and surface protective. When painting new wood or badly weathered surfaces Titan White or Lowe Brothers High Standard House Paint should be used over a coat of 260 Primer. This provides scientific protection by means of 'controlled penetration'. The specially compounded oils in the 260 Primer seal all porous surfaces, whether wood, brick, concrete or plaster—penetrating the immediate sub-surface just far enough to ensure firm anchorage of the prime coat. Enough oil is left on the surface to form a tough, elastic film, providing an ideal foundation for the finish coat and preventing its essential oils from being absorbed.

Would Discontinue Progress Payments On Highways Jobs

Ont. Paid $15,705,557 More Than 1950 Contract Figures

TORONTO (CP)—A system of pre-qualification of Ontario highway contractors and the discontinuance of progress payments to contractors was recommended today in a report presented to the Ontario legislature's elect committee investigating alleged irregularities in the province's highways department.

The 56-page report of J. D. Woods and Gordon Ltd., appointed last January by Premier Frost to make a study of the department, also proposed:

1. The deputy minister be responsible for all departmental operations.

2. The department's two field organizations be merged and strengthened.

3. Five senior officials at head office report to the deputy minister.

4. A considerable reduction in number of casual employees and a proportionate increase in number of permanent staff be made.

5. Departmental employees be subject to instant dismissal if they accept gifts or other favors from contractors or others doing business with the department.

6. The chief engineer should have four assistant engineers at head office and several inspector-engineers.

WOULD SCREEN BIDDERS

The report, presented to the committee by Duncan Gordon, recommended that contractors wishing to work for the department be asked to meet certain specified requirements in experience, financial resources and equipment, before proposals, known as pre-qualifications are used in most of the United States.

"Competitive bidding has many advantages, the most obvious being that the work should be done at the lowest possible cost to the public and every contractor has a fair opportunity to obtain a share of it. The system of competitive bidding, however, is to ensure that the lowest bidder is capable of performing the work in a satisfactory manner."

The report referred to 1933 Michigan legislation which requires that the bidder must submit, with his public bulletin, submit a statement setting forth his qualifications to carry out the work satisfactorily within the time specified. The authorities refused to allow a contractor to bid on a contract if his qualifications were not satisfactory.

CONTRACTOR RATING URGED

Methods by regulations are made contractors for particular types of work and a contractor desiring working on a contract has his rating for new contracts reduced by the amount of the uncompleted portion of previous contracts. If a contractor is the lowest bidder on several contracts at the same "letting" and the total of these exceeds his rating, the department decides on contracts to be turned over to another bidder.

"We recommend that similar legislation be applied for in Ontario which would permit the department of highways to adopt a system of pre-qualification for contractors. Such legislation should provide for appeal to be made to it by any contractor in the event of dissatisfaction with the rating."

"The Highway Improvement Act provides that before accepting tenders for work subject to a subsidy the approval of the minister of highways must be obtained. We recommend that this act be amended to make the proposed pre-qualification procedures applicable to all contracts entered into by townships, counties or municipalities where the provincial government pays part of the cost."

The report proposed that tender deposits be reduced to approximately five per cent of the amount of each tender, ensuring that the successful bidder will in fact sign the contract at his bid price.

PRIME MINISTER SAYS DANGER OF WAR LESSENED

Speaks at Opening Of Veterans' Hospital

STE. FOY, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent said Sunday the "conspicuous attempts" in the world free, united and ready to defend itself has sown the seeds of doubt in the minds of those who might entertain aggressive designs."

She spoke at the official opening of a $6,000,000, 325-bed veterans hospital here, five miles from Quebec City. Welcomed by 10 veteran-patients in wheelchairs, he turned a first sod to a group of children and said:

"I hope you will never have to come here as veterans."

The prime minister stressed that Canada always stands ready to negotiate differences with any country. But he made an apparent reference to current East-West deadlocks over Korea and Indo-China when he recalled that the Pope had said in 1948:

"There are goods which are of such importance to society that it is perfectly lawful to defend them against unjust aggression.

"The defence is even an obligation for the nations as a whole which are charged to look after a nation that is attacked."

Mr. St. Laurent said the new hospital is one of the best-equipped in Canada, reflecting "our feeling of gratitude for all that is much for the men and women who were wounded or lost their health as a result of service in our armed forces."

AVOID REPETITION

"And as we remember them and the things for which they fought, we must renew our resolve to seek in every honorable way to avoid any repetition of what we have experienced twice already in this century."

Mr. St. Laurent said that despite many recurring "new incidents" created by dogmatic leaders, Canada still believes negotiated peace is possible.

"It is difficult to understand the attitude of those who, by their lack of initiative and their deception, run the risk of bringing on a conflict which, with the heavy losses and effects of defeat which it would bring in its train, the world wars have brought on themselves are still apparent."

British Decision On Asia to Await Parley Outcome

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill said today British decision on southeast Asia will depend on the outcome of the Geneva conference on Korea.

Churchill added that the British government has not embarked on any negotiations involving communists.

The status of the American-backed plan to establish a kind of NATO in southeast Asia to strengthen defence against communism has become a hot political issue here.

There is a wide section of opinion which would resume all-out war attacks on the rebels stream-lined eastward from the fallen fortress toward the vital Red river delta.

Resume Bombings Unless Vietminh Repair Airstrip

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French announced today they will resume bombing of the Communist-led Vietminh's 70-mile "hospital corridor" unless the Red Army repairs the Dien Bien Phu airstrip so evacuation of French casualties can be stepped up and air attacks on the rebels stream-lined eastward from the fallen fortress toward the vital Red river delta.

A French high command broadcast to Communist Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap says the rebel commander until Tuesday to accept the ultimatum. Otherwise, the French Union army would resume all-out air attacks on the rebels stream-lined eastward from the fallen fortress toward the vital Red river delta.

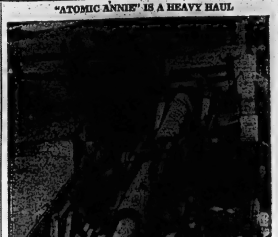
Scientists Come Up With Device To Make Good Pictures Out of Bad

WASHINGTON (AP)—Scientists at the national bureau of standards, the government's central laboratory, have come up with something millions of camera fans have needed: a device for making good pictures out of bad ones.

But it may be in demand for other things: identification of counterfeit money, matching crooks —diagnosis of disease.

A bureau of standards scientist said the process is something like this:

Say you have a photo that is dim and fuzzy.



You then set the negative up in the view of an electronic scanning tube, much like the picture tube of a home TV set.

This scanning tube examines the negative much more sensitively than is possible for the human eye. It distinguishes differences of light and shade that the eye cannot detect.

Thus, it sharpens up the picture, making lines and sharp light and dark contrasts out of what before could see only as fuzzy areas.

It passes the sharpened image to another electronic tube, where the picture shows up like a picture in your TV set. A new photo of the sharpened image as it appears on the face of the viewing tube makes a good picture out of a bad one. Bureau officials emphasized that such a set might be produced commercially for between $300 and $400.

"ATOMIC ANNIE" IS A HEAVY HAUL

The 280-MM gun—better known as "Atomic Annie"—is shown on an Army landing craft as it arrived at Bolling Field, Washington, D.C., from the Aberdeen Proving Ground, Maryland. The cannon is the U.S. army's largest calibre artillery weapon. It has complete mobility, can fire both conventional and atomic shells and has a firing range of 20 miles. (Central Press Canadian).

Survivor Tells of Last Hours Of Garrison of Dien Bien Phu

BY LARRY ALLEN

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French Union defenders of Dien Bien Phu fought their Communist-led assailants furiously and without flinching until their garrison was gone.

This, as one by one their guns fell silent over the remnant of the fortress bunkers, they carried out Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries' last order — "give up when you can no longer fight."

Such is the story of the last hours May 7 was given to reporters Sunday night by three badly wounded survivors of the epic siege, part of the cavalcade of ill casualties released by the Vietminh rebels before the airlift evacuation was suspended Saturday.

At Hanoi's overcrowded Lanessonvargas hospital they told both Brig.-Gen. Christian de Castries, their garrison commander, and the only woman in the fortress, air force nurse Genevieve de Galard Terraube of Paris, were captives of the Vietminh.

Neither was wounded, the trio said.

All three men lay severely wounded with some 1,400 others in the battered, sandbox fortress' underground hospital while the human tidal waves of rebels swept over in the four-day-long battle.

LEG SHATTERED

His right leg badly shattered by Vietminh fire, Pte. Marcel Champougny said he thought the last hours of fighting would never end.

"It seemed as if there were thousands of shells and machine gun bullets hitting against the hospital bunker.

Possibly 300 Dead, 100 Jailed In Wild Rioting in Pakistan

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP)—Police have jailed about 100 persons—some of whom they called enemy agents and saboteurs—in the wake of bloody rioting Saturday among workers at the Adamjee jute mills in Narayanganj. Others were missing and dead.

Possibly 300 persons were killed and 300 injured in the riot, reported to involve hostile factions of local Bengali workers and non-Bengali workers from West Pakistan. Usually reliable sources said Communist agitators had fanned minor disputes into violence.

Officials said university students posing as mill workers were among the jailed suspects. A large number of other suspects were reported to have gone underground.

Troops patrolled the mill area, south of Dacca, Newspapers men who visited the area Sunday night said the mills were still burning. Bodies still floated in mill ponds or lay partly hidden in rice fields.

In Karachi, Justice Minister A. K. Brohi told parliament the national government took a serious view of the rioting, but law and order was the responsibility of the East Pakistan provincial government. The dominant Moslem League party in East Pakistan suffered March elections to a five-party United front including Communists.

RECOVER 214 BODIES

Reports from the area said police have recovered 214 bodies, including those of women and children. A search still is going on along river banks in ponds near the centre of fighting.

The injured in hospitals were estimated at 263.

In Karachi, Prime Minister Mohammed Ali held an emergency cabinet meeting Sunday night and later sent state Defence Minister Sardar Amir Azam Khan to Dacca to confer with East Pakistani officials.

East Pakistan is isolated from the western part of the country by more than 1,000 miles of Indian territory.

A group of influential politicians in Karachi demanded that Ali's government declare a state of emergency and resign in Pakistan.

Queen Replies To Message From Canadians

OTTAWA (CP)—The governor-general today received a reply from the Queen to his message last week in connection with her homecoming.

Her Majesty cabled:

"Please convey to the people of Canada my sincere thanks for their kind message on the completion of our Commonwealth tour."

SAVE FAMILY

SCOTLAND, Ont. (CP)—A family of four was left homeless Sunday night when fire gutted their one-storey home, causing damage estimated at $2,000. Kenneth McNeiles and his wife managed to snatch their children, Mary Ann, three, and Larry, six, from their beds and carry them to safety.

Scotland is about 10 miles south of Brantford.

HIGHWAYS DEPT. DOCUMENTS WERE DESTROYED

Records Tampered With After Start of Probe

TORONTO (CP) — Destruction of highway construction records following the start of the investigation into alleged irregularities in the highways department was portrayed today by H. A. Cotnam, provincial auditor.

Mr. Cotnam testified before the Ontario legislature's select committee investigating the department's activities, that no written instructions were given to subordinate officers to destroy the records.

He said the investigation had been hampered by the loss of these records.

"I am leaving the results of my investigation to the courts as a result it is most difficult to check the work that has been done," he said.

ONE FACES CHARGE

Under questioning, Mr. Cotnam said some of these documents are now involved in criminal court proceedings.

Albert Wren (Lib-Lab—Kenora) asked where the instructions to destroy came from. Mr. Cotnam said it was difficult to find that out.

"Was the auditor-general told to destroy the records?" asked Mr. Wren.

"That's our information," replied the provincial auditor.

TRIALS BY SETTEMBER

Mr. Cotnam said he did not think it desirable to prosecute the 12 juniors.

"They may have been instructed to do some things."

"But the wrongdoings of the senior officials and the contractors were facilitated by the work of the juniors," said Mr. Grummeth.

"That's true," replied the provincial auditor.

CANBERRA (CP) — The planks of a railway bridge near Canberra served as a table as the bridge place for documents passed between Vladimir Petrov and other foreign agents, Australia's royal commission on espionage learned today.

W. J. V. Windeyer, chief government counsel, told the commission government authorities learned of the hiding place when they translated one of the documents handed over to them by the former Soviet spy. Attorney-General Porter said the cases should come up for trial by September.

Mr. Windeyer said irregularities were discovered in the field surrounding the bridge during field notes. Present practices call for a preliminary survey of the proposed highway route followed by another survey when the work has been started. The difference is "what you pay for."

The preliminary survey Petrov offered the best opportunity for "fudging"—juggling of figures.

"Manning" cards would disappear, it was then difficult to determine what was originally there."

The contracts were let on a tender basis. Payments cover the amount of the original tender were covered by work orders.

Capture of Paroled Georgia Convict Ends Three Days of Terror in District

MOULTRIE, Ga. (AP)—Capture of a paroled Georgia convict wanted in connection with four brutal slayings has ended three days of terror for this South Georgia community.

Tom Williams, a 45-year-old paroled murderer was taken on the edge of a swamp east of the city Monday night by Sheriff Roy H. Duffie of the Georgia bureau of identification, who made the capture. Williams was found in his automobile, locked him in the trunk and headed for an undisclosed jail.

Hundreds of citizens had joined in the hunt.

Williams, a slightly built, greying Negro, was found about 300 yards from the home where retired prison warden W. C. Rowland and his wife were killed Saturday night. Their throats were cut and both had been brutally slashed.

Another double slaying the previous night shocked residents of this community of 12,000. An unidentified man killed T. Inman and J. D. Croft at a drive-in grocery. Both men's throats were cut and Croft was shot between the eyes with a .22-calibre bullet. Police said robbery was the motive for cash register.

Williams told Williams readily confessed killing Rowland and his wife and slashing two men who escaped from a chain gang camp.

The men, Lucian Norman and John Bailey, were attacked as they entered the home. Norman suffered critical knife wounds and Bailey, who was not so badly slashed, identified Williams as the assailant.

McDuffie said he followed bloodhounds to the edge of the swamp area. There he spied Williams who gave up without a struggle.

Eisenhower Bans Revelation Of Executive Talks

White House Secrecy Order Covers McCarthy-Army Row

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today formally ordered the defence department to keep secret any talks within the executive department relating to the McCarthy-army row.

Thus the White House barred the door to a line of inquiry the Senate investigations sub-committee has been following. Wednesday, army counsellor John G. Adams told the investigators he set up suggestions that officers testifying before executive sessions of his staff cover the army status of Pte. G. David Schine, former unpaid consultant to McCarthy's investigations group.

Adams had been instructed to produce today a written directive backing his refusal on Friday to go further with his account of the April 2 meeting at which the suggestion was made.

NOT IN PUBLIC INTEREST

The chief executive put his directive in a letter to Defence Secretary Charles Wilson.

Queen and Duke Attend Church On First Day Home

LONDON (CP) — Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh went to church Sunday and attracted a crowd of about 20,000 as excitement in London was carried over from Saturday when the city welcomed the Royal Family on their return from abroad.

Crowds assembled early in front of the palace. Shortly before noon the Queen and duke came out and went to the Queen's chapel of St. James's Palace. The crowd later followed them home.

That night, an estimated 4,000 persons still waited in front of the palace hoping the Queen would appear on the balcony as she did Saturday after returning from her Commonwealth tour.

The Queen, tired from Saturday's tumultuous welcome, spent the day quietly with the duke and their children.

She and Prince Philip are expected to continue their rest in the palace until Wednesday, when they will attend a welcome-home lunch given by Sir Noel Bowater, Lord Mayor of London.

In the evening they will take Prince Charles and Princess Anne up to Scotland for a month's vacation at Balmoral in the rolling hills of Aberdeenshire.

Accused Admits Giving Stimulant To Office Girl

LONDON (Reuters) — Office manager Arthur Dyer, 44, said he gave a fatal dose of "spanish fly" to a pretty office girl "to stimulate my desire for men," police said at a double manslaughter hearing today.

The woman, Betty Grant, 27, and another office worker, Rose Malvin, 19, died on April 27 after eating a heavy dose of the sex stimulant, Cantharidin. Dyer, 47, is charged with manslaughter.

At today's hearing, police also said Ford—a married man with a family—did them.

He said Miss Grant were "very fond of each other . . . she kept pestering me, and I could not get my mind to give her cantharidin in the coconut ice (a popular English candy) to stimulate her desire for me.

"I cannot say how Miss Malins got the other piece except that it must have been an accident. The only girl I was interested in was Miss Grant.

There is evidence indicated the two girls took at least one or two grains each of the drug.

Any dose over 1-200th of a grain is almost certain to be fatal.

Ford was also charged by the drug and was rushed to the hospital for emergency treatment.

Today he was charged with manslaughter of Miss Malins as well as Miss Grant and was remanded in custody until May 25.

FISHERMAN'S SHANTY MAKES DIVING RAFT

A lone fisherman's shanty, whose owner apparently failed to get it off the ice before the break-up of ice in the Bay of Quinte, is providing a temporary diving raft for early season swimmers at Zwick's Island.

The west wind has floated the shanty into the bay at the north side of the island and the small overturned shelter is grounded on the approach to the beach. Saturday afternoon a couple of swimmers were seen using the shanty as an improvised diving raft.

Magician, Entertaining, Amusing At Ladies' Night of Rotary Club

"Good magic is an art, which sometimes instructs, often amuses and always entertains," said Special L. Rodney Hall, Kingston, entitled "Magic and Magicians," delivered at the annual Ladies' Night sponsored by the Belleville Rotary Club, and held in the Masonic Temple Saturday evening.

Mr. Rodney reviewed history of magic "from the dawn of time when magic, religion and medicine were intertwined."

"Primitive peoples were awed by the magic of day and night, springtime and winter time, rain in the wind, the mystery of clouds and tides, the magic of birth and life and the inexplicable magic of death. To these people everything was magical. White magic was good and black magic was bad."

The speaker themselves against the magic of unseen gods, the early ancestors of man called upon their wizards and priests," said Mr. Rodney. "The Bible records that Pharaoh called on his wizards to interpret a dream which Joseph finally interpreted as a prophecy of the seven fat and seven lean years."

TRACES EVOLUTION

The speaker traced the evolution of magic and magicians through the ages, through priests, necromancers, sorcerers, diviners, wizards, to so-called modern Rosicrucians, Merlin, Nostradamus, Friar Bacon, Cavil, Dr. D. and his famous blackwood, Count de Cagliostro, through the age of jugglers, crystal gazers and magicians, until the "dawn of the 19th century freed magic from its chimney pot hat" and it took to entertainment."

Mr. Rodney told several interesting stories about the great conjurers, magicians, illusionists and artists and showmen of the 19th century which he described as the "golden age of magic."

He spoke at some length about Harry Houdini, the famous escape artist, whom he knew well.

Houdini, according to Mr. Rodney, was actually a right-handed writer. His real name was Wesse and he was a quiet, gentle, quiet, soft-spoken, friendly person.

STRIKING PHENOMENON

As Houdini, the master performer, he was a proud, conceited, egotistical showman with a vast contempt for disbelievers and an inordinate love of publicity.

The transformation from Wesse to Houdini and back to Wesse during the time of a performance was a striking and unusual phenomenon.

"When Wesse talked about Houdini he spoke of him as some other person," said Mr. Rodney.

"Harry Houdini was honest in all his dealings," said Mr. Rodney, as he told of his escape through the ice from the Detroit River and his shuffling of prisoners among the cells of a supposedly "escape proof" German prison.

"He had a swastika-like gadget whose four points could open any lock or lock combination in the world," said Mr. Rodney, in relating how Houdini used this gadget in his hair.

When asked by Mr. Rodney what would have happened had anyone searched his hair, Houdini replied, "no one ever tried."

SKILFUL EXHIBITION

Mr. Rodney followed his entertaining address with an able, skilful exhibition of card tricks and magic with eight keen pupils.

Mr. Rodney was introduced by Don MacKinnon and the thanks of the meeting were expressed by Mack Robertson.

Rotary president Harold Mott welcoming the guests, who included representatives of other Belleville service clubs, and acted as chairman of the meeting.

Mr. Barrett Dixon played several violin solos accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Egerton Boyce.

The head table guests were composed by Rev. Ralph Middleton and Mrs. Middleton replied on behalf of the ladies.

Freeman Burrows thanked the ladies of the Women's Association of Bayside Wesley United Church who catered to the meeting and the convenership of Mrs. E. Wheadover.

There was a dance following the dinner.

Those at the head table were: Rev. Ralph Middleton and Mrs. Middleton; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mott; Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Rodway; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Abbott and Mr. and Mrs. Don MacKinnon.

Rev. J. J. Buckley Presented With Purse of Money

Five years of service to the people of St. Michael's parish, Belleville, were singularly honored Sunday evening when Rev. J. J. Buckley, former pastor of St. Michael's and recently appointed parish priest of the newly-established St. Joseph's parish, was presented with a purse of money.

Several hundred parishioners, including the sisters of St. Michael's Convent, an honor guard of Knights of Columbus and representatives of parish societies attended the presentation ceremonies in the church.

Ernest Cook, president of the Holy Name Society, read an address to Father Buckley and the purse was presented on behalf of the parishioners by Edmund Zebaugh.

Representatives of the various parish societies present in the sanctuary were: Mrs. Edson Logan, president of the Catholic Women's League; Mrs. Ben Burgess, representing the Parent-Teachers' Association; Mrs. Frank Fitzpatrick, president of the Benevolent Society.

In his address Mr. Cook stated that in his five years of service Father Buckley had impressed everyone by his "whole-hearted interest in your spiritual welfare."

He stated that Father Buckley's presence "lent joy to most festive occasions" and that his "sympathy in times of sorrow" was of great consolation.

"We are grateful to you for all you have done for us and for all you have meant to us," said Mr. Cook. "One of the compensating factors in your leaving us, you will continue to serve in Belleville."

MAKES GRACIOUS REPLY

Father Buckley, in replying, stated that it was among the people of St. Michael's that he began his work for God and that he "will never forget my first church and my first priestly love."

He recalled the kindnesses shown to him by Rt. Rev. Monsignor Hinchey, the pastor, and the curates with whom he serviced—Rev. D. Doherty, Rev. C. E. Baker, Rev. J. Brennan and Rev. Peter Murphy.

He thanked the members of the various societies with which he was associated for their co-operation and kindness—among them the Parent-Teacher Association, the Catholic Women's League, the Knights of Columbus and Altar Society.

He expressed his personal gratitude to the Sisters of St. Michael's convent for many kindnesses and to the Sisters of St. Joseph's convent for their support of any project which he undertook.

In expressing his thanks to the people of the parish for their personal kindness, co-operation and loyalty, Father Buckley stated that he felt "one of the great joys of his new work was that "I will still be among you."

"I feel that I am very fortunate in not leaving the city," he said, as he promised the people of St. Michael's that he would remember them in his prayers.

Very Rev. Dean L. B. Garvin, pastor of St. Michael's and Rev. Father Murphy, curate, were present in the sanctuary.

Following the presentation Father Buckley officiated at Benediction.

Yellow Goat's Beard Tough, Hardy Weed

If you appreciate neat, well kept roadsides and parks you will favor the attractive growth provided by Goat's Beard. This coarse, tall growing weed is found in abundance in the full glory of its yellow flower, but after the tufted, downy seed heads are formed its appearance is not enhanced. These seeds scatter far and wide on the early summer breeze and the plant looks even more dejected, and remains that way until hidden by winter's snow.

Goat's Beard often reaches a height of three feet. The coarse stalk is surrounded by long, narrow, pointed leaves. The flowers are large, yellow, and resemble the head of a dandelion in bud, or closed at night, the shape of the seed head resembles a goat's beard; hence the popular name. Seeds are long and narrow, tufted for buoyancy, and the ripe seed head looks like the seed on an overgrown dandelion. The whole plant is filled with a white milky juice.

Although this weed is a perennial, it does not stand cultivation and its activities are pretty well confined to roadsides, parks, long term pastures and waste places. Field Crops Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, It is now well established in many of these places, simply from neglect to pull out the few scattered plants which covered for a few years ago.

It is susceptible to 2-4-D only in its early stages of growth; that is, before budding: In this stage it is able to destroy the entire plant and is not easily discovered. After it towers above the grass and opens up its bright yellow flowers, it isn't damaged much by spraying with 2-4-D or 2-4-5-T. The answer then is pull it out. Mowing only delays the blossoming a bit, since it rapidly grows back and blossoms over again. Where cutting is the only means of control, it should be early and often. Well developed blossoms will develop seed after the plant has been cut.

Colorful Shrine Apparel, Bands Mark Dual Parades in Peterborough

(By GEO. H. CARVER).

PETERBOROUGH — The colorful caravan series of the Ramsees Temple of Toronto augmented by Shrine clubs of the district linked this Litlluck City on Saturday.

Crowd-packed streets greeted the blaze of color that ribboned the thoroughfares as the gaily caparisoned shriners paraded in the afternoon and evening.

The stirring strains of martial music vied with the shrilling notes of Oriental pipes and the "wail" of the bagpipes as almost 1,000 members of the Shrine paraded to the armouries parade ground.

As one spectator put it "The place fairly reeks with color" as the parade came to a halt before a dais where the Ramsees Temple divan and accompanying shrines were officially welcomed by His honor, Mayor Norman Graham and civic officials.

CIVIC WELCOME.

"The city is open to you" Mayor Graham said. "We hope you will take advantage of everything we have to offer, and trust it will be the best time you have ever had in your history."

Heading the colorful array was the Temple Divan under Potentate Fred Midgley. With him were Chief Rabban Arnie Taylor, assistant Rabban D. L. Storey; E. O. Lee, high priest; Charles Fraser, oriental guide, W. H. Masson, director, C. Hall, director recorder and Jim Bartlett, potentate's aid.

Strong contingents of visiting Shrine clubs attended. From Belleville came a colorful aggregation headed by standard bearer Noble Harry Abbott and Noble Jack Bush and CNR band mounted on gaily-caparisoned handsome palomino horses from the Bush stables.

The Peterborough Shrine Club under its president, Norman Elliot, was out in full force, marching behind a kilted scottish band under Drum Major Harry Anderson.

A highlight of the Toronto Shrine Club's parade was an old-fashioned street car (named "Underspin") which carried a group of gaily-garbed black-moustached choral singers. The clanging of the street car bell accompanied the finely-blended voices of the singers as the ancient vehicle creaked its way along the parade route. It received a fine ovation all along the line.

The Ramsees Temple brass band, gorgeous in cream trousers, blue bolero and scarlet vests and red fezzes played along the route and also gave a colorful demonstration on the parade ground. It was under the able direction of Conductor J. D. Wilson, former director of the Canadian National Exhibition Band.

Equally as colorful was the drum and trumpet band of the Divan.

The weird but tuneful shrilling of Arab pipes to the accompaniment of the tom-toms featured the band of the Oriental Patrol. Led by conductor Tom Snively, a tasseled "piper" the band staged a smart demonstration clad in flowing creamed striped burnooses, red gowns and fezzes and red shoes with curled toes. Included was a ferocious "Bluebeard" who carried a shining scimitar in his piratical garb.

FIRST VISIT.

The large crowd at the parade ground gave the precision squad of the Toronto Shrine Clubs an outstanding ovation that followed a remarkable demonstration of precision, marching. The squad garbed in cream trousers with red bolero jackets and the traditional fezzes wheeled, marched and countermarched in a display that would be the envy of crack squads of the armed services.

Potentate Midgley in a brief address, following the afternoon parade, paid tribute to Peterborough, and to its shrine club. "This is our first visit to your city and it will not be the last."

He paid further tribute to the fine efforts being put forth by Shrine Clubs, especially those in this continent for the outstanding work being done for crippled children. "Our Shrine Hospitals in Canada, regardless of race or creed or color, are doing this effort", he said.

"We feel the Shrine is tops in fraternal organizations," Potentate Midgley said, "and solicit your continued support and that of any of our projects that are carried out expressive of the principle of aiding the less fortunate kiddies."

A large number of members of the Belleville Shrine Club travelled to Peterborough and mingled with many others going in private automobiles. The newly-formed Picton Shrine Club was also represented by Nobles Clarence Jones, H. Johnson and others. Noble Harvey McFarland and Fred Ward, who were scheduled to ride the McFarland palominos in the parade, were unable to make the trip.

The two fine palomino mares ridden by Noble Jack Bush and Mr. Clifford Fox attracted a lot of attention during the parade and each carried the Shrine Band's prancing miss was displayed, in the arena following the first parade as was "Golden Star" her stablemate.

Potentate Midgley of the Ramsees Temple Divan was so taken with the beautiful horses that he rode Mr. Ne did and the beautiful horses' prancing and pivoting carried the Temple head proudly around the arena.

Parade Ground Is No Place For 'Longhairs'

The army likes 'em intelligent but it's no place for "longhairs."

Yesterday's parade at the Fairgrounds proved this to a youthful private of the 9th Anti-Tank when he presented himself for parade with locks that an RSM might have regarded as a throwback to Lady Godiva.

However, Captain Freddie Symons, one-time barber, who just happened to know where Dieps were hair clippers, lugged the lad off to a quiet doorway behind the grandstand for an impromptu tonsure.

There, with a comb borrowed from a reporter, the captain set to work, trimming the lad's massive brush to regulation size, and sent him back on parade, lightheaded but wiser.

Firemen Busy Over Week-End

City firemen were kept busy Sunday with two runs during the afternoon taking fire fighters to the Bay Bridge Road for a marsh blaze and to the local Y.M.C.A. where the curtains and window sill in a third storey bedroom were found ablaze.

Approximately one-half acre of the marsh along the railway tracks on the west side of the Bay Bridge Road was burned over by the blaze before firemen put out the fire.

At the Y.M.C.A. a cigarette was blamed for the blaze which damaged the window drapes and the window sill.

Firemen had a third run this morning to the same address for an over-heated stove. No damage resulted.

Liberal Leader Most Critical Of Duplessis

RICHMOND, Que. (CP) — Quebec Liberal leader Georges Lapalme said Saturday Premier Maurice Duplessis was not thinking of preserving French-Canadian culture when he opposed a provincial income tax but was "just trying to pick another quarrel with Ottawa."

He accused Mr. Duplessis of "stifling the press" and warned Quebec residents that not only citizenders but farmers also would suffer because of the new tax.

The tax is 23 per cent of the federal income tax and the federal government allows only five per cents of its own to be deducted as relief from the provincial tax.

Speaking at a banquet of the Richmond county liberal organization, Mr. Lapalme said the tax hurts Quebec residents directly and indirectly.

It takes money away from them and it discourages major industries, which could provide employment for many persons, from coming to Quebec. Large firms are beginning to move their head offices to other provinces, he said.

Mr. Lapalme said Premier Duplessis is silencing press criticism "for diverse reasons which I and many others know well." Only one daily, Montreal's Le Devoir, dares to stand up to Mr. Duplessis, he declared.

Police Blotter

Theft of two pairs of trousers and a tunic from a car parked at the rear of a local hotel was reported over the week-end by William Magill, Ponton street.

On the whole, however, police activity was exceptionally quiet over the week-end. Provincial police received a number of a serious nature, while the same was true of city police.

City police saw most of their activity concerned with drunks, at least half a dozen of whom were rounded up over the two-day period.

A 13-year-old Deseronto girl, Gwendolyn Mary Valiquette was reported missing from her home and police assistance was requested in locating her.

EDEN'S STOCK IS CLIMBING

There is increasing evidence that the Geneva conference may have an important influence on international affairs after all.

It appears unlikely that it will serve the purpose for which it was called, to bring peace to east Asia.

But it may decide who will be the next prime minister of Great Britain.

Anthony Eden's stock has been steadily climbing. The British foreign secretary has displayed both skill and forbearance in handling one of the most difficult assignments of his lengthy career.

There may be some so unkind as to suggest that the Eden appearance of statesmanship owes much to the indiscretions of some of his colleagues from the West. That, aptitude of some of his colleagues from the West. That, however, is a moot point. On its opinions will differ widely. But, trailing reports from the conference, it becomes increasingly evident that there is general agreement that Eden is emerging as the most effective spokesman for the democratic countries.

Of course, if in spite of his efforts the conference ends in the anticipated deadlock on both the Korean and Indo-China problems, British voters may overlook Eden's Chinese problems, British voters may overlook Eden's Chinese problems, British voters may overlook Eden's Chinese

Citizen Soldier Playing Vital Role Says Inspecting Officer

The citizen soldier is playing a vital role in the defence of Canada, with the nation's rapid growth swallowing up all available manpower in economic projects the army looks to the civilian soldier to augment its forces.

Major R. Cummings, GSO2, HQ, Eastern Ontario Area, addressing the annual inspection of the 9th Anti-Tank (ALI) regiment at the Fairgrounds yesterday, paid tribute to 'the men who swap pen and plough for a rifle and go soldiering in their spare time.

There are not enough regular troops and there is no increase easily seen for the forces in the future, and, therefore, "without the loyal support of the citizen soldier our defence forces would not be sufficient," he said.

He congratulated the regiment on its showing for which the CO, Lt.-Col. E. H. Warwick, ED, EM, has mustered a forces of upwards of 300.

"This inspection is one of the best in the area," he said, "it certainly is one of the strongest turnouts I have seen this year."

A special aside went to the bren gun and rifle units which he said were "up to standard."

"You have nothing to fear from any infantry unit in that field," he told the men.

The inter-regimental Wills Progress Cup was won by the 73rd Battery from Gananoque, under OC Major L. V. Eadie, and second-in-command, Captain E. Gooding.

GENERAL SALUTE

Presented by Lt.-Col. P. H. Wills to the top battery in training and administration, the trophy, since its inception in 1950, has been retained every year by Major J. Black's 34th Battery from Belleville.

The inspection began at 2 p.m. with the general salute taken by Major Cummings. Inspection of the regiment was followed by the march past.

Accompanying Major Cummings on the review stand were Major J. Clarke, Capt. R. H. Vaughan, adjutant; Lt. E. H. Martin, Kingston, and Hon.-Capt. W. J. Robinson.

Captain Robinson, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, recently was appointed padre of the regiment.

Although the sun didn't match the gleam of a regimental sergeant-major's eye (in this case RSM W. A. Lacey) and a fretful sky dropped some tentative showers, the regiment finished the day with its powder dry.

VARIOUS DEMONSTRATIONS

Various demonstrations in field duties under the direction of chief supervisor Major H. S. Fairman, included light machine gun drill, supervised by Major W. E. Wylie; artillery board demonstration, supervised by Major B. Medd, and equipment demonstration, supervised by Major R. MacPherson, MC 47th Battery, Napanee.

Music was provided by the pipe band, RHQ Belleville, under pipe major Doug Burns and the trumpet band of Gananoque's 3rd Battery, directed by Lt. E. Bulger.

Major Fairman wound up the inspection by congratualting the 3rd Battery on its trophy win and the regiment in general for its smart turnout.

Reiterating Major Cummings' remarks on the men's showing, he noted that Ottawa is the only place in the eastern area yet to be inspected and the 9th Anti-Tank now heads the entire area.

The administrative inspection of the regiment's stores, transport and buildings was held earlier this month by Major Pope and Lt. Col. Brown, eastern area staff officers.

Quick Cease-Fire In Indo-China Sought by West

GENEVA (AP) — The Indo-China peace talks went behind a wall of secrecy today with the Western powers reported pressing for a quick cease-fire as the first step toward a political settlement.

After a week of general debate, in which all the nine delegations made policy declarations, the conference scheduled its first "restricted" session to get down to concrete negotiations.

These sessions were limited to the chiefs of the nine delegations participating, plus three advisers each. They were not to be reported to the press in briefings such as are held after conference plenary sessions.

Soviet foreign minister Molotov indicated in a speech Friday that he is prepared to challenge the Western demands for a military truce without political strings attached. He said a cessation of hostilities would be impossible without some political agreements in Vietnam.

The Western powers were reported determined to take a tough position on this issue. U.S. undersecretary of state Walter Bedell Smith, French foreign minister Bidault and British foreign secretary Eden worked out their plans in private talks over the week-end.

WILL SUBMIT PLAN

Bidault, it was understood, plans to submit a detailed armistice plan based on previous proposals to halt the Indo - China fighting.

Fourteen-Member Teaching Staff Resigns in Body

TORONTO (CP) — Resignation of the 14-member teaching staff and "risk" fifth of Blenheim district high school was announced Sunday by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

The federation said action against the school, 15 miles southeast of Chatham, was taken in protest against delaying tactics by the Blenheim school board in dealing with requests for salary adjustments and an increase in maximum allowable pay.

They said the "risk" listing means all federation members have been advised not to accept employment at the school until the dispute is settled. The staff resignations are effective at the end of the school term.

The teachers want an increase in maximum salaries to $5,000-$,200 from $4,600-$4,700. The latest would not mean an across-the-board increase. Only two or three teachers would be affected at the present time by such changes.

At Blenheim, M. K. Jackson, chairman of Blenheim district high school board, said Sunday night the board has not officially accepted the resignation of its 14-member teaching staff. He expressed hope a solution can be reached on the salary dispute when the board meets Tuesday.

WAS FORMER PRINCIPAL

TORONTO (CP)—David Whyte, 84, former principal of Toronto Normal school, died Sunday. He began teaching at the age of 17 and taught at Niagara Falls, Iroquois, Owen Sound and Hamilton Normal. Surviving are his widow, two daughters and one son.

EISENHOWER

The key paragraph said:

"Because it is essential to efficient and effective administration that employees of the executive branch be in a position to be completely candid in advising with each other on official matters, and because it is important in the public interest that any of their conversations or communications or any documents or reproductions concerning such advice be disclosed, you will instruct employees of your department that in all of their appearances before the sub-committee of the Senate committee on government operations regarding the inquiry now before it, they are not to testify to any such conversations or communications or to produce any such documents or reproductions.

"This principle must be maintained regardless of who may be benefited by such disclosures."

At the same time, Attorney-General Herbert Brownell ruled that no parts of a document produced by McCarthy, purporting to summarize a secret FBI paper on security risks at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., should be made public.

Brownell said, in a letter to the committee chairman, that the justice department is considering "possible violations of the criminal law" in connection with data in the document, and that declassification of any part of it would not be in the public interest.

McCarthy previously told the sub-committee that the document was given him by an army intelligence officer, whom he did not name.

Chairman Karl Mundt (Rep. S. D.) said today he regards Brownell's ruling as final, but McCarthy said he would pay no attention to any Brownell ruling and would withdraw "the information" any if FBI director J. Edgar Hoover said it was not in the national interest to make it public.

John Adams' enquiries reference to Gen. Zwicker, 11 conference had been taken as an indication that the move in the highest Republican ranks to nail his political hide to the barn door.

Along with his letter today to Secretary Wilson, Eisenhower sent a 2,000-word memorandum, to back up his position.

This listed precedents in 12 previous administrations from George Washington to Harry S. Truman, relating to the principle of separation of powers of the executive and legislative branches.

Loss of Millions In Flood Caused By Dam Burst

PEABODY, Mass. (AP) — This industrial city of 23,000 counted a loss of millions today as it cleared debris and fought a health menace in the wake of a flood caused by a dam burst.

Mayor Philip C. O'Donnell said the flood waters which raced into the heart of the city Sunday night caused what may result in the "heaviest property damage of any non-fatal disaster" in the city's 300-year history.

As digging-out operations got under way, state and local health officials joined to combat the health problem.

The city's nine schools, with 2,500 children, were ordered closed for the day. All restaurants and food stores were earmarked for close inspection. City-wide water tests were scheduled. Police equipped with loud-speaking systems cruised the streets warning residents to boil all water for drinking or cooking.

TWO BLOCKS GIVE WAY

The water surged downhill into the central business area after two one-ton granite blocks of a dam gave way at a pond called the Flume about a mile away.

Water up to six feet deep flooded scores of buildings, including 75 factories, all the city's main stores, city hall, police and fire headquarters and the 150-year-old South Congregational church.

Some 50 families were evacuated from their homes.

The dam gave way under pressure of water accumulated during two weeks of almost steady rain in New England. The water began to recede about six hours after the dam burst.

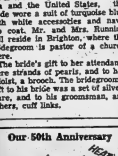
They carried cascade bouquets of pink Shasta 'mums and pink sweetpeas, and wore matching headdresses.



Mr. Raymond Running attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Robert Johnson, of Medoc, and Mr. Leslie Running, of Lansdowne, acted as ushers.

The reception was held at the Dutch Mill Inn, Trenton, where the bride's grandmother, wearing navy blue crepe with navy accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses, received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore turquoise blue crepe with white accessories and corsage of Sweetheart roses.

Over 125 Mothers, Daughters Attend Y's Menettes' Banquet

Over 125 mothers and daughters attended the mother and daughter banquet for the "Y" girls and their mothers held at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday evening, sponsored by the Y's Menettes.

The guest speaker was the Reverend Miss Miriam Collins who held the complete attention of her audience with two delightful stories.

The first was about a little girl who wanted more than anything in the world to be beautiful. It was not until after a visit with the fairies that she realized that true beauty comes from being interested in and helping others.

The second story described how another girl always was intrigued by the house with the golden windows. One evening she was coming home at sunset and discovered that her house, too, had golden windows. She realized that it was her responsibility to make her own home a place of golden ideas.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. E. L. Littlejohn and thanked by Mrs. F. R. Clarke.

Chairman of the event was Mrs. Eric Whitfield.

A rousing sing song was led by general secretary Lloyd Sheaff, with Roscoe Mooney at the piano. W. A. Beach replied to the chairman's welcome and greetings from the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors were given by E. L. Littlejohn.

GOOD MANNERS

FACTS ABOUT THANK-YOU NOTES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I write my "Thank-you" cards for shower gifts, how should they be worded — Mary and John Brown or "Mary Smith and John Brown"? Should my fiance's name come first? And should both last names be signed to the card?

Allen Rose

Thank you" cards for wedding presents be signed — Bride-to-be.

Dear Bride-to-be:

You should note these facts about thank-you notes:

1. This is most important: You must never send a ready-made "Thank-you" card for any kind of present. Answer a card with a printed or engraved "expression" of thanks.

2. You yourself must write a gracious note of thanks for every present you receive — except engagement presents, shower presents, wedding presents. This will show you're grown-up person, capable of writing a thank-you note, unwilling to depend on a rubber-stamp manufacturer's impersonal expression of thanks. Write your notes in letter-paper and note-paper — if your informals are of good size, you may use them.

3. Your thank-you notes for shower presents should start out with your first name only, since shower guests would be relatives and friends who don't sign your fiance's name. Include his appreciation in the body of your note: for example, "The sunny-yellow place mats you so generously gave us at our shower are beauties. . . and Ken says that these, our breakfast-trays, will certainly start the day right!"

4. No "Thank you" cards, remember, write a thank-you note for each present. Sign the cards with your name only, including your fiance's appreciation in the body of the note as suggested above. Sign only your first name, of course, to relatives and friends. Other than that, no signature when identification is necessary. So, for example, to a relative or friend of your fiance, someone you have not yet met.

MEMBERS OF FAMILY DISAGREE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In our family we have an aunt whom we all dearly love. She and her husband were wonderfully devoted to each other and we all loved him too. A month ago he passed on, and we try to write her often (she lives in another city). I address my letters to her "Mrs. Robert Brown," as I am sure that she would not even think of dropping her beloved husband's name. However, my sister and two cousins I've talked to insist that we should address letters to her as "Mrs. Martha Brown." Who is right, Mrs. Beeckman?

Dee

You are right. . .and for the perfect reason you gave: "I am sure that she would not even think of dropping her beloved husband's name."

ADD HIS NAME IN THE INTRODUCTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I live in Chicago, have lived here all my life. Last month I married a man who works for the same company I work for, and who has recently been transferred here. He has not yet had much opportunity to meet my friends. When I introduce him to friends (or acquaintances) who don't know my married name, would it be correct for me to mention his name? — Ursula A.

Indeed this is correct. . .and makes sense. For example, say: "Mrs. Thompson, this is my husband, Philip Hall."

REAL WEDDING PROBLEM

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm to be married in a few months, a church wedding. I'm to wear a wedding gown with a short train, and a bridal veil. I find myself in quite a terrible dilemma as far as bridal attendants are concerned. My dearest girl friend, who was to be my maid of honor, is in the hospital with an illness that will mean many months before an even possible recovery. I have no near relatives whom I could ask to serve as bridal attendant, and my fiance has no near relatives he could ask to serve as his attendants. Mrs. Beeckman, would it be all proper for to have a church wedding without attendants? I really don't know what to do. What about the problem of my bouquet and the short train on my dress? Also, is it proper for the bride's table to be covered with the veil before the ceremony? — M.

It is true that a bride have any attendant. . .but obviously it is not proper for her to have a bridal attendant. . .but she has at least a maid (or matron) of honor. Is your sister friend whom you know well enough to ask to be your one attendant? If not, of course, all necessary thanks one attendant be a "near relative". Also, customarily the groom has a best man, and if there are a number of guests to be seated, some others. (Quite often the groom asks his father to be his best man.)

If it is impossible for both of you to have attendants, then you should, naturally, adapt your wedding plans to this situation. You should have no train on your dress, for obviously there will be no one to adjust it. And instead of carrying a bouquet, you might wear one lovely white flower, perhaps a beautiful white camellia. And certainly you should not plan to wear a fan veil. . .as the fancy feature requires that you have an attendant to lift it back at the conclusion of the ceremony. If your groom isn't to have a best man, he himself will have to take special care of the wedding ring; and if there are to be no ushers, you should have a very small wedding, perhaps in a chapel.

A MOST UNHAPPY SITUATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My sister is to be married very soon. Invitations have been sent out to all the relatives and friends except my husband and me. We do not understand the snub. We received a note from my sister's foster-mother telling us to stay away as we are not wanted. But no explanation of why. Should we ignore the note and the fact that we did not receive an invitation, and go to the wedding anyway?

2. My husband and I were planning on sending my sister a handsome and very expensive wedding present. Do you think we should send it just the same? We are inclined to feel that since we are not welcome at the wedding, perhaps our wedding present might not be welcome either. Please answer these questions in your column as there may be other people facing the same situation. — Mrs. J. T.

1. I am completely baffled by this heartbreaking situation between sister and sister. Will help feeling that you must have overlooked at least several. . .but there was some misunderstanding or possibility of misunderstanding. Didn't you? However, I'm a deep believer in facing a situation directly and straightforwardly, trying if possible to lift a cloud from a misunderstanding. I urge you to make every effort to get in touch with your sister immediately, and with gentleness and grace, ask her to explain the why of this unhappy circumstance. If she refuses to see you or to answer a letter requesting an explanation, then you and your husband should not, I most strongly think, go to the wedding. After all it's her wedding; all decisions about it are her privilege, and if she doesn't want you and your husband there, you should be there.

2. Unless this cloud is lifted before the wedding, you and your husband should not send a wedding present. Hope and pray that all will be well and the reconciled and then give your sister the wedding present you are considering giving her.

ANNOUNCING HIMSELF ON TELEPHONE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I know that when he telephones socially, not in business, he should say as an adult, who answers, "This is John Hill." But we have several friends whose young children sometimes answer the telephone. How should he announce himself to them. . . "This is John Hill" or "This is Mr. Hill"?

To a child he would announce: "This is Mr. Hill," or, if necessary for further identification, "This is Mr. John Hill."

WHERE THE OYSTER FORK?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have always understood that all forks are placed at the left of the plate. But in my opinion it says not the oyster fork—that's placed at the right of the place. So? — Kate D.

Yes. . .no. The oyster fork is the only fork that is placed at the right of the plate. If an oyster fork is to be used, it is for the beginning course, and therefore it is placed farthest from the plate at the right.

MAN BROKE THE ENGAGEMENT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance has just broken our engagement. Since he was the one to break the engagement, should I return the engagement ring to him? — Nell K.

Yes, dear girl, return the engagement ring to this young man. . .and promto. For I assure you that you will be happier if you remove from your life at once this symbol of the engagement that no longer exists. And this is particularly true in the most unhappy circumstance that the man breaks the engagement.

Fooled By A Bargain

By Mary Moore

I was taken in. Was I ever! I'm chagrined. And me old enough to know better.

Quite blithely I sashayed into a store where Red Brand steaks (only 4 to a customer) were advertised at 49c per lb. I asked the butcher to cut me two, each 1½ inches thick: They cost $2.89. My sisters being steak fiends, I took one to their house, stuck it in the freezer compartment and chilled my own at home for future reference. . .

Future reference time arrived two days later when Pete's buddy turned up at the door at 8.15 p.m. He is graduating next week and just about to leave our part of the country to go home to Sault Ste. Marie. He had come to say goodbye, but stayed Pete because he is still writing his 2nd year exams. . .

I figured I needed four hearty eaters to make the serving of that nearly 3-lb. steak worthwhile and I had that many what with my precious Marianne and myself in only minutie.

So I let the steak warm to room temperature, then put it under the broiler at 500 deg. Fahr. These boys like their steaks well done, so when it reached that stage the potatoes were mashed, the asparagus was tender, the salad was tossed, the fruit was cupped, the cheese and crackers ready, the coffee dripping, and the table set. (Everything timed in the work automatically for I had not left my desk until 5.30 — Thorny's knock.)

Thinking I had their favorite meal I happily set to to carve the steak—but the plaguey thing was tough! Tough as old shoes! The young people chomped through it willingly, but my smile was a fake.

I suppose what I had bought was sliced from the shoulder instead of the beef—and me supposed to be a "good" housewife!

I quick phoned my sisters warning them to use that meat tenderizing stuff on theirs before passing it off on guests.

Question: Would you please tell me if the "Seducers' Dressing" you described in the paper will sour quickly? M.C.P.

Answer: No, if it is kept covered and refrigerated.

Question: Would you please give me a recipe for pineapple (or preserves). Mary Ann Answer: Hello Mary, I am glad you asked for this ah this time.

PINEAPPLE PRESERVES.

Pare fresh pineapple, remove eyes and cut fruit into small pieces or cubes and measure 4 cups. Cook it in 4 cups water in covered pan until tender. Add 4 cups sugar and cook until fruit is clear and syrup has thickened somewhat. Heat must be low. Pour into sterile jars and seal with sterile tops.

One of my favorites is:

PINEAPPLE AND STRAWBERRY JAM.

Pare and remove eyes from one medium-sized ripe pineapple and put through medium blade of food chopper, being sure to catch the juice. Mash 1 generous quart fully ripened choice strawberries, which have been washed and hulled—mashing until all berries are thoroughly broken. Combine fruits—there should be 2½ cups —if you have more do not add it. Put mixed fruit in large saucepan and add exactly 6½ cups granulated sugar, mix well and bring to a full boiling boil over high heat, stirring often. Boil hard for 3 minutes, remove from heat and stir in 4 oz. (½ bottle), liquid fruit pectin, and stir occasionally for 5 minutes, to prevent solidifying, but not to stir. Pour into sterile jars, filling to within ¼-inch of top. Cover at once with hot paraffin and cool. Label and store in cool, dry place.

Enjoy your cooking.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HOW MANY MISTAKES WILL THIS YOUNG WOMAN MAKE?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 24, and only about one year have been going with a man nine years my senior. I am very much in love with this man, and I know that he feels the same about me. We see each other every night and, no matter what I ask him to do for me, he never hesitates. I go to his house regularly, and his family likes me very much. I know that both his family and mine are hoping that we will marry soon.

The problem is that we have been having intimate relations for the past six months, and whenever I mention marriage he continually puts me off. In fact, on numerous occasions I have suggested that we become engaged, because I know our friends and families are beginning to wonder just what the score is, but he refuses to do this, telling me that he is not financially able to commit himself to a wife. At the same time, he has no wish to leave him.

I don't know what he is waiting for, because I am perfectly outstanding in our way for happiness. I know that he loves me, but I don't think he is ever going to marry me. If he does, why isn't he willing to prove it?

What is your opinion?

Margerie C.

Dear Margerie:

Whether or not this man really loves you is rather problematical, to say the least. Pan more definite, I think, is his attitude summed up by yourself when you say you "don't think he wants to marry me."

Personally, I do not believe this man is ever going to marry you. He's having it too soft. On the contrary, she is far more likely to find you've "had it" and terminate her ties of you or sees another girl he fancies as a partner in a new affair.

No girl ever holds a man by having him at her beck and call. On the contrary, she is far more likely to lose him under such circumstances. You ask me for my opinion, and my opinion is that the sooner you get rid of him, the better. If there is any remote chance that he really does love and intend to marry you some day, that will bring things to a head. You've let him talk you into one serious mistake. Are you now going to let him lead you into the mistake of having him make a complete fool of you?

TOO BUSY TO SENSIBLE ABOUT HIS FRIENDSHIPS

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16 years old and like a boy of 18 very much. He says he likes all the girls, but doesn't want to get too much involved with particular girl. You see, a girl recently broke my heart with him and he is afraid he will get hurt again.

He seems to have some interest in me, but he is too busy to see. How can I get him to like me?

Dear I.B.:

I am all for the boys who, at 16, don't want to "get serious" about any one girl but who, instead, are sensible enough to have many girl friends. If your friend had been wise enough to do that in the first place, he wouldn't be so upset now about this one particular girl. It's fine, though, that he learned from his experience. . .

I advise you to do exactly the same, and have just as many boy friends as possible. You'll not only have more pep about life that way, but you'll learn to tell what sort of men are worth bothering about and most congenial, so that when the time does come for you to get serious about any individual one, you'll be much more likely to make a good choice. Don't you think this would be smart?

Quebec Woman Termed Great Poet by Critic

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—A virtually unknown young Quebec woman who writes verse with a verbal exuberance is termed by one of France's top critics "a great contemporary Frenchlanguage poet."

Andre Rousseaux, literary critic of Le Figaro in Paris startled a meeting of the Canadian Women's Club here with adjectives like "extraordinary" and "very great" in the verse of Anne Hebert of Quebec.

Miss Hebert, a tall, black-haired woman who works for the National Film Board, was so little known generally that a Paris preview ("Esprit" last year published some poems of her manuscript poems in the belief she lived in France.

Mr. Rousseaux said he was amazed when he read Miss Hebert's poems in a book given him by a friend. He described "Le Tombeau des Rois"—Tomb of the Kings—as "assuredly a very great poem."

HAS BIG SALE

That poem is the title of a 72-page volume which publisher Paul Michaud of Quebec says has sold 1,000 copies, "a probable record for a local book of poetry."

"Le Tombeau des Rois," a cold-blooded dissection in the manner of psyche where feelings are horn, live and die, has been described as poetry written "living in the desert of one's own mind and daring to like there."

Miss Hebert, whose work is full of vivid clashes—"hands melted like water", "love changed into salt", "fingers of sand and flow-ered palms"—was reared in a distinguished Quebec family where poetry always held a special place.

Her father, Maurice Hebert has written poetry and a cousin, the late H. Bruney Carneau, was one of Quebec's better-known poets.

Of delicate health, she left school early and spent summers in Ste. Catherine de Portneuf, a sotly rolling farm country where an ancient family manor still stands.

Her first book of verse drew limited attention. Last year, after a 10-year lapse, she showed her heavily pruned and polished style to novelist Roger Lemelin and literary friends who urged and arranged publication.

An intimate friend says Miss Hebert writes poetry as a jeweller cuts stone, slowly, carefully and persistently.

ARCHERY PROMOTES GRACE AND GOOD POSTURE

One group of women's clubs are retaining a youthful appearance and slender figures well into middle life, in their interest and interest in outdoor sports. At present, archery is the favorite sport with them. Come upon an archery range as you motor through the country and you will see many good-looking Dianas. They are steady of aim and strong of limb. Why not join up one of these days? See what you can do with a bow and arrow.

Your surroundings will add to your pleasure. A clear, blue sky, a perfect al fresco setting for a row of gayly-colored targets. Arrows are poised, aimed. They soar upward, curve downward, plunge into the targets. It is thrilling to watch them. And notice the quiet, vikrapt forms of the women archers!

Their movements are graceful and beautiful. The body is kept taut, spine and calumn extended. There is full expansion of the chest as the bow is drawn backward.

No exercise could be more beneficial as a figure builder and corrective influence. The act of stooping the bow pulls upon the muscles of the arms, chest and mid-section, in using bow and arrow between the targets and the firing line legs, thighs and hips get a workout.

Archery is also a mental stimulant. There is the sporting element of competition which is lacking, of course, in the ordinary calisthenics which so many women find tiresome and boring.

Archery clubs are springing up everywhere. Many small towns have their clubs and fans. Their interest leads to woodcraft. Some of the women, like the men, make their own equipment— which gives rise to a hobby.

After an afternoon in the open, appetite is zestful. There is no waiting for the sandman to come at bed time; one falls asleep like a baby. The nervous system responds favorably. It you suffer from restlessness, archery may prove your salvation.

A WONDER DRUG HELPED CHANGE THIS...
Almost everyone has known the agony of an earache . . . and of how an antibiotic wonder drug miraculously got right to the root of the cause; helped to reduce the period of pain.
Grandfather, quite apart from the costs of his visits to his doctor, and the medications prescribed . . . suffered through many long hours at the expense of his energy, well being, and general health. Even in his day of low prices—the price he had to pay was great!
It is only because truly staggering sums have been spent in research and development by the leading pharmaceutical houses that we can buy today's wonder drugs at all. And buy them, moreover, at prices that are very reasonable when compared to what grandfather had to pay for treatments—many of which are no longer necessary!
YOU CAN DEPEND ON YOUR NEIGHBOURHOOD DRUGGIST
You will always be sure of reasonable prices at your neighbourhood druggist's.
He is highly-trained in the profession of pharmacy, a friendly man . . . and you can depend on him as surely as you can depend on the wonder drugs he stocks.

DIFFERENT WORLD

Mrs. Charles Carter, wife of a Red River valley farmer, has a home in the Petersfield, Man., district which would be good in any city—including a model kitchen with electric stove, refrigerator, built-in cupboards, and a tiled bathroom. She enjoys making a pot of tea on her electric stove. (CP Photo.)

Advent of Electricity Makes Farming in West a Pleasure

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PETERSFIELD, Man. (CP)—Mrs. Charles Carter of this Red river valley farm area is one person who would sooner forget "the good old days."

Wife of a typical Petersfield district farmer, Mrs. Carter says she used to hate farming. But now, even with the busy seeding season under way, she says it's like living in a different world.

"At least it is for the women, and probably for the men too," she says.

Main reason for the change was the advent of electricity about six years ago. Labor-saving farm machinery also was a boon to the home.

UP-TO-DATE HOME

Now, she has a home which would be good in any city—including a model kitchen with electric stove, refrigerator, built-in cupboards, and a tiled bathroom with a shower which gets much use after the family spends a hard day in the fields.

It's a far cry from the 1930s and 40s when Mrs. Carter had to cook over a hot wood stove, especially at harvest time when about 25 extra men were on hand.

"They had to be well fed and bedded down," says Mrs. Carter. "I had to get up around 4:30 a.m. to make breakfast. After straightening up the house, making dinner and supper, I didn't have much pep in the evenings. I used to hate it."

Even with a hired girl to help during harvest, she found there weren't enough hours in a day. Three times a week, she baked about nine loaves at a time. Then there was butter-making, milking and other necessary chores, leaving little time for fall canning.

"Now, I can do it all myself," says Mrs. Carter. "And with only mother, Charlie (her husband) and Glenn (her 24-year-old son) to cook for, I have no inclination to leave the farm. We have all the conveniences enjoyed by city folk."

She hated the old threshing machine with all the harvest hands it needed.

"I was never so glad to see a machine go out of use as I was when the threshing machine was replaced by the combine," she says. "I still can't stand to look at even a picture of one."

TIRED AT WEEK-END

They recall too that they were "pretty tired" to get even much enjoyment on Saturday nights in the old days.

"We used to stay home most of the time listening to a battery radio. And more often than not there was a bottle royal to get a hot bath. We had to heat the water on the stove and it was some chore," said Mr. Carter.

Now, they still listen to the radio but often drive their late-model car into Selkirk to a show or, in the fall, into Winnipeg, 25 miles away, to see a football game.

While most farmers do not go on daylight time in the summer, Mr. Carter admits he's "a bit of a traitor" and switches his clock with the city.

"We listen to the radio a lot and the programs are set up in the newspapers by fast time," he says. "Gosh, if we didn't keep the program times straight, old Ma Perkins might drown in her own soap suds and Ethel (his wife) wouldn't know anything about it."

TAILORED COAT

This is a softly feminine tailored coat in soft cashmere and merino fabric. The big flap pocket is hand stitched with notch lapels and cuffs. (CP Photo).

All Five Famous Sisters Will Be Away From Home on Birthday

NORTH BAY (CP)—The Dionne tread. Emilie expects to continue her domestic science studies.

The girls' decision to move to Montreal resulted in part from a desire to be with their sister Pauline, 11 months older than the quints. The younger girls are extremely fond of Pauline, now on her third year of an art course in Montreal.

"FINE GIRLS"

In an interview, the girls' father said the quints are "fine girls in every way." He said he and Mrs. Dionne are confident the girls will make a success of their lives and will be happy.

Regarding Marie, he said she apparently has no regrets over her decision to become a nun. Her parents have not seen her since she entered the order but they correspond with her regularly.

"The three girls at Nicolet visited her just before Easter and they told me Marie seemed to be very happy."

He said that, as far as he knows, the quints have no boy friends but they are free to make their own decisions on dating.

"I have enough faith in their judgment to leave this matter entirely up to them."

JOHN NIAGARA talks about:

Why Niagara may be a good place for you to borrow . . .

MONEY

We agree with people who say, "don't borrow money unless you must"—however, when you do have to borrow money, we think Niagara is the kind of loan company you'll want to do business with. Here are some features you'll want when you borrow.

You'll rate "service" high on your list, we're sure. At Niagara, we do too. We like to think we're prompt—some loans are made in 20 minutes. And polite—our company has been designed to serve our customers. Almost everyone can borrow money at NIAGARA when they need it . . . our plans are flexible, and on many amounts a 24 month payment period can be used.

"Reliability" will be important to you, too. Our business started in Welland, Ontario, over 23 years ago. We're associated with the Industrial Acceptance Corporation whose Merit Plan has been used by hundreds of thousands of Canadians to buy cars, appliances, etc. We're an all-Canadian Company with over 80 branches from coast-to-coast.

And here are two additional points about Niagara Loans: Rates are lower on many amounts . . . so you get more for your money. Loans to $1500 are life insured at no extra cost to you . . . when you can get this family protection, why do without it?

If you need money for any good reason—just drop in or phone, anytime.

TO RESIST DISEASE

It goes almost without saying that anyone's power of resistance to infection or illness depends to a great extent upon the state of his general health.

Resistance can be increased, says St. John Ambulance, by the practice of good health habits and personal hygiene.

Among the things you can do to stay healthy are:

Obtain sufficient sleep and rest.

Eat regular meals and an adequate diet.

Get sunshine, fresh air and exercise each day.

Keep your surroundings scrupulously clean. Pay special attention to clean hands and fingernails. Keep them away from the mouth and face. Such objects as pencils, pens or money should never be put in the mouth.

Give prompt attention to cuts, scratches and other wounds and keep them covered with a clean, preferably sterile dressing.

Wear suitable clothing in cold and wet weather.

IMMUNIZATION

Last, but far from least, on this list of individual measures for your protection against disease is immunization. St. John Ambulance points out that although diphtheria and smallpox have been almost eliminated in many parts of the country, people are becoming careless and forget the dreadful damage that these diseases can cause if proper precautions are not taken.

Especially in the event of disaster such as floods or enemy action, epidemics are likely to follow in the wake of over-crowding, the disruption of sanitary facilities, and contaminated drinking water.

Children should be immunized at an early age for diphteria, tetanus, whooping cough and smallpox. A further dose or booster should be given when children start to school. These additional doses can be obtained from the family doctor, or, a child health clinic or a school health service.

There are also inoculations for other diseases such as typhoid fever, which are given in special circumstances. A doctor, public health nurse or provincial health department will advise you about these.

What's news at Inco?

We freeze 300 tons of oxygen a day out of the air

Every two minutes in this modern plant, a blast like an elephant's snort tells of a modern miracle that is taking place. Under pressure at 280° below zero, air is being liquefied and the oxygen separated from nitrogen and other elements. The blast is caused by the expulsion of the nitrogen.

The oxygen, thus obtained from the air, is conducted through a pipe-line to the smelter where it is used in Inco's new oxygen process of flash smelting the copper concentrates. This process eliminates the use of coal and makes possible the economical production of a valuable by-product—sulphur dioxide—which eventually is used in making paper.

This oxygen plant, the first of its size and kind in Canada, produces more than twice as much oxygen per year as all other plants in this country. It is one example of the way Inco introduces new economies and finds uses for by-products formerly without value.

"QUALITY AT FAIR PRICES"

$5,000 for $5 Invention

By RONALD GARTH-DAVIS

A British military intelligence agent called on a candy manufacturer in the outskirts of London and murmured that he wished to discuss a matter of great importance, something so top secret you mustn't tell your wife!

Then from his pocket he produced a sticky bag of aniseed balls and asked, "Can you still drill holes through hundreds of these by the end of the week?"

A few weeks earlier, inventor Robert Macrae was scouring the candy stores and buying up every aniseed ball he could find. Soon, the wholesalers were denied fresh supplies. Throughout Britain aniseed balls were diverted to armament factories. As a result, the Allies soon had a secret weapon that sent thousands of tons of enemy shipping to the sea-bottom.

The aniseed balls were popped into the deadly delayed action limpet mine. After being attached by frogmen to the hull of a ship, seawater slowly ate through the aniseed ball until is exploded the detonator.

Every child knows the slow-dissolving properties of the humble aniseed ball. Yet the man who thought up that one recently received hundreds of pounds for his invention.

STARTLING SAGA

That's only one of the startling wartime saga newly revealed by the world's leart-known court of claims—Britain's Royal Commission on Awards to inventors. For the past eight years the Commission has been investigating the cash claims of the inventors of the secret weapons that helped us to victory. Now the judges soon hope to finish their task after sharing out $3,000,000 among the 405 backroom boys.

Many of them admit they worked out their best brainwaves in a shed at the bottom of the garden. Winner of a $300,000 award, Kurt Sommerfeld, saw a quartermaster sergeant lay a stretch of rusty chicken wire between his tent and the stores. From this incident sprang his idea for 'tin lino,' the portable air landing strips and steelmesh roads that helped invasion.

A young naval officer though it absurd that the British Admiralty should be using demolition charges one at a time to blow up wrecked ships which, lying in shallow waters, had become a danger to navigation.

LINE OF CHARGES

Why not a line of charges, he thought, exploding simultaneously on the ocean bed, creating a deep trench in which the wreck would be pushed by the tides, thus conveniently burying the wrecks on the sea-bottom?

He invented a pistol to do the job which cost him only $6.00. The commission awarded him $5,000. Even then it represented a bargain for Britain. The device swiftly disposed of 200 wrecks at a saving of several million dollars. How much is it worth in cold cash to win a battle, save an airman's life or save 100,000 sailors from being seasick? This is the crux of the riddle which the Commission has had to solve again and again in assessing the amazing stream of Wartime Inventions.

Sir Frank Whittle was granted $300,000 for his jet plane research. Yet this sum was exceeded in the $360,000 awarded to a Swiss firm for patents used in the hydraulic undercarriage system of the Halifax bombers and the record was $630,000 to a firm which owned the "know-how" of hardening aircraft aluminium.

PIPE IN THE DEEP

On the other hand, the four inventors behind the Pluto project for an oilpipe on the seabed shared $45,000. Sir Robert Watson-Watt was given $150,000 tax free, as the inventor of radar. But this shrinks compared with $240,700 paid to a Pole who invented periscope spectacles for tanks—and he had hoped for as much as $2,400,000!

A Scottish firm devalopped stabilizing gear that reduced the roll—and seasickness—of more than 100 warships. Their award was $81,000—but it's an ironical fact that the Commission staged its hearings at the headquarters of the Inland Revenue—and the Scots may have had to return 90c on every dollar.

Seven men shared a payment of $34,000 for inventing the radio proximity fuse. It saved the south of England from thousands of casualties from flying bombs which failed to reach their target. In the Pacific too, the invention protected millions of pounds worth of Allied shipping from Jap suicide attackers.

HOW TO ASSESS INVENTION

Said one of the inventors, "Just how did they assess their payment?"...

The widow of a flight lieutenant who invented a bomb release received $1,000. Another widow received $5,000 because her husband had helped invent an apparatus to convert sea water into fresh water. Even a man who had invented a fly trap itself out of old petrol cans received $600.

Though conducted with strict integrity, this great share-out has inevitably caused heartaches as well as headaches. Bluejackets and models have littered the tables while the inventors pleaded their case. The judges have had an unenviable task—and roughly 30 per cent of the claimants have received precisely nothing, because it was decided they couldn't prove their rights.

SURVIVOR

"Some of them buried some of the wounded alive as the Vietminh just fired over everything they had.

"From outside we could hear the wild screaming of the Vietminh and the answering cries of the French as everybody fought viciously, hand to hand.

"At times a soldier would tumble into the hospital bunker, badly wounded, and say he was out of ammunition.

"That was the way every defender fought, said Champougny—until he no longer had anything to fight with.

"The Castries' last order to the men in his bunker," Champougny continued, "was 'give up when you can no longer fight.' To do anything else would have been butchery."

The private said about six o'clock that Friday night the shooting suddenly died out on the battlefield and "then everyone knew the battle was over."

AIDING WOUNDED

Miss de Galard, he continued, was still ministering to the wounded in the hospital bunker as the rebels rushed in.

There was no attack made on the wounded men. Instead the Vietminh announced all were captives of Ho Chi Minh, the rebels' Moscow - trained chief. Their captors, said Champougny, were almost apologetic. One Vietminh officer declared in French:

"Ho Chi Minh and we are fighting for our country. There are things worse than that, and we are no worse than others. You are now prisoners and will get the attention prisoners of war deserve."

Some of the rebel soldiers in their mud-caked uniforms were laughing hysterically, but none attempted to mistreat any of the French wounded.

Nor did Champougny, after he was carried out to the battlefield, see the rebels mistreat any of the unwounded, some 8,000, they had rounded up.

Present regulations require a deposit of 15 per cent of the amount of the tender. Contractors have not been required to make deposits on all tenders submitted. The regulation has been interpreted as meaning that a contractor must have made a deposit of 15 per cent of the tender price of any contract before it can be awarded to him.

"This has meant that contractors, who only expected to be awarded one contract, could bid on several contracts called at the same time and deposit one tender cheque in an amount sufficient to cover only one contract."

WOULD STOP ADVANCES

In recommending that progress payments be discontinued, the report says that such payments are made to the contractors each month based on reports prepared in the field showing cumulative quantities moved since work commenced. The contracts provide that advances can be made for materials or equipment delivered to the site of the work.

"In some cases in the past, at the start of a contract, members of the department's staff have certified that quantities had been moved when it was quite clear that this was not the case. This was done to justify an advance payment to the contractor to assist him with the expense of setting up his camp and moving his equipment. Such advance payments were later recovered by underrating the quantities actually moved in succeeding months.

"This method of making advance payments is not consistent with the terms of the contracts and requires the staff of the department in the field to send in statements showing hat work has been performed when in fact it has not been done. . . .

"We recommend that this practice be discontinued. The reports from the department's field staff should show only their estimates of the quantities actually moved."

TENDER TIMING RAPPED ...

The report criticized the system followed in awarding contracts. The practice has been to call for tenders for construction work at various times without sufficient consideration of the season. In many cases tenders were called during the winter months when it was impossible for the contractors to make a proper inspection of the ground for realistic bidding.

Furthermore, the time allowed between the publication of the notices calling for tenders and the date for submission of final bids has, in many cases, been insufficient to allow contractors to make a satisfactory examination of the projects before bidding, particularly when a number of tenders were called simultaneously.

The state policy of the department has been to award contracts to the lowest bidder. There are no regulations, however, as to the course to be followed if the bids submitted are all unreasonably high or unreasonably low, or in the event of a contractor being the low bidder on more work than he is equipped to handle satisfactorily. It was the practice in the latter case to allow the next lowest bidder who was considered capable of performing the work to make a second bid at a price below the original low bidder.

MANY BIDS TOO LOW

"There have been wide variations in the unit prices bid on particular contracts and variations in the unit prices bid for imilar work on adjacent contracts. These prices have often been well below the estimates of the department's own engineers, who, in some cases, have doubted whether the contractors could carry out the work at the prices specified in their tenders.

"This has led to a tendency on the part of some of the department's engineers to be generous in their interpretation of the terms of the contracts when dealing with contractors. It was possible for them to assist contractors in a number of different ways. . . . Certain engineers were required to classify the quantities of boulders which should be paid for at rock prices. This is largely a matter of opinion and on occasions the classification would appear to have been made on a liberal basis."

OVERBUILDING ALLOWED

In some cases where the contract called for the movement of earth the quantities moved were paid for at prices applicable to granular material. Granular material may actually have been moved although not called for by the contract.; On other occasions contractors were permitted to place a higher grade of material on the road than the contract called for.

"In these instances we are informed the unit price for the material actually handled was higher than the price which would have been paid for the material specified in the contract. On some occasions the contractors were permitted to overbuild the roads and paid for moving quantities in excess of those called for by the contract. Irregular methods involving the falsification of records were also adopted in some cases. These are under investigation by H. A. Cotnam, provincial auditor."

Surrender of Huk Leader May Bring End of Rebellion Led by Reds in Philippines

MANILA (AP)—The surrender of Luis Taruc, colorful leader of the Communist-directed Huk rebels, was hailed today as a major step in President Ramon Magsaysay's campaign against the Huks.

Army combat teams surged through the jungles of southern Luzon seeking the remnants of Taruc's elite guard while Carlos P. Romulo, a top presidential aide, termed the surrender the end of the rebellion.

Top target now is Jesus Lava, whom the army considers the top Communist in the Philippines.

Taruc, 40, who repeatedly has slipped through army traps in the last six years, surrendered to 3 Manila Times reporter, Benigno Aquino, who carried a letter from Magsaysay. The meeting on a dusty road north of here climaxed months of negotiations.

Terms of the surrender were not disclosed.

NO ALTERNATIVE

"Taruc had no alternative but to surrender," Magsaysay commented. He was covered by the armed forces."

Unless granted amnesty, Taruc faces trial on charges ranging from murder to sedition.

Although a bitter foe of the rebels as a field commander, as defence chief and as president, Magsaysay long has advocated resettling the rebel Huks on newly-developed land.

Taruc was taken to army headquarters at Camp Murray on the outskirts of Manila. He was photographed and given a routine examination. A doctor described him as "healthier than the average man."

Traffic Mishaps Claim Four Lives, Three Drown

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Highway accidents and drownings accounted for seven of 11 deaths in eastern Canada during the week-end.

Traffic mishaps took four lives, three persons were drowned and two were burned to death.

Ontario led provincial totals with five deaths, a Canadian Press survey showed. Three were highway fatalities.

Five-year-old Carol Venturelli of Hamilton was killed when she darted in front of a car while walking home from a nearby candy store.

A 26-year-old Italian immigrant, Michele Rasa of Toronto, died in a two-car collision near Pickering.

Michael O'Connell of Ottawa was killed when the car in which he was riding overturned.

DROWNED IN BARM

A two-year-old boy, Joseph Claude E. Vinette of Casselman, was drowned when he fell through a hole in a barn loft into a cistern below. Ray Evans, 24, of Port Arthur, was drowned when his boat was swamped while fishing on Nipigon river.

In Nova Scotia, Douglas Grimes, 12 and Tony Fougere, 15, both of Halifax, were killed after the driving chain on the bicycle they were riding downhill slipped off. The bicycle hit a fence bordering a railway yard and catapulted the two boys heading onto the tracks.

Quebec's one new violent death was the drowning of Leger Quesy, 34, of Shelter Bay when he was swept into rapids while building a wooden bridge across the Shelter Bay river.

Three to Take Look

PARIS (AP)—Three top French generals left Sunday by air for an on-the-spot look into the Indo-Chinese situation resulting from the fall of Dien Bien Phu.

They are: Gen. Paul Ely, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff; Gen. Raoul Salan, former commander in Indo-China, and Gen. Pierre Pellister, deputy chief of staff for air. Due in Saigon Tuesday, their job is to make a quick survey and return to Paris with a report.

LAMPORT BACK

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Allan Lamport arrived home Sunday from a three-week trip to Greece with high hopes of acceptance of Toronto's bid for the 1960 Olympic Games. Commenting on his submission to the International Olympic Committee, he said: "I am more than satisfied. We made better headway than I expected."

Of the 32 countries competing for the 1960 games, he said few could match Toronto's facilities. The site will be decided at next year's committee meeting.

Veterans Attend

TORONTO (CP)—About 100 First World War veterans, many of them blind or lame, attended the 35th annual reunion of the 18th Battalion, the Western Ontario Regiment, here Sunday.

They marched into Metropolitan United church to hear Rev. F. G. Brisbin and Rev. William Surman pray for peace.

Bugles blared and drums rolled as the group then marched under police motorcycle escort to the cenotaph in front of city hall where Padre Surman pronounced the benediction.

UNOFFICIAL LOOK AT MAY DAY CELEBRATIONS IN MOSCOW

Here is an off-the-cuff glimpse of the May Day celebrations in Moscow. Usually photos to be released outside Russia come from the official Soviet news agency, but these came from an independent source. Top, the "demonstrators" are shown dancing and singing on Gorky St. while waiting their turn to march through Red Square to see and be seen by top party and government officials. Crowd Impressed By Singing Of Male Choir

KITCHENER (CP)—A crowd of more than 6,000 was impressed by the singing of a male choir of more than 700 voices here Saturday night.

Seventeen choral groups, seven from Ontario and 10 from the United States, joined voices in the annual Big Sing presented by the Ontario district of the Associated Male Choruses of America.

Lorado Bino of Midland, Mich., association president, said the crowd was the largest paid audience the AMCA has had at a mass choir concert in North America.

The Big Sing received here by the Kitchener - Waterloo Y's men's Club. The choirs donated their time, talent and expenses. Profits from the production will be given to a fund for YMCA youth activities.

Choirs participating included the Cockshutt Choir, Brantford.

Both Vehicles Demolished As Seven Injured

SARNIA (CP) — Seven persons were injured in an automobile collision on No. 7 highway eight miles east of here Sunday.

Admitted to hospital were Mrs. Red Squirrel, 26, of Halifax, suffering concussion; Pte. William John Payne, 20, Moose Jaw, Sask., concussion; Ross Dark, Sarnia, concussion; William Randolph, 18, Sarnia; Janet Heck, 14, Sarnia, possible pelvis injuries and Pauline Mahon, 17, Sarnia, multiple facial lacerations.

Robert Stuart, 16, of Sarnia was treated for possible rib injuries and later released.

Police said the soldiers' car, driven by Hitz, swerved to avoid another vehicle and smashed into the car driven by Randolph. Both cars were demolished.

Halt Drive To Collectivize Europe's Farms

NEW YORK (AP) — The post-Stalin leaders of communism have halted the drive to collectivize East Europe's farms, according to a survey by more than 50 specialists in Red affairs.

A truce has been ordered in the campaign to wipe out the kulaks—the independent, land-owning peasants. The Stalin program to squeeze from all farmers low cost food for factory workers is ended for the time being.

"Satellite agriculture in crisis" is the title of the survey just published by the American anti-Communist organization Free Europe Committee, privately backed pan-exile body of Radio Free Europe.

The study examines the Soviet world's "new course" toward raising more food and taking better care of the natural needs of peasant and urban worker alike in a manoeuvre to mend political fences rather than to solve an economic crisis.

The survey tells of the rapid success in sweeping some 60 per cent of Russia's arable lands into the collective by the most brutal means.

Despite Communist efforts to bring all farmers under state control, in some areas they collect cheaply for the all-important city workers, agricultural production dwindled, the report says.

Man Is Held In Razor Slaying Of Widow

MONTREAL (CP) — A grey-haired woman, whose cruelly mutilated body was discovered Friday sprawled in a pool of blood in a disused foundation pit, was identified by police during the week-end as Mrs. Emilie Rousseau of no fixed address.

Police said 51-year-old Leo Poitras of St. Ida, Que., held as a material witness in the razor slaying of the middle-aged widow, told them he met the woman in Viger square early Friday and could remember nothing more until he was found beside the body in an east end field off Notre Dame St. He said he came to Montreal Thursday.

The woman, between 40 and 50 years old, had been slashed about the face. Her throat had been cut with a razor and her lower lip sliced from her mouth.

Assistant Inspector Henry Bond of the homicide squad termed the killing the work of a sex maniac and said the victim had been bitten on the wrist and upper thigh. There was evidence of perverted sex acts.

When two 10-year-old boys came on the body it was lying face down in the six-foot pit. Three empty wine bottles and a sandwich littered the area and Poitras was stretched out in what police described as an alcoholic stupor. The woman wore a wedding ring and a signet ring.

British Ship Is Deserted But Crew Is at Soccer Game, Decide About Strike Later

MONTREAL (CP) — Waterfront authorities are waiting to see whether the crew of a newly-arrived coastal vessel will join 74 British seamen who are on strike for increased wages. A decision was expected today.

The strikers, from the British colliers Sheildrake, Cibou and Mont Alta, say their wages are not sufficient to cope with Canadian prices. Many of them must support families at home in Britain.

There has been no violence in the strike which began when the Sheildrake men allegedly refused to put to sea May 8, but 29 men have been arrested on charges to which they pleaded not guilty.

Saturday, the British collier Rushwood arrived here and her officers reported the strikers sent a two-man delegation aboard in an attempt to recruit the crew into the walkout.

The ship was all but deserted Sunday, but the officers said the men were attending a soccer game. It was predicted the strike issue might come to a head when unloading of the vessel's coal cargo began.

The Sheildrake sailed from here Friday, manned by a crew flown in from Britain and leaving 18 of her regular crew members to face charges. They will appear in court Tuesday.

Nineteen crew members from the Cibou, who struck in sympathy, have also been charged, and are being absent without leave, and committed for trial. Eleven other members of the Cibou's crew refused to join the strike.

Last Friday, 11 seamen on the Mont Alta struck in sympathy when their ship arrived at Sorel, 60 miles downriver from here.

The ships are used mostly for carrying Cape Breton coal to Montreal.

Mayor Lamport Says Proposal Is Impractical

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Allan Lamport said Sunday a proposal to build a $75,000,000 50-storey skyscraper where the city hall now stands is impractical and would be ruinous to downtown real estate values.

The mayor arrived home Sunday from a trip to Greece and was asked about reports that a United States syndicate has offered to invest in the skyscraper, which would house municipal and court offices.

Mr. Lamport said he was not familiar with the plan last March and that it "seemed so utterly fantastic I had almost forgotten about it." He added:

"As the plan was explained to me I would never go for it. If they have a new proposal which appears feasible, then I will consider submitting it to the board of control."

Norman Barnes, head of Norman Barnes Co. of Chicago and a spokesman for the syndicate, disclosed the offer last Thursday. He said detailed plans will be submitted to city officials next month.

Eskimos Creating New Way Of Life in Arctic

By ROBERT KNOX

SHUNGNAK, Alaska (Reuters) — A handful of Eskimo men and boys, helped by an American school teacher and his wife, are creating a new way of life for this Arctic village.

While prospectors long have been lured into this remote wilderness by tales of a mountain of solid jade.

But the people of Shungnak are concentrating on creation of a thriving gem industry. Their infant jade project is a completely Eskimo scheme, from the original mining of the jade to the cutting, grinding and polishing of the gems. The quality of the jewelry is a tribute to the artistic talent and skill of a supposedly primitive people.

Shungnak is 160 air miles inland from Alaska's Arctic coast. The village's sturdy timber and sod houses line a cliff just above the winding Kobuk river.

BASEMENT WORKSHOP

On top of the hill behind Shungnak is the well-equipped Alaska native service station and school. This two-storey modern building is the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Graham, the only white residents of Shungnak, and also something of a community centre.

The basement of the schoolhouse is the workshop of the jade project. The "field" is roughly 10 miles wide by about 40 miles long and takes in the legendary jade mountain.

This mountain, which in summer is a strange green color, has produced some jade, but the better quality stones are found on the beds of the river and creek.

At first work was concentrated on brooches, earrings and pendants. But now the Eskimos are attempting to create authentic native designs.

CLOSE FIT

MASTERTON, N.Z. (CP)—After nearly three years' work the longest railway tunnel in the southern hemisphere was pierced in the north island of New Zealand. The shafts started from each end of the 5½ mile stretch met with an error of less than an inch. The tunnel on the rail route from Wellington to Wairarapa cuts out a long slow climb.

PAY TRIBUTE

MONTREAL (CP)—Tribute was paid Sunday at "Battle of the Atlantic Sunday" observances to the men who fought and died keeping the sea lanes open in the Second World War. Officers and men of local units of the Canadian Navy were joined by the crew of the Netherlands aircraft carrier Karel Doorman visiting here for a church parade and march past.

Franco Attacks British Rule In Gibraltar

MADRID (Reuters)—Generalissimo Franco—using the pen name "Macaulay"—Sunday published a blistering attack on British rule in Gibraltar.

The Spanish head of state said Queen Elizabeth's visit to "the Rock" last week had sharpened Spain's feud with Britain overcrowd trol of the fortress.

Writing in the Falange newspaper Arriba, Franco demanded that Gibraltar "shall no longer be the scene of the licentious recreation of the British soldiery."

Franco also alleged that Gibraltar is the centre of smuggling on Spain's south coast from which "British tax collectors in Gibraltar are getting such a satisfactory income that it covers all the local expenses."

The Queen's visit, he said, had "united Spaniards in the sad decision that Gibraltar shall not go on living at the expense of Spain."

SUBSIDIZES FLYING

PRETORIA, S.A. (CP)—Subject to parliamentary approval, the government of South Africa will provide £25,000 a year in subsidies to flying clubs and schools to encourage training of air pilots in cities and rural areas. CHANGED HER MIND

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Stanislaw Grudnicz, 32-year-old Polish laborer here, was awarded £482 damages against Ruth Laumann, 26, for alleged breach of promise. Plaintiff said this was the amount he paid Miss Laumann for her fare from Germany to Australia after a courtship by letter.

Knocked Out Teeth Can Be Replaced

TORONTO (CP) — Youngsters were knocked off Saturday to pick up knocked out teeth and hurry to a dentist to have them put back in again.

Ralph Sommer of the University of Michigan, said children's teeth can be saved as well as new if they are put back immediately.

Dr. Sommer told delegates to the International Conference of Society of Dentistry for Children that after preservation, the tooth can be replaced in its original position and wired to adjoining teeth. Healing action occurs within a week. He also told of a new technique which may eliminate the need of extracting abscessed teeth.

Decayed teeth now are being sterilized by the use of antibiotics and other drugs, Dr. Sommer said. The tooth structure hardens and need not be drilled away. The antibiotics kill the bacteria, prevent decay from spreading, and the tooth structure becomes firm.

Dr. Sommer recommended fluoridation as a means of attacking decay.

A panel consisting of Drs. S. A. MacGregor, Armascut Coe, Gordon Nikiforuk, Wesley J. Dunn and R. L. Scott, said community fluoridation is the cheapest and safest way to prevent tooth decay in children.

The average child costs its parents about $26 each year in dental care, the doctors said, while community fluoridation costs about 10 cents a person a year.

ROCKY'S FAMILY HIDES IN CANADA

An anonymous letter written to Rocky Marciano, threatening the lives of his wife and baby unless he throws his June 17 heavyweight title fight with Ezzard Charles, has driven 23-year-old Barbara Marciano and baby Mary Anne to seek refuge with friends somewhere in Ontario. The message, postmarked Philadelphia, was made up of words and letters cut from newspaper type and pasted on a plain white sheet of paper. It warned Rocky to throw his fight or his wife and child would be "taken for a ride." The world champion, shown with his 15-months-old daughter, is reported to be seriously concerned over the letter. Little Benny's Note Book

I was doing my homework, and I said to pop, Aw heck, grammer, what good is so much grammer?

Dont you want to speek good English? pop said to me, I said, Well, I wouldn't mind that, but as soon as I get to high school I bet I'll have to study French all the way from the beginning, and I wasn't even born in France.

Neither was Benjamin Franklin, but when he heard he was going to be the American ambassador to France he studied French nite and day, especially the grammer, and when he got to Paris his French sound like wine, and everybody thought he was a Frenchman, pop said, and I said, Well G rooniem, do you meen nobody hardly even noticed he was around, after he went to all that trubble?

That's what I meen, but the story isn't over yet, pop said. When Franklin saw that he wasn't attracting the attention due to his position, he put on an American accent and pretended to get his words all twisted like a funny caracter on the French stage, and low and behold he became all the rage and got a reputation for wit and charm and was the most popular ambassador in France, and everywhere he went he was showered with bon bons and French pastry pop said, and I said, Well heck, then it,he hadn't waisted all that time studying, he could of talked bum French naturelly, to start with.

There may be some logic in that, but all I can say is, the people who do things best, even if they do them wurst, are the people who learn the hard way, pop said. Now go on with your homework, he said.

Which I did still feeling agenst it.

Pope Warns Against Danger Of Materialism

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Pope said Sunday "the brilliant conquests of science and technology" are carrying the world towards "desolation and ruin."

He was broadcasting to the Roman Catholics of Switzerland, gathered in a congress at Fribourg.

The 78-year-old pontiff, still convalescing from a grave illness, made three separate speeches—in French, German and Italian, the official languages of Switzerland.

The theme of all three was the danger of materialism and its inability to control the products of modern science. Though he did not mention them, the Pope was understood to be referring to nuclear weapons.

He called on Catholics to fight materialism "by your prayers, your love for Christ, your struggle against sin and for the purity of the soul, by all these supreme values of the religious life and by that which is the fruit of it—your public engagement in the service of God, of Christ and of His Church."

The farmers are busy these days trying to get their seeding operations completed.

Heading Home After Release by Reds

On of many Catholic clergy held prisoner by the Reds following their invasion of China and later released, Bishop Gustave Prevost of Montreal, is seen during stopover in Hong Kong en route home to Canada. Bishop Prevost spent 33 months in prison on trumped-up charges before his release by Chinese Communists in Shanghai. (Central Press Canadian).

Ten Canadian Champions Crowned Buchanan Wins Heavyweight Title

By KEN ROMAIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—It was off with the old and on with the new as Canadian amateur boxing crowned 10 new champions Saturday in the flailing finale to the Canadian British Empire Games boxing championships.

Three titles changed hands in the final round of the three-day trials that had brought together 78 of the top amateur boxers of the country. Three other titles were lost during the elimination rounds, two were not defended, and two were vacant as title holders moved into a heavier weight division.

Gerry Buchanan, 185, last year's light heavyweight champ of Montreal, who gave away 30 pounds to defending champion Jim Saunders, took the heavyweight crown with a split decision.

The 23-year-old Montreal fighter fought his way out of trouble in the second round of the three-round matches and staggered Saunders with stinging blows in the third.

The winners along with 10 alternates will represent Canada at the British Empire Games in Vancouver. They will be coached by Gordon Mackie of Winnipeg and managed by Major Frank Cosentino of Hamilton.

Mackie said he was much impressed with the ability of the fighters and predicted that Canada should take one or two titles at the games this summer. The last time Canada won a games title was in 1938.

Gerry Boucher of the RCAF in Vancouver took a split decision for the flyweight crown over defending champion Pat Suppie of Montreal that brought the disapproval of the crowd. And they roared more disapproval when the referee stopped the match between Bud Palmer of Hamilton, Alta., and Vancouver's Bud Pearson.

Palmer took the featherweight title with a technical knockout at 2:05 of the second round when he cut Pearson above the eye.

In the bantamweight class, Toronto's Benny d'Amico scored a unanimous decision over Jim Hurley of Brantford for the title. However, d'Amico, who arrived in Canada from Italy 2½ years ago, will have to prove by May 31 his eligibility to become a Canadian citizen before he can compete in the games. If he cannot, said Dennis White, chairman of the boxing section of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, he will be replaced by Hurley.

Clayton Kenny, a stand - up fighter from Ottawa, took a unanimous decision over Ed Bestile of Hamilton for the lightweight crown. Montreal's Mickey Bergin became light welter champ with a decision over Jack Barclay of Vancouver.

Sonny Forbes of Toronto gained a split decision over Norm Jorgenson of Vancouver for the welterweight title and Wilf Greaves of Edmonton outpointed Steve Ware of Haney, B.C., for the light middleweight crown.

Marcel Piau of Montreal defeated defending champion Trent Ketchison of the RCN, Victoria, for the middleweight title with a technical knockout in the first round. And Kitchener's Norm Misselbrook scored a unanimous decision over Regina's Lee Donison for light heavyweight laurels.

'Native Dancer' Races to Win In Track Thriller

NEW YORK (AP)—Native Dancer staged another of his breath-taking matinee thrillers Saturday when he came from far behind to defeat Straight Face by a neck to win the $39,200 Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park.

Any doubts of the Dancer's greatness were wiped away as Alfred Vanderbilt's four-year - old, backed down to 1 to 4, finished with his characteristic late rush to end the mile in 1:35 3-5 while carrying 130 pounds. That is just 2-5 of a second slower than the track record set by Count Fleet in 1942 when he was a two-year-old and had only 118 pounds.

The Dancer also equalled another, older record, Man O'War's grand mark of 30 victories in 31 starts.

A crowd of 38,090 had its jittery moments as the favored Dancer, carrying the heaviest weight of his career, was left far back of the leaders in the nine-horse field. In the stretch, however, the Dancer responded as usual.

He passed one horse after another. With an eighth of a mile remaining only Straight Face and Jockey Ted Atkinson were left. But they were leading by 3½ lengths and it seemed impossible.

But the Dancer, coming like an express, drew even...with the pacemaker Straight Face and about 40 yards from the wire rammed his nose in front to stay.

He paid $2.59, $2.20 and $2.10. Straight Face paid $2.80 and $2.10. Hasty K, six lengths back of Straight Face, returned $2.20 to show.

Galt Terriers Trim Guelph

GALT (CP)—Galt Terriers hammered four pitchers for 16 hits, nine of them extra-base blows, Saturday night for a 17-0 victory over Guelph Maple Royals in an Intercounty senior baseball exhibition game.

It was the second game of the day for Royals. They defeated Brantford Sox 6-5 at Guelph in the afternoon game.

Royals staged a five-run uprising in the third inning to defeat Brantford.

The Sox got all their runs in the third inning when George Carruth homered behind singles by Ken McDowell and Stan Lipka.

Yankees Quest World Title

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The United States will send an amateur hockey team to the world championships in Europe next winter—if they are invited. The announcement was made by the American Hockey Association, which closed its two-day meeting here Sunday.

The AHA has appointed a committee to organize a team.

Sport in Brief

DETROIT (CP)—A stout young waterboy gave his team his best Sunday. He kayoed the opposition's star.

He appeared in full view of 7,000 soccer fans as Toronto's Ulster United battled Germany's Fortuna Dusseldorf to a 3-3 tie in University of Detroit Stadium.

Midway in the second half, just after the Toronto team had tied the score, their water boy, Joe Wood, moved onto the field to refresh goalie George Anderson.

During the lull, Karl Grammlinger, the German's fleet centre-forward, wandered downfield to Anderson and Wood. Suddenly Wood brought a sweeping left from the ground, catching Grammlinger flush on the jaw.

"He kicked my bucket," Wood explained.

Grammlinger dropped as though axed. He lay there unconscious for several minutes. Finally revived, he returned to play. But nobody knew what to do about Wood. Police escorted him out about five minutes later after he had refreshed himself.

BELGRADE (AP)—Yugoslavia's national soccer team beat England 1-0 Sunday with a last-minute goal that sent a crowd of 60,000 Yugoslav fans wild.

The Englishmen had fought off attack after attack by the faster, more aggressive Yugoslav team to hold the score at 0-0 until two minutes before the end. Inside right Mitic scored the winning goal after left back Stankovic missed a free kick.

Then hundreds of millitiamen came out on the field to keep order.

At Ljubljana, meanwhile, Yugoslavia made it a grand slam by beating England's second team 2-1 before a smaller, but equally excited crowd.

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Sam Snead shot a brilliant 63, five under par, on the final round Sunday to win his third round-robin golf championship by a record margin. He finished the competition against 15 other top pros with a total of 62 points.

Snead previously won in 1938, the first tournament, and in 1952.

Playing the final round, Snead turned in the best round of the tournament with a 33-32—65 over the par 35-35 Meadow Brook Course. The victory was worth $3,000.

Bob Toski finished second with 26 points, followed by Lloyd Mangrum, former national Open champion, with 18.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tiring Babe Zaharias hung on gamely Sunday to beat Betty Jameson by a stroke for the $1,500 first prize at the National Capital women's Open golf tournament.

It was The Babe's third tournament victory since her successful operation for removal of a cancerous growth over a year ago.

The 38-year-old Tampa, Fla., veteran, won with a 72-hole score of 299, one under ladies' par. Louise Suggs of Atlanta, Ga., was third with 302.

Jimmy Carruthers Bantam Champ Retires from Ring

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Australia's Jimmy Carruthers, undefeated bantamweight champion of the world Sunday night announced his retirement from boxing.

The 24-year-old 118-pound titlist scored his 19th victory last May 2 when he outpointed Chamroen Songkitrat of Thailand in a 15-round title bout in Bangkok.

Since turning pro on Aug. 15, 1950, Carruthers won 11 bouts by knockouts and eight by decision.

He won the world title by knocking out Vic Towzel in one round on Nov. 15, 1952. He defended the crown three times. He knocked out Towzel, of South Africa, in a return bout in 10 rounds on March 21, 1953, outpointed Henry (Pappy) Gault of Spartanburg, S.C., in 15 rounds on Nov. 13, 1953, and then successfully defended against Songkitrat.

He said he made the decision entirely on his own.

"I feel I owe it to my peak in fighting and in my opinion, that is the time to get out of it."

Carruthers earned a net of $67,000 in boxing. He said he would go into the hotel business.

A tournament to determine a successor undoubtedly will be set up by the recently-organized World Committee for Professional Boxing.

The committee listed Carruthers' challengers as Robert Cohen of France, Songkitrat, and Pierre Cossemyns of Belgium.

Buffalo Takes Road Race

HAMILTON (CP) — Phil Ellsworth of Buffalo State Teacher's College won the fifth annual junior open road race here Saturday with a record time of 12:38 over the 2½-mile route.

Wes McLeod of Toronto came second in 12:52, 14 seconds ahead of Bob Thompson, Hamilton Olympic Club. Ron Niebel of Guelph Legion Track Club was fourth in 13:10.

Hamilton Olympic won the team prize for the meet with Guelph Legion second and Canadian College, Buffalo, third.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—If by chance a single base hit should deprive Stan Musial of another National League batting title next fall, the great Cards slugger always will feel that he was undone by the official scorer at Ebbets field the other day. He's still grumbling about the decision.

A teammate was on first when The Man rapped a grounder between Gil Hodges and Jackie Robinson. Gil Hodges, Brooklyn first sacker, scooped it up and started to throw for the force-out at second. He saw he would be late, so whirled for a toss to first, but found that his pitcher hadn't reached the base in time. So both runners were safe.

It was scored as a fielder's choice on the ground that Hodges had "made an attempt to retire a preceding runner," even though he didn't actually throw the ball. Musial, who has 6 hits so far on reaching 3,000 hits before he's through, was torn with anguish. Perhaps the rule is wrong, but it doesn't specify that a throw must be made.

Bill Veeck was in town the other day, and he occasioned some surprise by declining to discuss the possibilities of moving a major league franchise or two to the west coast. It is well known "in one and all that the former president of Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Browns is smuggled yes-sently by Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs, to smooth the way for such a transfer at some future date.

What might not be generally known is that commissioner Xord Frick has ordered everyone connected with the big leagues to cease and desist from discussing the topic of moving any more franchises anywhere. The owners were advised that the commissioner considers such loose talk detrimental to the game at this time.

Just between us, though, there's a lot of whispering going on to the effect that an east coast city which begins with "p" might not have two clubs long after the current season.

"GOOD OLD GLESGY"

"I belong tae Glesgy . . . and while I get a couple on Saturday night then Glesgy belongs tae me" . . . Expatriate Glaswegians will soon be ringing the auld weikin with that familiar pebby chanter in various parts of the country. For the famous Glasgow Rangers, one of the household words in Scottish, and English soccer for that matter, are in Canada on their first tour since 1930.

"Ay lads, we all ken the Rangers and 'tis a right smart club they are," chested a lad from the heather the other day. "And we'll a' be on hand tae greet the laddies," he added.

The famous glamor club of Scottish fame played in Montreal on Tuesday. They move to Hamilton for a game on May 19 and follow that with a Toronto engagement on May 23 against an all-star Ontario team.

Then they take to the air for a jaunt to British Columbia where they are booked for two games with Vancouver and one with Victoria. After that they head back east dropping off at Winnipeg for a joust with a club from the Manitoba capital, and on to Toronto.

Soccer fans from this part of Ontario will see a miniature "England-Scotland" game in the Queen City on June 8 when the starry Rangers clash with the celebrated Chelsea team from "Ole Lunnon." The "Pensioners," as they are dubbed, have come" are also on tour in Canada and the bout between those two famous clubs should be grand opera entertainment for not only expatriated Britishers, Scotsmen and European fans, but Canadian enthusiasts of the game as well.

Rangers meet Chelsea three times during the tours. After the Toronto match the clubs hike to New York City for a game there, while the first joust was that May 18 game in Montreal.

Since its formation in 1890 the Rangers club has played 7,766 games. Of this number it has won 3,174, drawn 333 and lost 278. The blue-and-whites have won the Scottish League title 22 times, including five in a row between 1938 and 1951. They copped the Scottish cup 11 times, the Glasgow Cup 21 times, and the Charity Cup 30 times.

The Rangers-Chelsea clash in Toronto's Varsity Stadium on June 8 is expected to break all attendance records. The Manchester United-Tottenham Hotspurs game drew 25,000 in 1952 but this match is expected to exceed that number by a substantial figure.

The "wee Jocks and Argyle Marry's" who haven't seen a club from auld Scotia play since they left the heather are in for the thrill of their lives. They'll be dwelling in an aura of nostalgic delight when the blue jerseys of the Rangers flash against the bright green of the stadium grass. It will be their greatest thrill since they left the arms of Hampden, Ibrox, Easthead, Easter Road or down in the "burgh" where the Hearts of Midlothian play.

A large number of Old Country and native sons, soccer fans and players for this district, headed by Les Digby intend taking in the match.

DOTS 'N FLASHES . . .

Well, that was a week-end of color and thrills along the sports rialtoes. Ted Williams, sore shoulder and all, blasted the ball to the four corners with a thunderous array of homers, doubles and singles. "Have bad better days," quipped the Boston beat-pole . . . "Native Dancer" roared from behind a field of nine in a breathtaking thriller to win another rich stake . . . That reaping sound you may have heard over the airways was the well-worn tonsils of Rex (The Voice of the Niagara Peninsula) Stimers of St. Catharines, as his beloved Teepees blew high the bubble of western junior hockey to win the Memorial Cup . . . Scott Around Pemberton, I may say, has a new faith in the old cliche, "He who snickers last, snickers the loudest and best." While up in Sudbury "the faces are red, the atmosphere's blue," for the mighty Wolves, one hand on the Allan Cup and one foot in a homeward-bound aircraft, failed to reckon with the recuperative powers of the "Peaches from Pentiction" . . . Montrealers got a taste of topflight soccer as two mighty squads from across the pond battled in a 1-0 game that went to the colorful "Glesgy" Rangers. Chelsea's London team committed a breach of the rules and Rangers were awarded a penalty kick. That did it . . . Dick Burrowes got on the right side of the weatherman and staged a thrilling stox jox show at the Fair Grounds . . . Jim Lloyd won the "B" section of the "Mr. Bowling" Tournament with a neat 3230 pinfall for 10 games . . . Tomorrow night Herby Henn's Northern Electrics are holding at practice at the Alemite Field starting at 6.30 . . . Midget "Tassiars" will be one of the star attractions at Memorial Arena, Friday gloaming . . . Belleville District Softball League executive confabs tonight at CJBQ at 8.30 . . . District Baseball League meets tomorrow night.

Batting: Ted Williams, Red Sox, returned to line-up as a regular with eight hits in nine times at bat, including two home runs and a double to drive in seven runs during doubleheader at Detroit. However, the Tigers won both games, 7-6 and 9-5.

Pitching: Mike Garcia, Indians, limited growing ranks of one-hit pitchers by holding Philadelphia to single by Joe Demaestri in second-game victory, 5-0 after Indians won opener 13-7.

Smashes Out Eight for Nine But Red Sox Lose Twin Bill; Tribe Tops American League

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Poor old Ted Williams. With a steel pin in his left shoulder and sharp pain torturing his body every time he swings hard, the lanky Boston Red Sox slugger is hitting only .727 after one full day's work. Wait 'til the man gets his strength back.

"I've had better days," said Williams Sunday after smashing eight hits in nine times at bat in a doubleheader at Detroit—a performance that may well be the big story of 1954. "I'll hurts like hell every time I swing."

Although Williams got into a game at Baltimore Saturday as a pinch hitter and finished in left field, going hitless in two trips, this was his first real test since he broke his collarbone.

MADE 'EM WONDER

Those who saw him hit two homers, a double and five singles and drive in seven runs at Detroit wondered how he did it.

The Red Sox still lost both games 7-6 and 9-5 in 14 innings as the Boston pitchers gave up 7 hits. Cleveland seized the American League lead by 10 percentage points over Chicago by knocking off Philadelphia twice 12-7 and 6-0 with Mike Garcia allowing only one hit in the second game, a fourth-inning single by Joe Demaestri.

It was the third one-hit game in the majors within a week and the eighth this season.

Chicago slid out of the lead by dividing a pair with Washington. The White Sox won the first 10-5 with Minnie Minoso driving home six runs but bowed to Washington's capable Bob Porterfield in the 3-1 second game.

Don Larsen, young Baltimore righthander, snapped a six-game New York Yankee winning streak with a three-hitter 6-2 in the second game after Allie Reynolds shut out Dave Koslo 2-0 on three hits.

SPLIT DOUBLEHEADERS

All National League clubs split doubleheaders except the Phillies and St. Louis Cardinals whose second game was halted by Philadelphia's Sunday curfew. Andy Hemus' pinch triple helped the Cards beat reliefer Jim Konstanty in the opener, 7-3. The Phils led 4-3 when the second was suspended after six innings. It will be completed today.

Brooklyn edged within six points of the leading Phillies by dividing with Cincinnati. Gil Hodges' homer with the bases loaded off Herm Wehmeier gave Preacher Roe his first victory of 1954 but Paul Penson beat Russ Meyer for a 7-3 Cincinnati edge in the second.

Johnny Antonelli faced his old Milwaukee mates for the first time since he was traded in the Bobby Thomson deal and whipped the Braves 6-3 as New York's Giants bounced back from an opening game 9-3 defeat in 10 innings.

Joe Garagiola led a 17-hit barrage attack on Pittsburgh with a perfect 5 for 5 in the first game 12-3 victory. Then Jake Thies clamped down on the Cubs with a four-hitter to earn a 5-1 decision.

Teeps Get Warm Reception

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Thousands of fans whooped it up Sunday in a rousing welcome for St. Catharines TeePees, who brought the city its first Memorial Cup and Canadian junior hockey title.

Rarely has there been such a demonstration here as when Tee Pees were driven through the city. The team flew from Toronto after defeating Edmonton Oil Kings 6-2 to take the best-of-seven final series 4-0 with one game tied.

Mayor John Smith officially congratulated coach Rudy Pilous and His TeePees. A civic welcome was arranged at the Garden City Arena. Nearly 6,000 persons packed the arena and lined up on the street outside.

BRITAIN LOSES

PARIS (AP)—France, reinforced by Budge Patty of Los Angeles and Enrique Morea of Argentina, defeated Britain 4-1 in the annual three-day tennis match.

Patty, who lives in Paris part time, defeated Lewis Hoad of Australia 1-6, 6-3, 7-5 Sunday and Morea turned back Australia's Mervyn Rose 8-6, 6-2. In a doubles match, however, Patty and Morea lost to Hoad and Ken Rosewall 4-6, 4-6, 8-6.

Royals Lose To Red Wings; Leafs Split

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Richmond Virginians, one of two new entries in this year's International League, whacked out a 13-4 victory over Buffalo Bisons Sunday in a game that might presage a halt to any more drops into the loop cellar.

Richmond, currently in seventh place, take on the Bisons again tonight. It will be the second appearance of a new outfield that accounted for 11 hits and nine runs in Sunday's doubleheader. The Bisons took the nightcap on the strength of Sammy Meeks' three-run homer, 5-4.

The league-leading Rochester Red Wings polished off the Montreal Royals 3-1 but they are only 10 percentage points ahead of the surprising Havana Sugar Kings, who clubbed the Syracuse Chiefs twice 9-2 and 2-1. The Ottawa A's and Toronto Maple Leafs divided doubleheader. The tall-enders won the first 6-5 and the Leafs the nightcap 6-2.

TeePees Win Memorial Cup; Penticton 'Peaches' Take Allan Silverware

Defeat Edmonton Oil Kings In Fifth Game of Series; Thousands Greet New Champs

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The east's well sharpened hat pin has burst western Canada's Memorial Cup bubble for the sixth straight time—and this year the bubble popped with a louder "bang" than usual.

St. Catharines TeePees, carried to the limit by eastern opposition from the start of certain playoffs, whipped the previously-almost invincible Edmonton Oil Kings 3-2 Sunday to win the best-of-seven Canadian junior hockey final 4-1 with one game added.

The Kings, touted as one of the strongest western contingents to seek the big silver bowl, had come to the east with a record of 60 wins in 67 league, playoff and exhibition games for the season. The Teepee, meanwhile, had been extended to eight games in a best-of-seven league semi-final, to nine games in a similar league final and to six games in the eastern series against Quebec.

TEEPEES UNIMPRESSED

But the TeePees were unimpressed by the Oil Kings reputation and promptly set the Edmontons back 5-2 in the series opener a week ago, and 4-2 in the next two second and third games.

Kings came up with a surprising reversal Saturday when they held St. Catharines to a 3-3 overtime tie in the fourth game at Edmonton.

Sunday told the story. TeePees scored two goals in 28 seconds of the opening whistle, both by their No. 1 frontline ace Brian Cullen, who played his last junior hockey game in leading TeePees to victory, and Cec Kings were through competition with a flurry. He scored twice and assisted on two more as TeePees sewed up the first Memorial Cup for the Garden Cities in 32 years of trying.

Brian accepted the cup after the victory. Jack Roxborough, past president of the Ontario Hockey Association, to which TeePees play made the presentation.

THREE BUT HURT

"We knew you, the fans, are tired. The boys are tired and I'm tired," coach Rudy Pilous said after the more-than-eight-month season had ended. "But we're mighty happy."

Hank Ciesla, Hugh Barlow, Barry Cullen and Winger Hartley added the other St. Catharines goals and Oil Kings could do no better than cut the count to 3-1 in the first and 5-2 in the third on goals by Norm Ullman and Bobby Bucyk.

Saturday it was a different story as the Kings twice took the lead and then came back from behind to hold the powerful, opportunist TeePees to a draw.

Ray Kinasewich and John Bucyk gave Kings 1-0 and 2-1 leads Saturday night but Chuck Holmes' blazing shot from a TeePee-nose face-off tied it up. Hughie Barlow scored twice and Cec Hoekstra once to save the TeePees from defeat.

Louis, Schmeling Meet Again But Not in Ring

By TOM BRANAGAN

CHICAGO (AP)—It wasn't a bit like old times when Joe Louis and Max Schmeling got together again.

Both parties were—much too friendly Sunday night. And they resembled only slightly the two excellent fighters who exchanged powerful ring victories in the late 30s.

Louis, now a paunchy 40, and Schmeling, 48 and mellow, got together at a Chicago night club in a visit sponsored by mutual friends.

It was the first time they had met since Louis' "nearly killed" challenger Schmeling—the conqueror Max's—defending his heavyweight boxing title in June, 1936.

Two years before that Schmeling handed Louis his first professional boxing defeat with a 12th-round knockout. Louis didn't lose another fight until 1942 when he retired as champion in 1949.

There were frequent reports before and after their second fight that there was mutual feeling between the two but there was no evidence of it Sunday night.

AGREE GOOD FRIENDS

"We were the victims of bad propaganda," said Joe in the 11-ing. "There never was any bad feeling on my part."

Louis agreed/ "We're good friends," he declared.

Schmeling said the reason Schmeling kayoed Joe in their first fight was because Louis thought he was "invincible."

"I watched Joe fight," said the German, "and I watched pictures of his fights. I noticed that every time he pulled with his left hand, he did not return to a high protection position. He would drop it, leaving the whole left side of his head wide open. I made him lead and then I would cross with my right, when his left was down."

"He taught me never to drop my left again," grinned Joe.

Schmeling, who arrived in Germany Saturday, is going to reference one or two preliminary bouts on a Milwaukee fight card Tuesday.

Hamilton Team Breaks Record

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — A team from the Central Secondary school of Hamilton Sunday broke its Canadian interscholastic senior mile relay record set at the Pickering College track meet here.

The Hamilton Central team covered the distance in 3:28.2, eight-tenths of a second faster than the old mark.

The record-breaking mile was the highlight in a program of 14 relay races that attracted more than 200 competitors from 30 high schools in southern Ontario.

Glasgow Rangers Edge Chelsea By One Goal

MONTREAL (CP) — A penalty goal within 10 minutes of the final whistle by veteran George Young Sunday gave Glasgow Rangers a 1-0 victory over Chelsea of London in an international exhibition soccer game played before 12,920 fans.

The victory gave Glasgow a 1-0 lead in their best-of-three North American challenge series against the Pensioners. They meet at Toronto June 5 and again at New York June 6.

Rangers' goal came at the 35th minute of the second half to give Glasgow a deserved win.

Led by attack by Scottish international right-wing Willie Waddell and in defence by skipper George Young at full-back, the Scottish side dominated play throughout most of the game.

FEAR 700 LOST

TOKYO (AP)—Sixty-eight Japanese fishing boats with an estimated 700 crew members still are unaccounted for off Hokkaido in an area swept by a storm the previous week-end, the maritime safety board announced Sunday. So far 54 fishermen and 66 ships have been rescued.

Triumph Over Sudbury Wolves In One of Senior Hockey's Most Remarkable Comebacks

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP)—There was dancing in the streets until dawn here Sunday, as the whole city turned out to whoop it up over Penticton V's amazing Allan Cup victory.

The come-from-behind V's took the measure of the dogged Sudbury Wolves 3-2 Saturday night in the seventh and deciding game, to bring the Canadian senior amateur hockey championship to British Columbia for the first time since 1938.

It was a fitting climax to one of the most exciting Allan Cup finals on record.

Sudbury appeared to have the battered trophy in the bag after taking three of the first four games, the fourth one by a scorching 8-2 margin.

But the V's were not to be stopped. In true storybook fashion, they roared back with three straight wins, all of them thrillers.

They rewrote the script slightly Saturday, taking a 3-0 lead and then tying up grimly as Sudbury stormed back.

Playing-coach Grant Warwick once again was the sparkplug as he fired the winning goal in the second period. Jim Fairburn and Jack McDonald were the other Penticton marksmen, and defenceman Yogi Kraiger and Tatter McClellan scored for Sudbury.

FIRST-PERIOD LEAD

V's led 1-0 at the end of the first period on Fairburn's tally at 15:12. Grant Warwick and rearguard Kevin (Crusher) Conway drew the assists.

Each team scored twice in the second period. V's got both their goals in the first seven minutes and appeared well on the way to victory.

A cross-checking penalty to Penticton's Doug Kilburn at 18:32 set the stage for Wolves comeback. The easterners gained the attack and Kraiger connected first with McClellan's goal came just 20 seconds later.

Great goal-tending by Ivan McLelland, who performed near miracles for V's all through the playoffs, was the key to the scoreless third period.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Xibitzer

To be a genius maybe you have a screw loose somewhere. Anyway, one of the master bridge players of today act that way. For they hate to follow the beaten path of sound bidding.

Give one of them a suit that is not truly biddable and I'll be dogone if he does not go ahead and bid it. Give him a suit that is biddable and he may surprise you by bidding no-trump instead.

He has, of course, a method in all the madness. And he thrives on it in his own peculiar way. So you may as well talk to the wall as try to convince him that truer methods would be better.

In the master nationals came deal number 10 you see here:

	♥ K 10 7 5
	♦ 9 8 6 3 2
	♣ 9 6 5
WEST		EAST
♠ K 5		♠ A 8 4 3
♥ Q J 9 8 4 2		♥ 6 3
♦ Q 5		♦ A K J
♣ A 8		♣ 10 8 7
	SOUTH
	♠ J 10 9 7
	♥ A
	♦ Q 7 4
	♣ K J 5 4 3 2

Anybody with normal bidding sense would know I should end in spades. East has a truly biddable suit and now a stickum support. Yet, only 17 of the 38 finals landed in a spade contract. Two were six spades, down two. One was in five spades, down one. Fifteen were in four spades where they belonged. Two of these went down by using a faulty plan of play.

What happened to pairs at the other tables? There was the usual bunch of nuts who played it in no-trump. Actually, nine tables were in three no-trump, all of which made it, some with an extra trick.

There were nine tables that ended at four hearts. Of these, four made and five went down. Which may or may not prove anything except that they used judgment instead of rules.

When first-time these gamble with no-trump contracts they have their reasons. Tricks in no-trump pay more than do tricks in a suit. And I have no come-back if they admit it is a good one.

My beef against them is that they give the impression that it is good bidding. When we know it is not. Certainly spades is the correct contract here. Half an eye can see that.

AT THE McCARTHY, Belleville
"THE SINNER."

Tintype of Hildegarde Neff.

They called her "Frigid Lie" in her last 20th Century-Fox film, "The Snows of Kilimanjaro", but exotic film star Hildegarde Neff, who stars in "The Sinner" which opens at The Odeon McCarthy Theatre today, seems blonder, sexier appeal in three languages—English, French and German — and has become one of the most exciting international personalities since Dietrich, her close friend and idol.

"Expat Beaver" is her off-stage nickname at 20th Century-Fox, where the tall, willowy, green-eyed fraulein makes one picture a year. Accustomed to working as many as twenty-two hours a day in foreign films, Miss Neff thought nothing of staying at the studio until midnight during the filming of the "Kilimanjaro" to learn two dozen songs with which she makes her debut as not only a singer but a glamour girl.

Forthright as well as energetic, she left Hollywood immediately upon completion of "The Snows of Kilimanjaro" to go to Europe to make three films in fast succession, including "The Sinner", a film in which she appeared sans clothes and sans compunctions.

She lives out of a suitcase. She never has owned a house, an automobile or anything she can't carry in two hands. She thinks an actress can stagnate by settling down. Odds and ends of her possessions are stored in Hollywood, New York, Paris, Munich, Rome and places in between. Friends say her feelings against owning property stem from the bombing in Berlin in which everything she ever owned was destroyed.

"If I survive", she told herself at the height of the Allied raids, "I want to know what I survive for. Despite near starvation and homelessness, I felt I would live and I knew I would go on as an actress."

She likes exotic foods, believes in astrology and has a riveting, raucous laugh which can be heard for two blocks when the wind is right.

When Darryl F. Zanuck bought "Bus Stop" recently it was rumored Miss Neff might play it, as her friend Marlene Dietrich, who became a big star in it.

Divorced from an ex-lieutenant in the Army who married her in Berlin in 1947, she is friendly with Antole Litvak, whom she says she sees "only at railroad stations and airports because we're both on the move" and actor Jean Pierre Aumont.

The languorous actress was a top star in Germany during the war and came to this country in 1948 unable to speak a word of English. She mastered the language in eight months. Under contract to David Selznick, she returned to Germany to star in five pictures in succession before Fox signed her to 20th Century-Fox and put her in "Decision Before Dawn". Although it was a small role, she made a hit in it.

Now an American citizen, she is one of Hollywood's most rabid boosters. "No where else on earth is there so much freedom, so much opportunity, so much happiness and so many wonderful people," she says.

No where in the world she says, are people as free of envy of others as they are in America. But she thinks Americans analyze things too much. "If you think too much about your reasons for doing or thinking something", she says, "you become stilted, studied and altogether too serious."

ISSUES CHALLENGE

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—Mayor H. L. Henderson of Portage La Prairie has challenged Canadian mayors to come here June 16 and learn how to plow a straight furrow. His challenge was issued in connection with the western Canada plowing championships to be held here.

AT THE BELLE — Tintype of Hildegarde Neff.

They called her "Frigid Lie" in her last 20th Century-Fox film, "The Snows of Kilimanjaro", but exotic film star Hildegarde Neff, who stars in "The Sinner" which opens at The Odeon McCarthy Theatre today, seems blonder, sexier appeal in three languages—English, French and German — and has become one of the most exciting international personalities since Dietrich, her close friend and idol.

"Expat Beaver" is her off-stage nickname at 20th Century-Fox, where the tall, willowy, green-eyed fraulein makes one picture a year. Accustomed to working as many as twenty-two hours a day in foreign films, Miss Neff thought nothing of staying at the studio until midnight during the filming of the "Kilimanjaro" to learn two dozen songs with which she makes her debut as not only a singer but a glamour girl.

Forthright as well as energetic, she left Hollywood immediately upon completion of "The Snows of Kilimanjaro" to go to Europe to make three films in fast succession, including "The Sinner", a film in which she appeared sans clothes and sans compunctions.

She lives out of a suitcase. She never has owned a house, an automobile or anything she can't carry in two hands. She thinks an actress can stagnate by settling down. Odds and ends of her possessions are stored in Hollywood, New York, Paris, Munich, Rome and places in between. Friends say her feelings against owning property stem from the bombing in Berlin in which everything she ever owned was destroyed.

"If I survive", she told herself at the height of the Allied raids, "I want to know what I survive for. Despite near starvation and homelessness, I felt I would live and I knew I would go on as an actress."

She likes exotic foods, believes in astrology and has a riveting, raucous laugh which can be heard for two blocks when the wind is right.

When Darryl F. Zanuck bought "Bus Stop" recently it was rumored Miss Neff might play it, as her friend Marlene Dietrich, who became a big star in it.

Montreal Group Wins Top Drama Festival Award

By PAULINE KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HAMILTON (CP)—After a week of eight plays from scattered parts of Canada, the Dominion Drama Festival ended Saturday on an optimistic note for the future of Canadian theatre.

Adjudicator Hugh Hunt awarded the Calvert Trophy for the best play to a French-Canadian group, La Nouvelle Equipe of Montreal, for their presentation of "Le Roi David," written by Jean Filiastrault of Montreal.

It was the second year the top award has gone to a Canadian-authored play. Last year the trophy was won by La June Scene Players of Montreal.

Speaking on the festival in general, Mr. Hunt said:

"I have never seen either in Britain or on the continent an amateur drama festival where there was more eager audience response or such a high standard of acting, production design and choice of play."

BURDEN ON LITTLE THEATRE

Mr. Hunt said Canada has no real professional theatre so the main burden of its establishment is on the Little Theatre movement. It would be through Canadian plays of the quality of "Le Roi David," that such a professional theatre could be realized.

The following awards were made at the festival:

The Henry Osborne Challenge Trophy for best male actor to Gordon Robertson of Kingston Dominion Players for his Christopher in "The Playboy of Western World."

The Nell Jefferis Challenge Trophy for the best performance by a woman to Edna Foster of Calgary Workshop 14 for her role of Jennet in "The Lark's Nest for Burning."

Best director award to Henri Norbert for direction of "Le Roi David."

WIN PLAQUES

The Saturday Night plaque for the best supporting actor to Gilles Pelletier of La Nouvelle Equipe of Montreal for his portrayal of Ruben in the winning play.

The Saturday Night plaque for best supporting actress to Dorothy Bener of the Hamilton Players' Guild for her playing of Mrs. Danvers in "Rebecca."

The Martha Allen Challenge Trophy for best musical presentation play in the festival was won by the Trail Little Theatre of British Columbia for the production of "For Love or Money."

The plaque for the best presentation of an English-language play aside from the Calvert winner went to Workshop 14 of Calgary for "The Lady's Not for Burning." A similar plaque for the best French-language play, aside from the Calvert winner, went to the Collège de Montréal for its production of "Le Malade Imaginaire."

Mr. Hunt said he made this award even though the best play was another French play because of the superior acting by Robert Trudel in the role of Argan.

BEST PRESENTATION

La Nouvelle Equipe theatre took the Sir Barry Jackson award for best presentation of play written by a Canadian. Mr. Filiastrault was given the $100 author's award for the best play by a Canadian.

"Le Roi David," was written in classical French verse by Mr. Filiastrault, a former newspaper man, who has also written a book.

Director Henri Norbert experimented with a new acting technique in Le Roi David." Instead of using the usual method of spoken Francaise or the realism of modern drama, Mr. Norbert coached his cast in a more austere form. The actors, by voice and facial expression were able to convey action and emotion in the play.

It was because of this "daring experiment" and the quality of the Canadian-written play Mr. Hunt said, that he picked it for the Calvert Trophy.

Mr. Hunt entitled the Kingston Domino group for attempting a play out of the troupe's reach, but lauded the lead actor, Gordon Robertson, for holding the performance together.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, MAY 18, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A favorable day for seemingly hard or stubborn tasks, deals. Do not be discouraged or stop trying since, with patience and extra effort you can come through successfully. It's worth it.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Most personal matters dealing with home, loved ones will bear close study. Your keen perception can bring results. You have ability and intelligence; use both well, folks.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Rather friendly stars are encouraging for worthwhile endeavors. Seeking promotion, bettering your status, employment favored. Watch investments, securities; may be some leaning here.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Most benefits and advantages will have to be uncovered by shrewdness, keen penetration. Think first, act only after due study. Dispatch and outlook important in all things. Care in finances.

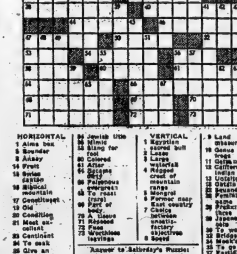
July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — Haste will be one of the things to restrain now. Take proper time, give detailed thought before acting. Get busy early, but don't rush headlong into things.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—A so-so period. Matters pertaining to money, travel and personal expenses need care. Early action best as later in the day things will begin to happen; time will be precious. Act now.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Increase your desire for knowledge if you would achieve success. Domestic affairs may also be an influence in attaining goals.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Scorpio may have some weighty problems to handle on this mixed sort of day. But this is complimentary. Realize your capabilities, grasp at opportunity and your day should be satisfying.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Check tendencies toward extremes, over-active imagination and do not strain mental or physical faculties. Use your gifts well but don't wear yourself out. Interesting aspects.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Vibrations indicate you will have to be "up to snuff," eyes watching to ascertain in what direction to move. But move rightly and you will achieve handsomely. Do not be timid.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Note Capricorn influences; they could well be applied to your day's activities. Express yourself where you really know that you have a sure point or idea to follow.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Habits, good or bad, influence results, and today you'll probably notice flaws that could be troublesome. Avoid impulsive judgment, haste in speech. Be kindly in spirit; help others.

YOU BORN TODAY: Vegus, ruler of the Senses, was prominent in the astrological heavens when you were born. Your stones: the opal, moonstone, carnelian, coral.

Taurians succeed highly in such pursuits as manufacturing, mining, construction; also arts and science. You may do exceptionally well as journalist, entertainer; are well liked by associates. Guard against confiding in those to whom you give your affection without being sure of their sincerity. You are both a doer and a dreamer. Guard health, live sensibly, admit it when you are in error. Birthdays of: Nicholas II, emperor, last czar of Russia.

Pelmar Company To Start Daily In Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—Andrew Peller, president of Pelmar Enterprises, announced Sunday night he has taken an option to buy the Hamilton Printing and Publishing Co. Ltd., and will publish a daily newspaper in Hamilton.

The publishing company owns the Hamilton News, published three times a week. The sale price was not announced. Mr. Peller said he has not decided whether his newspaper will be a morning or evening paper or when it will start daily publication.

The Hamilton Spectator, an evening paper, is the only daily newspaper now published in this city of some 300,000 residents.

Mr. Peller, former owner of the Peller Brewing Company here, said negotiations were completed Saturday. Terms of the agreement provide for the purchase from Unitype, Inc., a subsidiary of the International Typographical Union, of real estate, equipment and all shares and assets of the publishing company, including the subscription list.

Mr. Peller said:

"Hamilton has grown up. Its citizens deserve and should have another daily newspaper. It is essential that a metropolitan area of 300,000 population should have more than one avenue of printed expression."

The News was first published in 1847, some after the ITU called a strike at the Spectator. It was published twice weekly for 38 years. It started publishing thrice weekly in 1950.

The plant has been under lease to the Hamilton Printing and Publishing Co. Ltd., by Unitype Inc. since the present lease month to publish the paper only once a week.

RUSSIANS TAKE PHOTOS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet transport plane made three low passes 11 days ago over a floating ice island used by the US. Air Force as a weather study outpost. An air force spokesman said the plane apparently took photographs of the island near the North Pole. No protest is planned, however, because "nobody owns the North Pole."

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marilyn Monroe is working again, and that's worth a trip to the studio any time.

I ventured to the 20th Century-Fox lot and was told that double-M could not be disturbed at her lair-love. She was in dance rehearsals for "There's No Business Like Show Business." However, she sneaked out word that if I would wait in a small office off the rehearsal hall, she would pop in to see me during a break.

I watched dance director Robert Alton and Marilyn's dance-in (corresponds to a stand-in) teaching her the number. They were struggling to an Irvin Berlin number, "After You Get What You Want, You Don't Want It."

After half an hour of this strenuous business, she took a break and came over. She was frankly worn out and looked it. She wore blue jeans and a plunging sweater top with a bare midriff. She had not a trace of make-up and her hair was tousled. Still, she looked good.

MINOR ROLE ACCEPTED

I asked how she could accept a minor role after being the current picture and turn down a starring role in "Pink Tights."

"Because I didn't like the script of 'Pink Tights,'" she replied.

She explained further when I told her Betty Grable supported her position. Miss Grable should be expert in the matter, having played the same script at least twice before — "Coney Island" and the Wabash Avenue.

"Are those dances harder than the ones in 'Gentlemen Prefer Blondes'?"

"I know you. No comment."

"You don't trust me?"

"Oh, I do. But I have no comment. Why don't you come back some day when I'm not working so hard?"

"Okay."

"Is that a promise?"

"I promise." How can you resist a doll like that?

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — At least one Brando is working in Hollywood these days. It's Jocelyn, younger sister of muscular Marlon.

Jocelyn is playing opposite Randolph Scott, called "Old Reliable" because of his box-office potential, in a western named "Johnny Allen." It's her first picture. Unlike her brother, she likes making movies.

Jocelyn is an attractive, strong-featured blond with a firm will—a family trait, no doubt. When I began asking her questions about Marlon she replied with the natural concern of one who has sometimes been asked questions about her more famous brother: "Is this going to be an interview about Marlon?" "Partially," I answered.

She acquiesced. I asked her if she thought her brother was temperamental.

STRICTLY HONEST

"Not at all," she replied in strong defence. "He isn't the least bit temperamental. He's an honest boy who tries to be strictly honest with everyone he deals with. The trouble is that people are not always honest with him.

"He has great talent and integrity as an actor. This business about his being a character has been created about him. About the only thing with Fox, that was unfortunate. But apparently it has all been resolved and the studio is happy now."

She returned to his beef with 20th Century — Fox, which complained because he failed to report for "The Egyptian." In fact, the studio complained to the tune of a $2,000,000 suit. But it was later settled after he agreed to play Napoleon in "Desiree."

MOTHER ACTED SHAW

I asked Jocelyn if it had been an accident that she and Marlon both chose the acting life.

"Not really," she replied. "My mother acted in stock in Omaha and was very good. She starred in plays like 'Pygmalion' 'Desire Under the Elms' and others. I think I am the only one in the family who ever saw her.

"When I was about eight I went to a performance of 'Pygmalion.' Henry Fonda was an usher at the theatre, and I remember sitting on his lap between acts. I was in love with him for years afterward."

She later appeared with him in "Family Day."

Mr. and Mrs. Sizzle came to our house for dinner last nite, and this morning at breakfast ma said to pop, Really, William, I meen actually, did you ever see anything to equal the way Mrs. Sizzle served her dinner plate upside down to investigate what kind of china it was by the mark on the bottom?

Well, I've seen some pritty good jugglers on the stage, pop said. I'll bet she couldn't of done it so neatly if the plate had been full of food at the time, he said, and ma said, She never moved a mussel of her expressionless face when she saw it was genuine Ferpwood Ware. I wonder if she expected to be served on china from the 5 and 10 cent store, ma said.

If she did, she had to multiply her caculations many times, pop said. I still remember my shock when I got the bill for that set of china. Some day I'm going to de-thirtify smash one of the small saucers, just in a spirit of reckless bunnyy, he said, and ma said, If Mrs. Sizzle ever gets invited to sit in this dining room again, it won't be while we own the house.

Come to think of it, my dear, didn't I see you tern over a plate when we dined with the Tuttmans? pop said, and ma said, Yes of course, but I brightened Mrs. Tuttman's whole evening by exclaiming rapturously about her beutiful Widgin Ware. I didn't sit there in frozen silence like moodiness on a monument, she said.

Oh I see, pop said. I just wanted to get the picture cleer, and now it's cleer, he said.

And he folded his paper and kissed ma goodbye and left for his office.

A chain of important benefits YOU may have helped create!

If you are paying premiums on life insurance, chances are you think this money works only for your family, and yourself. But, while it does provide security for your future, it also has far-reaching effects on your fellow-citizens.

Part of this same money invested in sound securities, helps to build new homes, schools, hospitals, roads, bridges, power plants and other useful developments. And this in turn works to build better communities from coast to coast. What's more . . .

Other life insurance dollars are contributed to vital medical research projects. In this way, you may be sharing in science's war against cancer, polio, heart disease and other enemies of good health and long life. Some day, too, you may benefit by the results of this work. But that's not all . . .

You may also have helped to create jobs by means of your life insurance payments . . . because some of those dollars were probably invested in ways that enabled industries to expand and employ more workers. In fact, one of those workers might be you!

In all these important ways, millions of life insurance policyholders are working to make Canada a better land to live in!

P.S. FROM YOUR LIFE INSURANCE MAN

"Invested life insurance dollars earn interest that makes it possible for you and your family to enjoy the benefits of life insurance at such low cost. If you have any questions about how to make life insurance fit your own special needs, give me a call. I'll be glad to help you!"

Guatemala Gets Big Arms Shipment From Polish Port

U.S. State Dept. Alarmed, Sees Reds Fomenting Chaos

Will Not Stop Progress Pay For Road Work

TORONTO (CP)—Changes in the method of handling progress payments to road-builders were recommended Monday in the Woods and Gordon report on the Ontario department of highways.

(It was not recommended that such progress payments be discontinued entirely.)

The Toronto firm of management consultants reported to the legislature's select committee investigating alleged irregularities in the department that records of work done during early stages of a contract were sometimes falsified to enable a contractor to claim larger payments at that point in the work.

It said the firms then understated the amount of work done later in the job to compensate for the overly-large early payments.

"This method of making advance payments is not consistent with the terms of the contracts and requires the staff of the department in the field to send in statements showing that work has been performed when in fact it has not been done," the report said. "Furthermore, this procedure makes it more difficult to keep control of the quantities actually moved during the course of the contract.

"We recommend that this practice be discontinued. The reports from the department's field staff show only their estimates of the quantities actually moved. It is necessary to financial contractors in the initial stages of the work, the contract should provide for an advance of the 10 per cent of the total contract price which could be recovered from subsequent payments as they become due."

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States authorities said today they are convinced Moscow has turned loose Communist agitators to foment strife and chaos in Central America.

This belief is based on recent developments in Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Honduras and climaxed now by an apparently large shipment of arms to Guatemala from Communist countries in Europe, via a German port but now incorporated into Poland.

The state department here announced late Monday that an unspecified quantity and type of arms now are being unloaded from a cargo ship of Swedish registry at the Guatemalan port of Puerto Barrios.

The announcement said that "because of the origin of these arms, the point of their embarkation, their destination and the quantity involved, the state department is of the opinion that this is a development of gravity."

For a number of years the United States has blocked all arms sales to Guatemala. It has repeatedly charged, too, that Guatemala is the centre of Communist agitation in Central America and has been particularly active in "playing the Communist game."

Looking back over unrest in Central America during the last six weeks, U.S. authorities believe the signal for this activity came from Moscow late last year.

VISITED MOSCOW

At that time, they recall, Guatemala's three chief Communist leaders visited Moscow. Since then, they point out, these events have occurred:

On April 3, Nicaraguan exiles from Costa Rica unsuccessfully tried to assassinate the anti-Communist Nicaraguan president, Anastasio Somoza. He is regarded as one of the most active anti-Communists in Central America and an ardent friend of Guatemala.

A cache of arms was found along a lonely stretch of the Pacific coast of Nicaragua.

At the end of April, almost all of Nicaragua's telephone system in the northern sector of Honduras went out on the same day. Workers in shops, telephone exchanges, and hospitals also struck, paralyzing the entire area. Guatemala lies just to the north of Honduras.

16 Unreported, Feared Drowned In Michigan Lakes

DETROIT (AP)—At least 16 persons are unreported and feared drowned in Michigan lakes.

If all are dead, it will mark one of the state's most disastrous weekends in drowning fatalities with a total of 104 lives lost. Eight persons were drowned earlier in bath tub and boating mishaps.

The coast guard and Selfridge Field air station early today joined Lake St. Clair Monday for eight in two families, including four children, when two boats capsized in a boat Sunday.

Their 14-foot motorboat was found capsized Monday three miles off Jefferson beach on Detroit's suburban Lake Erie area.

Two who were drowned earlier were a Kansas newspaper veteran, Richard Schlarb, 20, Detroit, and his 16-year-old friend, Geraldine, when a wave swamped their motorboat.

Five companions clung to the boat until rescued. Schlarb was drowned in a futile effort to save Geraldine, last of the two mishaps.

State police dragged Griffin lake near Flint, for three boys feared drowned when their boat turned boat capsized. The boys, wards of Jurisville court, were Tim Mondel, 16, his brother, John, 14, and Kenneth Clayton, 15.

On Lake St. Clair searchers all but gave up hope in the attempt to save the two drowned Sunday.

The eight known to have been aboard the capsized boat were Walter C. Yeomans, 40, of Grosse Pointe Woods, owner of the boat; his wife, Ida, 40, and their two sons, Wally, 12, and Thomas, 7, and Mrs. Yeomans' sister, Mrs. Ruth of Detroit and their two children

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: The arrival of cooler air in Ontario Monday ushered in a dry spell in southern Ontario which will probably last several days. No further cooling need be expected and by Thursday temperatures should be climbing again. Today and Wednesday they will reach 60 in southern Ontario and about 45 in the extreme north.

SPEAKER RULES MOTION BY DREW OUT OF ORDER

Opposition Puts In Plea for Municipalities

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament's three opposition parties agree that municipalities should be required to pay federal sales and excise taxes on their purchases.

A motion by Opposition Leader Drew to that effect was supported by the CCF and Social Credit leaders in the Commons Monday but was ruled out of order before it came to a vote.

His motion, technically non-confidence in the government, sought Common support for exemption of municipal councils and school boards from excise taxes and the 10-per-cent sales tax on equipment and supplies.

Mr. Drew said that if municipalities are not to be given wider taxing powers through a revised allocation of tax fields, they should receive relief from increasing costs by way of tax exemption.

Speaker Rene Beaudoin studied the motion for two hours before ruling the proposal out of order on the grounds that the topic already has been discussed at this session during the budget debate. Further discussion, he said, is a matter of motion before the House for sales tax exemption on municipal purchases of certain types of road-building and fire-fighting equipment.

BACKED BY CCF

In the interval, however, the proposal was backed by CCF leader Coldwell and Social Credit leader Low and other opposition members, and opposed by two Liberals.

At the night sitting the House debated 115 to 28 a motion by A. M. Nicholson (CCF—Mackenzie) for government-supported floor prices on cattle and hogs. Social Credit members supported the CCF motion and Liberals and Progressive Conservatives voted against it.

Earlier in the sitting, Defence Minister Claxton tabled a 38-page white paper on defence. It said the achievements of the country's defence programs and sketched the role of Canada's armed forces in the cold war.

Mr. Drew's proposal had been introduced in previous sessions, and was a plank in his party's general election platform last summer.

He said municipalities are needed by municipalities, caught between rising costs and limited taxing powers.

WANT SAME RELIEF

It was only proper for municipalities to have the same tax exemptions granted provincial governments, since they were the legal creatures of the provinces.

Mr. Drew referred to his recent proposal for a federal-provincial conference to reallocate taxing powers among the three levels of government.

That proposal was rejected by Prime Minister St. Laurent, he said. If municipalities were not to be given a wider stronger financial footing, they should receive some other relief.

Municipal responsibilities often meant they could not finance their share of the fire, police and ambulance-building and civil defence, and such programs were not carried out.

CHILDREN ESCAPE

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Forty children were led to safety Monday when fire broke out in a school building. The remainder of the school's 700 pupils were at lunch.

Bari Babe Called 'Milk and Butter' Strips Near Bare, Sets Mayor Aflutter

BARI, Italy (AP)—When the lady walked into his office and stripped down to brassiere and panties that's when the mayor yelled for help.

Police turned out in force, there was a near riot in front of city hall, two Communist officials and the lady in question were arrested and there may be a big stirke in protest against the arrests.

Mayor Federico Cancalara of the city of Minervino Murge, population 20,000, says the whole thing started two months ago when he publicly resigned from the Communist party.

That happened until Monday when the lady—who police says is known as "Latte e Burro" (milk and butter)—walked in and said she must see the mayor. As soon as the door was closed she started to pull off her clothes and yelling for help.

The mayor yelled, too.

But by the time Milk and Butter was down to her last garment the door burst open and there stood the secretary of the local Communist party and a member of the Communist-led local chamber of labor and a crowd of about 300.

Police finally saved the mayor from the crowd and arrested Milk and Butter on a charge of falsely pretending to have been a victim of assault, and arrested the two Communist officials on charges of an "outrage to a public official" while they were admitted she had been paid 25,000 lire ($42) for her act.

How Would Have Preferred Canada Build Seaway Alone

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said Monday night he would have preferred to have Canada build the multi-millionedollar St. Lawrence seaway project alone.

Entry of the United States into the construction project will not change things materially, he added.

But every dollar that has gone into development of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterway has been Canadian and he would have preferred to see Canada build it the last 126 miles, too.

Mr. Howe told officers on the power-shipping project in reply to interviewers' questions over the CBC's radio program, Press Conference.

OTHER QUESTIONS

Replying to other questions, Mr. Howe said termination of the government-sponsored Canada Bonds on May 31 will not mean that the government will no longer have authority to issue such securities. It still had the Defence Production Act which it could implement by Mr. Howe's defence production department.

Defence spending had been levelling off, but he did not expect the rate of spending to decrease sharply over the years. Aircraft production had been mapped out for the next two or three years and the spending rate would be maintained "fairly well."

The Canada-U.S. trade committee, composed of cabinet ministers in the two countries, had been a useful forum to air economic and trade grievances between the two neighbors. Canada had complaints, but so did the U.S. It had been complaining that Canada shipped too much beef to the "starving" U.S. area.

He said the U.S. still may violate international trade pacts, but under the committee's functioning, the breaches would not come suddenly and unexpectedly.

Mr. Howe believed, however, that retaliatory action must be considered very seriously if there are further cases of international trade pacts.

SEE BUSINESS PICKUP

He had attended high-level talks in the U.S. and there was agreement among the authorities that business will pick up sharply in the last quarter of 1954.

He did not agree with a suggestion of the Canadian Exporters Association that Canada provide overseas countries with long-term credit as a means of boosting exports.

Britain, for one, did not want such credit, he said, because of indebtedness.

An interviewer recalled that Senator W. Rupert Davies (L — Ontario) had suggested the International Trade Fair in Toronto does more to boost imports than exports. Mr. Howe said it helps the trade deficit—that is more imports than exports—sometimes means a high employment rate for Canada and for that reason is not very disturbing. But, he continued, we have another deficit this year, but it may not be so large as the one in 1953.

Some Canadian Soldiers Soon May Not Be Needed in Korea

OTTAWA (CP)—Some Canadian soldiers soon may no longer be needed in Korea.

This information was contained in a government white paper on defence which also disclosed Monday that Canada must maintain its present $5,000,000 a day defence budget, most of which goes to the NATO forces for years.

The 38-page report, tabled in the Commons by Defence Minister Claxton, said that the uneasy truce situation (in Korea) may improve to permit withdrawal of Canadian forces there in the not too distant future."

A 6,000-man infantry brigade and three destroyers now are maintained in Korea by Canada.

The white paper said, too, that the development of a new supersonic jet interceptor, the CF-105 planned as successor to the CF-100, and the anti-jet aircraft guided missile will cost $8,000,000 this year. The interceptor will be in the air force by six years.

The RCAF will get 41.4 cents of every defence dollar compared to 41.1 last year; the army 23.6 compared to 25; the navy 15.7 compared to 14; mutual aid 13.8 compared to 13.6; and defence research board 2.5 compared to 2.1; other costs have increased to 2.5.

NEW WEAPON DEVELOPED

The white paper said a new Canadian anti-tank weapon, all its components, has been developed successfully.

Army, navy and air force were training intensively for arctic and sub-arctic defence.

Air bases, communications and fighter squadrons for defence against attack should be fully operational by the end of this year. The McGill radar fence to supplement present early-warning radar network had been started.

The army, navy and air force reserve fighter squadrons, including the 12 in Europe, would be reached this year.

Personnel costs would be higher this year because of the increased number of persons in uniform—111,000 as against 104,000 last year—and pay increases.

Second Session On Indo-China Held at Geneva

GENEVA (AP) — The Western powers today went into their second session of parleys with Red representatives on an Indo-China peace. They still hoped to find out whether the Reds would halt the fighting without first seeking a political settlement.

It was generally expected that either Molotov, Soviet foreign minister, Chou En-lai, would reply to Monday's Western proposals for a quick cease-fire to be followed by political talks.

The Western plan was submitted to the nine-party conference by France's foreign minister Bidault last Saturday at a closed-door session ended.

The proposals were understood to follow Bidault's original plan for an Indo-China truce, but to be more detailed.

Communist Warship Sunk by Nationalists

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — The Chinese Nationalist air force said today planes sank a 1,500-ton Communist warship and damaged a similar vessel today.

The attack occurred near Sanmen bay, 150 miles south of Shanghai.

The air force said eight 500-pound bombs sank the warship and an unannounced number set an 800-ton ship afire and apparently left it sinking.

All Nationalist planes returned safely.

SEGREGATION IN U.S. SCHOOLS RULED ILLEGAL

Vast Problems Created For Southern States

BY DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—A momentous United States Supreme Court edict, that segregation of Negro and white children in public schools is unconstitutional, confronts the southern states with vast social and economic problems.

But an actual end to segregation still is months and perhaps years away.

There are those who say it will never end—that the new device of another the south will get around the Supreme Court decision. But others predict a peaceful, if gradual, compliance.

The highest U. S. tribunal declared unanimously, Monday that segregation "solely on the basis of race" violates the U. S. constitution, regardless of whether schools for Negroes appear to be as good as those for whites. The court said segregation of itself deprives Negro children of equal opportunities.

The judgment was a climax to years of their ruling by holding off a formal decree to put the decision into effect. Similar arguments have been ordered for next fall on how and when the decision should be carried out.

PROBLEMS MEETING

So, awaiting the seventeen southern and neighboring states where segregation is compulsory, are weighty problems of remodelling school systems, reorganizing school districts, readjusting and transferring teachers, changing school boundaries and building more schools.

If some states or communities should balk at complying with the Supreme Court decision, there are tangles are in prospect. Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson has predicted "a generation of litigation."

Resume Air Raids But Still Hoping To Help Wounded

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI (AP)—The French high command today reopened all-out air attacks on Communist-led Vietminh rebels encircling and entrenched from Dien Bien Phu along a high-mountain corridor to Laos, but still couldn't get a sufficient number of planes through to support pay for a starving salary of $2,960.

That's part of your trouble there," said Mr. Grummett, CCF hours' leading.

"To some extent, yes," replied Mr. Millar, "but we still couldn't get engineers with so much construction.

Mr. Grummett asked why, on many contracts, the final price is doubled or tripled at completion of the work. Mr. Millar said it was due to conditions encountered during construction.

Attorney-General Porter said the contract price is only an estimate, and the actual price is in the contract is the unit price.

Tugboat Skippers Ready for Saturday Race With Capt. McQueen Favored

By ART BRYDON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINDSOR, (CP)—Tugboat skippers, as a general rule, are a clannish group likes to gather for a quiet drink, puff their pipes and tell a few tales of fresh water days.

Once a year, in the Detroit-Windsor area, friendliness is lost in the propeller - lashed Detroit river as the only international tugboat race on the continent gets under way. This year's race, the 13th annual, is set for Saturday.

This race, sponsored by the International Tugboat Racing Association, was the only one of its kind in 1950 when it started. Now it is copied in Seattle, Wash., and Duluth, Minn., without the international flavor.

The Canadian entries are provided by Canada Steamship Lines and Ambersthurg whose spunky Atomic was the 1950 and 1951 racer. After the first battle, river skippers named Queen "the grey fox of Amherstburg."

He whipped the Atomic up the Canadian side of the river where currents were weaker, li was an old hand.

In 1953, John Roen V of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., romped home to years of rage from other skippers who claimed she was a "ringer" because she exceeded the 115-foot length provided for the fulbful old Patty McQueen, which generally chugs around the Great Lakes.

At the last association meeting, several skippers wanted entries limited to boats more than but the majority "allowed as how about two minutes before the starting gun was lots of time." The race will be run entirely in Canadian waters and prizes presented on the Canadian side of the river.

The boats are classified as to horse power, from 0 to 200, 201 to 400, 401 to 800 and over 800. The race leave the starting line at the same time. The first boat home in each class receives a prize.

Granular Base In Road Building Cause of Over-Run

Former Deputy Minister Testifies Before Committee

TORONTO (CP)—The introduction of a granular base in highway construction in Ontario in 1950 was chiefly responsible for a large part of the $15,705,357 over-run in contracts let in that year, J. D. Millar, former deputy minister of highways, said today.

Mr. Millar, testifying before the Ontario legislature's select committee investigating irregularities in the department, said the increase was due to the increase in the number of vehicles on provincial highways, resulted in the "drastic change" in highway construction policy and as a result a number of 1950 contracts were let for grading only.

"The contractors had to move over the amount of the granular base used," he said.

BREAKS DOWN FIGURES

Mr. Millar, now deputy minister of public works, said of the 212 contracts let in that year, the peak year for the department—26 were trans-Canada highway contracts ended up at $9,000,000 over-run. Ordinary contracts estimated at $40,000,000 had an over-run of approximately $6,000,000, or 21 per cent.

Department officials testifying at the first hearing last month said the $20 per cent over-run was always expected.

The $6,000,000 over-run was not too far out of line," said Mr. Millar.

Explaining various contracts listed in the report given Monday by A. J. Grummett, CCF member for, Mr. Millar said that in 1950 the department was hampered by severe shortage of engineers.

Albert Wren (Lib-Lab—Kenora) asked if all contracts let in 1950-51 were adequately pre-engineered.

"Yes, but I would like to have had the opportunity to do a great deal more . . . , but we were rushed for time . . . and short of staff," said Mr. Millar.

ENGINEERS START LOW

Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver asked if Mr. Millar would then say that the recommendation of Deputy Minister Frost of J. D. Woods and Gordon Ltd., Toronto engineering consultant that more pre-engineering would be "impractical."

"No, I would welcome more pre-engineering," replied Mr. Millar. "Engineers, he said, the department couldn't get a sufficient number of engineers to the department paying a starting salary of $2,960.

That's part of your trouble there," said Mr. Grummett, CCF

Mr. Millar, "but we still couldn't get engineers with so much construction.

Mr. Grummett asked why, on many contracts, the final price is doubled or tripled at completion of the work. Mr. Millar said it was due to conditions encountered during construction.

Attorney-General Porter said the contract price is only an estimate, and the actual price in the contract is the unit price.

Appeal Court Orders New Trial For Harry Reece

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday ordered a new murder trial for 48-year-old Harry Reece of St. Catharines on a charge of murder. The trial had been misdirected by the trial judge.

Reece was under sentence to be hanged June 1 for the stabbing of Mrs. Florence Ricker in St. Catharines last Oct. 18. He had been living with the woman.

Chief Justice J. W. Pickup and four other justices agreed in a written judgment that Mr. Justice Wilfred Judson at the Supreme Court of Ontario had failed to adequately place before the jury the issue of the defence that Reece was too drunk to form intent at the time of the murder.

Mrs. Ricker was found in a pool of blood after a wine-drinking party.

The trial judge had directed the jury that the only issue should be held criminally responsible for the murder unless the mind was a complete blank. This was an erroneous statement of law, the Appeal Court said.

APPEARED CONCERNED

At the time the appeal was heard, Chief Justice Pickup and Messrs. Justice R. E. Laidlaw, Wilfred D. Roach, J. A. Hope and R. S. Mackay appeared concerned about the extent of drunkenness of the accused and the possibility of intent to murder.

Mr. Justice Judson handed down his death sentence although the jury recommended mercy.

Mr. Justice Laidlaw said during the hearing that he was struck by the trial Judge had interpreted during the trial that "the case for the crown is that this man had the mind to kill and did."

Defence counsel W. C. LaMarsh said the term should have been that Reece was "capable of forming an intent." Crown counsel W.C. Newman argued that the terms were synonymous.

Consumer Credit History and Role Told Rotarians

"The consumer credit system is understood and misunderstood," Tim Mackey, general sales manager of Industrial Acceptance Corporation said here yesterday.

In an address, "Installment Buying and Installment Selling", to the weekly luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club in the Hotel Quinte yesterday, Mr. Mackey gave members a rundown on cause and social effects of consumer credit on the economy of North America.

The history of the system is closely linked with the early days of the automobile industry, he said.

In its infancy the industry hadn't enough money to build cars and extend credit to dealers while the dealers were giving enabling dealers to get the autos on credit and to extend credit to the purchaser.

Mr. Mackey said "equity" is the secret of successful selling to the dealer. This means the resale value of a vehicle should be greater than the money owing on it.

In 1900, the United States with a population of 76 million produced 4,000 cars. In 1929 the output jumped to 100,000 and last year the total was in excess of 8 million units. In Canada in 1922 100,000 units were produced, which was up to 500,000 in 1953.

SYSTEM SPREAD.

"Once it (these credit arrangements) proved itself it was only natural that it should receive more attention," he said. "It was applied in various ways in our economy." It was gradually extended into other fields, such as appliances and farm implements.

If is a step forward in the field of finance, the plane was in transportation, he said.

Touching on the question of "getting your money's worth" on consumer credit, Mr. Mackey declared that the idea of instalment and credit buying should be properly extended on the merits of individual cases.

The average Canadian he described as a "petty miser" and one who respects his obligations.

The instalment is shrewd, too, when extending credit.

Credit also involves another social problem which couldn't be overlooked, Mr. Mackey said.

ENABLES PEOPLE TO BUY.

It enables people to buy the goods they require, he said.

"Unless the hand that makes has the right to use, then there is bound to be trouble and unrest."

Touching on cost charges involved in instalment buying, he stated that like any other business organization finance corporation is also a competitive business.

During his address Mr. Mackey mentioned that Canadians take their standard of living too much for granted. It is "a standard of living which I still think we do not appreciate as much as we should," he concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Jack Dennison and Egerton Boyce. Don MacKinnon extended thanks to the ladies' night committee for its work.

Rejuvenation of Victoria Park Will Take Another Two Years

Although considerable more fill will be required before the ground is brought up to the required level, members of the city parks board are beginning to see daylight in their plans for the rejuvenation of Victoria Park.

To date hundreds of loads of fill have been dumped on the park to bring the level sufficiently high that it will be no longer in danger of flooding during a period of high water.

The Belleville Yacht Club has renovated the former bath house into a handsome club house for the members of club members. A dock built by government funds will provide anchorage for visiting yachts and boats. Additional slips and docking area will be constructed by the parks board.

"It's all part of a long-term plan to bring Victoria Park back to the popularity it once enjoyed," parks chairman Max Matthews. "It will probably be at least two years before present plans are completed."

The entire south end of the park will be turned into a lawn area. Getting things underway for the completion of this phase of plans, the Yacht Club this spring has torn out the old swimming pool. Belleville Yacht Club and the city council planning board, which is supervising spending of money voted by city council. For the past three years council has voted $2,500 annually to be spent in rejuvenation of the park.

Rev. F. L. Rishea, Parish Priest At Wooler, Dies

Rev. F. L. Rishea, 46, parish priest of St. Alphonsus Church, Wooler, since 1941, died of a coronary thrombosis at his rectory shortly before 11 a.m. today.

Father Rishea, who apparently had completely recovered from an operation in February, said Mass in the church at 7.30 a.m. this morning and ate his breakfast as usual. After that he had become complained of a slight pain but assured his housekeeper that it was nothing serious, and went upstairs to rest.

The housekeeper, Miss Isabel LaFrance, who has been in Wooler for nine-and-one-half years, called Father Rishea at 10.30 to rouse him for a trip, whilst he was intending to take this morning. When he did not answer she went upstairs to waken him and discovered that he was dead.

Dr. J. V. Byrne was summoned from Trenton and he pronounced Father Rishea dead.

Father Rishea was born in Peterborough the son of the late Harry Rishea and Mrs. Rishea. He received his education at Sacred Heart School and St. Peter's High School, Peterborough, and St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto.

He was ordained to the priesthood in St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough, on May 25, 1935, by Bishop Dennis O'Connor.

He was stationed as assistant at Trout Lake, Cobalt, until he was appointed pastor of St. Alphonsus Church, Wooler, in 1941.

He is survived by his mother and one sister, Marie, in Peterborough, and a brother, Vincent, of St. Catharines.

Funeral under the direction of the Funeral Residence of George N. O'Brien. Funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this edition.

Supported Floor Price on Cattle, Hogs Defeated

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF proposal for government - supported floor prices on cattle and hogs was defeated Monday night in the Commons. The vote was 115 to 28.

Social Credit members voted with the CCF on the motion by A. M. Nicholson (CCF—Mackenzie) for a floor price not less than the three-year average price through 1951-53. Liberals and Progressive Conservatives opposed the motion.

Mr. Nicholson said the average price for the suggested base period was $26.05 a hundredweight for beef and $29.05 for hogs.

He said sale and prices of cattle, hogs and milk have fallen off since the war was ended, despite increases in population.

At the same time, farm income dropped 22 per cent between 1951 and 1953, while production costs continued to rise.

He quoted bureau of statistics figures showing that only 10 per cent of Canada's farming families cleared enough to pay income taxes.

SAYS BOARD NEEDED

C. H. Castleden (CCF—Yorkton) said a board is necessary to give producers assurance that they are not being exploited by meat packing plants. At present three large firms control 80 per cent of Canada's meat parking business.

J. H. Ferguson (PC — Simcoe North) said the CCF should not criticize them eat-packing industry without suggesting how the meat could be sold under socialized ownership of the industry. No CCF member had any business experience to take over the industry and run it.

"I'm sick and tired of it . . . let's have some honest reason from these people here and not tear these companies down."

STRANGE CONTRACTS

When is a contract not a contract?

Apparently when it is between a construction firm and the Ontario Department of Highways.

A report to the Ontario Legislature's select committee investigating alleged irregularities in the department reveals that "of the 212 contracts let in 1950 only 40 were completed at less than the contract amount and eight equal to the contract amount. One was completed at 300 per cent in excess of the contract amount, two up to 300 per cent in excess, and 14 up to 200 per cent in excess."

The headlines, of course, are given to the fact that the Ontario Government paid $15,705,557 more than was contracted for. The public should not lose sight of the fact that "40 were completed at less than the contract amount." The saving on these contracts, of course, fell far short, $15,705,557 short, of covering losses on 164 of the contracts. But the fact that some jobs were done at less than the contract price shows that this "adjustment" was not entirely a one-way street.

This is a very different kind of arrangement from that which the man-in-the-street is accustomed to regard as a "contract" with a fixed sum being set and the contractor suffering the loss—or pocketing the profit—if the cost of the work differs from the contract price.

LESS PROBABLE—BUT MORE TERRIBLE

The danger of war has lessened.

That is certainly a legitimate interpretation of a remark made on Sunday at Quebec City by Primp Minister Louis St. Laurent.

He said that the "courageous attitude of a world free, united and ready to defend itself has sown the seeds of doubt in the minds of those who might entertain aggressive designs."

But, at the same time that the free world's preparedness program has made war less probable, it has also contributed to the certainty that, if war does come, it will be more horrible.

In one sense the danger of war has lessened—in another it has increased.

The development by the U.S. of the hydrogen bomb has played a large factor in both these trends.

But we should not forget that, but for the perfection by the U.S. of this terrible weapon, the danger of war would have increased, in both meanings of the word danger, probability and magnitude.

REASON FOR CHIVALRY?

A report from Hanoi is significant.

The French have announced that they will resume bombing the Vietminhs' 70-mile "hospital corridor" unless the rebels agree to repair the airstrip at Dien Bien Phu.

This report may provide a clue as to why the Vietminh agreed to permit the French to evacuate seriously wounded prisoners captured by the Vietminh when that fortress fell.

On the face of it, the rebels' permission was a surprisingly chivalrous one.

A report from Hanoi, however, says that Vietminh forces are streaming eastward from the fallen fortress toward the 17th parallel. This would be the travelling distance on the "hospital corridor" established under the terms of the agreement for the evacuation of the wounded at Dien Bien Phu.

Perhaps it was to obtain this bomb-free route to another battle-front that the Vietminh made their seemingly generous gesture.

And now, of course, the French want the rebels to repair the airstrip so that they can hurry up the evacuation of their wounded and be free to resume bombing Vietminh forces.

C'est la guerre—and it is a strange one.

A STRANGE HIDING PLACE

Among the many strange items in the news is a report from Canberra that the planks of a railway bridge near that capital city were used as a hiding place for documents passed between Russian espionage agents in Australia.

Translation of one of the documents turned over to Australian authorities by Vladimir Petrov revealed that Moscow ordered Petrov to stop using the railway bridge as a hiding place.

This order is easily understandable. Moscow based it on the fact that the bridge was inspected regularly by railway employees. But even if that was not a fact, it hardly appears like a suitable hiding place. Even a casual passer-by might have thought it was somewhat strange about a man poking about among the planks of a railway bridge. In fact it is difficult to imagine a hiding place the use of which would have been more likely to arouse suspicion.

SMILE

The good Lord understood us
When he taught us how to smile.
He knew we couldn't stand it to be solemn all the while.
He knew He'd have to shape us so that when our hearts were sad
We could let our neighbors know it in a quick and easy way.

So He touched the lips of Adam
And He touched the lips of Eve
And He said: "Let these be solemn when your sorrows make you grieve,
But when all is well in Eden and Your life seems much worth while Let your faces wear the glory and the sunlight of a smile."

"Teach the symbol to your children; pass it down throughout the years.
They shall know their share of sadness and shall weep their share of tears.
But forever, through the ages, men shall prove their faith in Me
By the smile upon their faces when their hearts are trouble-free."

The good Lord understood us
When He sent us down to earth.
He knew our need for laughter and for happy signs of mirth.
He knew we couldn't stand it to be solemn all the while But must share our joy with others, so He taught us how to smile.

The Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School Cadet Corps presented an impressive appearance this morning on the corps' first dress parade of the season and reflected great credit upon Cadet Instructor J. Howard and Cadet Sergeant-Major Everitt Malone.

Mr. Charles Treverton has resigned as assistant general manager of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company at Trenton, effective Thursday the official and fellow employees gathered in the cafeteria at the plant to say good bye and wish him good luck. Expressions of esteem in which he is held and the regret at his departure a handsome club bag, a pen and pencil set and an initialled military kit were presented to Mr. Treverton, the presentation being made on behalf of the staff and employees by Mr. W. J. Cole of the excise department, who made a nice address in which he referred to the fine qualities possessed by Mr. Treverton and the regret of all at losing him. Mr. Treverton served twenty-four years with the company, ten years being spent as an office in the Canadian Excise branch. He intends to live retired.

Miss Martin and Mrs. Booth, West Bridge Street, will leave here shortly to spend the summer in California. Recently about 25 of their friends visited them at their home and presented them with a purse containing a goodly sum of money in gold. Mr. S. P. Hagerman acted as chairman during the presentation and Mr. M. Herbert read an address and made the presentation. Many friends regret the departure of Miss Martin and Mrs. Booth from Belleville.

Mr. L. B. Boyle of North Bay spent the week-end here with his parents.

Mr. Charles Boniste1 is visiting his daughter, Mrs. James Dyer, in Toronto.

Mr. N. J. Foley has repaired and put in good running order an ancient wooden clock which is owned by Mr. W. N. Simmons, merchant tailor. The clock stands seven feet high and bears the date 1577. The clock was the property of Mr. Simmons' grandfather and the present owner has valued it at $100 which it by antique collectors.

With the 15th Regiment going to Kingston, the Scotsmen going to Madoc and many children going to the races at Picton, this city will be fairly quiet on Victoria Day.

Mr. William Johnson is now in Ireland on a visit to his old home.

Mr. Ernest Pascoe has returned home from Brockville.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

OUR INTELLECTUAL HERITAGE

Whenever I go into a book store, or visit a public library and look upon the several thousand of books within my own library, gathered over thirty years in these selections, I am filled over and intellectual heritage that is bequeathed to us all. The thoughts and meditations of many generations of beings, as well as their discoveries, are preserved in their books. Every phase of literary work is represented — history, biography, science, fiction, poetry, and statute.

Every great book should be a treasured possession, alive to us as the product of one who wished that all the race remembered because of his book. What a heritage has come to us as a result of manufactured paper, and the use of type in printing! Nothing can ever take the place of books. A beautifully bound and tooled book with inlaid colored leather, done by an artist, reminds one of a happy bride in June! Especially if it is book taken from the library of one's heart.

I was listened to a great minister, Bishop Quayle, tell of his browsing in the London book shops and returning to his hotel with several book treasures in his pocket that he kept warming loving-ly with his hands. I knew just how he felt for I have gone through the same experience many times.

We have all been enriched by the minds of men and women through the centuries. Had none of their thoughts been recorded, just how far back in the world's history would we be? Some say a noted event in one's life when he could not remember is a "book. Montaigne, the great Frenchman, originator of the essay form of writing, once said: "If you want to know about me, buy my book."

None of us really write anything original or new. We merely give a new dress to words and thoughts. The Chinese, five thousand years ago, left thoughts that live today. For more than a thousand years, Li Po has been China's favorite poet. The New York Times once commented on this poet's creations, as "fragile and precious vaguely wistful, as the music of far-off violins, delicate at times as the water lily."

Pedestrian of the Future

(Moose Jaw Times-Herald).

The pedestrian of the future will be identified by his furtive look and because he can do 100 yards in eight seconds.

Leaving Plane at 50 Feet

(British Aircraft Society).

An all-steel "man" has been parachuted from a 800 mph jet during tests at an airfield in England. The tests are designed to investigate the possibility of pilots making successful emergency escapes from aircraft flying at very low level.

The steel man has already been shot from a plane flying 150 mph feet above the ground, and it is hoped that faster speeds will be made successfully from as low as 50 feet.

These ejections are all automatic—that is to say the test pilot jettisoned his cockpit canopy and pulled a small blind down over his face to protect it, and automatically shot out of the aircraft, his seat released and his parachute opened for him. This sequence has to be operated automatically, because at low level altitudes a pilot could never react quickly enough to go through all the motions himself.

The steel man used in these tests was seated in the rear cockpit of a Gloster Meteor jet, with his head pulling down the blind just as a real pilot would do. The ejection seat—when fired at the appropriate moment by the real live pilot—is then activated.

The Martin-Baker Company, the pioneers of ejection seats, are investigating the tests and have also high-lighted the fact that in an average pilot based on Air Ministry requirements set out in the publication AP 970 he is sometimes known as the "AP 970 man", life is ft. 10 in. tall and weighs 180 lbs.—which includes all flying kit, except the parachute.

He is entirely constructed of steel and each individual limb is articulated, so that he can sit in the cockpit of a jet. He also makes the natural movements of a man, even to the universal joint between each limb. For the tests, the steel man's head, which weighs 14 lbs., is fitted with a telerometer which is carefully checked after the flight to be sure that the forces on him have not been excessive.

Martin-Baker have built three of these steel men. In all, they have carried out 30 live ejections. Every test is carefully recorded and measured by cine-theodolite.

The difficulties of escaping from a jet flying at high speed and very low down have been emphasized by the statistics recently published in the United States on tests there with an American seat: 92 per cent of the ejections above 2,000 feet were successful, but 60 per cent of those below 2,000 feet failed.

When the pilot is ejected from the cockpit—he goes out at a speed of about 60 ft. a second—the shock of suddenly needing for the seat to rotate if ejected at high speed together with the very small time available in which the parachute must be opened, makes automatic operation vital.

The sequence of events with the Martin-Baker seat is as follows: the pilot jettisons his canopy, pulls the blind down over his face and shoots into the air by the automatic action of a cartridge mechanism. In the case of high speed ejection there is a second's delay to enable him to get clear of the tail plane and then a "drogue" or small parachute opens which holds the seat steady and slows it down.

Three seconds after the ejection, the parachute is fully developed and the seat calls away, leaving the pilot to float to earth. In the ferry.

First Editor Stored News

(Los Angeles Times).

April 24 was the 250th anniversary of Jonathan's Law, according to the Boston News-Letter, a weekly publication which was edited by an odd penned Scot named John Campbell.

Another publication, Publick Occurrences, appeared on the colonists' streets in Boston a year earlier. But it was suppressed by the British governor after publication of a story apparently because it contained some spicy gossip about the French court and the treatment of England's use of Indians against the French and Spanish.

Suppression of news was the rule rather than the exception in those days. Censorship, for example, Virginia's governor, Sir William Berkeley, wrote to his royal superiors in 1671:

"But, I thank God, we have not free schools nor printing . . . For learning has brought disobedience, heresy and sects into the world; and printing has divulged them, and libels against the government. God keep us from both."

It was in a governmental climate such as this that Campbell knew that Campbell brought out the first issue of his newspaper.

It is, perhaps, not too unfair to say that Campbell, who in 1704 was the postmaster of Boston, brought out the News-Letter because he was a victim of writer's cramp. Taking advantage of the news reports brought into his postmaster's office by ship docking in Boston harbor and by his post riders, Campbell built up quite a business of sending hand-written newsletters to many subscribers, including some of the governors of other colonies. The demand for this pre-Revolutionary test made at 150 ft., there has been 80 ft. in hand from the moment the parachute was fully developed.

Design improvements in the seat have often been tried out on the Op 970 pilot before being tested live".

For example, it was found that there was a tendency for a man's legs to be forced apart by air-pressure during ejection. Injuries were also possible if the feet were not firm in the "stirrups" before ejection. The seat man was therefore fired out fitted with special garters on each leg which worked automatically as the seat is ejected.

England's Old Gardens

(Sudbury Star).

As the Canadian gardners potters about their lives and their beds, or pluck a green onion or a head of lettuce from the vegetable bed, we are reminded by the United Kingdom Information Office of the fame that is attached to English gardens and gardeners.

At Chilham Castle, in the English county of Kent, the visitor can see the first mulberry tree ever planted in England. So famous and varied are Chilham Castle gardens that a guide has been published, available to visitors to the United Kingdom to find their way around.

Outdoors to Britain this summer can walk battlements that have withstood the attacks of many private dungeons, and rub shoulders with history in universities.

At Fairlawne, in Kent, there is the haunted walk of one Sir Harry Vane, the younger, and Sandringham is still shown the place where Queen Victoria died. Hatfield House made her last stand against the Spanish Armada in 1588. Against this, Alumner Priory, in the English county of Surrey, is relatively new, having been built by Sir Alfred as late as A.D. 900! At Saltwood Castle, the visitor can show the spot where Thomas a Becket quarrelled with King Henry II in the year 1164. Much more recent are the 500-year-old elephant and castle pub at Rockingham Castle, Northamptonshire, and the 16th-century Shepherd, floodlit nightly, at Bickleigh Castle, Devonshire. At Shakespeare's birthplace in Stratford, you can drink tea in the house where Shakespeare's uncle and aunt lived 400 years ago.

The charm of more recent history is to be found in scores of garden homes. Two centuries ago, at Trent, in Dorsetshire, Charles Wesley was writing hymns that have gone round the world. At Ryde, in the Isle of Wight, is the Elizabethan manor of Swiss Cottage, home of Admiral Lock in 1790. Bratties at their breakfasting table were the home of Lord Nelson's brother, Dr. Nelson, and the great Admiral himself often stayed there.

Little Easton Manor, at Dunmow, in Essex, is famous to fame, its garden contains a celebrated walnut tree 200 years old and a barn with a stage which less than 50 years ago was used by the performers for one of Britain's greatest actresses, Ellen that so-called alcoholic paresis or multiple neuritis or polyneuritis is actually degeneration of the nerves, a withering or breaking down. So the name for it is polyneuropathy—disease of many nerves. We'll probably carry on with the one as long as it keeps the customers duly impressed, or until some resourceful pathologist comes up with an eight or twelve cylinder job.

The point of this persiflage is that the actual cause of the withering, break-down or fragmentation if the nerves of the steady drinker is nutritional deficiency, particularly dry beri-beri, inadequate daily intake of vitamin B1. Alcohol burns.

Let no steady drinker or cocktail bouse infer that there's no harm in a "social glass" of beer, wine or liquor. Aside from the impairment of moral consciousness, judgment and responsibility by even a small dose of alcohol, alcoholic "moderate" drinking entails every unlowered effort of heavy drinking, though in less degree, regardless of the next time you read about the exonerations of some culprit because the chemical test of his blood showed less than 0.05 per cent of alcohol at the time of the crime.

It was the concensus of medical opinion at the Scientific Session of the Ontario Medical Association that the liver was generally alcoholic cirrhosis, although the truism by Osler: A Practice in the gay nineties did mention incidentally that in some instances cirrhosis of the liver might be due to other causes.

Never mind how a doctor determines whether a patient has cirrhosis of the liver. This is a health service, not a symptom shop.

Today medical authorities seek scientific proof of the question whether alcohol causes cirrhosis of the liver. Haggard and Jellinek, for instance, in their book Alcohol Explored, (Doubleday Doran), state that in some instances cirrhosis of the liver might be due to other causes.

TRUST THE CAPTAIN

The worst back-seat drivers are those who have never learned to drive. Some years ago aboard a ship I heard a passenger was extremely critical of the captain's seamanship. He took exception to the manner in which we left the dock, our speed through the harbor, and our course down the channel. Here, I thought must be a former sea captain of great experience. But not so. Upon inquiry, I learned that he was a landsman who had never been on a vessel larger than an excursion steamer.

It is a favorite human trait to find fault with the man who knows so to speak, when we ourselves do not know how to navigate or even to steer. The critic is often those who have more than the boss—or pilot—because any private would gladly tell the generals about strategy. We all know what is wrong with the world, with life, and just how we would make everything right, if we were running it, and not God.

Now, my friend, the good placed the steering wheel in your hands, would you know which way to turn? I doubt it. You only have our own infinitesimal little small tasks aboard this great ship. Let us do them as well as we can, and have faith in the Captain who at His infinite wisdom sets our course.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Three small boys, seven or eight years of age, were playing catch in the back yard. Overhead, three hundred feet, a nearby training field were in the midst of one of their breaking-day drills.

The small boys, intent upon their ball, did not so much as glance up. The planes were flying, and that shrill whistle, half a shriek, that is the trainer's, their speed. Their sound filled the air.

The small boys merely raised their voices above the disturbance and went right on playing ball.

The planes vanished as swiftly as they had come, only to return in a moment, the whistle of their approach rising, a shriek of sound, to pierce the air. I watched the youngster with sharper attention. This was a duel between the new and the newer. It was as if they had absorbed the indifference of the boys, and were returning to their elders' "Ignore it, it's artificial" they screeched. "We are spy, lethal! Rebuff!"

But again the three small boys, intent upon their pitching and catching, never raised an eye; merely shouted a little louder to one another.

The jets faded into the distance, excluded from any by the indifference of the young, who are not to be impressed by the machines of their own more earthbound aircraft. The children are miles ahead of the jets, in their own sky. No mere planets seize their attention. They must be unknown, as yet undiscovered planets, to make a boy of eight turn his head.

I went right on with my code-finder, however. Boys may be lost in the shuffle of time and give to a mere aircraft any more. But they still play ball. They and I find complexity satisfying concentration in tossing a ball from hand to hand, as boys did in Caesar's time, or Henry VIII's. Probably the day the last interstellar strangers land on earth, the kids will pause long enough to go on playing ball.

"Where from? Mars, eh?"

And then go right on tossing the ball.

Queen Mary-Pr. Charles H-S Assoc. Presents Farewell Gift

The May meeting of the Queen Mary, Prince Charles Home and School Association was a doubly important one in that it was the annual meeting and also a get-together of a large number of members, teachers and former pupils to honor Mr. C. I. Frederick who is leaving Queen Mary School to take over as principal of the new Sir Winston Churchill School. President Willis Jackson welcomed the large gathering, and called for the reading of the minutes of the last annual meeting and then for the various convenors to read their reports.

For the membership committee, Mrs. J. R. Pugh reported that the association membership this year numbered 396, representing 294 families. This is an increase over last year of about 20 families. Mrs. Pugh thanked her committee for their untiring effort and congratulated the members on their fine attendance at meetings. The following were presented with corsages of sweet peas for having attained perfect attendance: Mrs. F. A. Beeby, Mrs. R. Ellis, Mr. H. Frink, Mr. Willis Jackson, Mrs. F. Lake, Mrs. R. Pesen, Mrs. B. Smith, and Mrs. E. Pugh.

CANTEEN CLASSES

Mrs. E. A. Chappell, recording secretary, listed the many varied programs of the year. Banner prizes for attendance were presented by Mrs. Pugh to the following teachers of Queen Mary School: Miss Wilson, whose senior class has won the banner every month, and Miss Hillis, for the junior; for Prince Charles School, Mr. Frink, whose senior class has also won the banner every month and Miss Arkles, for the juniors.

In his president's report, Mr. Jackson thanked the principals and teaching staffs of both schools for their co-operation and support. He expressed appreciation to all members for their attendance and interest; he said how much he had enjoyed meeting with the organization for his two terms of office, and pledged his hearty support to the incoming officers.

At this point Mrs. Gilbert Scott officiated in the installation of the new executive for the coming year. Mrs. Scott said that she had watched with great interest the growth of the Queen Mary-Prince Charles Home and School Association from its beginning and was particularly pleased to be present on this occasion to honor Mr. Frederick.

NEW EXECUTIVE.

Mrs. J. E. Pugh will be president; vice president, Mrs. Bruce Smith; 2nd vice president, Mr. F. A. Beeby; treasurer, Mr. W. Ironside; recording secretary, Mrs. E. A. Chappell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. K. Rosevear; executive members, Mrs. D. K. Champaigne, Mrs. K. McCleland, Mrs. R. Smith and Mr. G. S. Kerr. Program convener, Mrs. Willis Jackson; membership convenors, Mrs. S. Reid and Mrs. W. Wardhaugh; social convener, Mrs. A. Woodley; press reporter, Mrs. F. A. Beeby; bulletin editor, Mrs. F. Lake.

A vote of thanks to the retiring executive and a welcome to the new officers was tendered by Mrs. C. Fuzzen. Mr. Jackson was presented with his past-president's pin by Mr. Graydon Coldwell, who praised him for the fine work accomplished during his term of office.

The new president, Mrs. Pugh, said that it was with pride and pleasure that she was taking the office. She suggested that the slogan of the organization should be "Be kind to our Teachers", and urged that each teacher strive to have at least one representative at each Home and School meeting. These meetings are an excellent opportunity for parents to meet the teachers of their children and express their appreciation and admiration for the fine work they do.

PRESENTATION.

The highlight of the evening arrived when Mr. C. I. Frederick was called to the platform by Mr. Jackson, and presented with a garden chaise lounge. Mr. Jackson said how much the members would miss Mr. Frederick but that everyone wished him every success in his new position. In his reply Mr. Frederick said it was not easy to say goodbye to such a friendly association, but that he intended to keep in touch as much as possible. In forty years at Queen Mary School he had seen many young men and women go out to success and adventure in the world and find in many cases that he was teaching the children of some of his former pupils. He closed with "Thank you and God bless you and yours in the years to come". The assembly then joined in the hearty singing of "For he's a jolly good fellow" and a delightful diversion, the pupils of Miss Wilson's grade seven class, sang three most enjoyable numbers; "Lorelei," "This Joyful Eastertide," and "Somewhere a Child is Singing." These numbers were unaccompanied and well sung. A piano selection, "Moonlight Sonata", was played by Ronald McBride and enthusiastically received.

Refreshments including a "farewell" cake, were served by the social committee.

3 Aussie M.P.'s Unwittingly Gave Data to Reds

CANBERRA (CP)—The Petrov spy documents list two and possibly three men in the Australian House of Representatives as having unwittingly given information to Soviet agents the royal commission on espionage was told today.

The commission's counsel, W. J. Windeyer, made the revelation during the second day of preliminary hearings into the story of Russian spying in Australia told by Vladimir Petrov, former Soviet embassy third secretary here who quit the Reds and was given political asylum.

The counsel said one of the documents turned over by Petrov related to U. S. and Japanese interests in Australia. He said it was 37 pages long but did not disclose its contents.

Windeyer said one of the two members of Parliament mentioned in the papers as unwitting informants was from the Liberal-Country party government coalition, and the other was from the opposition Labor faction.

NAMES NOT REVEALED

Windeyer did not reveal their names nor indicate the importance of the information the Russians gleaned from what he termed unguarded remarks.

But spectators at the public hearing gasped when he said government employees had passed information and copies of documents to agents of the Soviet MVD (the ministry of internal affairs, secret police).

Windeyer quickly added that none of these Australians held high positions. He said the MVD considered the Australians were persons not access to government information, seeking to seduce them with favors, bribes or blackmail.

The commission's preliminary hearing will continue Wednesday.

Oliver Lyttelton Perhaps Most Controversial Figure in U.K.

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

LONDON (AP) — An English aristocrat in pinstripe trousers is perhaps the most controversial man in the British Empire. Oliver Lyttelton's name rings bells for African tribesmen, Malayan Chinese, Caribbean Islanders and millions of other people around the globe.

Lyttelton is Prime Minister Churchill's knuckle-rapping colonial secretary—boss of the world's biggest empire.

"The man who holds the empire together," is the way Lyttelton's many backers describe him.

But bitter Labor party opponents have other words for Lyttelton. Summing up their views, Britain's biggest-circulation daily, the Daily Mirror, said:

"Oliver Lyttelton's record as colonial secretary is the story of a bull in a China shop. He stands ankle-deep in wreckage . . . Lyttelton's name today is distrusted and detested by colored peoples all over the world."

CHALLENGES CRITICS

The mixture of orchids and brickbats showered on Lyttelton has made him the most controversial minister in Churchill's cabinet. Hulking, exquisitely-tailored 59 - year - old "Oliverly," who steam-rollered his way to the top in big business as chairman of the associated electrical industries, today runs the colonies with the same bulldozer efficiency.

He has challenged his critics to come forward with more practical ways of handling an empire racked with nationalist and Communist-inspired unrest.

Lyttelton booted out the independent-minded king of west Africa Buganda. He pushed through the federation of British Central Africa despite bitter African protests. He has declared all-out war against the Mau Mau terrorists in East African Kenya and the Chinese Communist guerrillas in Malaya. And he sacked the Red-tinged native government of British Guiana, declaring:

"Her Majesty's government are not going to allow a Communist state to be organized within the British Commonwealth."

PATRON OF ARTS

But Lyttelton is not just an ironfisted politician. He is an enlightened patron of the arts, friend of painters, president of the English opera group and a loving student of the French classics, especially the works of de Vigny.

One thing both Labor and Conservatives agree on is that Lyttelton's job is no sinecure. During the colonial secretary cooly stepped from the wreckage and told reporters:

"Well, it's good to be here. I wish to say that I'm glad I wasn't right this morning . . ."

IN FAMILY TRADITION

Lyttelton started helping to run the British Empire almost 300 years ago when one of them was named governor of Jamaica. Oliver Lyttelton's wife, daughter of the Duke of Leeds, comes from a line of landed aristocrats. Oliver was nine, a quiet sensitive lad reared in the rolling Kent countryside, when his father became colonial secretary in 1902.

Young Lyttelton went from Eton to Trinity College, Cambridge, and served with the Grenadier Guards in the First World War.

Starting from scratch on a London banking desk, Lyttelton zoomed to the top spot in the British Metals Corp. He became an adviser to the tin, lead and copper cartels. Churchill, who knew Lyttelton's father, got him into politics in 1940 and made him president of the board of trade. Later, he served as resident minister in the Middle East, then as production minister.

RETURNED TO "CITY"

When the Labor party swept the Churchill government out of office in 1945, Lyttelton went back to the "City" and became chairman of the associated electrical industries.

When Churchill returned to power in 1951, Lyttelton loyally quit his £20,000 a year job with associated electrical industries and took the £4,000 cabinet post as colonial secretary.

A prodigious worker, Lyttelton often carries bundles of official papers to his five-room flat on Upper Belgrave Street. At weekends, he goes home to the rented 50-room Trafalgar House, near Salisbury, once the home of Lord Nelson's family.

Weddings

MADDEN — MINTZ

Lovely tulips, daffodils, snapdragons and chrysanthemums adorned the altar and chancel rail in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, on Saturday, May 15th, at 2:30 noon for the double-ring wedding ceremony when Marian Amy Mintz, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Mintz, became the bride of Carl Glenburne Madden of Moncton, N.B., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Madden. The Reverend William J. Robinson, B.A., officiated.

Professor Ernest Wheatley Mus. Bac., A.R.C.O., church organist, rendered the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Donald Charrie, who sang "I Love You, Truly" during the ceremony, and while the register was being signed, "Because."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her floor-length bridal gown of white slipper satin and nylon net, fashioned with fitted bodice having a bolero type jacket of Chantilly lace with petit point sleeves and Peter Pan collar embroidered with seed pearls. The gracefully full skirt featured a nylon net overskirt with Chantilly lace inserts. Her three-quarter length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet encrusted with seed pearls, and she carried a shower bouquet of red roses tied with white satin streamers.

Mrs. Michaeline Calbury, as matron of honor, cousin of the bride, was gowned in mauve taffeta with nylon net overskirt. She wore a matching floral headdress, mauve nylon gloves, and carried a nosegay of spring flowers tied with mauve satin streamers.

The four bridesmaids, Miss Clara Hull, of Belleville, was gowned in blue taffeta; Miss Shirley Anne Parker, of Belleville, wore yellow taffeta; Miss Margaret Madden, of Moncton, N.B., sister of the bridegroom, was in pink taffeta, and Miss Pauline Van Duesen, of Belleville, in pastel green taffeta. All gowns were fashioned on similar lines, with fitted, strapless bodices, matching stoles and nylon net overskirts. They wore matching floral headdresses, nylon gloves, and carried nosegays of spring flowers tied with streamers matching their gowns.

Little Ruth Ann Mintz, sister of the bride, was flower girl, sweet and demure in her white gown, in floor-length, made on lines similar to that of the matron of honor. She wore a white, finger-tip veil with floral headdress, white nylon gloves and carried a bouquet of spring flowers.

Mr. Frank Madden, of Moncton, N.B., attended his brother, while Mr. Frank Taylor, Mr. Warren Pringle, Mr. Bert Hicks, all of Belleville, and Mr. William Madden, of Moncton, N.B., were ushers.

At the reception held at Moose Hall, which was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers, wedding bells and cut flowers, the bride's mother received the many guests, attired in fuchsia taffeta with nylon overskirt, black accessories, and white carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother assisted, wearing blue gray with white accessories and pink carnation corsage.

The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered, pillared wedding cake topped and decorated with pink rosebuds. Those who served were: the Misses Rose, Jacquelina and Maxine Hull and Miss Margaret Downes.

For motoring to New Brunswick and other points in the Maritimes, the bride chose a grey suit with navy accessories, light blue shorts and navy corsage of pink tea roses. Mr. and Mrs. Madden will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Moncton, N.B.; Lindsay; Toronto; Toronto; Smithfield; Melrose; Stirling; Bancroft, Pembroke and Newcastle.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaids: crystal bowls and plates; to her matron of honor, a three strand of pearls, and to her servers, china figurines. The bridegroom's gift to his groomsman, and soloist, wallets, and to the ushers, diamond socks.

Prior to her marriage the bride was the honored guest at several showers; a linen shower given by Miss Michaeline Calbury; a pantry shower, given by Mrs. L. Downes; a personal shower, by Miss Barbara Dyer, and a kitchen shower, by the Women of the Moose, when the bride received a tri-light lamp.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. SKEEKMAN

WHEN DIVORCEE CHOOSES MAIDEN NAME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a professional woman, have never been married. So I have no "name-problem." However it so happens that two very good friends of mine, one a business woman and the other a professional woman, have each received a divorce during the past few months. In both cases they have taken back their maiden name, and in both cases they are using the title "Miss" for example, Miss Katherine Brown. I must admit I was surprised at this, for I had always understood that when a woman takes back her maiden name after her divorce, she also takes the title "Mrs."—Mrs. Katherine Brown. Isn't this true? And if so, just how should one address her—by "Mrs." or by "Miss"?

Marie S.

You have understood correctly, that a divorcee, who has taken back her maiden name, customarily retains the "Mrs."—particularly if she has children. However, it is a fundamental courtesy that we should write the name of a person as she or he wishes it written. Therefore, in each of these women has chosen that she is to be addressed as "Miss Katherine Brown," it would be discourteous to address her in any other way. Also she would be introduced as "Miss Mary Maidenname."

Note: If you have the slightest doubt that you may not know precisely the preference these two women have about the name-form, if is easy enough to straightforwardly ask them. . . then, of course, abide by the decision they have made. In each case there may be special importance, in business or profession, for the decision.

REPLYING TO INQUISITIVE QUESTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When it seem to you, as it does to me, that more and more frequently people have the unfortunate habit of asking personal questions, inquisitive questions? I'm wondering if you would suggest any "formula" for replying to this kind of question. I realize, of course, that each question of this kind must be dealt with individually, but I wish I could figure out a "handle" that might be for general use. — Dorothy K.

I have figured out that the perfect "formula" for replying to someone who asks an inquisitive or too-personal question, one you don't wish to answer, is to ask another question. This puts the inquisitive persons at a disadvantage. . .which is just where they should be! For example, reply to "How much did you pay for your new hat?" with a blithe "How would you like to make a guest? . . . how much do you think I paid" Or briskly side-step "How old are you?" with a mightly-casual "How old do you think I am?" And no matter what the reply to the question-for-the-question, toss it over you shoulder with an airy indifference. And on to "What a wonderful day it is today, isn't it?"

ALL SHOULD STAND

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other day I was with a group attending a college anniversary-celebration. Not all those in our group were from that particular college. When the Alma Mater song of that college was played, the two virls from that college of course rose, and so did one other gir and I. I was astounded that all did not rise, but they said afterward that only those who had gone to that college should rise for the "Alma Mater." What was the proper thing to do?

Patricia M.

With proper courtesy, everyone in the group should have stood during the playing of the Alma Mater of this college. It was incredibly rude and disrespectful for anyone not to rise. . .most definitely on the ignorant side.

Overflow Readers' Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Question: I noticed some person asked if you know anything to take that yeasty taste from bread made with that fast-rising yeast. I always made my own bread but that year is the only bad I've. It leaves a taste to my bread which to me is terrible . . . in the Saturday paper I think you had found something and I hope so . . . it will be so much appreciated. I am 83 years old and always baked my own bread but now with that yeast I cannot . . . Mrs. S. McC.

Question: Here is another woman who does not like the taste of yeast . . . I missed the answer you sent in to improve it . . . Mrs. G.A.M.

Answer to both Mrs. S. Mc. and Mrs. G.A.M.

What I said to the reader who found my advice brought success was that if it was the type of yeast you use that causes yeasty taste. Yeasty taste results from dough being too warm during rising. Make bread by overnight method, using only 1 package of the new granular yeast, and let rise in cool place—not at room temperature. If both of you ladies do not eliminate yeasty taste following your use of fast-rising these instructions write to me again and give me your bread recipe, and I will try to decide where your trouble is.

Question: Can you give me any help in buying for a dinner to serve 300 people mostly adults. The menu is tomato juice, roast beef, mashed potatoes, gravy, peas and carrots (frozen), pickles, bread and butter, celery, radishes, cabbage salad, cake and ice cream, tea and coffee. The cake is to be slab cake bought from a bakery and ice cream rolls. Ice meat and vegetables are to be cut on the table family style . . . K.G.

Answer: Tomato juice: allow 8 oz. per serving and buy this in 105-oz. (restaurant-size) tins from grocery wholesale; Beef: if boneless allow 3 oz. per serving and buy 90 lbs. raw weight. If bone in allow 4 oz. per serving and buy 120 lbs.: Mashed potatoes: allow 1 medium-large each which amounts to about 110 to 120 lbs.; Gravy: allow 2 gallons which yields a generous 1-oz. serving each; Peas and Carrots: allow 4 oz. each serving mixed carrots and peas (you can buy this mixture canned in 105-oz. restaurant size tins); Bread and Butter: serve 1 roll and 1 pat butter to each guest (1 lb. butter cut into 60 or 70 "pats"); Pickles: I'm stumped on this but do have the individual count on 128-oz. (wine gallon) bottle olives: 350 medium size, 240 jumbo size; Celery: 1 stalk will serve 8 people; Radishes allow 2 radishes per person; Cabbage Salad: allow ½ cup per serving and thus you will need 10 Imperial gallons; Sheet cake: 6 sheets measuring 12 x 20 inches cut into 2½ x 2-inch squares; Tea use 3 oz. fine quality tea to 6 quarts boiling water to serve 50 people 1 serving. (Don't make the tea in 1 big batch — make it 6-qt. batches); Coffee: 1 lb. pulverized ground to 12 Imperial gallons boiling water will serve 50 6-oz. serving per person; Ice Cream: 1 individual roll each. Okay? These figures are hard to come by so I with interested readers would clip this now.

Question: . . . perhaps you can help us with a problem. I have developed an allergy to mustard recently, hence I cannot eat ordinary mayonnaise. I take a sandwich dressing for lunch and mother used mayonnaise as a sandwich dressing. Do you know a recipe for salad dressing or mayonnaise which does not call for mustard . . . Ruth M.

Answer:

WALTHAM SALAD DRESSING.

One cup sour cream, 1 egg, ¼ cup vinegar, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon each pepper and paprika and if desired, ¼ teaspoon curry powder. To sour cream add beaten egg, vinegar and remaining ingredients well mixed. Cook, stirring in top of double boiler over boiling water until thickened. Chill. Store covered.

I sincerely hope this is satisfactory.

Plenty of smooth, sharp slice should be used when you are cutting garments and patterns. Pins at short intervals will hold the fabric firmly to the pattern you are using.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

REDUCING THE HIPS

Whether the formal gown is a sheath, a princess cut or features a full skirt, it won't look right if it is too full of girt. And that is what happens when the hips have followed a policy of expansion. Madame Fashion is never kind to the heavyweights. All her designs seem to accent the svelte shape, tranded slenderness, good proportions, a trim waistline.

Fat cells have a mean way of getting in spots. A woman may have neat ankles, legs with good lines and a normal bust but there is that spread amidship of which she is ever conscious. Last year's skirt won't zip. Belts must be let out a notch or two. This problem often besets desk workers and tycists because the muscular system has no work to do and so loses tone. Then the fat cells move in and invite new ones to join them.

To carry off a clad formal with flying colors there should be an outward curve down from the waistline, a graceful slant down to the thigh.

By rolling on the floor one can pound the life out of those adipose cushions. Here is a exercise that is part of the program in every reducing salon. It is effective because it stretches and strengthens muscles just above and below the waist. Stretch out flat on the back which makes for extra riches as the years progress.

If you are a candidate for modeling, lie on your back on the floor, hands at the sides. Lift the left leg as high as you can, send it to the right, touching the floor with your toe. Then should be pleasure at the line of the hips. Repeat six times with the left leg, six times with the right. There should be a very heavy pull on the fibers from waist to ankles.

An excellent exercise for trimming down the mid-section is this: lie on your back in bed, hands under the buttocks. Lift the legs slowly until you are fatly standing on the back of your neck. Lower them slowly. Repeat several times.

MRS. BRYAN DIES

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. John Bryan, 56, formerly of Galt, Hamilton and St. Catharines died here Sunday. Her husband, one daughter, Mrs. J. Ross of St. Catharines and two sons, Bruce R. and Gordon R., both of London, survive.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MARRIED EIGHT MONTHS, SHE'S ALREADY THINKING OF QUITTING

Mrs. J.B. is 18 years old and has been married for eight months.

Only eight months, and already the thought of leaving her husband is in her mind!

"My trouble is," she writes, "that my husband tells me he loves me, but somehow I can't seem to believe him. Anyhow, he does, it's not enough to really trust me.

"For example, if he does something I don't like, it's supposed to be all right, and I'm not supposed to say anything. But if I do something he doesn't like, he's angry and says plenty. I am very jealous, and every time he looks at any other girl I get mad. He doesn't think I should get mad, yet he is just the same if I look at any other man.

"I work most of the time, and he never says he misses me if I'm not working when he is home. He never gets me a card or anything whenever there is a special holiday, though I always remember him with something.

"We used to be really happy, but now it seems that we are getting farther and farther apart. I love my husband very much, and don't want to leave him. Could you please tell me what I can do so that we will be happy together again?"

Well, Mrs. J. B., you don't say how old your husband is, but if he is only about your age, then I'm afraid a lot of your trouble comes from the fact that both of you were too young, and too immature, for marriage. To build a happy marriage takes a lot of serious trying, a lot of unselfishness, a lot of tolerance and lot of patience, and these are all things that develop with the years. That's why it's usually so very unwise for teen-agers to marry, because they haven't given themselves time to develop these qualities that they are going to need so much.

What might help your situation a good deal, Mrs. J.B., if you would for one thing, try not to show that you're jealous. For there's nothing that can make trouble between a man and his wife more quickly than jealousy. Remember that, and see if you can't just laugh it off, or better yet, pay no attention if your husband speaks to some girl he knows, or makes a compliment or any remark about one.

For another thing, perhaps you could manage in some way not to be away from home so much as I rather gather that you are now when you are working. Do you really have to work? It's always far better, to my way of thinking if a wife can be home, ready to welcome her husband when he comes in from work, since a house without anyone in it to greet the home-comer is often the start of a husband not coming home at all.

If you really must work, try to get a job with the same hours as your husband's so that you can at least get home about the same time.

Think over these two suggestions and see if you can't do something about them.

It would be also be a good idea, I think if you would talk this problem of yours over with some older person in your town. Try to think of someone—perhaps your minister or priest—to whom you could speak freely and in whose advice you would have confidence. It would be very and if you and your husband were to break up after less than a year of marriage, and you should try everything possible before deciding that is what you will have to do.

Business Men's A.B.C. Holds Turkey Banquet

CAMPBELLFORD—Activities for the season with Campbellford Business Men's Alley Bowling Club concluded with a banquet at the Legion Hall on Wednesday evening. The ladies of the Legion Auxiliary catered for the delicious turkey dinner, and there was an excellent representation of the team bowling loop on hand.

W. A. Kingston, retiring president of the Business Men's Bowling League, presided at the head table. George Nicholls served as pianist, and Percy Melville as song leader. Several of the trophies had not arrived in time for the occasion, but these will be distributed by the secretary, Lionel Holmes, in the manner stated.

TROPHY AWARD

The captain of the top team of the season, Bill McComb of Excelsiors, received the handsome trophy awarded for this honor from Lloyd Taylor. Winner of the play-off, however, was the Hydro squad which received the trophy. Captain of the squad, Bill Oliver, accepted the honors on behalf of the boys. Both the Excelsiors and the Hydro team were given certificates engrossed to team photographs.

Austin Putnam presented the trophy to Nicholas' Men's Wear which was accepted on their behalf by Gordon Clarke.

Secretary Lionel Holmes announced the individual award winners as follows:

High average, Don Holmes 218; high single, Gar Irwin 335; high single, Lionel Holmes 281; play-offs, high average, Gar Irwin 240, 9 games; high triple, Vern Lockwood 677.

Highest game during entire season in Business Men's League was Doug Carswell 382.

In "B" division of the league, the awards were as follows: High average, Ellis Hoard 218; high single, Gord. Cross 278; high triple, Ray Hall 318.

A vote of thanks was extended to the secretary Lionel Holmes for his efficient season's work. He labored under a handicap following the fire which destroyed his apartment on April 4th, including bowling records and statistics, he produced a comprehensive report of the season's bowling statistics in surprising detail.

PRESENTS TOKEN

Vern Lockwood addressed the bowlers briefly and congratulated the executive on a task well done. He made a presentation of a small token to each captain.

Officers were summarily elected to carry on in the fall, all receiving their posts by acclamation as follows: President, B. Hilton Beatty; vice president, Joseph H. Smith; secretary, Lionel Holmes; treasurer, Art Eden; directors, Bill McComb, Austin Putnam, Ernest Sloggett.

Mr. Don Haney of Trenton who began the year as treasurer of the league, was a guest at the head table. Don was transferred to the Royal Bank in Trenton in mid-season.

Following business, Bruce Grills operated the projector for the showing of Canadian rugby-football films, "Highlights of the Big Four Season—1953."

Church Magazine Criticizes Policy Of Government

MADRID (AP)—A church magazine, the only publication in Spain that does not have to submit to censorship, has strongly criticized the government's censorship policy.

Ecclesia, official magazine of the lay branch of the Roman Catholic church in Spain, carried the criticism signed by Jesus Iribarren, a member of the directing committee of Catholic Action, a lay organization in the church.

The article was published Saturday.

"Systematic censorship lowers the professional level of newspaper men and newspapers in general," Iribarren wrote. ". . . Newspapers lose the faith of the public. . . ."

He added that a Catholicism and a national unity "which must be protected every day with guidance of imposed editorials and the order of obligatory silence" must be weak and disjointed indeed.

Other Catholic newspapers have been restive for some time over having to submit to censorship, especially on religious matters. Even declarations of the Pope have been cut sometimes.

Alleged Burglar Shot to Death In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 21-year-old alleged burglar was shot to death Monday while attempting to escape a police cordon in downtown Winnipeg.

Police identified the dead man as Theodore Rosmus, who was out on $30,000 bail while awaiting trial on several charges of shop-breaking in Winnipeg and St. Boniface.

They said two other men are in custody and probably will face charges.

The cordon was set up after police received a telephone call from a local resident that three men were in the premises of the Manitoba medical clinic.

A young constable went after Rosmus as he fled, firing several shots into the air in an attempt to get him to stop. Rosmus ducked behind a building and the constable said he threatened to shoot.

The policeman fired, striking Rosmus in the chest.

Police said Rosmus was unarmed.

Petursson Freed On $3,000 Bail In Road Inquiry

TORONTO (CP)—R. F. Petursson, former dominion government highways inspector in the Port Arthur district, appeared before a justice of the peace at Toronto city hall Monday and was freed on bail of $3,000 on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the Ontario government in connection with highway irregularities.

Petursson, one of 11 men charged with conspiracy last week as a result of investigations into alleged road contract irregularities in the Fort William division, arrived in Toronto by plane Saturday from Vancouver where he had been working.

He will appear in court later for preliminary hearing on the charge.

He is the first federal official to be charged in the investigations.

Evangelist Says Campaign Has Been Success

LONDON (Reuters)—Evangelist Billy Graham said in a radio interview Monday night that 1,284,000 persons had so far attended his services during his three-month London "crusade" which ends here Saturday.

"The response has been phenomenal," he said, "larger than any in the United States."

Graham was interviewed by Rev. John Huxtable, chairman of the committee of evangelism of the British Council of Churches.

Graham told him: "If we had room for 25,000 instead of 12,000... we would have filled every seat every night."

He said 27,827 persons had made their "decision for Christ." Of these, 48 per cent were under the age of 21.

"We have followed up every single case and have been in touch with ministers and clergymen to insure they contacted every one," he said, "We have received growing co-operation from church men."

Graham said he has made no definite plans to return to England but added that he probably would visit provincial cities in Britain next year.

Just Short of Gas

TILBURY (CP) — Distress signals sent up by the crew of a cabin cruiser marooned two miles off the mouth of the Thames river in Lake St. Clair caused considerable commotion among lakeside residents but the trouble turned out to be nothing more than a shortage of gasoline.

The flares came from the Jodi, a cabin cruiser owned by Homer Moorhouse, Dearborn, Ont., on an all-day fishing trip with three other men.

The gasoline scarcity was relieved and the quartet left for the U.S. with long strings of fish to prove the trip had been a success.

Tigers Sadder, Wiser After Late-Game Decision To Walk Ted Williams

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

STOX JOX

Twenty roaring hellions, every skid a thrill, will leave the starter at the Fair Grounds tomorrow night when Dick Burrowes' stock car rodeo gets under way in its second week of current operation. The fans got a chill and thrill a minute when the season officially opened here on Saturday night after four delays through the weather.

However, Wednesday is "Stock Car Night" in Belleville, says Dick and in the event of wet weather the meet will be held the following evening. Tomorrow night's card brings together the cream of district drivers, including Kingston's Bruce Swain, winner of the feature event Saturday night.

BASEBALL!

Nothing on hand as yet regarding the schedule of the Vindart-Ontario Baseball League, which should be here any day. All the info we have is that the Batas open in Peterborough on May 24 and parade before the hometown fans on June 29 against the Toronto Hoskings. That is what the man said.

The league was officially opened on Saturday with the Oshawa Transporters whipping the Toronto Hoskings 13-2, while the Oakville Oaks were swamping the Toronto Dependables 18-1. In another fixture the Peterborough Petes met a 7-3 defeat at the hands of the Hoskings which seems to prove or indicate that the Transporters have plenty of that stuff called power.

Coach Vern Goyer will be putting the Batas through some stiff paces this week, readying for the opener in Peterborough. The team will work out every night at the Fair Grounds. Johnny Munro, good-sticking outfielder, is the latest Peterboro lad to join the Batas and is already showing fine promise. The new uniforms are expected to be here any day now and the Batas should be one of the nittiest-appearing clubs in the league when they trot out for their initial appearance.

Cleveland Fans Getting 'Old Feeling,' Young Braves Are 'Heap Big Help'

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — Nobody seems to have the slightest idea what Cleveland Indians are doing first place in the American League. But there they are, and word comes that recently embittered Cleveland fans are beginning to get that old feeling again.

Cleveland has virtually ripped apart a veteran club that figured to be a contender, and looks better for having finally taken the big step. If you haven't kept tabs on the Tribe since spring training ended and play began for keeps, you probably are not fully aware of the changes that have come about in the team which for the last five seasons has come close to breaking its supporters' hearts.

Lobo Easter has gone back to the minors, and so has Rocky Nelson, who was to have cured the Indians' first-base ills. In their places is Al Rosen, who has never played a lick at first base before, and in Al's spot at third is Rudy Regalado, a kid—fresh out of school.

In leftfield is Al Smith, a semirookie who—coming up from Indianapolis last season—was on the bench in Dixie Mitchell, long an established 300-plus hitter. Playing rightfield in place of Wally Westlake, Dale Mitchell and a half-dozen others is Dave Philley, whom the Philadelphia A's no longer wanted.

In fact, when the Indians finished winning an important game the other night with a rousing lattening rally, the only "old faces" in their lineup were those of Bobby Avila at second, George Strickland at short, Larry Doby in centerfield and Rosen at first. Hal Naragon, a rookie back from the service, was catching, and Hal Newhouser, the veteran from Detroit, was scoring his 301st pitching victory.

Of the big three pitchers only Bob Lemon has pitched up to his normal form. While Mike Garcia and Early Wynn were being unpredictable, important help has come from a pair of rookie relievers, Don Mossi and Ray Narleski.

This team, which waited until after the exhibition season ended to do its big remodelling job, surprised even itself by winning 10 out of 15 games on its first eastern trip. By the time the Indians finally returned home for their first extended stand at Municipal Stadium, they already had played a little better than one-fourth of their road games. It is an important point in trying to reckon their future.

The Cleveland experts seem to be a little doubtful that the Indians' inner defense will prove tight enough for the long haul. Rosen and Regalado are pretty green at their positions, no matter if they, as well as Avila, are hitting approximately a million.

Cupless Wolves Reach Home

SUDBURY (CP) — Eighteen days after they left for the West with high hopes of bringing Sudbury its first Allan Cup since 1937, Sudbury Wolves returned Monday to a rousing welcome from faithful supporters.

The Wolves, brought no hockey trophy with them. They were defeated by Penticton V's four games to three, after being ahead 3-1 at one stage.

Almost 1,000 fans showed up at the airport. The players and coach Max Silverman were distributed in a dozen convertibles and the cavalcade proceeded to the city, where crowds lined the streets.

With The Minors

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Bay of Quinte District Juvenile Baseball League is looking forward to a big season according to league president John Mowat.

They held a confab out Stirling way last week and elected all executives for the year as well as laying plans. Here's the way things shape up right now.

John Mowat heads the organization with Dick Bridgeman of Trenton acting as vice president. Ron Sivel of the Picton Gazette is the secretary while Belleville's own Bert "Cuffy" Noakes is the treasurer. George Whitman continues as the umpire-in-chief.

The number of entries is not yet definite with five for sure and the possibility of ten or eleven teams at the gate when the schedule opens around the 10th of June.

Those entered are Picton, Wellington, Stirling, Point Anne and Belleville with the latter hoping for two teams. Campbellford, Marlbank, Tweed, Marmora and last years Champs from Trenton are not yet positive starters but it is expected that at least several of these will have a team.

George Noble will handle the Stirling entry, Ron Sivel the Picton team, John Mowat will look after Wellington and Bert Noakes will run things from Belleville. We don't know about Point Anne but you can be sure it will be someone who knows his baseball.

The next meeting is called for Wednesday, May 26th, here in the City Hall and all interested parties are invited to attend.

The Belleville Minor Baseball Association will hold another meeting this Thursday night in the Kiwanis Centre at 7.30 with more definite plans being laid. All coaches, managers, sponsors and everyone connected are asked to be there.

Registration certificates will be in and the teams will be divided into their age groups.

"Red" Doran reports that the Oddfellows have been inquiring about entering a team and that Napanee, Wellington and Picton also wish to join the league.

The dropping out of the Cleaners and of the Kiwanis Club brings up the problem of requiring more sponsors and anyone who wishes to enter a team in any of the four divisions is asked to get in touch with Bill Gault or "Red" Doran.

Hopes to Crack Speedboat Mark

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — "Miss Supertest II," a speedboat owned by Jim Thompson of London, was towed here Monday for fitting and when it is ready Thompson hopes to crack the world's speedboat racing record.

Built in Sarnia, the boat is 31 feet long and 12 feet wide. It is an almost exact model of Sir Mo-Shun IV, the world's fastest speedboat. The Canadian will be tested first on the St. Clair river near Sarnia.

Will Protest Soccer Game

SIMCOE (CP)—Coach Jock Reid of Simcoe Columbus soccer club said Monday the team's 5-0 loss to Hamilton Hungarians at Hamilton Saturday was being protested.

Grounds for the protest included an hour-late starting time, nets on the goal-posts, the referees ignoring linesmen's offside calls and failure of the officials to allow replacement of an injured player until the ball went out of play, he said.

Ray Jablonski Avila Lead Major Batters

NEW YORK (AP)—The "sophomore jinx" holds no fear for Ray Jablonski of the St. Louis Cardinals — currently the National League's leading hitter with a .373 average.

The 27-year-old third baseman has rapped out 47 hits, most in the league, and 15 of them have been belted for extra bases.

Bobby Avila of the Cleveland Indians has taken over the top spot in the American League batting derby with a .378 average.

Granny Hamner of the Phils is right on Jablonski's heels with a .370 mark.

Although Duke Snider suffered a 13-point decline, the Dodgers' outfielder ranks third at .361, followed by Stan Musial of the Cards in fourth at .360. Musial, last week's pace-setter, saw his average fall 22 points. He tops the league with 32 runs batted in.

Avila raised his average 22 points by going 14-for-30. He also leads the American League in hits with 41.

Chicago White Sox infielder Cass Michaels is runnerup to Avila with a .362 average.

Cleveland slugger Al Rosen and rookie Harry Agganis of the Red Sox are tied for third with .350 apiece.

Rosen headed the American loop in RBI's with 33.

Kerwick Wins Over Aronstan

TORONTO (CP) — Johnny Kerwick of St. Catharines kept his Toronto fight slate clean when he battled to a draw with Bernie Arcustan of Toronto in the main event of the weekly amateur boxing card here Monday night.

The lightweight bout, a scheduled five-rounder, was stopped at 1:34 of the fourth round when Aronstan suffered a gash over his left eye. Kerwick is unbeaten in Toronto rings.

In a 135-pound semi-final Paul Kenny of Barrie won a unanimous five-round decision over Omar Sicord of Brantford.

Preliminary results included: 158 pounds—Tommy Whalen of Brantford decisioned Lyle Parker, Barrie, three rounds.

Jim Mackenzie, Eastern Ontario champion, presented the prizes.

Saddler, Bassett Step Out of Class; Both Are Defeated, Step Back Again

NEW YOR K(AP) —Featherweight champion Sandy Saddler and Percy Bassett, the "interim" king, had better look out, the 126-pound class from now on.

Saddler appeared a rusty one against Houcine Khalfi, a 3-to-1 underdog, Monday night at St. Nicholas Arena and lost a split decision to the fleet Algerian lightweight.

Bassett found himself in way over his head against Orlando Zulueta at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway and lost a unanimous verdict to the clever Cuban with the snapping left jab who is ranked second among lightweight contenders.

Khalfi's victory was the second major upset in four days for the French stable of Jean Bastonel, who saw Jacques Royer get a 5-to-1 long shot, outpoint Tiger Jones Friday night at Madison Square Garden.

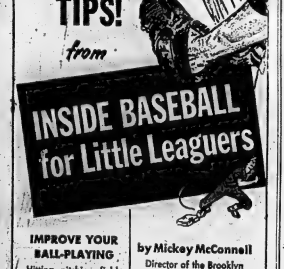
SUPERIOR SPEED

Khalfi used superior speed and a solid right hand punch to offset Saddler's left-hand punching and roughing tactics.

"Saddler did all the forcing," yelled Charlie Johnston, the champ's manager. "But he wasn't as sharp as he should be. We don't have to defend the title until Oct. 21 (six months after Saddler got out of the army). Right now Lulu Perez looks like the best bet."

Saddler weighed 126½ and Khalfi 125 for the bout, which opened a Monday night TV (Dumont) rival for Eastern Parkway (ABC).

Tex Sullivan estimated a gate of $1,100 and house of about 650 at St. Nick's. A crowd of 1,200 was announced in Brooklyn.



Zulueta, a 134-to-5 choice, won as he pleased over Bassett.

Zulueta's manager, Kymie Wallman, is looking for the winner of the June 2 lightweight title bout between Paddy Demarco and Jim Carter at San Francisco.

CORRELATION WINS

Hasty Road lost by a head in a photo finish. Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Ring Xing was third. Correlation's $2 mutuel returns were $5.60, $3.20 and $2.40.

Earl Walls Defeats Beshore In 10-Rounder

EDMONTON (CP)—Earl Walls of Toronto, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, Monday night earned a unanimous decision decision over Freddy Beshore of Los Angeles in a scheduled 10-round fight Walls weighed 194, Beshore 192½.

The 25-year-old Walls, who has 26 knockouts in 36 professional fights and was eighth in the contender for the world heavyweight title, kept the Californian on the end of repeated left jabs throughout. There were no knockdowns.

The bout, before a crowd of 5,500, was originally scheduled last month but was postponed when Walls injured his right hand in training.

The Canadian Negro, who held advantages in weight, height, reach and age, found little difficulty with the 31-year-old Beshore's clone-in style. Beshore's only effective punches were body jolts to Walls' ribs.

Walls staggered Beshore in the second and fifth rounds but Beshore always managed to hang on briefly and then come up with a flurry of blows to stave off a knockout.

BELLEVILLE DRIVE-IN.

By nature a pacifist, John Wayne is brought from Ireland to the U.S. as a boy and climbs to eminence in the prize ring. When he accidentally kills an opponent, he is oppressed with a feeling of inner guilt, hangs up the gloves and returns to Ireland in quest of peace and serinity. He reaches his birthplace, finds peace and promptly becomes involved in belligerent strife with Victor McLaglen, a well-to-do farmer, by buying some property which McLaglen had been planning to acquire. Their enmity is fanned when Wayne begins wooing McLaglen's sister, Maureen O'Hara, and the feud reaches the boiling point when Wayne and Maureen get married. Wayne refuses to fight McLaglen for possession of her dowry, but finally is goaded into an all-out battle. Wayne wins, he and McLaglen become friends, and Wayne goes home to his bride.

Canadian Team To Play In Chess Tourney

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian team of six top chess players was named Monday night to compete in the international chess team competition in Argentina next September.

Bernard Freedman, international representative of the Canadian Chess Federation, said the six-four players and two reserves—were chosen from among 20 of Canada's best chess players. They will go to Buenos Aires for the international meet there Sept. 1-26.

Mr. Freedman said the probable lineup of the team will be: Daniel A. Yanofsky of Winnipeg, Canadian champion; Frank Anderson, Toronto, Canadian co-champion; Paul Valtonis, Hamilton, and Maurice Attas, Montreal. The two reserves are Dr. Fedor Bohaiuchuk, Ottawa, and Dr. Nathan Divinsky, Fort Garry, Man.

The international meet, held every four years by the Federation Internationale Des Echecs which Canada joined in 1952, is contested by teams from more than 30 countries. Canada has played in the International event only once before — in 1930 when Argentina's team withdrew and Germany took by default. At that time Britain and Canada were tied for finalists, refused to play Germany because war had broken out.

In the same event Canada tied with Iceland to win the consolation award.

STRONG RUSSIAN ENTRY

The national teams for the 1954 competition include a strong Russian entry. They will compete in a round-robin tourney for the Hamilton-Russell trophy, which has been in world chess competition since shortly after the First World War.

The Argentine government earlier announced it will pay the expenses of all the visiting teams taking in the tournament.

Mr. Freedman, who is also vice-president of FIDE said was the co-organizer of the Canadian Chess Federation in 1932, and the German team was picked by a federation committee of five in Winnipeg.

Yanofsky, who has been Canadian champ several times before, is also the 1953 British chess champion.

Anderson recently lost an international cable match with Russian grand master, Igor Bondarevsky. That match was played in half-hour cabled moves between Toronto and Moscow.

Dr. Bohaiuchuk, a former Russian chess player, won an impressive record of victories against top Russian chess players.

Valtonis was Canadian champ in 1951 before Yanofsky and Anderson tied for that title. Fox has been Canadian champion intermittently for the past 20 years while Dr. Divinsky, president of the Canadian Federation, has been Manitoba champ since 1945.

"OUTSTANDING SUCCESS"

LONDON (Reuters) — The controversial goodwill visit to the United States of Britain's royal family, Britain's crack miler who recently ran the world's first four-minute mile, was termed an "outstanding success" Monday by Selwyn Lloyd, minister of state for foreign affairs.

Lloyd was answering criticism in the House of Commons of the government-sponsored tour. During the visit, a scheduled appearance by Bannister on a sponsored television program was cancelled for fear it would interfere with amateur status.

Lloyd said Bannister made a number of radio, TV and public appearances, and received "A great welcome" in New York.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The life masters in bridge are not such big pumpkins as they sometimes think you believe. That is, where bidding is concerned. It is almost unbelievable how bad their bidding can be.

Even the most obvious hands are not in the same final contract by much of a majority in the same match. Of course, some of this is due to chances they take or the type or competition they get.

But much of it is actually due to their lack of accuracy. This results in frequent misjudged standing in their pairs. And a doubting hand finds them as uncertain as the less capable.

Deal number 13 in the summer master nationals is shown here:

NORTH
♠Q 8 5 3
♥A 9
♦A K 10 8 4
♣A 4

WEST — EAST
♠K J 10 4 2 — ♠A 9
♥5 4 — ♥Q 8 6
♦Q 5 — ♦J 9 7 3
♣9 8 7 — ♣K J 10 5

SOUTH
♥J 10 9 5 2
♣Q 6 3 2

Both sides were vulnerable. North was dealer. With a hand like this and the cards shown, one diamond was the only acceptable start. From there on you could start a lottery on the result.

Properly, south should pass whether east doubles for takeout or not. On the next round, south should back-in with a bid of two hearts and this is where he contract rightly belongs.

What happened was that ten of the 36 pairs were in two hearts. Six made it. Three went down one. One was down two. One was in three hearts and went down one.

What about the others? Five were in the usual shade of the old standard bid at two and five at one no-trump. Of these ten, seven took it on the chin for a loss of from two to three tricks.

Seven were in two spades, which is not to be criticized in such company circles. Even though they went down. Of the six in one spade, only two made it. But it was not a bad bid.

One table was allowed to play it in one diamond that made two. Another table got it for two diamonds and did all right. So, it is safe to say the masters were not very sure of themselves.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Not an entirely encouraging day for all activities but, with prudent conduct and patience, you can make advancement in familiar matters, your occupation; household affairs, etc. More care needed in new projects.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your "usual" position now stresses need for extra caution in personal and delicate matters, dealing with old folks and children. Day can be pleasant, though maybe not overly productive.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Use caution, wise judgment in financial transactions, investments and spending generally! Also in all property and important business matters. Go carefully now, and you'll benefit later.

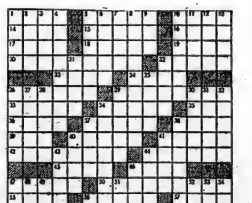
July 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Mild indications in your immediate sector and some warnings from Mars and Jupiter to control emotion and handle financial affairs with discretion. Calmness, cheerfulness a big help.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — The influences are neither too easy nor too restricting now, so it is really up to you whether you will progress or "stay put". Much can be achieved through good initiative and clever management.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Fairly good for written matters, mental work, for originality. But day is not entirely promising. You may have to strive harder for attainment in industrial and mechanical tasks.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—The position of Venus suggests circumspection in dealing with the opposite sex. Avoid carelessness and do not go to extremes. Things personal can be gratifying if handled rightly.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Irritability is in the air so, to be safe, smile and be cheery; you'll gain more—and faster. Being grumpy never helps and it does stymie attainment. Familiar tasks, study, routine most favored.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Your attitude toward responsibilities will strongly affect your return for efforts today. Familiar matters should move along smoothly. Don't turn down any good prospects.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Best to restrain yourself where you feel it is needed—in temperament, etc. You will see things more clearly, be wiser, calmer now. Take advantage of good opportunities.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Government, private interests, military and other branches of our country's forces favored now, but caution is urged in all endeavors so as to lose advantages through impatience, neglect of details.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Your Neptune, in friendly aspect, encourages activities you like; work or business for which you were trained and all strictly confidential matters. But be careful in expenditures and be tactful.

YOU BORN TODAY are a Taurus-Gemini native and have characteristics from both of these powerful Signs. You possess the versatility and adaptability of Gemini, with a controlling influence from steady, dependable Taurus. There are splendid traits (and a few faults) and wonderful possibilities for success in this sector. Curb a tendency toward restlessness; it causes one to lose many advantages. Correct stubbornness; plan wisely, thoughtfully before acting. Birthdate: John Hopkins, Founder of Johns Hopkins University; Dame Nellie Melba, famed opera singer.

Model of New Canadian City Taking Shape

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"LONDON (CP)—The model of a new Canadian city, modern in planning and design, is taking shape in an old stone building near Hyde Park.

It is the new Iroquois, Ont., a dream shared by a 38-year-old Canadian-bred architect and some 1,100 citizens whose present homes will be buried under water when the St. Lawrence seaway is built.

For Dr. W. W. Wells Coates, silver-haired planner, the new city is the culmination of 25 years training and study. "I've always had it in mind to go back to Canada and form a new community," he says.

Dr. Wells Coates, born in Tokyo, son of a Canadian missionaryteacher, has drawn seven of the plans for two years in his Chelsea studio, littered with maps, plans and aerial photographs.

LONG-TIME PROJECT

The new Iroquois will rise on a site one mile east of the old town of Dr. Wells Coates has planned to accommodate about 40,000 persons, half of them British immigrants.

The idea of such a community has been nurtured by Dr. Wells Coates for many years and, in September, 1952, he went to Canada representing a group of British industrial interests to discuss setting up a new town on the north shore of the St. Lawrence river.

Iroquois, he found, had already set up a planning board and was laying its own plans. The town retained Dr. Wells Coates as consulting architect.

He was impressed by the spirit of the town's leaders.

"They're alive to their responsibilities to their people," he said, jabbing the air with an ebony cigarette-holder. "They're men like reeve Lloyd Davies, a gas station owner, Byron Boyce, who owns a clothing store, and Hume Grisdale, a farmer."

OFFICIAL STUDIES

Dr. Wells Coates set to work immediately and soon produced a general land-use plan, first requirement under the Ontario Planning Act. This plan, now under study by provincial officials, sets out the over-all pattern of the new city and its primary divisions for industry, homes, shopping centres, etc. Once it is approved, more detailed planning can proceed.

One of the most favorable factors for the future of the new Iroquois, says Dr. Wells Coates, is its site.

"It's on the doorstep of the St. Lawrence. The new four-lane Highway from Montreal to Toronto will pass close by and it's on the Canadian National Railways line. There you have the three main means of long-haul communication."

ENTHUSIASTIC PLANNER

He becomes most enthusiastic when he talks about the new city itself.

"Steel, glass, timber, bricks, stone and concrete are the techniques of architecture. But the raw material is PEOPLE."

Money for the initial financing of the new Iroquois will come from rehabilitation loans to be made by both the municipal authority and to individual residents. It is estimated this will total between $7,- 000,000 and $10,000,000, roughly half of which will go to the municipality.

Dr. Wells Coates, a graduate of the University of British Columbia and the University of London, has had a long and varied career. Active in the future of the Iroquois district, His paternal great - grandfather, Thomas Coates, settled as a farmer at nearby Prescott, Ont., in the early 1800's and his maternal forbears crossed the St. Lawrence near Iroquois with the Empire Loyalists to settle at St. Thomas, Ont., late in the 18th century.

After serving with the Canadian division and later transferring to the Royal Navy air service during the First World War, Dr. Wells Coates set up practice in London in 1929.

TANKER RENAMED

PORT COLBORNE (CP) — The former Canadian Navy tanker, Imperial Woodbend, now being converted into a regular cargo carrier, has been renamed the Alden Hind and will carry that name when she starts operation under her new owners, the Mohawk Navigation Company of Montreal.

Steel Industry Labor Contract Talks Begin

PITTSBURGH (AP) — United States Steel Corporation and the United Steel Workers of America (CIO) today kick off the first major U. S. labor negotiations of 1954 with the big union's bargaining power lessened by a slump in the industry since late last year.

The talks mark the opening of the union's new contract drive in the basic steel industry employing some 600,000 workers. Contracts expire June 30.

As negotiations get under way, an estimated 190,000 steel workers are idle because of layoffs, an additional 257,000 are working only part-time, and mill operations hover around 70 per cent of national rated capacity.

This leads observers to believe the union will be everything possible to avoid a strike, and thus won't be able to exert full bargaining pressure.

Tape-Recorded Playbacks Will Assist Doctors

By FRANK CAREY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Tape-recorded playbacks of the labor breathing of patients suffering from various chest diseases offer a new aid to doctors in diagnosing other cases, the United States public health service said today.

The health service demonstrated the new technique in an exhibit at the 50th anniversary meeting here of the National Tuberculosis Association.

At visiting doctors tuned in with stethoscopes, health service demonstrators ran off recordings of breathing sounds described as characteristic of pneumonia, tuberculosis, bronchial asthma and other chest conditions in varying stages of severity. Simultaneously, as each breathing sound was described by a recorded comment, tary, x-ray visualizations of the patient's chest appeared on a screen.

One potential value of the procedure, the service said, lies in providing an opportunity for doctors to have such a permanent recording in their offices, for periodic "refresher" courses in recognizing sounds peculiar to certain conditions.

Also, the technique is described as being of value in teaching medical students.

Roman Catholic Paper Critical Of McCarthy

NEW YORK (AP)—The Roman Catholic weekly America said in an editorial Monday Senator Joseph McCarthy was attempting a "piecemeal and "peaceful" overthrow of the presidency."

The publication said the current McCarthy - army hearings have "dramatized across the nation the grave constitutional issue posed by Senator McCarthy's 'methods'."

McCarthy is a Catholic. The nationally distributed magazine is published by members of the Jesuit order. Its editor is Rev. Robert C. Hartnett.

It said the presidency is the only office filled by national election, and under the principle of separation of powers, is directly delegated by the people as the executive authority.

"Whether or not the president is properly discharging the duties assigned him by the people . . ." the magazine said, "it is for the people as a whole to decide—not the junior senator from Wisconsin, on whom the American people never had a chance to vote."

NEW HOUSING LAW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal housing administration Monday sent Congress a bundle of proposed laws and regulations to outlaw "fleecing" of home owners and "windfall profits" for builders under FHA housing programs.

Some of Targets Announced Three Years Ago Met

OTTAWA (CP)—More than three years ago—Feb. 5, 1951, to be exact—the government announced a three-year defence build-up which was to cost more than $5,000,000,000.

That amount—the approximate figure is $5,137,565,000—now has been spent. Some of the targets announced three years ago were reached in the allotted time, others were not.

The government said Monday in a white paper on defence that the three-year program "has been subject to constant review and, as necessary, some modifications have been made to meet varying demands inherent in Canada's commitments."

A breakdown of some of the announced targets, to be reached by March 31, 1954:

1. Nearly 100 ships, manned and equipped.

The white paper said the navy now has 58 ships in commission. Contracts have been placed or are in course of negotiation for 86 new ships and auxiliary craft, including the 58 in commission. The white paper added: "With the ships in reserve and otherwise available to the navy in event of war, the navy now can make ready for war service within a few months after mobilization over 100 ships."

2. A total of 41 regular and auxiliary RCAF squadrons.

The RCAF now has 35 squadrons including reserve.

3. Armed forces with a strength of 115,000.

The strength has reached 112,000.

4. Training for 3,000 aircrew a year, including trainees from North Atlantic Alliance countries.

About 7,000 aircrew, including NATO trainees have been trained in the last three years.

5. The equivalent of more than a division in the army.

This target has been met. Formation of the 1st Infantry Division was announced last fall but it has not yet been actually formed.

6. Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of military equipment for NATO.

Canada has shipped $866,000,000 worth of equipment.

7. A defence department civilian strength of some 33,000.

Number of civilians in this department now is 30,000.

8. Permanent seaward defences of vital harbors.

One only has been completed—at Halifax. Another is near completion at St. John's, Nfld. Tenders have been called for a third at Esquimalt, B.C., and a fourth is planned for Sydney, N.S.

9 An airborne striking force of three battalions.

This target has been met.

10. An air division in Europe.

This target has been met three months ahead of schedule.

11. A brigade in Europe, maintenance of the brigade in Korea. Both these goals have been realized.

12. The staff, training establishments, trained officers and non-commissioned officers, supply depots and other items for rapid mobilization in event of war.

Mobilization figures are secret but it is probable that this target has been realized or nearly realized. There are 45 navy shore establishments, 441 active force army units at home and abroad and 214 RCAF establishments.

Canada May Be First To Build A-Power Plant

Research at Chalk River Shows Many Possibilities

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Scientists at the Chalk River atomic energy project say Canada may be the first country in the world to build an economical atomic power plant.

Research at Chalk River already has demonstrated that Canada can build an atomic reactor which will produce new quantities of heat for steam to drive electric generators. However, the unknown factor is what kind of an atomic power plant will produce electricity to compete economically with electric power generated by hydro or coal.

The Chalk River project is 125 miles northwest of the capital.

An official of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., the crown company which operates the project, says that once this problem is solved a Canadian power plant "has as good a chance as the British" to be the first economic nuclear power.

BE IN ONTARIO

Scientists also predict that Canada's first atomic power plant will be built in Ontario. It would help the province overcome an electricity power shortage expected in 1960 even with the development of available hydro sources including the St. Lawrence river.

The cost of an economic power-producing reactor has been tackled by project scientists working in co-operation with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, other power companies and utilities and industrial representatives.

The immediate objective of this study is to produce specifications for a power reactor and an evaluation of the cost per kilowatt hour from the operation of such a plant. It's expected that this problem will be evaluated in about a year.

Clyde Kennedy, public relations officer at Chalk River, says power act scientists are confident they eventually will solve the problems connected with the design of a economic power plant. These problems include the type of fuel to be used, the method to take heat out of the reactor to raise steam and the development of special materials for the construction of the power plant.

USE HEAVY WATER

Since Canada entered the atomic energy field her experiments have partly controlled or moderated with heavy water produced at the Trail, B.C., heavy water plant. Both the "Zeep" and NRX reactors use heavy water as a moderator and the new $30,000,000 NRU pile expected to go into operation next year will use heavy water both as a moderator and a coolant.

It is understood the first power reactor built in Canada will be entirely conventional in design. Such plants unless some value is placed on the plutonium produced as a by-product of the operation of the reactor. Plutonium produced at Chalk River now is sent to the United States where it is used in the manufacture of atomic bombs.

However, power reactors are expected to become competitive after the development of better methods to utilize fully all uranium fuel and re-use fissile products produced by the action of the reactor as fuel.

Pupils Discover Brew in Belfry Of Their School

EDEN GROVE, Ont. (CP)—The public school here has something other than books in its belfry.

RCMP Cpl. Alex Hawrys is investigating discovery of a still for turning out home brew in the school. A four-gallon batch of home brew was found in the belfry after being heated by a lamp.

The discovery was made by pupils who reported their find to their teacher.

Eden Grove is about 30 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Continued dry weather over Ontario is expected today and Thursday; a trough of low atmospheric pressure located along the Rocky mountains this morning threatens to bring some showers a day or so after that, say by late Friday or Saturday. No marked change in temperatures is expected today or Thursday, with afternoon temperatures ranging from 60s in the south to 65 in the north.

MEMBER WANTS HOME OWNERS GIVEN A BREAK

Would Allow Some Tax Deductions

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, Progressive Conservative member for Hamilton West, wants home owners to be given a break on income taxes.

Mrs. Fairclough, a public accountant, said in the Commons Tuesday that persons who live in their own homes should be enabled to deduct municipal taxes from their income for federal tax purposes.

Owners of businesses and farmers are allowed to do it, she said. So were those who received an income from rented property. If the same privilege were accorded to the taxpayer who owned his own home, it would encourage home ownership and relieve part of their heavy tax burden.

William Benidickson, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Abbott, replied that he knows of no investment as free from income tax as a home of modest size. There was no income tax assessment of the value to a person of his private residence.

The proposal was one of several that Mrs. Fairclough advanced during an all-day study of resolutions in which occupied attention as Mr. Abbott's April 6 budget.

The House approved a series of resolutions to levy excise and sales taxes, and a bill to give effect to them was introduced. They already have gone into effect, however, as the largest part of budget tax cuts amounting to $40,000,000 in a full year.

EXCISE TAX

They remove the 15-per-cent excise tax on a long list of goods, including household electrical appliances, reduce the tax to 10 per cent on other articles, and drop the 10-per-cent tax on a shorter list of goods, including certain heavy equipment used in building and firefighting equipment bought by municipalities.

Mr. Benidickson, who answered questions on the tax proposals, replied to opposition demands that municipal councils and school boards be exempt from federal excise and sales taxes.

He said the federal government cannot be expected to extend the exemption when five provinces levy a sales tax to finance social relief. The provinces were Newfoundland, New Brunswick, Quebec, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

Mr. Knox stressed the administrative problem of determining exemptions for more than 4,000 municipalities. The main problem is so complex that federal government officials have had to negotiate with provincial treasury officials.

Donald Starr (PC — Ontario), former mayor of Oshawa, said the tax figures, based on a sampling against 4,000 municipal governments, and the only one available, "are not worth the paper they are printed on."

The government made one change in its tax proposals, in line with recent objections from a number of members including Lorne Lilierick, Ex-emption of certain fire insurance companies doing business in Canada with policyholders and fishermen from the election to take mutual insurance companies other than life insurance companies.

White House Did Not Plan Army Clash With McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said today he had no intention whatsoever of refusing or rescinding his secrecy order that led to suspension of the McCarthy-Army hearings.

Eisenhower told a press conference he hopes the hearings will resume and continue until the key principals have had a chance to bring out all the facts, and let the chips fall where they may.

The president strongly indicated the army was acting on its own —rather than on White House orders—in the events which led up to the head-on clash between high army officials and Senator Joseph McCarthy.

He said Army Secretary Robert Stevens undoubtedly will make a statement about what Eisenhower called the disagreement between the army and higher levels of the administration.

The president said he was astonished to find his secrecy order of Monday had been used as a device or an excuse to suspend the hearings.

He said one of his main purposes in issuing the order was to keep the televised hearings on the rails, to keep them from wandering off into a side issue.

Eisenhower's order forbade army counsellor John G. Adams, who was on the witness stand at that time, from giving details of a Jan. 21 meeting at the White House in the army's problems with McCarthy's Senate Investigations Sub-Committee were discussed.

John Adams had said previously that Sherman Adams, top assistant to the president, advised him at the meeting to draft a written record of the army's difficulties with McCarthy and alleged requests for special treatment for Pte. G. David Schine.

New Construction Committee Comes Under Fire at Probe

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's twenty-created committee on construction and planning Tuesday drew the fire of opposition members of the legislature's select committee investigating irregularities in the highways department.

W. J. Grummett, CCF member, charged the committee "bypasses" the highways minister. However, Duncan Gordon, of C. D. Woods and Gordon, Toronto management consultants who were approached on the committee's formation, said there was "no suggestion of by-passing the minister."

The argument arose during Mr. Gordon's testimony in which he reviewed recommendations for departmental re-organization contained in a 21,000 word report presented to the committee Monday.

The report recommended that in future, the amounts of any adjustments with contractors which the highways department may find it necessary to recommend should be reviewed by the committee before submission to the provincial treasurer for payment.

Mr. Grummett said such a move would take away the minister's authority.

WOULD REVIEW IT

Mr. Gordon said in any normal contract the committee would not come into the picture, but in isolated cases where they were departing from the terms of the contract, the committee would then review it.

Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.—Kenora) said he would have the final authority.

W. H. Collings (CCF — Toronto Beaches) said anything pertaining to the department was the responsibility of the minister.

"Anyway, the committee is government policy now," said Mr. Collings.

Mr. Gordon said the highways department, now employing 250 engineers, needs 100 more top-flight personnel. The present staff has been "heavily over-worked" in the last few years and he suggested the department should be given "a save money and work by greater efficiency through a larger staff."

Outside the committee room, a departmental official said the cost of the engineers would amount to imately $500,000 a year.

J. D. Miller, new deputy minister of public works and former deputy minister of highways, testified earlier that lack of integrity of some departmental engineers resulted in overruns on contracts let in 1950.

He said he never condoned any irregularities when they were brought to his attention but said it was possible he unknowingly signed documents which led to irregularities.

Agreement on Shipping Rates Will Start Grain Moving

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Free Press says today that a new contract lowering rates on all grain shipments has been completed by the Canadian wheat board and Great Lakes shipping operators.

Under the agreement, the newspaper says, shipping cost of all grains between the Lakehead and Montreal is reduced by 1½ cents a bushel. The shipping charge on wheat moving from Lakehead to Georgian bay ports is cut one cent a bushel.

The newspage story says the initial result of the new agreement would be a flow of grain from congested terminal elevators at Port Arthur and Fort William to Montreal where there is a shortage of some grades of wheat. There are also idle ships waiting for overseas shipments.

The agreement, completed in Winnipeg Tuesday, climaxed more than a month of negotiations.

George McIvor, chief commissioner of the CWB, told the paper that the grain movement is "proceeding normally."

Ralph S. Misener, president and general manager of Consolidated Shipping Ltd., said shipments were booked Tuesday at the new rates.

FUGITIVE SOUGHT SINCE 1951 DIES AFTER ACCIDENT

John Mallock Wanted On Narcotic Charges

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has one less "most-wanted" fugitive.

The RCMP learned Tuesday that John Mallock, sought since 1951 when he failed to appear for trial in Vancouver on narcotics charges, died last month in Mexico. His name had been listed with six others on the Mounties' roster of most-wanted fugitives.

The 36-year-old Winnipeg sales man died in a Queretaro hospital April 22 from injuries suffered in an automobile accident a few days before.

Mallock and his brother George were arrested in Vancouver late in 1950 on a charge of conspiring to sell, possess and distribute narcotics. They failed to turn up for trial in February, 1951, and were held on bail of $20,000 each.

George Mallock was captured by RCMP and United States treasury agents in New York last December and returned to Canada to stand trial. Police, acting on a tip during his stay at Oakalla prison farm there, found currency and jewelers' saws in the heel of one of his shoes.

He was found guilty on all charges in February and was sentenced to 21 years in prison. He also was assessed fines totalling $20,000, the alternative being an extra seven years' imprisonment.

Liberals Agree To Give Crown All Information

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Porter said today Liberal opposition members of the House legislature's select committee investigating irregularities in the highways department had agreed to turn over to the crown all information they have obtained on their own.

The attorney-general also said Liberal Leader Walter Thomas, Albert Wren (Lib-Lab — Kenora) and W. J. Grummett, CCF House leader, committee members, had agreed it would be the "wisest course" not to allow witnesses before the committee until the court proceedings have been disposed of.

Mr. Wren has informed me he has the names of the witnesses he intended calling before the committee," he agreed to turn over the information to the crown, thus Mr. L. Dubin, Q.C., crown prosecutor, will have the advantage of that evidence. I think Mr. Wren has followed the right course . . . our first consideration is that justice should be done . . ."

Property Owners Ask Court Review St. Lawrence Plan

Could Delay Power Project Construction for Months

By JAMES C. MUNN

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of Lake Ontario property owners today asked the U. S. Supreme Court to review a lower court order upholding New York State's right to join with the Province of Ontario in construction of a $600,000,000 St. Lawrence River power project.

A petition for review was filed by Clayton Burwell, counsel for the Lake Ontario Land Development and Beach Protective Association.

If the court agrees to the review, the effect would be to delay, probably for months, start of construction on the big international power project.

Presumably, it would result in holding up the start of construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway. The U. S. last week completed legislation clearing the way for the seaway with Canada in building the seaway.

The association, Burwell said, contends mainly that the Federal Power Commission erred in granting New York a construction license on the ground it violated the constitutional rights of those taking property without just compensation.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here ruled unanimously against the association's contention.

Two litigants that joined with the Association in the Circuit Court suit did not join in the petition for a Supreme Court review.

These are the Central Pennsylvania Gas Producers Association and Public Power and Water Corp., Preston, N. J.

Charles M. Goetz, counsel for the New York State Power Authority, said in a reporter he is confident the Supreme Court will refuse to review the suit.

Should the court refuse a review and announces such action before October, Goetz said, the St. Lawrence will be free to commence the actual power project construction within a matter of weeks.

Forms Subsidiary

ELIZABETH, N. J. (AP)—General Instrument Corp., manufacturer of television sets and electronic equipment, is expanding its operations to Ontario.

The company announced today that it has formed a Canadian subsidiary known as General Instrument—F. W. Sickles of Canada, Ltd. The subsidiary has acquired Weft Electronic Products Ltd. with a plant in Kitchener.

Other government equipment plants are located in Elizabeth, N. J.; Chicopee, Mass.; Joliet, Ill., and Hicksville, N. Y. The Kitchener plant will make tuners, transformer windings and other radio and TV parts for Canadian manufacturers.

Cadi Not Willing To Help Accused Figure Out Tax

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—"I find it hard enough to pay my own income tax without advising you how to pay yours," magistrate D. B. Menzies told Russell Brady of London in court here Tuesday.

Brady, asked why he had not filed his 1952 income tax return, told the magistrate he found the form "rather complicated."

He added: "I would like to discuss it with you if I may."

Brady was fined $25 and costs for not filing a return.

Refuses Balcombe Leave to Appeal His Conviction

OTTAWA (CP) — Mr. Justice J. C. C. Fauteux today refused leave to appeal before the Supreme Court of Canada the murder conviction of Leist, Peter B. Balcombe.

Balcombe has been sentenced to be hanged May 25 for the murder of Marie Anne Carrier of Bisseville, Que.

JURISDICTION QUESTIONED

Mr. Justice Fauteux based the refusal on the court which tried Balcombe in Cornwall had no jurisdiction to hear the case.

Mr. Kelly argued that the theory that Miss Carrier was fatally stabbed in Quebec province is inconsistent with the facts of the case as the victim was killed in Ontario. He also said there was no person motive in the killing and that Balcombe's trial was prejudiced by pre-trial publication of alleged confessions.

Cancer Research Is Urged By Dr. Endicott

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Frederick Endicott, director of the Ontario Cancer Institute, said today that cancer research is the most important medical problem facing the world.

Dr. Endicott, speaking at the annual meeting of the Ontario Cancer Institute, said that the institute has been unable to meet the demand for research grants.

"We have had to refuse many applications for grants because we have not had the money to meet them," he said.

Babies Taught to Cry by Parents Not Understanding Normal Baby Talk

By ALTON BLAKESLEE.

NEW YORK (AP) — Babies cry because parents teach them to cry, parents who fail to see or understand normal baby talk signals, according to Dr. Lee Emerson Pennington of Seattle, Wash., and Dr. Saul Rosenzweig of the communications research center, Washington University, St. Louis.

It has been a common belief for centuries that babies naturally cry to express their wants, be they physical needs or simply desire to expect babies to cry and feel nothing can be done about it.

Crying is, of course, a natural reaction to pain or sickness, by sensweig writes in the publication, Mental Hygiene.

But he says babies have other ways of "talking" to tell parents that they are hungry, cold or wet. They give up and cry if parents don't listen to these cues.

In effect, the baby's parents are teaching him that he must expect to be ignored unless he cries, sweig says. The baby later may cry even when he has only mild needs or wants.

Rosenweig proposes the idea from watching his own and other babies.

The five-month-old baby apparently signals for milk by little lip-smacking movements of her tongue, and for soft solid foods by visibly smacking her lips, he writes. The parents understand the signals of her bottle, pushes it away, smacks her own lips, and eagerly takes soft foods if offered.

The parent who assumes babies can be understood and tries to understand their talk has made an important start in training the baby to understand the world of people, Rosenweig says. And the baby may learn to understand earlier what the parent is saying to him.

Not Effective for Busy Doctors To Cure People of Emotional Ills

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE.

NEW YORK (AP) — One-third of people who go to doctors have E.I.I.—emotionally induced illness —and the treatment they get is usually no more than a way of talking to which doctors, says a family doctor.

He says this is not the doctor's fault. The trouble is there is no quick, effective way for busy doctors to cure them of their emotional ills,—and too few psychiatrists to help him.

The serious problem of E.I.I. is described formally by Dr. John A. Schindler of Monroe, Wis., in GP, magazine of the American Academy of General Practice.

Questioning 421 family doctors, Schindler found that 33 per cent of their patients have E.I.I. that they should be getting help for other ills caused by emotions and habits, no structural or physical reasons.

And 86 per cent of these patients are treated by "substitution therapy," he finds.

That is, the doctor tells them they do have some real physical difficulty, usually some vague thing like "a bad stomach" or "a bad heart."

This actually makes about two-thirds of them feel better for a couple of months, Dr. Schindler writes. Then the emotional difficulties generally bring a new flare-up, or bring on new symptoms, and they return.

This kind of treatment "has been the usual way of treating ills," Dr. Lloyd Stevenson of history, Who's doctors used it, dramatically, medicine and surgeons did, too.

And so do quacks and pedlars of nostrums, Dr. Schindler says. The person who hopes and believes a drug or treatment will help him is likely to benefit—if there is nothing organically wrong with him first-place—and credit the treatment rather than the drug.

Dr. Schindler says: "Superficially, substitution therapy might seem to be at once clinically and economically outmoded. But this is not true. It is probably the most widely used and the most helpful."

Police Court

Three local residents paid fines and costs out of court for infractions of the fish and game regulations.

Pleading guilty to a charge of fishing for pickerel other than by angling, Harold Mitchell, Moira Street West, was assessed $25 fine and $3.50 costs. William Keegan, Dundas Street, West, and Oscar Murray, Dufferin Ave., were fined $10 and costs for having pickerel out of season.

Five local youths charged with theft appeared in court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills. Two were given suspended sentence and the other three were remanded for one week when their cases will be heard.

Other cases dealt with in court included L.C.C. charges, and traffic charges laid under the city traffic by-laws.

Hasty Pees Regt. To Be Inspected Next Sunday

The annual inspection of the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment will be held at the College campus, Sunday, May 23, at 2 p.m.

Brig. M. S. Dunn, commander Eastern Ontario area, will inspect the regiment, composed of companies from Picton, Belleville, Trenton, Frankford, Madoc and Bancroft.

The inspection includes presentation by the brigadier of the Queen's commission to Lt. K. Broad, Madoc, and the Canadian Forces decoration to Capt. E. Loucks, Frankford, and CQMS L. Leonard, Picton.

The regiment's wumpet band will perform as the men go through their paces in ceremonial drill, signals, anti-tank and mortar practice.

Predicts Stiffening Of Appliance Prices

Mr. F. I. Yewman assistant to the general sales manager, of McClary Ltd., when in Belleville this part week addressing a local sales meeting predicted there would be a stiffening of appliance prices in the near future.

He mentioned it was the general opinion of delegates at a recent Appliance Dealers Association meeting in Toronto that every effort should be made to stabilize prices, which would possibly mean an increase in the cost of appliances to the ultimate consumer.

Fire Dept. Equipment Here To Be Standardized This Week

The city fire department and fire hydrants owned by the Belleville public utilities are becoming standardized this week.

That is all hose threads and couplings, together with hydrant couplings have been made standard to conform with all other centres in the province.

On Monday a crew of four men with a mobile machine shop moved into the city and they will leave all hose and couplings owned by the fire department, all hydrant equipment, and fire fighting equipment at factories and private buildings will be made standard.

The local standardization project is part of a program of the fire marshal's department to have standard fittings on all fire fighting equipment in all parts of the province. When the project is completed any fire department will assist and will be able to assist any other department in any other Ontario centre with a certain degree of hose and other equipment will fit.

GOVERNMENTS SHARE COST.

The work is being carried out under the supervision of the Ontario Fire Marshal's department and is being paid for one third by the federal government and two thirds by the provincial government.

The four-man crew under the supervision of Joseph Miller of the fire marshal's department will complete the standardization of fire department equipment this week and then will move to local factories and private buildings.

Standardization of fire hydrant connections is being done by public works employees with new parts being paid for by the government.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance noted that local firemen were assisting in the work of standardization of fire department equipment. All hose purchased by the department for the past year has been of the standard thread.

Until the standardization of fire hydrants is completed the fire department will use adaptors for connecting hose not having the standard thread.

Edward Bewels, chief of the fire service division of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department, and R. J. Cudney, Q.C., deputy secretary of the Ontario government were also in the city today in connection with the standardization program.

WORK WELL ADVANCED.

Mr. Bewris said that approximately 66 per cent of the fire fighting equipment in the province was now standardized. This was on a basis of population the work was about 75 per cent completed.

All centres from Belleville west to Windsor and north to North Bay have been completed. Three crews, all with mobile machine shops are working forward the eastern tip of this province and will then swing back up the Ottawa Valley through Sault Ste. Marie.

"So far," Mr. Beavis said, "we have found no less than 31 different sizes of nuts used on fire hose connections and 26 variations and different sizes of nuts used on fire hydrants."

Threads on all hose connections are being standardized to five threads per inch while a standard one and a quarter inch square nut has been adopted for fire hydrants.

19 Groups from South Hastings Public Schools Hold Festival

Music for the moppets is the intention of the S.H.E.A.

Full title, South Hastings Educational Association, the group gives its time to promoting the interest of school children in extra-curricular subjects such as public speaking and music.

Last night in Belleville Collegiate auditorium, the result of its work in the music field was pointed up when 19 groups of musical fledglings from public schools of Sidney and Thurlow townships went through their paces in a festival sponsored by the association.

The Department of Education is eager to promote interest in music in Ontario public schools but co-operation of local associations is necessary for performance-wise organization. This is where associations like S.H.E.A. now in its fifth year, sponsoring these festivals, come in.

Last night's presentation was the final of eleven other festivals held earlier in the schools. These festivals are strictly non-competitive.

Present was Major B. McCool, assistant Director of Music, Department of Education, who handed out constructive criticism mingled with congratulations to the participants, after the show's conclusion.

SPECIAL MENTION MADE

"Among those given special mention were River Valley for its vocal work and Ameliasburg for its balance in "Time to Sing" and a choir of 14 boys from Foxboro for an "outstanding performance" in "Music in the Air."

The biggest surprise was a mixed choir from four Sidney schools commended as a "singularly fine choir" which responded well to the conductor.

Major McCool said the performance was far better than any of the previous programs he had heard before in Ontario and Alberta.

Tribute to the teachers and musical instructors responsible for training the choirs, was paid by R. H. Hackborn, inspector for South Hastings.

Thanks to Major McCool were extended by Fred Bird, principal of Avondale school.

THE PROGRAM

Alfred Wilson, S.H.E.A. president, chaired the program which included:

Bayview school, "Blue Danube"; Riverside, "Fashion Colors"; Belcrest, "Shenandoah" and "O Rio"; Prince of Wales, "Aprils", "Spring Hymn" and "You Can't Play In My Yard"; Carmel, "The Swing"; North Thurlow 25, "Forty Second Psalm"; Keith and Caroline Thompson duet; Balmoy, "O Worship the King"; River Valley, "Time to Sing"; Thurlow 17, "Forty Second Psalm" and "God Bless Canada"; Thurlow 9, Patsy and Judith Dan, piano duet; Meadowdale, "Hot Cross Buns" and "Land of Spain"; Foxboro, "Music in the Air," Canniffon, "McNamara's Band"; Sidney 22, Marsha Dovey, "If I Were a Rose"; Centenary, "Time to Sing" and "Were I a Bird"; Millcrest, "Running Brook"; Thurlow 4, "Robin in the Rain" and "Little Fiddling Man"; Ann Annes, "Fairest Lord Jesus" and "The End of a Perfect Day"; Sidney (combined choirs) "My God Friend" and "O Lord I'm Tired."

Army Opens Door To Help and Hope For Young, Old

Some one once said "A man is never so near to heaven as when he is down on his knees to help the needy and unfortunate."

If such is the case the Salvation Army is possessed of charm that stretches into the heavens.

For over seventy years in Canada these people of the "Sally Ann" as they were dubbed by appreciative war veterans overseas, have held out the helping hands to the fallen, the needy and the lonely wayfarer.

Little children, the homeless and the aged, neglected, deserted by her people, the unfortunate girls or boys, regardless of creed, race of color, receive the same loving welcome and succor of the Salvation Army.

Infants without a name, children scarred by neglect or mistreatment, receive their birthright under the sheltering care of the "Army". Through its hostels and havens, homes and hospitals, the "Army" opens the door to Help and Hope for those in need and despairing, young or old.

Mid death and disaster, crises and catastrophe, you will find the Army in the van aiding succoring and bringing comfort to the injured. Their's is the outstretched hand bringing succour from pain and need to the unfortunate.

Now the Army appeals to you and to me to help them in their tremendous work. The Belleville and district objective is $8,000 and the headquarters of the Salvation Army Campaign is located at 236 Pinnacle Street. Phone 4497.

This amount may be a slight increase over the objective of a year ago but it is by no means commensurate with the increase of need that has cropped up over that period of time.

Your dollars strengthen the hands of the Army's devoted workers. Every dollar is wisely spent in human need. Let us make it a double play of community duty. From us to the Army to the needy.

Attach No Blame

OTTERVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury inquiring into the death of a Burford fisherman May 8 recommended Tuesday night that precautions be taken to avoid similar accidents in future.

The jury did not attach blame to anyone in the death of Ernest Jarvis, a middle-aged widower, who was killed by a falling boulder while a load of stone was being dumped into the river to keep a bridge abutment from washing away.

The jury recommended suitable warning signs be placed at water level and near the place where the stone is dumped to avoid similar accidents.

Police Officers On Night Patrol Have Busy Time

Police officers on the night patrol can expect almost anything during their nightly round of duty.

And last night, while not almost everything happened, at least there was plenty of variety.

First off, an insecure door was found at the Choy Fish and Chip store on the Footbridge Arcade. Investigation revealed the premises had been entered with some cash stolen.

Later a woman in the Purdy Street district complained to the desk sergeant that a dog which has been nearly barking made it impossible for her to sleep.

Investigation here revealed that a black and white hound had gotten himself tangled in a coil of clothes line which would not set him free. Officers freed the hound and took him to the police station.

Shortly before six o'clock this morning a man who saw was spotted on North Front Street at College. Again officers investigated and found the man in some bushes at the side of the street.

But efforts to round up the sow proved fruitless and officers reported it the crowd through a fence and disappeared behind some houses.

City dog catcher Charles Thorn was notified and a check later in the morning found the sow in the sow.

Police were of the opinion that the big sow had escaped from the Belleville livestock sale barns, north of the city, where it had apparently got away while being loaded or unloaded.

Four Clubs Or Else, In Quinte League

At a general meeting of the Belleville and District Baseball League held in the radio station last night, it was decided to disband the league unless Bryson Reid's Regents are able to enter a team by the end of this week. President Frank Grandame and player representatives from Deseronto, Picton and Belleville were present.

Seven teams are in at the present time but all concerned feel that there is no point in running the league unless Bryson Reid's Regents are able to enter a team by the end of this week. President Frank Grandame and player representatives from Deseronto, Picton and Belleville were present.

Seven teams are in at the present time but all concerned feel that there is no point in running the league unless Bryson Reid's Regents are able to enter a team to get in touch with him. The Regents will hold a practice Friday and the first game of the week to try and obtain enough players to give the loop life. Reid will inform the other teams of his decision as soon as possible.

Only action present in last night's meeting with the Trenton and Picton entry standing out that they were definitely in.

Council Will Try to Revive Industrial Expansion Boom

TRENTON (Special) — Mayor Ross Burtt and his council, disturbed about the obvious collapse of Trenton's unprecedented industrial boom, endorsed a plan last night suggested by Councillor Gerald Weaver in an effort to create new interest among dwindling industrial prospects. Mr. Weaver suggested council invite local members of parliament and officials from both the Federal and Provincial governments to a meeting with Trenton municipal officials with the purpose of obtaining an outline of the best methods of making the town more attractive to industries looking for industrial sites. He also suggested the possibility of a later meeting with the Chamber of Commerce and retail merchants if council deemed it would be advantageous to pass along information gleaned from the meeting with the government people.

Mayor Burtt and five of Mr. Weaver's council colleagues agreed with the sponsor of the plan. The general feeling was that by acquainting themselves with heads of government departments council might find the key to reopen the door to further industrial growth.

COUCH DISAGREES

While all of the town fathers seemed happy in try Mr. Weaver's plan, Kenneth J. Couch, the newly appointed Industrial Commissioner, frowned on the idea. In a terse announcement he claimed that the propounding thereof of government heads and municipal officers is "contrary to all the rules of locating industry in Trenton."

It was Mr. Couch who worked with Senator W. A. Fraser as a two-man team to send Trenton ahead of other towns in the province vying for new industrial expansion.

Expressing concern about the economic setback, Mr. Couch noted that at this time in 1953 during Mayor R. E. Whitley's term of office no less than six new industries were giving serious consideration to Trenton sites. Some of the prospects later decided to locate in Trenton and have established fine plants here.

MEETING IS SHORT

The council meeting last night was the shortest on record for 1954. It lasted just one hour and a half.

Considerable time was devoted to considering the feasibility of turning property north of Fraser Park wall into an organized parking area. Councillor Lance Miller-Donald led the discussion and town clerk O. W. Larry was instructed to seek permission from the Parks Board to use their part of the area. The Chamber of Commerce and retail merchants brought the subject to council's attention.

In the progress of the talks about needed parking space councillor Claude Graham came up with a suggestion. He wants to see the town buy the old arena and two houses and turn the whole caramel area into a downtown parking lot. Councillor W. J. McNair doubted whether anything could be done until the directors of the arena decided on a plan of action. Mr. McNair, a shareholder in the rink, feels that a move to get a shareholders' list from secretary Bill McClung had met with no success.

WANT PARKING PROHIBITED

A letter from the Library Board requesting council to prohibit parking in front of the new library was tabled aside to give council an opportunity to look into the matter.

Sidney township council nominated J. B. Harder and H. Hamilton for an opening on the Trenton Planning Board.

In communication from Frank Follwell, M.P., indicated that he was in the position to give out any information regarding the intended move of No. 6 Repair Depot to Downsview. He assured council that he would continue to work in the behalf and report any progress is them.

A letter from the Public Works Department at Ottawa requested measurements and information relative to the cement into the dock area off Dundas Street.

Council formally appointed exmayor Kenneth J. Couch Industrial Commissioner with the power to add and select five members for his commission.

The Police Commission was granted a new easement to relocate the Bowers hydro moved off the right-of-way of super-highway 401.

Council leaflets advertising Air Permission was given the RCAF Force Day June 5.

A tag day for the Disabled Persons' Club June 12 received official sanction.

City of London Welcomes Home Queen at Dinner

LONDON (CP)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh drove through cheering crowds today to a traditional "welcome home" dinner given by the City of London.

Londoners lined four deep in the streets leading from Buckingham Palace to the Mansion House to pay tribute to the royal couple. Cheers could be heard blocks away as the Queen and the duke drove past St. Paul's Cathedral in a state landau.

Some 400 guests waited in the pillared Egyptian Hall at the Mansion House, one of whose stained-glass windows depicts the procession of the first Elizabeth—Good Queen Bess—to Mansion House from Westminster.

Liable for Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal civil servants who reside in government-owned houses while carrying out their work are liable to pay municipal taxes on that property, the Supreme Court of Canada ruled today.

It rejected the appeal of two Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., ship canal officials against a municipal tax assessment on the government houses on St. Mary's island. The officials lived in these houses in order to make their work on the Sault ship canal more effective.

Richards Injured

SALISBURY, England (Reuters) Jockey Gordon Richards was rushed to hospital with suspected concussion after being thrown during the Devizes Handicap race today.

Gordon's mount, Misty Night, and another horse, Sea Spring, fell suddenly. Sea Spring's rider, apprentice Roy Maunders, was also taken to the hospital with concussion and a suspected fractured leg.

Sea Spring had to be destroyed.

Is Fined $50 For Killing Cat

TORONTO (CP) — Carl Lewis told magistrate's court Tuesday that he threw his sister's cat against a wall because it scratched him.

"And you forgot to let go" said crown counsel Fred Malone, who contended the cat had been battered to death. Evidence was that a Humane Society inspector caught Lewis burying the cat in his back yard.

Lewis, in custody since May 11, was fined $50 and costs or 15 days.

Painter Claims Stolen 'Rubens' Really A Fake

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Star Monday said a well-known United States painter as saying he doubts the painting stolen Tuesday night from the Art Gallery of Toronto and recovered today is a genuine Rubens.

Its newspage story says Emile A. Gruppe of Gloucester, Mass., said in a telephone interview the work, "Elevation of the Cross," may not even be a painting.

Mr. Gruppe said he examined the picture closely when he was here last fall and also saw it during a visit a year previously.

"I thought it was a fake," he said. "Now is the time to look at the edges, where it is out of the frame. I still think it is some kind of photographic reproduction. The edges should give a good artist a pretty good clue regarding its authenticity."

He suggested the person who took it from the gallery may have wanted to put its authenticity.

Martin Baldwin, director of the gallery, maintains the painting is genuine.

Retired Publisher Buys 650-Acres On Lake Erie

ST. THOMAS (CP) — The old home and holdings of Col. Thomas Talbot, pioneer colonizer credited with bringing 90,000 immigrants to western Ontario about 150 years ago, is changing hands again.

Fred Kerr, retired publisher of the Hamilton Spectator, has entered into a contract to buy 650 acres of wooded, hilly land which has 7,000 feet of frontage on Lake Erie. With the property 12 miles southwest of St. Thomas goes Talbot's 19-room, white frame house and its furnishings.

Mr. Kerr takes over the property from Millburn Berry of Detroit, a native of Port Stanley, Ont., who acquired it in 1949 for a reported $25,000.

The amount involved in the latest transaction was not made public. However, the Toronto Star said Tuesday it is approximately $50,000.

Mr. Kerr's new owner is expected to lease the 131-year-old estate, known as "Malahide", to his son, John Kerr, who lives in his late 20s.

ASKED TO STAY ON:

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Butler have been running the estate during Mr. Berry's tenure. They said Tuesday they have been asked by Mr. Kerr to stay on.

"My husband agreed because Mr. Kerr indicated his son would be seriously interested in farming," said Mrs. Mellor. "Apparently he is planning on raising cattle and putting in more crops.

"He also plans to make use of the beaches and, from what we understand, a new redevelop commercial fishing which has been allowed to lapse since 1952."

BERWICK, N.S. (CP) — Johnny Margeson, 17, wore his favorite baseball pants when he showed up to be baptized at church. The next week, in the same pants, he pitched the Berwick high school team to a victory over Central Kings rural high.

INFANT MORTALITY RATES DROP

The world is getting better.

The World Health Organization reports that, in 70 countries studied, an average of only one-third of the many babies died in their first year of life in 1952 as in 1900.

This sharp drop in infant mortality is, of course, partly the result of medical advances in the last fifty years. But that is only half of the story. Improvement in social conditions has also been a factor.

Probably it is the difference in social conditions, as much as anything, which accounts for the fact that for every 1,000 live births in the Netherlands in 1952 only 23 babies died, while in Chile the toll was 134. Probably the aftermath of the war is the reason why the infant mortality rate in Germany, certainly a land where the standard of medical science is high, should be twice the infant mortality rate in Australia.

There are some heartening figures in the report. For instance, you may be pleasantly surprised to learn that the infant mortality rate in Ceylon, a comparatively underdeveloped nation, is only 78 per 1,000 births.

But the black spot on the map, the World Health Organization, quoted by "UNESCO," reports that "there are still some areas today where as many as 500 out of every 1,000 infants die before they are a year old."

ICEBOX HAZARD

Opened up your summer cottage yet?

If you have, perhaps you have replaced your old icebox with a kerosene, or even with an electric refrigerator.

What did you do with your old icebox? You did not just leave it standing outside the cottage, did you? Because if you did it may prove a deadly trap.

The National Safety Council of the United States reports that during the past five years 76 children have died by isolation in iceboxes. Either in the absence of their play, they have been trapped when the doors swung shut. The average age of the victims was five years, but children as young as two and as old as 12 were involved. Twice as many deaths occurred in 1953 as in 1952, probably because more and more outmoded refrigerators are being replaced with new ones.

The danger still lists several ways in which iceboxes can be rendered harmless. Removing the door or removing the latch stop are the most effective. Drilling holes in the sides of the cabinet or gluing felt or rubber gasket around the door would permit air to enter the box and thereby reduce the danger of suffocation, but it would do nothing to prevent a child being trapped for hours, perhaps even for days. Such measures as turning the box with the door against a wall or binding the door shut with wire or stout rope do not appeal to us as commendable safeguards. Curious children might be tempted to investigate an icebox sealed in this manner.

WORLD FOOD COSTS

Food today costs an Australian more than twice what it did in 1948.

Danes, on the other hand, pay less than they did six years ago.

These facts are shown by statistics compiled by the United Nations on the cost of living for various nations. The Canadian Department of Agriculture, in its May bulletin, lists UN figures for fifteen nations. All of them show living costs higher than in 1948, but there is a wide variance in the amounts of the increases.

On the basis of 1948 costs being considered 100, Australia has recorded the highest jump in the total living cost index, to 178, and Belgium the lowest increase, to 106. Canada's figure is 116.

Food costs, as distinct from the total cost of living, differ widely in these countries. Australia's food costs index is up to 208 from 100, while Denmark's is down to 91. Canada, with food costs at 117, is among the group of eight of the fifteen nations whose food costs have not risen as fast as the total cost of living. Six countries the cost of food rose more than the total cost of living. The United States reports identical increases in food costs and total costs.

TOO TENDER-HEARTED

Canada's hangman will testify before the parliamentary committee on capital and corporal punishment.

Some members of the committee likes will not be present.

"It is a monstrous thing to listen to the hangman tell his terrible trade secrets," said Maurice Bolsvert, Liberal member for Jacques-Yamaska.

James Brown, M.P. for Brantford, said it amounted to the committee staging a real life adult horror comic.

One may sympathize with the members in their reluctance to take part in what one of them termed "an exercise in morbidity." But one may also legitimately wonder whether a man who cannot face the ordeal of learning the facts about hanging is qualified to accept the responsibility of deciding whether men should be hanged.

THE BEST LAND

If I knew a better land than this
Where a man gets bigger money
And is working shorter hours,
If the Briton or the Frenchman
Had an easier life than mine,
I'd pack my goods and chattels
And I'd sail across the brine.

But, I notice when an alien wants
A home of peace and cheer
And a future for his children, he Comes out and settles here.

Here's the glorious land of Freedom! Here's the milk and honey promised
For the peasant out of Russia, for the long subjected Pole.
It is here the sons of Italy and men of Austria turn

To the comfort of their bodies
And the wages they can earn
And with all, that men complain of, and with all that goes amiss,
There's no happier, better nation
On the world's broad face than this.

So, I'm thinking when I listen to the wails of discontent
And some foreign disbeliever spreads his evil sentiment
That the bread of hate and envy
Is that is sowing sin and shame
In this glorious land of Freedom should go back from whence it came.
And, I hold it is the duty, rich or poor, of every man
Who enjoys this country's bounty to be all American.

The city council is considering having a flood light placed at the cenotaph in Memorial Park so that the monument may be open to view at night. The considering of this matter by the council is the result of a petition by a deputation of members of the Girls of the local branch of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GENUINE HAPPINESS

Genuine happiness is really a cheap product. But people continually pay it ill health, worry, and a diverting of their power for happiness that is a mere counterfeit. The rules for happiness are few and simple. It takes neither wealth nor high intellectual attainments to be happy.

Many of the happiest people I have known have had comparatively little in material things. I have known shut-ins who were happy and an inspiration to all who knew them. Spreaders of cheer and hope. Your search is vain for complainers among them. You can't buy happiness with possessions.

One of the happiest women I have ever known was the wife of a retired minister in one of the middle western towns in which I once lived. She had little but that little she spread out. It touched the lives of others less fortunate. Her smile was a benediction. She hunted out people to whom she could do a simple service. She was beloved by all, rich and poor, especially the poor. Her influence radiated. She was kindly and selfless. Her memory is a blessed one to me.

How easy it is to acquire knowledge and the many virtues that add so much to happiness. All stores will be showing fall styles.

Nature is an open book, from which anyone can gain enrichment. No one ever graduated from the College of the Out-of-doors! We are in school to it throughout life. God has put each season there. No human library can ever compete with nature, nor can any educational institution compare to it in breadth of interest and revealed wonders.

We can be as happy as the birds if we will but sing in our hearts the songs that they sing, and face the hardships as they do, without complaint. We only take to our graves the good we have done, and the happiness that we have known. All else melts away and is forgotten.

Well Timed

(Sudbury Daily Star).

An Illinois man was arrested for robbing people entering a night club. You'd hardly expect him to wait until they came out.

March of Time

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record).

Chances are that women can hardly wait till summer comes and add so much to happiness. All stores will be showing fall styles.

Ministry of Middle Class

(Montreal Gazette).

From Belgium has come an interesting proposal. It is a proposal to appoint a cabinet minister to deal with the problems of the Middle Class. The idea of a Ministry of the Middle Class has a definite appeal. It is a good idea—and a bright one.

But the London weekly, The Economist, raises a difficulty. The Middle Class, it suggests, has become too large for this.

Perhaps there was once a time when the standard of income or earnings might have been taken as a guide. The Middle Class was held to be the people with the middle incomes. But this definition now fails. A man would not be generally regarded as belonging to the Middle Class unless he was earning more than those who do.

The problem has appeared in Britain. There accountants may be paid less than dockers, tobacco mining industry," and masters and employers of tugs and other steamboats are paid less than the stokers.

Just who, then, would the Minister of the Middle Class represent? After all, cabinet ministers may pursue phantoms in private. But they hardly can do so in public occupation.

The question has clearer means of defining the Middle Class than these doubters would suggest. A definition has already been made. As suggested by Major Tufton Beamish, M.P., chairman of the Council of the British Commons.

Major Beamish wisely admits that the Middle Class can no longer be defined by birth, money, education, accent, manner, or job. But it can be defined by an attitude toward life.

Is this attitude capable of definition? Major Beamish is. He says it man wants to be better than the other fellow. Not in the material sense, but wanting to rise above the rut, then he belongs to the Middle Class. He is not content with his own property; if he wants to provide for his children, by education and in other ways, so that they may have better advantages than himself, then he may also be conveniently and properly described as a member of the Middle Class.

And there are other tests. Middle Class people don't want to see their neighbors dragged down; they would like to achieve some of their success themselves. They are unimpressed by the argument: "There may not be much butter on your bread, but just look at the jam we've taken away from your neighbor."

The Middle Class need not be difficult to define. What it badly needs to be duly represented. For it is not likely to bring its own generous to bear. It is too independent for effective organization, too individualistic to speak with one voice.

Yet any Government that set up a Ministry for the Middle Class might be showing a stroke of genius. Observers in Belgium say that the new government there may score a political coup, if it but cut this proposal.

There is still more to the matter. The Middle Class has long served to have a cabinet minister to look after its interests, because its interests are very largely those of the nation as a whole. It is by very industriousness, its desire to discharge its own responsibilities, its thrift, enterprise and ambition, its capacity for innovation and enterprise, that it fills all these qualities, and more, that the Middle Class serves not only itself but strengthens a whole nation's fibre.

Let no one say that the Middle Class is hard to define or that its members are not to be kept in keeping a nation sound. The Communists did it, in their own way, by calling they did, on taking over such nations as Czechoslovakia, the Iron Curtain on the doors of the Middle Class houses and take away their property.

They did not even bother to make a special case against the upper people. They just declared they were poor material for a classless society, and so they discarded.

The Middle Class does not get many compliments. But the Communists paid it one of the highest compliments of all.

A Ministry of the Middle Class would give it a chance to make the points of view. It would certainly be appreciated by the Middle Class. For there is nothing more pleasing to the forgotten man than to realize that he is not forgotten.

Turbine Autos Far In Future

(Hamilton Spectator).

It is four years, now, since an English manufacturer publicly unveiled the first gas turbine car. Today a half-dozen different models are known to be on the world's roads—the latest a 200-horsepower, 155-mile-an-hour Italian job exhibited at the Turin motor show. Presumably all of these cars are still in advanced stages of development or testing in secret.

With prototypes thus beginning to abound, it is natural enough for the ordinary motorist to begin dreaming of the day when the family sedan will be powered by a jet-like complex cluster of pistons, con rods, valves, camshaft, distributor and carburetor—and will respond to a foot on the throttle like a well-behaved horse.

That day may be a longish way away yet.

Because of the competition in their trade, automobile makers are almost as publicity-shy as new developments—as are military staffs; it is hard to find out how far—or how near distant—their plans for mass-producing turbine power plants may be. But from what can be picked up here and there, it would seem that the engineering difficulties are not insuperable. It would seem that elsewhere. It would seem that most of the basic design problems have been solved, and that the production problems have not.

The biggest problem—that of producing an engine that will not drink fuel wholesale and one that will develop enough torch — has reportedly been licked by one of the leading British sheet metal makers through the development of a powerful compact heating exchanger, giving fuel consumption comparable with an ordinary petrol unit. Small wonder that anything from kerosene up) and emitting a constant and much better or more voluminous than a piston engine's. Earlier designs tended to be unwieldy and comparable, both in size and temperature, to the tall pipes of pot-stills.

The principal production snag is not likely to be overcome in quantity. It is not a problem of tooling; it is one of supply. A gas turbine, to be really efficient when it operates at high temperatures, requires the use of the exotic metals that go into a piston engine. With today's demand for these specialized alloys made from rare minerals. There are reportedly enough of these materials to go around for military jet engine production — and the amount of metal that the automobile industry would require for a yearly output of millions of turbines would probably last the aircraft industry for a good part of the century.

The automobile industry is certainly going ahead in a vast research establishment. It may eventually find a substitute for rare minerals — perhaps through developments in ceramics, perhaps through powder metallurgy. If and when it does, the automobile will become much cheaper, much more reliable and easier to service than it is today. It is probably safe to say, too, that that day is still a good many years in the rosy future.

It Is Men Who Talk Most

(From The Sherbrooke Record).

Women talk more than men. How often it has been said! So often, that it has become a settled conviction with the male challenged in this fashion way. We cannot quarrel with it from a limited experience, But sometimes we wonder.

Over the years we have attended many meetings of women's clubs and of men's clubs and, if not all, we have noticed a difference only between the quiet and a not-less-continuous din in the pre-speaker period.

Often we have gathered in office clusters in their off moments, to talk over the week-end, on trains, in theatres, at sports events and in the homes of friends. But we have never seen a group of small girls playing. You may believe it or not, but they confine themselves for fairly long periods without much talking. Then imagine for your attention to a band of boys. Your hearing apparatus will soon register a different sound picture.

It is our impression that, If all the words spoken by women and men, since language was first used, by the human race could be placed back for our benefit then by their hand, or stars at a time, the extraordinary intentness. There is some-thing heroic about it. . . .

I had to put my professor friend straight.

"That is not forced enthusiasm," I assured him." That is the normal air of the businessman. It is real enthusiasm. It is energy. It is pep.

Incidentally, it may or may not interest you poor frightened people to know—well, d. you, I've done all I can to enlighten you—that there are eight or nine different preparations called "Preparation" and "Laxative — read all about it in Rosenau's Preventive Medicine and Hygiene at the public library—that it. you should humor in the dead pan fashion. Maybe this wide assortment of stock is calculated to afford his eminent health communioners of New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Birmingham and points west freedom of choice when they make the headlines at the height of a mad dog scare. One never knows just what the victim of "Pasteur treatment" is getting in the "shots" the health board politicians prescribe in any particular locality, and neither do the politicians and the doctors who pretend to know, but do not like to tell how they know the treatment is of value.

But it isn't a question of what the doctors prove from the nineteenth century know or do not know. It is a question of what they can make frightened people believe. One health commissioner told me that "of course we dramatize every mad dog scare in the press we can, for that is the way to get larger appropriations by the solons for public health work." All the munic-jumbo would be funny if only you poor frightened people could watch the show from where I sit.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

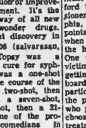
HEREDITY AND ENVIRONMENT

Some years ago great emphasis was laid on heredity as a factor working in our lives either for good or for evil. Today more emphasis is placed on environment than on heredity. The truth probably lies between the two.

Very bad heredity need not condemn us to pain and evil, provided we bestir ourselves diligently enough to rise above our heredity. But bad heredity in the world will not make a slothful or evil man a success, nor will the best environment in the world make one happy and successful if he cherishes in his heart impulses which lead to pain and ruin.

The famous Jukes family which lived about 200 years ago produced hundreds of criminals, paupers, and prostitutes. Hundreds of descendants of the original criminal pair, not 20 were skilled workmen. Dr. Arnold Mendell, famous Jonathan Edwards, New England divine and palisonopher, who was a contemporary of the original Jukes ancestors, has more distinguished descendants than any other individual in the history of our country.

Heredity is important, and, incredible as it may seem, superior heredity can do something about it. Man is no master of his destiny; cherishes in his heart impulses sue of life's events. But human effort is a powerful factor.



Personal Health Talks

BEWARE OF HUMBO-JUMBO

Yesterday the "miracle medicines" for whatever ailed the customer with plenty of jack to spend were cortisone and ACTH.

Today I have smarter buzz-words in medicine and am switching to hydrocortisone or other modifications of hormone treatment. It's the latest of all new wonder drugs.

Dr. Brady

Remember the first discovery in that line, called not (salvarsan, introduced when Topsy was a colt, as a one-shot cure for syphilis? That is, it was a one-shot cure at first. In the course of the years it became a two-shot, then a three-shot, then a seven-shot, then a fourteen-shot, then a fifteen-shot (reminds one of the pronouncements of comedians in health departments concerning the prevention of athlete's foot in man) and finally a modification of mercury compounds as we did when I was an honest doctor.

Incidentally, it may or may not interest you poor frightened people to know—well, d. you, I've done all I can to enlighten you—that there are eight or nine different preparations called "Preparation" and "Laxative — read all about it in Rosenau's Preventive Medicine and Hygiene at the public library—that is, if you enjoy humor in the dead pan fashion. Maybe this wide assortment of stock is calculated to afford his eminent health communioners of New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Birmingham and points west freedom of choice when they make the headlines at the height of a mad dog scare. One never knows just what the victim of "Pasteur treatment" is getting in the "shots" the health board politicians prescribe in any particular locality, and neither do the politicians and the doctors who pretend to know, but do not like to tell how they know the treatment is of value.

But it isn't a question of what the doctors prove from the nineteenth century know or do not know. It is a question of what they can make frightened people believe. One health commissioner told me that "of course we dramatize every mad dog scare in the press we can, for that is the way to get larger appropriations by the solons for public health work." All the munic-jumbo would be funny if only you poor frightened people could watch the show from where I sit.

Missionary Work Taking On New Look

MONTREAL (CP) — Three women who have devoted their lives to helping the people of the Far East said Monday missionary work has taken on a new look.

Senia M. MacMurchy, a nurse, Elsa Peter, who classes herself a social missionary, and Dr. Minnie Gomery, a medical missionary, said their vocations now consist of "helping people to help themselves."

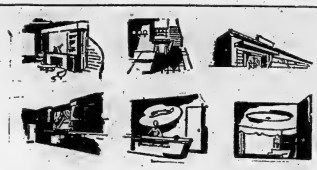
Here to address a mass missionary rally sponsored by combined church and social organizations, they agreed in an interview that the new development is giving missionary work new strength.

Miss MacMurchy, a native of Collingwood, Ont., is taking an advanced nursing course and on her return to India, where she has worked for 20 years, will teach graduate nurses in their native Hindu. A Presbyterian, her course is under the auspices of 10 different missions in central India.

SAYS NATIVES FRIENDLY

She has worked among the aboriginal Bhils of that area, who have been "on the whole friendly to missionaries, although somewhat skeptical of hospitals and modern medicines."

"We're overcoming that, however," said Miss MacMurchy. "We even have had witch doctors among our patients in the hospital."



Miss Peter, a third-generation missionary, helps in carrying on a program of economic and technical assistance in Pakistan under the auspices of the Church of England.

Dr. Gomery, a native of this city, now is 70 and was one of the first Montreal women to win a medical degree.

DOG TOO EAGER

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 75-year-old woman was partially strangled and severely bruised Tuesday when a dog she was feeding at her home leaped on her and got its chain wound around her neck. Mrs. Ellen Evans was treated at hospital.

V.O.N. Gives May Report

At the regular monthly meeting of the local branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses, arrangements were made to hold a tea at the residence of Mrs. H. W. Ackerman in June.

Reports were received from the representatives who attended the annual meeting of the National Board of Governors which was held recently in Ottawa.

Those attending were the president Mrs. M. E. Bulger, Mr. C. E. James, and the nurse-in-charge, Miss Dorothy Connor.

Mr. C. E. James was one of the representatives elected to the Ontario branch which has become incorporated into a provincial body and is the second group to obtain a provincial charter as British Columbia obtained their charter a year ago.

PRESENTATION

An interesting feature of the annual meeting was the presentation to Miss Christine Livingstone Bennie-chief of the order, of a prayer book and an autographed photograph that had belonged to Florence Nightingale.

There are now 112 branches across Canada and the V.O.N. nurse is spending the major portion of her time in the homes of elderly people.

NURSE'S REPORT

The nurse reported that 99 patients received care in April. Of these 46 were admitted to the service during the month.

The case load was as follows: Pre-natals three, mothers and babies 94, medical and surgical 48 and health instructions four.

The nurses made 371 home visits. Three hundred and 13 or 84 per cent of the total visits were for nursing care. Two hundred and 76 or approximately 90 per cent of the nursing care visits were to the medical, surgical and chronic patients.

A total of 38 and a half hours were spent in special activities. This included visits to St. Michael's Academy, Holy Rosary School and assisting the local Department of Health at the Child Health conference at the Kiwanis Centre. Two half days were spent at Canniton School.

Pr. Edward-Belleville Club Hears Talk On Mother'

The May meeting of the Prince Edward - Belleville Club was held at the Y.M.C.A. with president Mrs. Wannamaker, presiding, and Mrs. Fred Burley's group as hostesses.

Following the usual opening, reference was made to the sudden passing of Mrs. G. H. French, one of the charter members. Tribute was paid to her kind and loving character, and to her faithfulness as a club member. Also to the passing of Mr. F. Lent, the husband of the past president, to whom sympathy is extended. Mrs. Wannamaker read the 23rd Psalm, followed by a hymn and silent prayer.

Mrs. F. Burley presided for the program, and Mrs. W. Baird read a paper on "Mother's Love," composed by the late Mrs. French just before her death, as she was a member of this group.

Miss Anderson led in selected hymns, and the soloist, Mrs. Tinkess, was accompanied by Mrs. M. Duff, who joined the soloist in two duets, "Whispering Hope" and "Beautiful Dreamer."

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Mrs. R. A. Rowley, was introduced by Mrs. Baird, and gave an interesting talk on "Mother's Influence in the Home."

She referred to a beautiful bronze monument, depicting a mother with her child, which occupies central position in the city of Boston. When men fall a mother steps in the breach. In Bible history and down through the ages great men owe much to their mother's love and courage. Abraham Lincoln said: "All I am or hope to be I owe to my mother's guidance and teaching."

A thought inspiring reading was given by Mrs. Steers, entitled "Father's, Too. Have Played a Part."

In many instances great men and women were inspired by the father's teaching, mentioning Florence Nightingale and many others.

Mrs. Burley thanked all assisting—and with her group served refreshments.

Weddings

MCGLASHON—JARRETT.

On Saturday, May 15, a lovely wedding was solemnized at 4.00 o'clock in Christ Church, Belleville, by the Reverend Everett Smith, assistant rector of the church, before a beautiful background of tall standards of pastel-tinted tulips and snapdragons, interspersed with ferns, when Shirley Doreen Jarrett, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Robert Jarrett, became the bride of James Alexander McGlashon, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander W. McGlashon.

The church organist, Mr. John Croyden Withers, provided the traditional wedding music, and also accompanied the soloist, Mr. Arthur Dudley, who sang, "I'll Walk Beside You," before the ceremony, and "Because", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white nylon tulle over slipper satin, featuring a molded, strapless bodice, accented by a snowflake lace jacket having long, sheath-like sleeves pointed over the wrists, and a small, upstanding collar. The floor-length skirt was fashioned with pointed tiers of net and lace. She wore a flowered halo which held her lace-edged veil, and carried a white Prayer Book crested with a mauve orchid.

Mrs. G. Thompson, of Port Colborne, was matron of honor, and Miss Ruby Bulman and Miss Barbara Smith, both of Belleville, were bridesmaids. The matron of honor was gowned in nile green net over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice, and lace jacket. She wore a matching headdress. The bridesmaids wore gowns made on similar lines in shrimp shade with matching headdresses. All carried nosegays of purple and mauve pansies centred with a Talisman rose.

Mr. Donald McLeod, of Trenton, was groomsman; Mr. Wayne Lafferty, and Mr. Thomas Crawford, both of Trenton, acted as ushers.

The New Queens Hotel, Belleville, was chosen for the reception, where the bride's mother, attired in turquoise blue lace over taffeta, with white accessories, and corsage of white roses and pale sweetpeas, received. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore colored lace over taffeta with matching accessories, and pink rosette corsage.

For travelling to Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York and Michigan, the bride wore a princess sand colored suit with matching hat, brown accessories, with mauve orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. McGlashon will reside in Belleville upon their return.

Guests were present from Toronto, Montreal and Rochester, N.Y.

Fine Display of Manly Macdonald Art Seen at W.U.C. Spring Fair

At their Spring Fair held in the Kiwanis Centre on Saturday afternoon the University Women's Club had the honor of presenting one of the finest exhibitions of Manly Macdonald paintings this city has been privileged to see.

Guests, greeted by the admission clerk, Mrs. R. Barrett, Mrs. J. Hale, or Miss K. Daly, had the immediate pleasure of viewing a long vista of beautiful scenes, all attractively framed and displayed at eye-level against a contrasting dark background around three sides of the main floor hall.

Mr. Macdonald's exhibit this year numbered 25 oil-paintings, eight of which were large. It was a distinct privilege and pleasure for the University Women's Club to show these pictures and for the guests to enjoy viewing them.

SUBTLE HARMONIES.

Manly Macdonald, R.C.A., has been hailed by foremost art critics as one of Canada's best colorists. In his perfection of techniques in his color, line, and subtle harmonies, his works are superb. In his interpretation of scenes he has the soul of a poet.

Mr. Macdonald views an ordinary every-day scene that numerous mortals may pass daily without a thought, and out of it he produces a poem in oils which stirs the heart with new thoughts of God's gift of beauty. The country store, the cows on a headland under a summer sky, the two pictures of wild flowers, and many more, are all scenes of the countryside which under his brush have gained poetic interpretation which stirs one deeply. The black smith scene has a rhythm in it which may be compared with exquisite musical harmonies. One beautiful large autumn scene in striking oranges, reds and blues, is typical of fall in this area, while another smaller autumn scene had a genius about it and a subdued color harmony that was most appealing.

During the exhibit, guests enjoyed also the pleasure of discussing the paintings with Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald and greatly appreciated this courtesy on the part of the artist and his wife.

In the main hall on the southern wall was a fine exhibit of seven frames of stamps by the Belleville Stamp Club with J. E. Pugh in charge as the representative of the local philatelists. This showing, their first venture in exhibiting their stamps attracted considerable interest.

COLORFUL COLLECTIONS.

The display of B. A. Greenleaf showed a colorful collection of six sheets of the 1949 issue of the stamps of the Republic of Liberia. These stamps were designed by a famous Polish designer, Arthur Szyk, now deceased, and each sheet of stamps in the frame bears his autograph. The value of these stamps has already increased tenfold over their original purchase price.

Claude Hunt was responsible for an attractive, well-balanced display of pioneer air stamps of Canada. Prior to 1928 several private airplane companies operating in Canada held contracts with the government to carry mail to points inaccessible by train or boat. These companies, privileged to issue their own stamps, bore such names as "Canadian Red Airline", "Elliot, Fairchild's Air Service", "Laurentide Air Service", and "Klondike Air Ways."

OLD LETTERS.

Ross Irwin showed a large frame of 12 letters posted in Upper Canada previous to the sale of postage stamps. As envelopes were not then in use, the letter was folded and addressed on itself, the amount collected by the postmaster being marked in shilling and pence on the addressed side. Bishop for delivery. Another showed the Quebec Fleuron mark (1813), while two others had the name of the city, Queenston, Toronto, in double circles. Another, 1837, carried a mark known as the Montreal Tombstone. Shown also was a sample of the first Canadian postage stamp, the CORONATION STAMPS.

J. E. Murray was the composer of an attractively arranged and colorful display of the Coronation stamps of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth.

Also on the main floor was the book sale, under the convenership of Mrs. J. E. McArthur and Mrs. F. J. Doyle, where guests garnered material for their summer reading. Here, also, Mrs. W. F. Baldwin, convener of the draw tickets, took charge of returns while Mrs. R. Collins or Mrs. W. Hurst were engaged in the sale of these tickets.

Upstairs, Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon, president of the University Women's Club, graciously greeted the guests at the door, while Mrs. P. T. Seller, Mrs. Harold Hurst, acted as the tea-room hostess. Here the serenity of the exhibit hall gave place to, gay chattering at the tea-tables and bustling activity at the home-cooking table, convened by Mrs. J. H. Bateman and Mrs. L. B. Finlayson.

CHARMING TEA ROOM.

Mrs. E. H. Tindale, clever decorating convener, had achieved a charming tea-room setting of grace and sociability with gay artificial pink and blossoms here and there, red carnations on the white clothed tables, a beautiful bouquet of yellow snapdragons, and masterpiece floral centrepieces for the two serving tables. On each of these tables between the two silver services was an arrangement of breath-taking loveliness, four pink snapdragons in line, embedded in pink carnations with pink snapdragons branching out all along the long centre, a glowing picture of summer beauty done in flowers.

Those members who poured tea were Mrs. G. Bailey, Mrs. R. R. Bonnell, Mrs. R. Burr, Mrs. W. J. Doyle, Mrs. L. R. Finlayson, Mrs. J. Hale, Mrs. W. Hurst, Mrs. E. A. May, Mrs. E. Pringle, Miss E. Proud, and Miss R. Nash. Among the servers were Mrs. Bell, Dr. Dempsey, Mrs. A. Gillis, Mrs. W. E. Kellett, Mrs. L. Monteith, Mrs. W. C. Pryor, Mrs. J. E. Pugh, Miss M. Ross, and Miss R. Silvester.

Co-conveners with Mrs. H. T. Floyd over the kitchen were, Mrs. J. Kunize, and Mrs. E. L. Littlejohn, assisted by Miss Millda Dan-

Area Director Child Evangelism Honored

Between 50 and 60 members of the Child Evangelism Fellowship from Kingston, Peterborough and Belleville met on the Sunday School room in Bethel Hall last night to honor their area director, Mrs. Irene Williams, who has been largely responsible for the organizing of the East Central Ontario Area.

Each early part of the evening consisted of games with all taking a part, followed by the presentation of a lovely platform rocking chair and a purse of money to Mrs. Williams, who has had to resign owing to health reasons. The presentation was made by Mr. Charlie Leach, chairman of the Area committee. Mrs. Williams responded, graciously thanking the donors, adding that she would be glad to co-operate in the area whenever possible.

Mr. Charlie Collins of Peterborough, on behalf of the Area committee thanked the Belleville group for the splendid food and kitchen provided. After the repast two solos, "Bless My Soul", by Mrs. Grace Heidt, of Belleville, and "The Pearly Gates", by Miss Helen Bruce of Kingston, were much appreciated.

Charlie Leach then brought a short message from Philippians 3: 10, "That I May Know Him". The meeting closed in prayer led by Mr. William Bruce of Kingston.

The Child Evangelism Fellowship program is to reach as many as possible of the 40,000 children in the Province of Ontario who do not attend a Sunday School of any kind. This week "Good News Clubs" held in neighborhoods during the week, teach the children Bible truths concerning Salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, and to encourage them to attend Sunday School regularly.

This year Child Evangelism reached over 19,000 children in Ontario with the Gospel. Child Evangelism is international and is operating in over 60 countries around the world.

Soroptimist Club Celebrates 7th Year

The members of the Soroptimist Club of Belleville celebrated their seventh birthday of the organization at a dinner party at the New Queen's Hotel, on Monday evening. There was a full attendance of members and several guests enjoyed the delightful evening. President Lucietta Stirland was a competent and gracious mistress of ceremonies.

Telegraphed greetings from Fyzra (McKay) Ramshaw, a former member, were read. Flora also sent a gorgeous bouquet of tulips which adorned the head table.

NEW MEMBERS WELCOMED

Following dinner, charter president Georgia Smith, in a dignified impressive installation ceremony welcomed two new members, Mary MacKenzie of Tamblyn's Pharmacy and Nora Earl, Insurance.

The program in charge of Muriel Yorke, and Betty Wheeler, was a travelogue picture through the Rocky Mountains, briefly taking in their majestic beauty.

This delightful interlude was particularly entrancing as several of the club members plan to attend the Soroptimist convention at Banff Springs hotel, in June.

PROPAGANDA OFFENSIVE

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LETTERS AND ANSWERS HER SECOND HUSBAND DIS-PLAYS HIS FIRST WIFE'S PICTURE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My present marriage is the second one for both myself and my husband. Each of us was happily married for 30-years the first time, and had known each other about eight years before our partners passed away. My husband's first wife and I were very fond of each other.

I had been a widow for six years and he a widower for two and a half years, when we married, and we have now been married seven years.

The problem is that my husband has two pictures of his first wife set in our home, whereas I would not feel it right to put pictures of my first husband around, although my second husband tells me he would not care if I did. Quite often, when friends come to see us, they ask me who is the woman in the pictures, and when I say she was my husband's first wife, they think it's strange that the pictures should be around.

We had a gathering of my own family at my home, and the next day some of them called me and said they thought it strange that the pictures of my husband's first wife should be displayed so openly.

Maybe you can help me understand the situation better.

Mrs. C.R.

Dear Mrs. C.R.:

While it is a bit unusual, perhaps, for anyone to have pictures of a first wife or husband displayed in the home after a second marriage, I really can't see any good reason why that should not be, if both partners in the second marriage are mature people. After all, what harm can it do?

In your case, especially, you say your husband's first wife was a good friend of yours. Why, then, should it be out of the way for her picture to be in your home, and why should you make an issue of it?

To my way of thinking, this is a rather trivial matter, and I'd relish to make it the subject of a family conflict. If friends or family comment on it, it would be perfectly simple for you to say that you and your husband's first wife were friends and that you like to remember her, too, if you let them understand that having the pictures around is perfectly agreeable to you, no one will give it a second thought. Wouldn't this be better than making it a source of friction between you and your husband?

Referring to the part of your letter which you asked me not to publish, I might say that if you wish me to write you personally about it, I will have to have your full name and address.

HER GIRL FRIEND IS ANGLING FOR HER BOY FRIEND

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Two months ago I met a boy I liked very much, but my girl friend seems to be trying to take him away from me, and lately he has been paying more attention to her than to me.

Should I let her get him away from me, or try to win him back?

G.L.

Dear G.L.:

I don't think you'll get anywhere by making a direct effort to push this girl out of the picture. It will make much more impression on the boy if you let him do as he likes, without getting mad about it, or otherwise making it obvious that you're jealous.

The smart thing for you to do is to go out with other boys and not act as if this one were the only chap in your life.

It always pays to be a good sport, and you'll win more friends by being one than you will in any other way. If you do make a lot of friends, you're bound to come out ahead even if you lose this one of them. Don't you agree?

Special-Purpose Menu

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Last week D. F. F.'s letter, requesting oven meals, appeared here.

Since then I have baked an oven meal which I think is very handy and which would put her automatically-controlled oven to good use.

The only flaw is that this meal will serve five people, so D. F. F. will have to reduce the quantities, if it appeals to her.

BAKED BEEF HASH WITH EGGS

Three cups minced cooked beef (or use canned corned beef), 3 cups cooked diced potatoes, ¼ cup cooked minced raw beets, ½ cup Spanish onion (put through grinder with the beef), ½ cup left-over beef gravy or stock, 2/3 cup rich milk or thin cream, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1½ teaspoon salt (or a little more). Press into generously buttered large casserole, making smooth on top. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes, using large spoon. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for one-half hour. Then drop an egg into each depression and bake 12 minutes longer—with log oven turned off—or until egg whites are set. Sprinkle eggs with paprika and garnish sides of casserole with parsley.

EMEEN'S RHUBARB CRISP

Cut 1 lb. tender pink rhubarb into 1-inch pieces and spread in bottom of deep pie plate. Add 1 cup large navel orange and the grated rind from it. (For those of you who have a new oven, I would advise sprinkling over the fruit 2 tablespoons granulated sugar at this stage.) Mix together 1 cup unsifted flour, 2/3 cup sugar, and cut into them ½ cup butter or margarine with pastry blender until it resembles coarse meal. Press this topping over the fruit and sprinkle generously with cinnamon. Bake while baked beef hash is baking or better still, bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until juice bubbles around edges and crusty topping is golden. Serves 5, and everyone of them will say it's fine—if they are like my crowd.

QUESTION: Could you assist me in locating a recipe for preserving mushrooms by the canning method? With such lovely weather we are bound to have a good yield soon.—Mrs. Del. T.

ANSWER: I would not recommend canning mushrooms unless you have pressure cooker.

CANNED MUSHROOMS

Small mushrooms are preferable, but if medium to medium-large mushrooms are available cut them in halves after washing. To wash remove slice from bottom of stem and scrub under running water. To prevent discoloration drop mushrooms in solution of 4 cups water and 1 tablespoon vinegar but do not leave them there longer than 10 minutes or they will become soaked. Blanch by parboiling in boiling water for 5 minutes immediately skim out and immediately immerse in clean cold water. Drain and pack into canning jars or cans 20 minutes at 240 deg. Fahr. Cool, fill into sterile jars or plain tin cans, and fill to within ½ inch of top of jars or 3/16 inch of top of cans. Put into cans made from water in which mushrooms were parboiled and to which you have added salt in proportion of 1 tablespoon to each 4 cups liquid. Seal. Process in pressure cooker, pint jars or cans 20 minutes at 240 deg. Fahr. Cool in water and as quickly as possible. If tin cans are used they should be immediately immersed in cold water bath to chill.

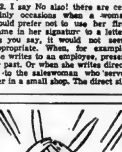
Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

FINGER NAILS LIKE LOTUS BUDS

Putting polish on the finger nails is as necessary these days as clothes, for they enhance the loveliness of one's appearance. It is dope by the lady of fashion and by the humblest toiler among us. But concern about the health of the nails occurs to few women. If nails crack or break or take on ridges we grind our teeth, mad and do nothing to condition them properly.

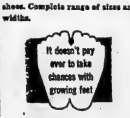
The ideal nail is slightly arched as it extends upward from the base. In shape it should be a pleasing oval. The crescent is formed by the new substance that has emerged from the matrix which rests beneath the flesh at the nail root.



The circulation of the blood determines the color of the nail since the nail fabric itself is colorless, composed of the same elements as the skin and the hair. If circulation is brisk the coloring is rosy-red; if sluggish it is pale. During a chill the nails may be blue.

The lucky woman who has leisure—who has her regular weekly appointment at the salon for a manicure and other beauty treatments—will have no hand or nail troubles. But the homemaker who wrestles with dishes three times a day, who dusts and cleans and subjects her hands to dirty water and grime has definite problems. She can get rough, nails break and hangnails appear. There must be no let up in combatting these conditions.

Like the skin, nails respond to nourishment from within outside. A cuticle-cream not only keeps the surrounding flesh in condition so it will not creep up on the nail or break but also has a beneficial effect upon the nails themselves.



When the cuticle is soft, it can be lifted gently with an orange-wood stick. If any little rag-tags of cuticle are found on the nail they should be removed with nippers that are less likely to cause a wound than the curved, needle-point scissors.

Never use scissors on the nail. Shape first with a high-grade steel file, then give a smoother finish with an emery board.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

MARRIED WOMAN'S SIGNATURE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. There is one point I have wanted to take up with you about is general use of signatures. You said in your column: "A married woman should never sign a letter of any kind Mrs. John Smith." My crowd, however, is rather broad-minded in their views. For instance, I have recently had some correspondence concerning my daughter's wedding announcements, it certainly sounds silly to sign myself "Mary Smith," when my charge account is in the name of "Mrs. John Smith."

2. Also, a number of women who have worked for me as maids write to me occasionally, and I to them. Do I use my first name in signing my letters? I say no.

Reader

3. And I repeat . . It is absolutely incorrect for a married woman to sign a letter, any kind of letter to anyone, "Mrs. John Smith." In the direct signature to a letter there should be no title . . no "Mrs." or "Mr." or "Miss or "Dr."—no title of any kind.

You should sign a business letter:

Yours truly, Mary Smith.
(or Mary B. Smith)
Mrs. John Smith

Or, if your address is not on the top of your letter-paper:

Yours truly,
Mary Smith
Mrs. John Smith
123 Fourth Street
Haven, Ohio

4. I say No also! there are certainly occasions when a woman would prefer not to use her first name in her signature to a letter. As you say, it would not seem appropriate. When, for example, she writes to an employee, present or past, Or when she writes directly to the saleswoman who serves her in a small shop. The direct signature to this type of letter is: M.S. Smith. And still there should be no title ("Mrs.") in the signature. If it is necessary to indicate your formal name, (as it would), be, in writing to a former maid) you write it in parentheses under and to the left of your direct signature.

Or, appropriate for some occasions—ordering, for example:

Yours truly,
M. S. Smith

Mrs. John Smith
123 Fourth Street
Haven
Ohio

GROOM WANTS HIS FATHER AS BEST MAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have a son (our only child) who is soon to be married to a lovely and very wonderful girl. Both my husband and I have always been particularly devoted to each other, close pals, and the groom-to-be wants very much to have his Dad as his best man at his wedding. Would this be correct, or should we try to persuade him to have his closest friend, a college fraternity brother of his? M.H.T.

It is entirely correct for your son to have his father as his best man. Today this is not at all an unusual procedure, and I think your boy should accept the attractive invitation with no suggestion that your son ask someone else.

Large Housing Development Is Planned

TORONTO (CP)—A $100,000,000 housing development aimed at groups with an earning wage of $5,000 to $10,000 a year is planned for North York township on the northern perimeter of Toronto.

Emphasis will be on homes in the $15,000 to $25,000 class, but some will cost up to $40,000.

Town planning consultant Dr. K. G. Faludi has drafted a master plan to be carried out by more than 25 landowners and developers, seven of whom will be responsible for the major developments to be undertaken.

The project, to include a $4,000,000 shopping centre, apartment buildings, two public schools, one separate school and parkland, is to be developed in several stages.

VILLAGE FOR 20,000

The first phase will be the construction of homes and apartment suites valued at $50,000,000 on 650 acres of land to be known as Bayview Village. The community will eventually house 15,000 to 20,000 persons.

Largest developer in the project is Fairlinger Developments, Ltd., which plans initial construction of [illegible] and 800 apartment suites as the first half of a $50,000,000 development of 297 acres of ravine-broken land.

Construction pace for the project will be determined by the time required for the metropolitan area to supply the district with water. Major building is expected to take place next spring or summer.

"PLANE" MISSING

STRATFORD (CP) — If any farmer finds an aircraft on his fields it belongs to the RCAF station at Centralia. The aircraft is a model plane built by one of the station's airmen. The motor-equipped model vanished into a thick cloud when it was caught in an updraft and was chased seven miles by airmen in a car before they lost it.

Eleven Karachi Reds Arrested

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Police Tuesday arrested 11 of Karachi's Communist leaders, and included more will be rounded up shortly.

The arrests were made under the Pakistan Safety Act which permits jailing without trial, and were launched in the wake of warnings by Premier Mohammed Ali that "the foul conspiracy of Communists should be crushed" in this Moslem state.

The prime minister blamed last week-end's bloody labor riots in East Pakistan, which claimed more than 300 lives, on the Reds and "other elements inimical to Pakistan."

Too Much Sugar Being Consumed

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto doctor says too much sugar is being consumed by Canadians, especially children.

Dr. A. L. Chute, speaking at the Ontario Dental Association's annual convention, told delegates Monday that a person can be maintained in perfect health with no sugar, provided there are a sufficient number of carbohydrates in the person's diet for body nourishment.

Dr. Chute said soft drinks are the biggest culprits against good oral health and physical well-being in general. More a v e r a g e adults' budget should be spent on protein foods and vegetables rather than on sweet drinks and foods.

Court Reverses Conviction Of Mickey Jelke

NEW YORK (AP)—The conviction of Minot F. (Mickey) Jelke on charges of compulsory prostitution was reversed by the New York State Supreme Court's appellate division Tuesday and his retrial ordered.

The court held that Jelke, heir to a manufacturing fortune, was deprived of a "fair and impartial trial" because certain portions of the hearings were closed to the public.

The decision was by a 3-to-2 vote. Jelke, 34, had been sentenced to serve three to six years on each of two counts of compulsory prostitution.

His trial in New York general sessions court was closed to press and public during presentation of the state's case.

Judge Francis L. Valente at the time said he felt that lurid testimony of admitted call girls might endanger public morals. New York newspapers and press services protested vigorously.

In reversing Jelke's conviction, the majority of the appellate court said:

"The ruling of the court in effect was that if one testified for the people the witness would be shielded from publicity but if one testified for the defence it would be in the pitiless glare of press and public.

"We are unwilling to place the stamp of approval upon any such unorthodox and in this case unwarranted procedure."

FELL FROM TRAPEZE

Jesaie Cadena, a performer with Clyde Brothers' Circus, was taken to hospital with a possible fractured skull, a possible fractured neck, concussion and facial cuts.

BULGARIAN GUARD WOUNDED

ISTANBUL, Turkey (Reuters)—Bulgarian border guards shot a civilian crossing into Turkish territory several days ago and sealed the frontier to collect the body, the Turkish defence ministry announced Monday night. Turkish patrols repulsed the guards who came for the body and wounded one of them, it added.

Blood Stream Used to Combat Rheumatic, Arthritic Pain; No Pills

Penetrant Dilates Capillaries, Flows Fresh Oxygen-Rich Blood Through Afflicted Areas

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — Discovery of an entirely new method of relieving pain has been announced here. The new method applies, for the first time, a well-known medical principle of pain relief to a product now readily available to Canadians for home use. The discovery literally rolls upon the blood stream to bathe away pains of rheumatism, arthritis, sore muscles and pains of most kinds.

Sold under the brand name "InfraRUB", the new cream is odorless and greaseless. InfraRUB has the unusual ability to penetrate the skin and dilate tiny blood vessels deep down in sore muscles and joints. This permits fresh, oxygen-rich blood to flow freely through the afflicted area. The fresh blood, combined with InfraRUB's soothing medication, attacks pain at its source. Users claim almost immediate relief from rheumatic and arthritic pains, sore muscles and joints.

Another feature of this new product that appeals to many people is ease of application. No long and painful rubbing is necessary as InfraRUB penetrates in a few seconds and vanishes with a moment's light massage.

InfraRUB leaves no oily film or pungent objectionable odour on the skin. Users find they are able to put on clothing in complete safety immediately after application.

Holstein Sale Average Higher Than Year Ago

OAKVILLE (CP)—The 35th annual national holstein sale Monday brought a total of $52,025 for 47 head, a general average of $681. Last year's average was $674.

Buyers from South America and the United States bought 31 head.

Raul T. Ghiso of Buenos Aires paid the highest price of the day when he bought Rosafe Sovereign Reflector, six-month-old calf, from J. M. Fraser of Streetsville, Ont., for $1,300. Mr. Ghiso paid top price of $1,250 for a female seven-year-old cow. Another South American buyer, Carlos Diez of Venezuela, bought four head.

Second highest figure for a female was $1,175, received by Norman R. McConkey of Peterborough from Harry G. Haskell of Chadds Ford, Pa.

Two bred heifers were sold for $1,050. One was sold by Osbourne L. Sager of St. George, Ont., to the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. The other was bought by Mr. Fraser from G. W. Fraser of Streetsville.

PREFER WAR TO RED RULE

OXFORD, England (Reuters)—The Oxford University Debating Society Monday night carried, 94 votes to 92, a motion that they would prefer a third world war rather than live under a Communist regime.

STEALS TO WEST

BERLIN (AP)—An East Berliner, jailed for taking part in last year's revolt against the Communist regime, stole a Communist policeman's bicycle under his guard's noses and pedalled to West Berlin, refugee authorities disclosed today. Wilhelm Jablonski, 35, asking for asylum Monday, said he was working outside Rummelsburg prison in the Soviet sector last week-end and noticed a policeman's bike leaning against the wall, so he rode it to freedom.

GAS FIELD DISCOVERED

WEISER, Idaho (AP)—The city of Weiser may have stumbled into the natural-gas business. City officials say a well for the municipal swimming pool and for use in care of lawns has poured out at a steady 20 pounds pressure. The city has installed a meter to see if the gas can be put to use commercially.

TCP Re-powers Your Engine

TCP, a Shell-discovered additive blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, sets free the captive power formerly locked in by lead and carbon deposits. It's the greatest gasoline development in 31 years.

Acts so fast it re-powers your engine before you've finished your second tankful.

Did you know that up to 15% of your engine's power is actually trapped ... that you are paying for power you aren't getting?

The reason is this: Every gasoline sold today contains deposit-forming compounds. And, as gasoline is burned, lead and carbon deposits form on the walls of the combustion chamber and on the tips of the spark plugs. In the combustion chamber these deposits become "red hot," especially when you are accelerating, and "set off" the gasoline-air mixture before the piston reaches its proper firing position. Power works against you, not for you. This condition is called pre-ignition and it not only wastes power and fuel—it is also responsible for a most severe kind of knock—engineers call it "wild ping."

These deposits also cause power loss by short-circuiting spark plugs, causing them to misfire when you need power most.

Now, however, there is a way to release the imprisoned power in your engine—and quickly!

It's Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP, the greatest gasoline development since tetraethyl lead. TCP additive actually re-powers your engine by changing the character of the lead and carbon deposits. In the combustion chamber it "fireproofs" them so they cannot glow and cause pre-ignition. And, because it makes the deposits non-conductors of electricity, spark plugs no longer short-circuit—they fire on time. Power works for you—not against you.

By the time you have finished your second tankful, you'll be getting up to 15% more power. But remember—because these deposits are constantly building up, continued use of Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP is essential to retain its full benefits.

Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP is available only at Shell dealers.

*Shell's Trademark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patent applied for.

MADOC

O.E.S. Celebrates 28th Anniversary

MADOC — Following the close of the regular meeting of Madoc Chapter, No. 148, O.E.S., on Monday night, the Madoc members, along with visitors from Belleville 55, Trenton, Minerva, Bancroft and Tweed chapters enjoyed a pleasant time, it being the occasion of their 28th birthday.

Guatemalan Diplomat Quits American 'Harmony' Meeting Over Arms Shipment Comment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Guatemala's chief diplomat in the United States stalked out of an inter-American "harmony" meeting Tuesday night as Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep., Wis.) spoke of the "ominous arrival" in that Central American republic of "a tremendous shipment of arms" from Communist Poland.

Wiley, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, was chief speaker at a dinner in honor of Latin American diplomats, and he used the occasion to discuss a state department announcement that a Swedish ship was unloading at a Guatemalan port arms which it was reported to have taken on at Stettin, Poland.

Wiley did not name Guatemala, but it was clear he was talking about the country, which he has described previously as a Communist beach-head in the Americas."

Everybody, said Wiley, is "keenly aware of the grim implications" of the news about the arms shipment, which he said may be "a part of the master plan of world communism."

HAD TO LEAVE

At that point in Wiley's speech, up rose Dr. Alfredo Chocano, acting head of the Guatemalan embassy. He walked to where W. Cameron Burton, president of the host district of Columbia Bar Association, was seated near the speaker's rostrum. He thanked Burton for the invitation and said he had to leave.

Then Chocano strode through a backdrop and out of the banquet room. Outside, the Guatemalan told reporters: "I don't know anything about that arms shipment."

He said he interpreted Wiley's remarks as an "allusion to Guatemala" and that he walked out "because I am not in agreement with what he said."

ASK CONSULTATION

In his speech, Wiley called for "hemispheric consultation" on what he termed the "alarming" development in turbulent Central America.

Such consultation could be a preliminary to joint action by the 21 American republics under the Rio de Janeiro mutual defence treaty. A majority of those republics would have to approve before military, economic or diplomatic sanctions could be invoked to quell a threat to the peace.

So far, the U.S. government has gone no further than to announce the unloading of the arms in Guatemala and to warn Latin American embassies officially that it terms a "grave" situation.

Blenheim Board Gives Increases To Teachers

BLENHEIM, Ont. (CP) — Blenheim district high school board Tuesday night passed a motion to increase maximum salaries for non-specialist teachers from $4,800 to $4,800 a year.

Maximum for specialists will go from $4,800 to $5,000.

The teachers' request presented to the board May 3, called for top salaries of $5,000 and $5,200 respectively.

Irked by what they termed "delaying tactics" on the part of the board, the 14 members of the teaching staff tendered their resignations effective at the end of the present school year.

E. M. Merrick, member of the board who proposed the salaries board, said the teachers' request "was in reality a demand, we were left no room to negotiate."

Announcement of the resignations resulted in "pink" listing of the school by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation. This means all federation members have been advised not to accept employment at the school until the dispute is settled.

Steel Business Upturn Possible

NEW YORK (AP)—This week may mark the long-awaited upturn in the steel business, the Iron Age, national metal-working weekly magazine, says today.

Manufacturing operations for the coming week are estimated at 70 per cent of rated capacity—first time since February they have been scheduled that high.

"It will take another week or two to determine whether an upturn in steel production has actually begun, or whether this is just a flash in the pan," says Iron Age, adding that steel companies now are working close to their booking of new business, and that production schedules have become sensitive to any real change in demand.

Although there has been an upward trend in new orders, says Iron Age, consumer demand still may not be strong enough to generate a big upturn in steel production.

Geneva Shaken By Earthquake

GENEVA (AP) — The most violent earth tremors in eight years shook Switzerland today. No damage or casualties were reported.

The quake rocked downtown buildings in Geneva, site of the international conference on Asian problems.

The observatory at Neuchatel placed the centre of the tremor in the Bernese alps south of Interlaken. The observatory said the needle of its seismograph was Minor tremors, caused by undershaken from its bearings-ground earth shifts in the alpine chain, are relatively frequent in Switzerland, but rarely cause damage.

Delegates to the conference said the shocks shook the building housing conference headquarters. They also were felt at the press headquarters, in the centre of the city.

France and U.S. Pushing Asian Defence Pact Plans

By MAX HABBELSON

GENEVA (AP) — France and the United States today were reported pushing plans for a South-east Asia defence pact as the Far East conference deadlock on Indo-China tightened another notch.

A source close to Foreign Minister Bidault said secret French-American talks which have been going on in Washington, Paris and Geneva during the last few days will continue regardless of how the Geneva parley progresses.

The Indo-China peace talks here today were reported stalemated over Western demands that Communist forces withdraw immediately from the French associated states of Laos and Cambodia. One Western informant said no progress has been made on this or any other points since the closed-door sessions began two day ago.

Another private session on Indo-China was scheduled today, and informed sources said a fourth may be held Thursday, but that the problem then probably will be laid aside until next week.

In view of this stalemate, a French source said, France and the U.S. have agreed to go ahead with plans for an Asian defence pact without awaiting British approval. Britain contends such negotiations should await the outcome of the conference.

The French oppose the delay, fearing the Communists may try to keep the conference enmeshed in endless debate while the Vietminh rebels build up their strength to mount a massive attack on the strategic Red river delta. When that happens, France wants to have her allies ready to fight without delay.

British is reported to have agreed, however, to open military staff conferences soon on South-east Asia with the U.S., France and other allied powers interested in Southeast Asia. They include Australia, New Zealand, Thailand and The Philippines.

U.S. Residents Will Stand Trial For Ax-Slaying

SIMCOE, Ont.-(CP)—Two United States residents have been committed for trial on murder charges in the bludgeon death of a 78-year-old service station operator.

Jerry Simmons, 47, of Syracuse, and Joe Glen Lolharp, 23, of Detroit, charged jointly with the murder of fifling station owner, Bruce Beatty, will be tried in September.

Beatty was found fatally beaten at his service station at nearby Renton last Feb. 3. Police arrested the men three days later.

Mrs. Beatty, 63, still in critical condition, has been unable to talk to police since the attack in the living quarters of the service station.

BLOOD MATCHED

Dr. Noble Sharpe, medical director of the attorney-general's department, testified that a pair of shirts and a pair of overshoes contained traces of blood matching that of Beatty's. Officers said the clothes were taken from Simmons.

Dr. Sharpe said traces of blood found on an ax at Renton also were the same type as that of Beatty.

Counsel for Lotharp, L. T. Fennell of Brantford, said that blood splashings on the ax did not mean it was the murder weapon.

"This has been termed an ax-slaying and there is some doubt the ax was the lethal weapon," Mr. Fennell said.

Also produced was a heavy hammer head and a wooden hammer handle. Dr. James Harker of Simcoe, said two wounds Beatty received could have been caused by a blunt instrument.

HEADHUNTERS GET REVENGE

MANILA (AP)— Arrow-shooting Ilongot headhunters in the Nueva Ecija mountains north of Manila today were reported to have killed nine Communist Huk rebels who abused an Ilongot woman. 5 French Union Soldiers Escaped From Fortress HANOI (Reuters)—Five French Union soldiers escaped from Dien Bien Phu and crept through the rebel-infested jungles to a French military post in northern Laos, according to reports reaching here today.

The two non-commissioned officers and three privates set out through the hostile, mountainous territory upon the fall of the northwest Indo-China fortress May 7, the reports said. This was the first news that any of the 12,000 fortress defenders had escaped capture.

According to the reports, the trek took at least 10 days.

The five men belonged to the garrison "Isabelle," an isolated pocket three miles south of the main defences, which fought on for several hours after the fall of the fortress.

How they escaped the massed Communist troops surrounding them is not immediately known.

A French military column has been sent to northern Laos to set up a post about 30 miles from Dien Bien Phu, ready to receive any French soldiers who managed to get away.

French Widow is Acquitted of Mass Murder Charge

Arrested five years ago on charges of poisoning 11 French persons, including mother, father, second husband, father-in-law and a cousin, Marie Besnard, (left), 57-year-old widow, chats with a friend in her home in Loudon, France, after her acquittal in Maron. At her first court appearance in 1952, experts were unable to agree on whether the amounts of poison found in some of the victims were sufficient to cause death, and trial proceedings bogged down to later end in an acquittal for the accused. Seek Statement From Brownell In McCarthy Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican senators sought today to persuade Attorney-General Herbert Brownell to explain the Jan. 21 administration meeting about which President Eisenhower has barred further testimony in the McCarthy-army hearings.

Acting with informal backing from members of the Senate Republican policy committee, acting chairman Karl Mundt (Rep. S.D.) of the Senate investigations subcommittee is expected to urge Brownell to issue a statement giving limited information on the conference.

The sub-committee has been told that among those attending the conference were Brownell, a White House assistant, Sherman Adams, and ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. When members sought further details, they ran into the president's order forbidding disclosure of any talks strictly within the administration about the row between the Wisconsin Republican senator and Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens and their aides.

SAYS INFORMATION VITAL

McCarthy contends that further information about the Jan. 21 meeting is vital to his case. The hearings were recessed Monday for a week to give the sub-committee time to study the issues.

Mundt and the sub-committee's special counsel, Ray H. Jenkins planned to meet with Brownell during the day to seek modification of the president's order, which McCarthy said lowered an "iron curtain" against efforts to prove motives for what he terms "smear" charges against him.

Farmers Toil Day and Night, Rush Work on Spring Seeding

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Farmers, forced to fret while the weather fumed for more than a month, are working night and day to catch up on spring seeding.

From Newfoundland westward, it's the same story: planting is weeks behind schedule.

However, despite low spirits from high rainfall, there's a note of optimism about crop acreage and market value prospects.

In most areas persons aware of the situation say acreage will vary only slightly upward or downward from last year's figures, and market values will follow the same trend.

REPORT CUT-BACKS

The prairie provinces report cutbacks on wheat planting, two to three per cent in Saskatchewan and "a slight decrease" in Manitoba. There's no estimate yet on crop prospects for Alberta.

Last year wheat planted in Saskatchewan covered 16,100,000 acres in Manitoba 2,256,000 and in Alberta 6,340,000. Acreage for oats, barley and flaxseed will be up a little in the first two provinces.

In all three seeding is from two to three weeks behind normal.

Seeding in Quebec is said to be "very late" because of heavy rains during the past month. But there's a bright note. Field crops are expected to cover a greater area this year than last.

Prospects for Ontario crops appear good. There'll be a slight reduction in oats acreage but an increase in corn, soybean and white bean crops.

There may be a cut on acreage given to potatoes which during the winter sold for less than cost of production. About 30 per cent of seeding has been completed.

Officials in Newfoundland expect an average year with an increase of five per cent in acreage forecast. A few acres of oats and cabbage have been sown to date.

In the Maritimes, agricultural officials won't estimate acreage. Prince Edward Island farmers have planted a few potatoes—the island's main crop.

Across Northumberland strait Nova Scotians have made a start on potato and grain planting.

British Columbia farmers are not expecting any bumper crops this year because of spring frost and floods.

Gunman Shoots Self at Climax Of Big Manhunt

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland Yard today probed the twisted past of a six-foot-three crazed ex-soldier to determine why he shot three men in a roving "day of revenge" before taking his own life Tuesday night.

Nathan Goldberg, 37, killed himself in a taxi in central London as police closed in on him after London's biggest manhunt since the war.

William Gibbons, one of three men shot by Goldberg's .29 calibre pistol, died early today. John Walsh, 54, shot in the back on the steps of the east end flats where he and Goldberg lived, is in hospital "very seriously ill."

Another victim, Emmanuel Nathan, shot in his flat-and-chip shop in another part of London, was not seriously hurt and was allowed to leave the hospital after several hours.

PERSONAL VENDETTA

The frantic end of Goldberg's brief reign of terror—believed by police to have been a vendetta against personal acquaintances—ended in the Strand, just off Trafalgar Square, around midnight.

Police, some of them breaking tradition by being armed, spotted the towering ex-Irish Guardsman leaving a west end movie and tracked him through the jostling crowds.

They knew he had four bullets left in the magazine of his Italian automatic pistol and they dared not pounce on him in the crowded streets lest he tried to shoot his way out.

But the hunted man, probably knowing they were at his heels, solved the problem himself. He leapt into a taxi and shot himself in the head.

Police found him slumped in the back of the cab with the still-smoking pistol beside him. He was dead on arrival at hospital.

Painting Stolen From Gallery Is Recovered

TORONTO (CP) — A Reubens masterpiece, stolen Tuesday night from the Art Gallery of Toronto, was recovered today. Cpl. Arthur Sloss of the Ontario provincial police, on his way to work, found the painting, "The Elevation of the Cross," on the lawn of the provincial parliament buildings in central Toronto.

There was no immediate explanation today why it was abandoned. Early reports of its recovery indicated it was undamaged, as the weather overnight was clear and dry.

The 27-by-22 inch work, by Flemish master Peter Paul Rubens, was insured for $20,000 Police believe the theft was carried out by men working for a private collector or by a religious fanatic because there were more valuable paintings in the gallery.

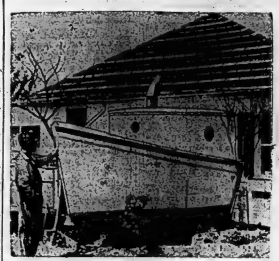
The oil painting, which depicts Christ being raised on the Cross, vanished from a section of the gallery devoted to European works from the 15th to 18th centuries.

The theft was discovered about 10:30 p.m. after the thieves tripped a burglar alarm on their way out a fire-escape door at the rear of the two-storey building. It is believed they hid in the gallery, in downtown Toronto, during the day until the 6 p.m. closing time.

POLICE ALERTED

In a matter of hours police in Canada and at United States border points were put on the alert. A description of the painting went to the FBI.

The gilt frame was taken from the wall in the gallery and a red silk covering at the back was ripped off. Wooden clamps held the painting in place and these were turned so that the painting and wooden stretcher holding it could be lifted.



The Rubens was bought in 1928 for 3,200 guineas. It was described as being of extreme dramatic quality, reinforced by color — mainly dull browns and steely-blue greys accented by touches of rose, clear blue and red on the garments of the figures.

Rubens, who died in 1640, is recognized as typifying Flemish art at its 17th century height. He painted both secular and religious works and great examples of the latter are found in all famous galleries.

CATS STAY FREE

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council rejected a proposal to impose a licence on cats, similar to dogs. "Next it will be canaries," commented an indignant alderman.

AN OPTICAL ILLUSION?

No, the scene above isn't an optical illusion. It was created on purpose by Jerry Turner of Wanchese, North Carolina. The front of the boat is inside the house which Turner built around an old 40-foot fishing boat. His bedroom is now in what used to be the cabin of the boat. The whole theme of his house is "nautical but nice." (Central Press Canadian).

HISTORIC STANE

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A curling stone which may be the oldest in Canada was unearthed in the mud of Quidi Vidi lake. The stone is believed to have been used for curling on the lake about 100 years ago, before there were any skating rinks in St. John's.

STIRLING—On Sunday afternoon Stirling Lodge No. 229 I.O.O.F. and Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211 held their annual divine service at St. John's Church of England.

Stirling band under the leadership of bandmaster Maurice Bell led the members of the I.O.O.F. Lodge No. 229 with visiting brethren numbering approximately 75 men. The visitors were from various outside points.

Captain G. Miller was in command of The Belleville Canima No. 1 with 25 in the group. Messrs. Neil Jenson and Ray Oldrey carried the flags and acted in the capacity of color bearers.

About 60 members and visitors of the Rebekah Lodges met the men at the church. The guests were from Gananoque, Kingston, Peterborough, Picton, Tweed, Madoc, Thomasburg, Belleville, Trenton and other points.

WELCOME TENDERED

Rev. H. C. Secker, L.Th., the pastor of the church, and Oddfellow of Hastings, welcomed the group and officiated at the service. A lovely basket of tulips was placed on the chorel rail.

The service opened with the processional hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers", followed by the placing of the flags, and the "National Anthem".

The general confession was used and the Oddfellows' prayer that benevolence and charity may be promoted. The offering was gathered by Messrs. John Chard and Bustimer Belshaw.

Mrs. B. Glendening sang "Silence Within".

Mr. Secker based his message on "Friendship, Love and Truth", and limited it to the Bible sequel "God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Spirit". He graphically pictured God's friendship and fellowship when he created the earth, and made man. Then followed God's love for all mankind, and lastly the truth that sets men free.

The speaker gave several narratives to point out the importance of those three links of Oddfellowship. The service closed with "Blest Be the Tie that Binds the Lord", and the benediction.

The children's story, "The Best Next Door to Jesus", was given by Master Teddy Clapp. Four of the Juniors sang "Hear the Pennies Dropping" with Miss Joan Vandervoort using the verses as a solo.

The meditation period was read responsively, followed by the Lord's prayer in unison. The hymn "I Would Be True for There Are Those Who Trust Me" was sung and the offering was then received by Mr. Bob Bush and Mr. Everett Harry, this to be used for the work of Christian Education in Ontario. The intermediates sang "Jesus Wants Me For a Sunbeam". Miss Gail Lohnes read a story, "Sharing".

At the baptismal service there were three children baptized, the parents were Mr. and Mrs. Anson Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Harder, and Mr. and Mrs. Junior Brooks. Rev. G. A. Puttenham gave the parents this message: "God has provided you with these young children so do your best to prepare yourselves as one approves".

Mr. Ernest Bush, Sunday School superintendent, presided.

Check List

for the careful big-car buyer

CHECK THE CAR FOR SIZE...

You can't judge a big car by the name alone. Many lines of cars include one or more "little brothers" — models with bodies no larger than those you put in the low-price field!

In contrast to this, the economical Powermaster model is a full-size De Soto. In fact, it is nearly 18 feet long with a 125-inch wheelbase — one of the biggest, roomiest, luxury cars on the Canadian road.

CHECK THE TRANSMISSION...

An important item, because on most cars you'll be charged extra for an automatic transmission — as much as $200 extra. But on all De Soto models, you get PowerFlite automatic transmission at no extra cost. What's more, PowerFlite is the newest and finest of all automatic transmissions.

CHECK THE ENGINE...

The De Soto Powermaster engine is famous for thrilling performance coupled with real economy. It's a smooth-running, quiet engine with many quality features. For example, it is equipped with a waterproof ignition system, for dependable starting in any weather. It also has an oil-bath air cleaner, an oil filter, resistor spark plugs, etc.

You might assume that all so-called "big" cars would have such long-life features. But if you check carefully, you'll find these items are not available — or that they cost you extra — on many other cars.

CHECK THE SAFETY...

For greater safety, all De Soto cars have Safety Rim wheels. Their electric windshield wipers never slow down under acceleration. Cyclebond rivetless brake linings provide more usable gripping surface and longer wear. DeSoto front wheel brakes each have two hydraulic cylinders, instead of the usual single cylinder. These extra safety features are priceless to the safety-conscious driver.

CHECK THE STYLING...

From the broad, distinctive grille to the "bull's-eye" taillights, the new De Soto Powermaster is a long, low beauty with sleek, flowing lines. It is finished in hot enamel to retain its beauty. Inside you'll find rich fabrics, durable vinyl trim and deep-pile carpets. Here is truly smart styling, not marred by gaudiness.

CHECK THE RIDE...

There is no substitute for a long wheelbase, a big box-section frame and extra-long springs if you want a really luxurious ride. The De Soto Powermaster has all these . . . plus a new No-Sway ride control and Oriflow shock absorbers that adjust automatically to smooth out all types of bumps.

Only by riding in a new De Soto can you appreciate what a great difference these features make. It's an experience you ought to try . . . soon.

This is only a partial list of many quality features you should consider. Ask your dealer to show you some of the many other advantages you'll find in the distinctive new De Soto Powermaster.

Heroic French Nurse Will Be Freed Report

GENEVA (CP) — Geneviève de Galard Terraube, heroic French Air Force nurse who was captured by the rebel Vietminh when the French Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu fell, will be freed today, a Vietminh delegation source here said.

The source, who declined to be quoted by name, said his delegation had received a telegram from the Vietminh high command in Indo-China advising of the pending action.

No information was given how her release would be effected but it was presumed she would be flown out of Dien Bien Phu by helicopter, along with wounded French prisoners.

Police Bullets Riddle Gas Tank To End Chase

COLLINGWOOD (CP) — Police arrested a suspect on five charges Tuesday after a wild seven-mile car chase that ended when officers riddled the gas tank on the fleeing automobile with bullets.

Two Ontario provincial police cruisers took up the chase on highway No. 24 here. One of them was forced off the roadway by the car.

Clifford Hughson, 47, of nearby Singhampton was charged with breaking and entering a Singhampton store, possession of burglary tools, false pretences, dangerous driving and driving while his licence was under suspension.

Police chased the suspect's car when it sped past them on Collingwood's main street. No one was hurt.

DUBLIN (AP) — Officials today began counting the votes from Tuesday's parliamentary election in the Irish Republic. Final results are expected late Thursday night or some time Friday.

About 1,200,000 voted Tuesday to determine whether veteran Prime Minister Eamon de Valera will continue to lead the country.

Despite a bright spring sun, it was estimated that about half a million registered voters did not cast their ballots.

'Hunger Strike' Plans Called Off By Italian Blind

ROME (AP) — Italy's blind "misery marchers," assured officially that something will be done to boost their $6-a-month pensions, Tuesday night called off their plans for a sit-down hunger strike on parliament's doorstep.

The bedraggled column of 600 sightless men and women marched into Rome Tuesday carrying signs: "We, too, have a right to live." Sixty began the march from Florence May 8, and their ranks were swelled by blind demonstrators from cities all over Italy.

French Step Up Evacuation Of Wounded Men

By LARRY ALLEN

HANOI (AP)—The French high command today threw all available helicopters and light planes in northern Indo-China into the job of airlifting 450 French wounded out of the fallen fortress of Dien Bien Phu.

Helicopters, Beavers and Mooney aircraft took off from the royal Laotian capital of Luangprabang starting a big shuttle service into and out of Dien Bien Phu, 175 miles west of here.

The French acted to speed up evacuation after the Communist rebels had refused to do anything about repairing the fortress' main airstrip sufficiently to permit the landing of Dakota transports which could carry big cargoes of wounded.

80 PER DAY

With helicopters and small planes the French are hopeful of evacuating as many as 80 wounded daily from Dien Bien Phu.

The wounded are being flown from Luangprabang by Dakotas to the military hospital here.

Coincident with the step-up of evacuations, the French increased intensity of aerial assaults upon Vietminh troops moving out of Dien Bien Phu along roads towards the western perimeter of the Red river delta where troops which smashed the fortress may attack within four weeks.

Race For Top Slots In National League Tighter Than A Traffic Jam

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BASEBALL!

Next Monday Coach Vern Goyer's Belleville Bntas take off for Peterborough, where they get their 1954 baptism of fire in this Vladuct-Ontario Baseball League, henceforth known as the "VOBL", and no cracks please about "Venerable Order of Baseball Lags," against the Peterborough Petes.

Many moons have flitted across the heavens, and many a Kawartha pickerel has gone to its skilleted doom since a Belleville baseball club crossed diamond rapiers with the friendly enemy from the city of Lifilocks, lacrosse champs, river-tonging fans and Quaker Oats.

It will be a rebirth of keen, sometimes bitter, rivalry, that has existed between the two cities since the halcyon days of the ancient and venerable Central Ontario Baseball League when the Swansteen, the Heckmans, the Al Murrays, the Hap Harrisons, the Tommy Foleys, the Freddie Ashes and the Ab Roces used to toss the diamond caber, plus other stuff, against the Jack Williams, the Doc Blakleys, the Feeney and Harry Mills brothers (no relation to the "rassling" family), the Host Gibsons and others of that golden era.

But the squads which used to vent any extra spleen left over from their personal feud, against clubs from '57 Tyrone's Corners and Joe Daly's Kincardine hillbillies, are a brave company this year. Oshaw is the only familiar name in the official loop roster, the others being the Oakville Oaks and the Hoakings and Dependables, two teams from Toronto.

The teams will play a thirty-game schedule, according to the official document which arrived in the mails yesterday with the final games slated for August 7th.

The Bntas will play Sunday baseball in Toronto in the form of doubleheaders, meeting the two Queens City squads in afternoon games. They have a six p.m. sports curfew in Bunny Mergansen's home town. Three times the Goyer crew will make the double trouble trip, which, after all, is not bad from a transportation expenses point of view.

In fact several doubleheaders are included in the schedule which on the whole seems mostly fair to all concerned. However, there may be some difficulty in the twin bill which calls for the Bntas to play in Oakville at 2.30 on one occasion, and in Oshawa at 8.30 the same date. If the Oakville game proves to be a three-hour "longie," as baseball games sometimes are, there might be some delay in getting to Oshawa on time. After, all, baseball players eat, if only occasionally.

However that is merely a possibility. The most important things are closer to hand. Right now the Bntas are undergoing stiff "spring training" for that opener in Peterborough on the holiday, which by the way is a night game starting at 8.30 under the klegs.

The Petes have already tasted diamond blood. They opened the season in Toronto last Sunday, dropping the jouri 7-3 to the Hoakings. Seemed both squads kicked the gong and the ball around with more or less abandon, and errors played an important part in the defeat. However, the Petes were always tough nuts to crack up in Perdueville, and smarting under the initial setback they will be out there fighting on Fire Cracker Day.

The Toronto Dependables will be the guests of the Bntas in their first home appearance on May 23 in a game getting under way at 2.30 p.m. The Toronto team packs its warbags immediately following the till here and asfarte to Peterborough to joust with the Petes in a night game. Incidentally they will pick up two bundles of expense letmce on the trip around the circuit.

GOOD FAKE!

Take one heavily-upholstered "rassler," who represents nearby a quarter-ton of threshing fury, add a snarling roughly, brought, whose mayhemic tactics have earned him the name of "Hate Incorporated" in these parts, garnish them with four flying, reasonable facsimilies of the behemoths of the pachydermic set, toss in a couple of fast moving, preliminary boys and you have some idea of the mat attraction at Memorial Arena this Friday.

"Orrible" Fred Atkins, from the land of the Waltzing Matildas, a villain of the darkest hue, mingles with bearded Hombre Montana, a huge collection of cowpoke who whipped three men single handed here last week, clash in the main affair. Little Beaver and Kruger, Fuzzy Cupid and Sky-Lo-Lo, half-pint editions of the big boys, will provide some thrilling acrobatics, plus not a few laughs while Big Bill Eakins, another giant "heavy" mingles with Lou Klein.

THEY'RE OFF!

Stock-car racing addicts are in—for another outstanding dish of their favorite fare at the Fair Grounds tonight when Dick Burrowes stages his second meet of the season. The sport, practically new around these parts, already has a large following and with expert drivers at the helm of the track-burning cars, plenty of thrills and chills are in the making. The closeness of the finishes, as last Saturday's meet furnished plenty of excitement for the fans and tonight's edition should be even more thrill producing as the drivers get used to the track. First heat at eight o'clock.

Seven of Eight Contenders Parked Bumper to Bumper; Yanks Hug Tribe in American

By BEN PHLEGAR

Associated Press Sports Writer

Before long they may have to install traffic signals to untangle the jam that's developing in the race for first place in the National League.

Seven of the eight baseball clubs —everybody but Pittsburgh—have joined in the fun. And even the Pirates have been winning often enough to keep the others wary.

Only a two-game spread separates Chicago Cubs, in seventh place, from Philadelphia Phillies and Brooklyn Dodgers who are deadlocked at the top.

With the race so tight, a single victory or loss can send a team bouncing up or down. Tuesday night, for example, New York Giants went into their game with St. Louis Cardinals in third place with a chance to take over first. Instead, they lost 9-3 and tumbled to fourth.

TAKE OVER THIRD

The Cardinals took over third, where they will be the leaders by a bare four percentage points.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia both lost. The Dodgers, idle Monday, were held to a single run and bowed 5-1 to Milwaukee Braves and the Cubs. Milwaukee beat the Phillies 6-5. Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 6-3 in the other National League contest.

The first-place race in the American League also is tight. Fourth-place Detroit is only three games out but Baltimore, in fifth, is 6½ behind.

Cleveland hung on to the lead by whipping Boston 6-3 for its sixth straight victory. New York tonight moved into second with a 4-3 come-from-behind verdict over Chicago White Sox. Detroit downed Philadelphia Athletics 8-3 and Washington trimmed Boston 3-1.

The Cardinals converted six hits into six runs in the first two innings with the aid of four Cincinnati errors. Gerry Staley played the distance for the Cardinals in this spring and picked up his third victory. Stan Musial singled twice, walked twice and struck out once.

TAMES DODGERS

Hacker tamed Brooklyn on four hits. The only Brooklyn run came in the seventh on Duke Snider's blast over the scoreboard.

Al Rosen drove in the lone man in Cleveland's triumph over Boston. He blasted two home runs and drove in another with a double.

Ted Williams played at night for the first time in Boston and scored a single in four appearances. He failed twice with the bases loaded and two out.

The White Sox pulled away to a 3-0 lead only to be caught by the Yankees in the eighth when with two out and one on Gene Woodling hit a homer. In the ninth, with two out and two on, Yogi Berra drilled a single off Bob Grim for the winning run.

Steve Gromek became the winningest pitcher in either league as he picked up No. 7 for the Tigers at the expense of the Athletics.

Biltmores Have $10,000 Deficit

GUELPH (CP) — The Biltmore junior hockey club Tuesday announced a deficit of $10,000 for 1953-54. Earlier unofficial reports had tabbed the loss at between $8,000 and $9,000.

"I expect we'll have hockey here next season," said one club official "but at present our tie-up with the New York Rangers has lapsed as has our contract with the arena and we have no coach."

Frank Boucher, general manager of the Rangers, will be here next week and new arrangements with the Bilts is expected.

A change in the executive of the club is also expected. At present it numbers nine but up to five resignations are expected at a re-organization meeting called for next week.

Havana Wins Eight in Row; Chiefs Lose Nine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Old-timers are playing a big part in the bid of the Havana Cuban Sugar Kings for the International League pennant.

Havana won its eighth straight game Tuesday night by defeating Ottawa Athletics 11-7 in 12 innings. Clarence Ioit, former major league pitcher, and veteran shortstop John Lipon played major roles.

Ioit chalked up his third straight victory without a defeat, while Lipon drove out four hits in six attempts and drove in three runs.

Havana broke the game wide open in the top of the 12th, scoring four runs off reliefer Ed Monahan.

Richmond Virginians scored a big victory over Syracuse Chiefs, who now have lost nine straight.

Dittie Howell's fourth single of the game scored Sandy Amoros from second in the bottom of the ninth to give Montreal Royals a 5-4 decision over Buffalo Bisons.

Hodges Threatens Run Record

NEW YORK (AP)—If Gil Hodges maintains his grand slam pace of the past five years, he appears a cinch to break the National League record for most home runs with the bases filled and may even threaten the major league mark.

The powerfully-built Brooklyn first baseman smashed his 10th grand slam home run Sunday to move within two of the league record of 12 established by Rogers Hornsby 20 years ago and equalled by Ralph Kiner last season. Lou Gehrig holds the major league mark of 23.

It took Hornsby 20 years to accumulate his dozen grand slam home runs. Kiner, the only active National Leaguer with more four-run blows than Hodges, needed only eight years to collect his dozen.

R. Zucchini of Hamilton, with 901, replaced Benton of Brantford as open singles leader. J. Symons of Long Branch took over the high aggregate with 2,496.

'Native Dancer' Hailed by Some As Equal to Immortal 'Man-O-War'

By GAYLE TALBOT.

NEW YORK (AP)—A big, gray horse named Native Dancer damaged the hearts of millions of television viewers by the breathless manner in which he won the Metropolitan handicap at Belmont Park during the week-end.

There might never have been a greater finish to a horse race than when Al Vanderbilt's wonderful runner came from far back at the final turn to win the mile classic by a neck.

Now when the word goes around that Native Dancer is the equal of the immortal Man O'War, there must be ready belief in millions of living hearts.

Native Dancer now is even with the record held by Man O'War when the latter was retired by his owner, the late Sam Riddle. At the conclusion of his campaign as a three-year-old in 1920-21 races, Man O'War had a record of 20 wins and one defeat. The Dancer has won his last two as a four-year-old, an opportunity which was denied the horse known as Big Red.

DANCER'S CHANCE COMING.

Native Dancer will have his chance to go out by himself when he runs in the 1¼ mile Suburban handicap at Belmont Park May 31. The Dancer carried 130 pounds last week, and the question is the weight which will be loaded onto him in the Suburban. The popular guess is 133 pounds.

No four-year-old, such as the Dancer, running against older horses, ever has won the Suburban carrying more than 130 pounds.

It has been written and is widely believed that Man O'War never was called upon to pack any great amount of weight during his meteoric career; that Riddle retired him before the track handicappers could get a real shot at him as a four-year-old. Didn't he, though.

SET RECORD CARRYING 138

In the Stuyvesant handicap at Jamaica in 1920 Man O'War carried 138 pounds of jockey and saddle and lead weights to an stands.

easy victory. Later on, in next to his last race, Big Red shouldered a crushing 138 pounds in the Potomac handicap at Havre de Grace and clipped a fifth of a second from the track record for the mile and a sixteenth in defeating three rivals. His opponents packed, respectively, 114, 108, and 104½ pounds.

In that year, when he was setting five American records for various distances, Man O'War still was a season younger than Native Dancer now is and should not, by right, have been given weight to older, more seasoned handicap horses. One of his rivals, that for a mile and three-eighths, still

Only Four Fillies Have Won Plate In Last 30 Renewals of Race

TORONTO (CP)—Only four fillies have been listed among winners of the last 30 renewals of the Queen's Plate but a trim Miss named Windina is being ogled by turf pundits these mornings. Windina, winner of $30,000 plum stakes in 1953, is conceded an excellent chance of beating her male rivals in the gallop for the 1954 classic June 12.

Horsemen remember vividly the manner in which a filly named Canadiana ran away and hid from the colts in the 1953 renewal of the plate. It was appropriate, of course, that Canadiana should have won because the 1953 plate was contested on Coronation Day. However, never in the history of the race have fillies won in successive years. In comparatively recent seasons: Young Misty won the Sally Ann in 1939; the long-priced Paolita in 1943 and Canadiana.

Windina represents the first racing venture of B. R. Steen, a Toronto business man. Steen wandered into the yearling sales at Woodbine in 1952, raised his hand to scratch his ear and, the best thing he knew, the auctioneer told him he had bought a filly for $3,400. The filly had been consigned by Frank Conklin, Brantford, Ont., breeder and she was turned over for training to Jim Bentley.

In her first start at Woodbine in 1953, Windina took a field of eager fillies. She bustled out of the gate and led all the way.

WON YEARLING STAKES

After that, she raced greenly in two starts. She was fourth in the My Dear Stakes after starting slowly. She then tried to Beau Bunty and Trochanter (both colts) in the Clarendon stakes and again closed well from a slow beginning. She was shipped to Fort Erie and won the yearling sales stakes when she pulled away from the field in the last furlong.

In the 3-year-old stakes at Long Branch, she was beaten by less than three lengths by Fore Trade, King Maple and Onyboy but tired slightly at the close. She won the Princess Elizabeth at Woodbine in easy fashion.

Then, she gave another manifestation of feminine unpredictability in the Coronation Stakes at one mile and 70 yards. She raced easily for five furlongs, took the lead when she was ready and appeared to run out of wind and finished a puffing and blowing sixth.

Reluctantly, Bentley decided to give her one last chance to prove she could go over a distance. He entered her in a special race at one mile and 70 yards at Woodbine. Windina came up a handy lead and bunt on to beat Collister by a whisker.

Windina earned $8,415 to top all Canadian-bred two-year-olds in the money-won department.

Professional price-makers rate Windina at 20-to-1 which is considered to be a short price for a filly at this stage of the game.

Sport in Brief

LONDON (CP)—Conn Smythe, managing director of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, left for home by air Tuesday with the question of his challenge to Russia still up in the air.

He's been informed that there aren't any artificial ice rinks in Moscow, a Canadian government spokesman said, "so it looks as though the challenge is either off or the conditions will have to be altered." Smythe himself told friends before leaving that the team is still willing to play Russia but that he doesn't think there is much hope.

EDMONTON (CP)—Earl Walls of Toronto, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion who jabbed out an easy 10-round decision Monday night over Freddie Beshore of Los Angeles, took his biggest blow of the night in his dressing room after the bout.

The Edmonton boxing and wrestling commission fined him $100, plus $178.35 in costs, for breaking his earlier "commitment" to fight Beshore here and engaging in a match in Toronto with Tommy Harrison, also of Los Angeles. He will appeal the fine.

A. Weinmeister Good As Two, Says Coach

SEATTLE (AP) — Lawrence T. Buck Shaw, coach of San Francisco's professional football team, testified Tuesday that Arnie Weinmeister, professional football player, required the attention of two men on the San Francisco team whenever he played against them.

"Weinmeister," said Shaw, "is the outstanding tackle of the National Football League," and unless two men were assigned to play against him "he'd mess up the plays every time."

Shaw was testifying in behalf of the New York Football Giants Inc., professional club which is attempting to force Weinmeister to play for it rather than the British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union with whom he signed this year.

The Giants are contending they have Weinmeister under contract until May 1 of next year and have asked the Superior Court to restrain him from playing for anyone else.

They contend Weinmeister, virtually is irreplaceable, so outstanding are his talents. Weinmeister modestly contends it isn't so, he can be replaced by some of the other good football tackles.

Mimico Loses To Trailermen

TORONTO (CP) — Peterborough Trailermen defeated Mimico Mountaineers 8-4 Tuesday night to spoil Mimico's home opener of the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association season.

Russ Slater and Denny Peterson scored two goals each for Peterborough. Bob Curtis, Gerry Fitzgerald, Curly Mason and Harry Wipper added singles. Pop Chard scored a pair for Mimico, Ken Dixon and Kack Kapasky adding the others.

Buffalo Raceway

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP) — Performers in the first two pacing events accounted for the $17,70 daily double Tuesday night at Buffalo Raceway.

Bolb Betty's Guy in the first and Hollycrod Guy R. in the second paced the mile in 2:10 4-5. A beaten favorite his last trip, the Ontario five-year-old gelding, Hollycrod Guy R., retained for driver Bud Gilmour and owner Cecil Reid of West Lorne.

Sima Dillon, a 12 to 1 shot, paid off $28.20 in the fourth race, marred by an accident when Kay Dillon went down and spilled owner Howard Landers. The Otterville, Ont., mare, driven by owner Ed Arthur, defeated the favorite, E. D. Hawk by 1½ lengths.

Cockell Is Too Close to Marciano; Walls Not in Class, Says Manager

By JEFF RYAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Don Cockell, written off not so long ago as a boxing has-been, figures he's within punching distance of the world heavyweight title.

The British and Empire heavyweight champion, a tubby one-time blacksmith now ranked fourth behind champion Rocky Marciano, increased his status in the boxing world with a recent decision over Roland La Starza. The cheer he manufactured within the gloomy British fight game, however, is a successful heavyweight contender since Welsh miner Tommy Farr met the young Joe Louis twice, will expand considerably if Cockell wins again June 1.

The opponent is Seattle's Harry Matthews, the fighter Cockell beat last year on the west coast. The new cocky Cockell is confident it's just another fight.

AIMING FOR MARCIANO

The new mood is illustrated in the attitude now taken toward a proposed empire title fight between the Londonborn boxer and Earl Walls, the Canadian heavyweight champion. To Cockell and his manager, Jim Simpson, Cockell's manager who was "very interested" not so long ago, now it's a dull bout.

"Now we're so near Marciano, it won't be worth our while. Walls is not in the same class."

Cockell, only five feet nine inches weight more than 210 pounds. Critics once claimed he fought best at the table.

His tendency to put on pounds and exude "slimming" cost him the British and empire light-heavyweight title in June, 1952, when Randy Turpin won on a technical knockout.

After that, fights were scarce. Cockell, 25, had to start at the bottom again, but in six months was heavyweight king of Britain and empire and he has never lost a fight in the ring.

Cockell, a boxing barrel, has a deceptive style.

He can box with both hands, take a punch and get out of trouble. His fights with both La Starza and Matthews indicate he knows a bit about boxing. He's not noted for knockout punching, but he can put victims away.

At heavy, Jack Cockell, he is really more of a farmer than anything else. Most of his spare time is spent on his Sussex pig-and-poultry farm.

Cockell, born in the shadow of the gasworks in London's Battersea district, first fought professionally at 17 for a purse of £7. Today, he's the only real attraction in British boxing.

Wheat Germ For White Sox

CHICAGO (AP)—Baby's formula has nothing on Chicago White Sox, who have something similar.

The ball players are getting a daily allotment of wheat germ, a nutritious food supplement.

Manager Paul Richards said he became interested when he read that wheat germ had taken in conjunction with exercise, can increase a man's physical capacity and endurance as much as 50 per cent.

And now there is speculation whether he is ready to become Detroit's first outstanding catcher since the golden days of Mickey Cochrane in the mid-30s. It's been that long since the Tigers have had a truly top-grade receiver.

The Tigers signed House in the fall of 1946 for a then-fabulous $75,000 and two automobiles. There followed five years of frustration—for both House and the Tigers—and this spring the club was ready to write him off as a costly bust and ship him to the minors.

He looked like a real bad," said Tiger skipper Fred Hutchison. "He was awful at the plate and were behind it."

Catcher Frank House, $75,000 Bust, Starting to Pay Overdue Dividends

DETROIT (AP)—After five uncertain years catcher Frank House of $75,000 bonus bust up until now is starting to pay overdue dividends to Detroit Tigers.

Manager Paul Richards said he became interested when he read that wheat germ, taken in conjunction with exercise, can increase a man's physical capacity and endurance as much as 50 per cent.

The Tigers were set to farm House to Little Rock when a high-ranking member of the Detroit front office was dispatched to the spring training base to give the situation one more look. After all, $75,000 and two automobiles is no light investment.

House was given another chance. Coach Johnny Hopp worked on his hitting. "I made him crouch at the plate," Hopp said. "It kept him from supercutting the ball."

Another coach worked on House's defensive weaknesses, and Hutchinson himself instilled confidence in the six-foot-two catcher, playing him almost every day.

The progress was slow, but on May 1 the transpiration began. House started his 13-game hitting streak, and his play behind the plate became steadier and surer.

The Kibitzer

Much space has been spent here on the hands played by masters in the last nationals. My purpose is to prove to you that plenty of their bidding ways is bad for your bridge.

My respects for their playing ability is unbounded. Even though they make occasional mistakes in that too. But I resent their smug disdain of simple rules, a slice of which would do them good.

Their inconsistency, though, is even more exasperating. Just when they should bid suits they are in no-trump. But give them cards that should be in no-trump and they slide over to a suit.

In their match take deal number 11 that you see here:

NORTH
♠A 10 6 4
♥J 10 9
♦10 9 8
♣K 7 4

WEST
♠J 9 8 5
♥K Q 7 3
♦K 7 3
♣Q 9 6

EAST
♠Q
♥A 8 5 2
♦A Q J 5 4
♣J 10 8

SOUTH
♠K 7 3 2
♣A 5 3 2

They should know there is no chance at all to make game in a suit. If any hope for game exists with such cards it is in no-trump.

Eight solid tricks are in the red suits. A trick is certain in clubs or spades for the ninth.

Only the toughest kind of luck stops nine tricks from coming in at a no-trump game.

Still, only 11 were in three no-trump and seven of these were defeated. Three in two no-trump made it easily. Six were permitted to play it in one no-trump and had an easy time with overtricks.

And yet, more than a third of the tables were in part scores of various types and suits. Among the shaded suit bidders, four were in two spades, one in three spades, four in two hearts.

Two of the major suit bidders never doubled. At all the other tables (seven), diamonds was the contract. This was the proper trump suit if a pair could not find the stuff for tying three no-trump.

Four were in one or two diamonds. Two were in three diamonds. One was in four diamonds doubled. All three diamond bidders made it.

But the point is these masters are contrary cusses. In a suit they flop to no-trump. When in no-trump they want out in suit.

Your Individual Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, MAY 20, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Situations in the news tend to govern your attitude toward day's activities. Review significance of offerings, your problems. P.M.: better possibilities than usual; be alert, ready to act for gains.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—New and unusual events probably all matters will need smart decisions, thoughtful management. Note opposition around you but do not let it deter your progress.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A lively day, practically made-to-order for you alert thinkers. But don't be too anxious to get on with things. If not properly paced its impetus could bring high achievement.

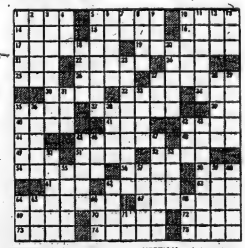
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Follow the right path and avoid anything savoring of a questionable nature and you will build strongly for your future. Accept something different if it shows sound possibilities.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Services, conferences for the purpose of devising better methods, plans for business, social affairs favored. Don't force your ideas on others unless sure you are right.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—You will enjoy the fruits of your efforts if you are consistent and act according to properly established rules. Don't be too conservative or timid about taking truly progressive steps.

September 24 to October 2? (Libra)—Though you may encounter stiff opposition, there are chances to break through for fresh gains, doing the unusual. Heart interests as influence; may affect results; watch trends.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Departure for shipping, farming, science, many business activities and personal affairs. Domestic and social matters have high place among favored activities. Make plans astutely.



November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—The indications are inspiring, but are better for some matters, such as sound investments and dealing in stable commodities, than they are for the purely speculative. The unusual could do well.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Some restrictions now. A conservative attitude will be your best protection until you have considered the best way to progress. Tighten the purse strings; don't spend uselessly.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—We don't feel anybody but ourselves when we think we can handle undertakings without sincere thought or study. Today promises good results from conscientiousness, solidity, balance.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Many diversified aspects today. But you may find a tendency toward impatience, nervous tension. Calm thinking, action needed more than ever, also confidence and sincerity.

YOU BORN TODAY: Your Sign is Taurus; ruling planet: Venus; especial color: Red. Your birthgem: the sapphire. You are innately conscientious, loyal and rarely betray a trust; are intensely strong-willed, dogmatic. You have great powers of endurance, physical and mental, can bear long periods of fatigue, when necessary. But don't over overtax when you shouldn't. Avoid excesses of any kind. Birthdate of: Honore de Balzac, Fr. novelist; John Stuart Mill, Eng. philosopher.

Give Up Inhaling Doctor Advises Cigaret-Smokers

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—
Dr. Richard Overholt, Boston chest surgeon, suggested Tuesday night that the cigaret-smoking public "give up inhaling the smoke until the issue is definitely settled as to whether or not such inhalation can cause cancer of the lung."

Overholt said "there is no question in my own mind but that there is an association between lung cancer and heavy smoking accompanied by inhaling." He suggested that doctors "take the lead in giving up inhaling, so as to set a good example for the people."

The surgeon made the suggestions although reporters shortly after he had presided at a panel on lung cancer held during the meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association.

The majority opinion among the panel of six doctors was that there might be a relationship between heavy cigaret smoking and some cases of lung cancer.

But, despite the smokers among some 200 doctors in the audience there apparently had not been a tention of giving up smoking.

German Sub Delayed On Trip to Chicago

NEW YORK (AP)—A captured
German submarine, being towed to Chicago, was slowed down by heavy seas off Halifax, it was reported here Tuesday night.

Rodney Jones, captain of the tug
Pauline Moran which is towing the U-505, reported the delay in a message to the Moran Towing Company of New York.

The sub, to be put on display at the museum of science and industry in Chicago, originally was scheduled to reach Baie Comeau,
Que., today, to enter Lake Ontario
May 23 and to reach Port Colborne about May 25.

Govt. Greets 100,000th Dutch Immigrant

MONTREAL (CP) — A pretty
19-year-old girl stepped off the Stater Groote Beer today to a welcome by government and company officials as the 100,000th Dutch immigrant to Canada since the Second World War.

Blue-eyed Aletha Gerardina ("Kossje" Bol, fell into the arms of her sister, Gilsberthe, who preceded the rest of the family to Canada. Also on board the Dutch government ship were 1,200 immigrants, a younger sister and two younger brothers.

Immigration Minister Harris and
A. H. J. Lovink, Netherlands ambassador to Canada, watched the family reunion. Mr. Harris extended an official welcome, and
Mr. Lovink made Jacobs guest of honor at a reception attended by prominent federal and municipal officials.

The two younger girls, both high school graduates, plan to get work as domestics for a time.

The two boys, Gerrit Adriaan,
13, and Mattys Albert, 7, will go to school here in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Bol plan to reside temporarily with their daughter Gilsbergha in Essex, Ont., where she is a nurse. Mr. Bol was formerly a dairy farmer in Utrecht province but gave up the farm to establish a dairy marketing business.

Norwegian Ship Runs Aground At Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Two tugs today freed the 2,700-ton Norwegian freighter Vesleftjell about seven hours after the ran aground on Hanlan's point while outbound at midnight near the western end of Toronto harbor.

The Fjell line freighter was floated about 7:45 a.m. by the tugs Dixon and Stuart, owned by the Toronto Dry Dock Company.

No one was injured. The vessel sailed for Montreal after being freed.

The Vesleftjell, travelling about six knots, smashed a gasoline pump, a speedboat and a concrete and gravel abutment when she grounded. The bow of the ship was lifted from the water after being carried 15 feet on the abutment.

SAYS MISTOOK LIGHTS

One member of the crew said the ship's helmsman had mistaken lights on the island airport for harbor lights on the western channel. He said when he saw the error of the smash indicated there had been no effort to alter the ship until after she had struck the concrete.

The waterline showed the freighter had been lifted out of the water eight to 10 feet at the bow.
The stern was forced down by the crash.

Despite the captain's efforts to free the ship by running her full astern for half an hour the bow wouldn't budge from the concrete filling station.

Bill Water Taxi, owners of the gasoline pumps, said the speed-boat was owned by one of their drivers and was valued at $700.

Windsor May Hold New Vote on Sunday Sport

WINDSOR (CP)—Mayor Arthur
Reaume says Windsor may have to vote again on the Sunday sport question.

In 1949, a plebiscite authorized
Sunday sport and council, in 1950, passed a bylaw to put it into effect.
The mayor said Tuesday the city broke the law last year by operating swimming pools, at which admission is charged, outside those hours.

He said another plebiscite may be necessary to see if Windsor residents want the hours extended.
If they do, the whole thing will have to go to the Ontario legislature for decision, he said.

SOCIAL WORKERS MEET

BRANTFORD (CP)—One hundred social workers from all parts of the world will visit Brantford and the Six Nations Indian reservation July 2. They will be part of the 2,500 delegates to the International Conference of Social Workers in Toronto.

CAN'T GIVE LAND

COOKSVILLE (CP)—H. E. Mills, who wanted to give his son a plot of land from his 179 acre farm a home, will not be able to do so.

Tortmio Township planners said
Tuesday night. The planning board told the Streetsville farmer that zoning by-laws stipulate that any land subdivision in that area must be at least 25 acres.

Licences Bought, Trucks Released
WINDSOR (CP)—A convoy of 15 new Canadian trucks hit the road east of Detroit this morning after a delay of a day and a half caused by lack of licence plates.
The trucks had been parked in Detroit police and placed in pound when they crossed the Ambassador Bridge Monday evening. They were en route from General Motors of Canada to Vancouver.
Harold DeYoung, investigator for the Michigan secretary of state's office, said the truck drivers would either have to purchase Michigan licence plates or obtain their violations in Canada.
Earl Cartlidge of General Motors, Windsor, said today 10 half-year Michigan plates have been bought by the firm moving the trucks. Five of the trucks are being called out on Wednesday.
The mixup, said Cartlidge, was due to confusion over the field covered by Ontario in - transit plates on the trucks. These are honored across Canada.

Contract Talks For Steel Unions Now Under Way

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The 1954 contract talks for the U.S. basic steel industry get down to fine points today as United States Steel Corp. meets the CIO United Steelworkers' union for a second day of negotiations.

The union presented its demands Tuesday in a 1½-hour meeting with the biggest producing firm, then adjourned to give the corporation time to study the issues.

David J. McDonald, union president, said he hopes "for a speedy and equitable disposition of the issues."

Vice-president John A. Stephens, who is heading the corporation's 60-man negotiating team, said he will ask the union for more specific details and the reasoning for them.

Neither side would comment on the estimated cost of the demands, but the union said it wants a wage raise, a guaranteed annual wage, improvements in pensions and hospitalization and other changes over the contract which expires June 30.

"DUE CONSIDERATION"

Stephens only comment on the demands was:

"We will give due consideration to the suggestions which are put ..."

The union is seeking contracts for about 600,000 of its 1,200,000 members. The others are employed in fabricating plants and are covered by contracts expiring later this year.

Bargaining sessions are scheduled with several other major basic steel producers later this week. The U.S. Steel sessions, however, usually highlight the bargaining.

Roebuck Protests New Amendment To Criminal Code

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator A. W. Roebuck (L — Ontario) Tuesday night protested against a government proposal which he said would give policemen the right to shoot anyone trying to evade arrest.

The proposal was submitted as a government amendment to the new Criminal Code now before Parliament. The bill has passed the Commons and now is being studied in detail by the Senate banking committee.

The amendment would permit a policeman using "as much force as is necessary to prevent the escape by flight unless the escape can be prevented by reasonable means in a less violent manner."

Senator Roebuck said this means in effect that if a policeman cannot run as fast as the escaping person he is justified in shooting him down. He said he could not agree with the proposed change.

The amendment and several sections of the bill, including those concerning sabotage, crime comics, breach of contract and committing a mischief, were delayed for further consideration.

Indo-China Parley Fate May Depend On Today's Talks

Private Discussions Held In Effort to End Deadlock

By EDDY GILMORE

GENEVA (AP)—High diplomats at the Geneva conference held a series of private talks today which may determine the future of the deadlocked Indo-China parley. The United States is reported ready to write off the representation as a failure unless the Communists drastically change their line.

Formal negotiations were suspended for the week. The latest snarl was due to continued Red demands that the Communist "resistance governments" of the Indo-China kingdoms of Laos and Cambodia be invited to Geneva. The Western powers regard these as a phantom regimes with no following and no right to representation.

One high Western source acknowledged that western diplomats have given some thought to the question of breaking off the talks. The source said it is impossible at this stage to see any sign of the Communists agreeing to anything.

EDEN KEEPS TRYING

Britain's Foreign Secretary Eden reasserted his efforts in talks with Communist and other delegates in his continued attempt to get the conference moving.

In a meeting with Eden this morning, Red China's Premier Chou En-lai expressed a willingness to proceed with discussions on a military armistice in Indo-China without pressing for recognition of Communist "regimes" in Laos and Cambodia, French sources reported.

The informants said the Communists would not abandon their claims, but would agree to discuss the Laos-Cambodian issue for the present to allow the conference to get on with proposals for a military cease-fire.

Negotiations dragged to a standstill Wednesday night after three long closed-door sessions among the nine participating delegations. A proposal by Eden for a one-day "cooling off" period was accepted, and talks were suspended until Friday.

During the break in the formal talks, Eden conferred with Chinese Big Three, hoped to find a solution in conferences with Russia's foreign affairs Minister and the Communist Chinese premier-foreign minister, Chou En-lai.

When the Cambodia-Laos issue first threatened to stall the conference 10 days ago, Molotov agreed in a private talk with Eden to get on with the negotiations without acting on the Red demands to invite the resistance groups.

The Vietminh Communist leaders raised the question again this week. Western delegates, anxious to get the discussions back to ways of ending the fighting in Indo-China, flatly refused the renewed proposal.

Conference sources said Molotov also reportedly was unwilling to accept that the delegates might soon get down to serious talks on specific drafts of armistice proposals, particularly their military aspects. This led some observers to say they believe that the Communists might again drop the issue in favor of the rebel groups in Laos and Cambodia.

The Western powers tried to limit discussion to key points of the opening armistice proposals. France's foreign minister Bidault, however, touched off the controversy over Laos and Cambodia by demanding that Communist forces be withdrawn at once from the two Indo-Chinese kingdoms.

A major provision of the French plan for ending hostilities in Indo-China was that the states of Laos and Cambodia be separated from the Communist-dominated Viet Nam. The Communist plan called for an armistice for all three states to take place following political agreement.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: This morning's weather chart still contains indications of storms this week that dry weather in southern districts would last until the week-end. A trough of low pressure is being slow to undershoot to southern Manitoba and these will probably show up north and west of Lake Superior Friday morning. Poor weather in the central Atlantic states appears likely to remain south of the Great Lakes at least until Saturday. Temperatures will remain near or a rame through Friday with risk of frost again tonight.

Came to Talk, Stayed to See Demonstration

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A parents association assembled at a high school here Wednesday night to hear a talk on juvenile delinquency.

Police Chief Charles Mueller was asked to wait a few minutes before making his speech so that the group could elect officers.

He watched in silent amazement as a stormy meeting developed into a split, with rival groups each electing a slate of officers, amid much table-pounding and various points of order.

"What about my speech?" Mueller finally asked.

It became clear the disputing factions had forgotten all about him.

Moeller put on his hat and left.

Resents Charges India's Policy One of Expediency

RANGOON, Burma (Reuters)—Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit of India, president of the United Nations General Assembly, said today she resents allegations that India's foreign policy is one of expediency.

What India is trying to do, she told a press conference, is to create "a climate of peace—a condition for lasting peace in the world."

She added that she is more afraid" of the "great division in the world between great prosperity on the one side and great underprivileged areas on the other," than any differences between the major powers.

The United Nations can do little to heal this schism between the rich and the poor areas of the world unless the peoples of both sides united within themselves and "at peace with their neighbors."

Doubts Canada First to Develop Atomic Power

BRANTFORD (CP)—Dr. Donald Misener, head of the University of Western Ontario physics department, said Wednesday night he doubts Canada will be the first nation in the world to develop an economic atomic power plant.

Commenting on recent reports that Canada will probably be the first, Dr. Misener said such a plant is "a long way off" although in areas where conventional fuel supplies are dwindling, Britain already has an atomic power plant in operation and a second under construction.

He told a joint meeting of the Brantford Medical Association and the Brantford General Hospital medical staff, that he doubts if Canada can overtake the United Kingdom.

Historian Says Churchill Confused Sea Commanders With Questions

LONDON (AP) — An official British historian says in the latest volume of his sea history of the Second World War, published Wednesday, that Prime Minister Churchill fired off too many messages at British sea commanders and confused them.

Capt. S. W. Roskill of the Royal Navy writes that Churchill's messages increased the navy's difficulties, especially during the hard-fought Norwegian campaign. One flag officer protested he had been given three different objectives.

Only Churchill, used, during critical periods of naval operations, to spend long hours in the admiralty operational intelligence centre, and the tendency for him to issue direct orders, sometimes, force, is easily to be understood.

"Many of the signals sent during this period bear the unmistakable imprint, of his language and responsibility. Admirals at sea, in their purpose and intentions were, in now appears plain that they sometimes confused the conduct of operations and increased the difficulties, especially during the hard-fought Norwegian campaign. One flag officer protested he had been given three different objectives.

NORANDA WILL GET FIRST CALL ON CERTAIN ORES

Govt. Firm in Decision To Give Priority

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is standing firm on its decision to give priority to the western section of a rail line to tap the mineral and forest wealth of northern Quebec's Chibougamau area.

The decision means that the smelters of Noranda will get first call on Chibougamau ores.

Opposition members criticized the proposal in the Commons Wednesday night after C.D. Howe said financial interests will benefit from the move.

Transport Minister Chevrier termed the charge fallacious, and said there is doubt that Chibougamau eventually will be linked by money, by rail with Noranda on the west and Lake St. John on the east.

BILL APPROVED

Following the debate, the Commons gave second reading, approval in principle, to a bill authorizing government support of a 26-mile Canadian National Railways line to join Chibougamau, some 200 miles northwest of Quebec City, with both points.

In the hall-day sitting, the House also dealt with bills amending the Veterans Land Act, providing for compensation benefits of disabled civilians and continuing federal control over transportation of oil and natural gas.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) said the decision to go ahead first with the rail line between Chibougamau and Beatty Jct., near Lake Nipissing in northern Ontario border, may make Chibougamau a satellite of Toronto financial interests. The Atikokan-Noranda area was linked by rail directly to Toronto.

Quebec members from the Lake St. John area said the decision to defer from St. Felicien to Chibougamau should be ratified at the same time as the western link.

One of them, Paul Gagnon (Independent-Lotbiniere), said the eastern section is built first "you will have a railway finished in the wrong end, whose usefulness will depend on the smelters of Toronto first and the people of Quebec later."

Mr. Chevrier replied that the CNR has traffic guarantees for six years on the western section, after which it would make a profit of $17,000 a year. It could get no traffic guarantees on the eastern section, and constructing of that line now would mean a loss of at most $1,000,000 a year.

Anxious Residents Sandbag Creeks to Prevent Major Flood

VANCOUVER (CP) — Public works crews working round the clock in the British Columbia interior held a tenuous grip on rampaging rivers and streams Wednesday as the threat of a major flood loomed.

As anxious residents sandbagged rushing creeks in the Kootenays near Nelson, trucks carrying men and equipment were dispatched from Princeton to check a breakthrough on the Similkameen river.

There was no immediate danger reported in Princeton, but a number of farms and roads to the south were inundated. Some small bridges were also reported to have been swept away by the debris-clogged creeks.

The provincial highway was transprovincial highway was reopened Wednesday night after a brief closure caused when creek spilled over the roadway.

In the Nelson district, Mark creek overflowed its banks at dusk Wednesday and residents began sending muddy water swirling into some side streets but was quickly brought under control.

CREEK CONTROLLED

Cottonwood creek, which ran out of control in Nelson and then raced south of Nelson, was still being held Wednesday night after throwing through one house and washing out a side road serving residents across the creek.

Residents sandbagged weak points along the creek banks and built dikes where they seemed in need of fill in an effort to deflect it back to its channel.

One road in the area remained closed between Curzon junction and Kingsgate on the International boundary.

Officials throughout the B.C. interior reported a "serious" deterioration of conditions as gravel roads and dikes were undermined and eroded by the waters.

SNOWFALL STILL KEY

Day-time temperatures, which have been in the mid 80's for most of the week, hold the key to developments within the next few days.

The gravest threat in the Pacific northwest exists at Bonners Ferry, Idaho, where the turbulent Kootenay river climbed to the 32.2 foot level — three feet above flood stage — most flood stage. Some 40,000 acres of farm land in the area have been flooded.

A state of emergency has been declared, and militiamen volunteers and army engineers have been working steadily building up dikes. The river crest is not expected to send somewhat Wednesday as the water spread out over a wider area. It is expected to reach its runoff crest Saturday.

U.S. Fears South Asia Pact Will Strain British Relations

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any initial coalition formed to deal with the war in Indo-China probably will be set up without the help of Britain, United States authorities say, and may be followed by several new strains on Anglo-American relations.

Authorities say the U.S. government however, will not under any circumstances cease its efforts to work for an active British role in the united front which President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles are trying to create.

British policy has made enormous gains by London until the outcome of the Geneva conference on the Indo-China armistice is known.

UNWILLING TO WAIT

The U.S., and apparently France and several other interested powers, are not willing to wait. It solved, it is possible that some kind of a united front could be set up in the next three or four weeks.

Eisenhower held a press conference Wednesday that he thinks a workable united front can be arranged, provided the proper Asian countries and Australia and New Zealand join.

State Department officials are confident that those qualifications can be met once various preliminaries events are out of the way.

One of these is the development of an understanding with the French as to the conditions under which the U.S. might intervene in the Indo-China war as a member of an alliance. Another event is the forthcoming election in Australia, after which the Australian government may harden its own policy lines.

Death Penalty, Whipping Said Unnecessary

OTTAWA (CP) — Expanding knowledge in the rehabilitation of prisoners means that capital and corporal punishment eventually may be abolished, a top officer of the John Howard Society told Parliament.

A. M. Kirkpatrick, executive director of the Ontario branch, said there is a growing feeling among the public and prisoner officials that the death penalty and whipping are unnecessary.

He said the deterrence of capital and corporal punishment is non-existent. It could not be measured, since it was not practised in countries where such punishment has been abolished to indicate that it is a deterrent effect on murderers and other offenders.

Mr. Kirkpatrick was before the Commons - Senate committee, studying whether the Canadian Criminal Code section on banning and whipping should be changed.

He said his 16-page brief contained his personal views and not those of the society.

However, LL-Cmdr. E. G. Hamilton, president of the society's Ottawa branch, and F. J. Neville, executive director of the society, support Mr. Kirkpatrick's views. The society is devoted to the rehabilitation of offenders.

RECEIVES SETTLEMENT

NEW YORK (AP) — The Maclchoners of Milford Haven has received a "satisfactory" financial settlement from the estranged husband, the Marquess of Milford Haven, Lord Milford announced today. He declined to discuss details but other sources said the settlement included a lump-sum payment of a five-figure amount.

FARMERS MEET

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Representatives of 25,000,000 farm families gathered here Wednesday for the annual conference of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers. They will consider stamping out of the aftosa virus, and the possibility of new international agreements in world trade.

Adultery Proven By Means Of Blood Test

WINDSOR (CP) — In a case thought to be the first of its kind in Canada, a St. Thomas man Wednesday won a divorce on evidence of adultery proven by means of a blood test.

William Arnold Sands won the decree on the basis of medical testimony that he could not be the father of his wife's child.

A Windsor doctor said both Sands and his wife have RH negative blood and since Mrs. Sands was the mother, Sands could not have been the father.

The same evidence was accepted in family court in February, 1953, when Mrs. Sands sought maintenance for the child from her husband. It was denied.

Believe Reds May Be Planning Formosa Invasion

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — A high Chinese Nationalist army officer in China's Chekiang province during the last few days has stirred speculation that the Communists may be preparing an attack on island bases held by Nationalist forces off the coast.

A Nationalist official today said there is no indication that an invasion is near, but acknowledged that stepped-up aerial attacks are aimed at disrupting any plans the Communists may have.

The official also acknowledged that a Red invasion could come with little advance warning.

The most important of the bases is Quemoy, just off the China coast across the Formosa. channel.

HOT IN INDIA

NEW DELHI (AP)—The temperature in India's capital hit 118 degrees today as the season's first heat wave swept northern India. The official forecast: Hotter Friday.

BAKING INDUSTRY MAKES CHARGES IN PRICE CUTTING

Says Chain Stores Killed Off Number of Bakeries

OTTAWA (CP)—The baking industry's national council charged today that sharp chopping of bread prices by chain stores operating under "price-war" conditions has killed off a number of bakeries in Canada.

It urged the government to set up a body to control loss leader sales, warning that "the rate of mortality in the baking industry will increase" if excessive price-cutting of bread is not stemmed.

The council also asked for restrictive trade practices commission, said chain stores in Ontario and Quebec are selling 24-ounce bread at 15 cents a loaf, guaranteed to kill off small independent grocers and bakers.

The leading National chain store last January offered slices bread at 10 cents a loaf, with competing chains following suit. This had cut prices 47.2 per cent where the chains operate in independent grocers and door-to-door bakery salesmen.

SAYS BAKERS LOSE

The council said that some chain stores have given bread away free to attract customers. A Toronto meeting Brantford, Ont., chains had given away 6,000 loaves each during a six-week period. Chains offered had 13 bakers in 1938; now there are only five.

While the chain store prices were are going on, the independent bakers are losing thousands of dollars and profits reduced, he cannot increase prices because of their sales and unemployment developing into thousands.

Undoubtedly, it added, there are chains which can cut bread prices and still make a profit. But Toronto and Quebec chains which could afford to sell most of their goods at 4.1 per cent below the independent stores, are selling bread at 41.5 per cent less.

CONSTANT LOSS LEADER

This, said the council, is because bread is being used as a constant loss leader.

The restrictive trade practices commission has started a countrywide study to find out whether loss leader selling, since it reduced prices to attract trade, is causing harm to competitors and should be restricted by legislation.

Chain store bread prices declined in opening hearings here Wednesday that Canada must avoid restrictions which would be changes in the public interest if the country is to maintain a dynamic economy.

Arrest Brother Of Fugitive

NEW YORK (CP)—The federal government's search for Harry Gross, alias Alex McDonald of Toronto, friend of the notorious Mickey McDonald of Canada and New York wanted-criminal list, was arrested here Wednesday on bail and charges with illegal entry into the United States.

The immigration service said McDonald had been in the U. S. about a week. He was arrested because of "his past criminal record," the service said.

Mickey McDonald, sought by RCMP for the last few years, was believed in hiding in the U. S. Authorities here have long held the belief that he has been active in the underworld fight and buried in some unknown spot.

British Submarine Reported Lost Suddenly Pops to Surface Unharmed

LONDON (Reuters) — A British submarine reported lost off the south coast today suddenly surfaced after an abortive attempt to rescue it had been launched.

Earlier the admiralty had announced that contact with the 715-ton Scorcher had been lost this morning during exercises in the Channel in the English channel.

The submarine normally carries 44 officers and men. She sent out a distress call after being unable to surface. Two emergency rescue operations started.

Later a message was received from the Scorcher reporting "All well."

The dreaded signal "sub smash" was sent out as a routine precaution after contact was lost with the Scorcher, the admiralty said. In a few minutes it was ready for rescue machinery in operation.

The Scorcher is one of 17 3-class subs capable of making a fresh dive in 30 seconds. She is over 200 feet long and carries two 4-inch guns and a 22-millimetre anti-aircraft gun. She has a 6-inch torpedo tube and can carry up to 11 torpedoes.

The Scorcher was one of seven submarines which joined in the search for the submarine Affray which disappeared with 75 men off the Isle of Wight in April, 1951. The Affray's crew of 75 was lost.

An inquiry into the Affray was explained later that officers on the spot ordered rescue operations to start after contact with the Scorcher had been lost for an hour and a half.

But messages asking the submarine to surface were continued after rescue work began, he said. In a few minutes it was finally established contact, an surfaced in response to the messages.

France Is Ready To Join Asian Pact Without Britain

U.S.-French Talks Bring No Commitments--Churchill

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

PARIS, France (Reuters) — Clear indications that France is ready to join the United States in a southeast Asia alliance without Britain were reported by diplomatic sources here today.

The reports followed President Eisenhower's statement Wednesday that British participation is not essential for the Asian security pact proposed by the United States.

Talks between United States and French officials on the proposed alliance have not been attended by British, though Britain has been informed of developments.

Britain so far has refused to commit herself on the alliance question while Eisen-West negotiations at Geneva are still in progress.

ANTI-RED PAPERS CRITICAL

French right-wing newspapers today were silent on Eisenhower's Wednesday declaration. But the left-wing press was strongly critical. Emile Buré in the newspaper Franc Tireur.

Franc Tireur said bluntly that exclusion of Britain might mean "the Asian alliance will consist of America and the Asian colonies of France" — the three associated states of Indo-China — and especially that this was the first time a U. S. president had raised the question of bringing Japan into an international alliance.

It accused those responsible for American policy" of "aggravating the tension and discomfort in the Western camp and playing the game of the Chinese-Soviet bloc."

The left-wing anti-Communist newspaper Combat said the price of eventual American intervention in Indo-China would be the placing of French Union troops there under U. S. command.

It said the U. S. also would insist on total independence for the Indo-China state of Viet Nam.

But, Combat added, American infantry will not be sent to relieve the French "as the latter will continue to support the weight of the struggle without having any further reason to justify it."

Coalition Party Wins Control Eire Parliament

By MICHAEL HEE

DUBLIN (AP)—John Costello's coalition today tumbled Prime Minister Eamonn De Valera from power in the Irish Republic by winning control of the Dail (parliament).

Nearly complete tabulations of Tuesday's general election results showed De Valera's Fianna Fail (men of destiny) party had lost any anatomical chance of gaining a majority in the 147-seat Dail. Fianna Fail polled more votes but sent fewer votes than it did in the last general election and built its opponents attributed this decline to a housewives revolt against rising prices.

With eight seats outstanding — three or what will be settled the later — the election gave the parties this strength in the dail: Fianna Fail, 65; Costello coalition made up of 49 Fine Gael, 17 Labor, 12 Clann Na Talman Farmers), and three Clann Na Poblachta (republicans); 4 independents.

Police Escort Runaway Horse On Fifth Avenue

NEW YORK (AP)—When a runaway horse in Manhattan showed no inclination to obey the red traffic light on busy 57th avenue Wednesday night, there was only one thing policeman Michael Rushnek could do.

He leaned on his siren.

The way the horse runaway cantered on for four more blocks before Rushnek got his radio car in position to let his partner, patrolman Michael Screnci, grab the horse's reins and halt it.

The horse covered a carefree mile through heavy evening traffic, pulling a wagon load of spring flowers. Not even a flowerpot was lost.

BIG TELESCOPE

CAPETOWN (CP) — A survey team of Toronto University is expected here this year to choose a site for the first major telescope in the southern hemisphere. The project envisages a 120-inch instrument, second in size only to the 200-inch telescope at Mount Palomar in California.

CHILD GETS HURT IN "NEAR ACCIDENT"

A little boy can get hurt in a "near accident" just as well as in the real thing.

This was demonstrated yesterday when Paul Quattrocioschi, age 4 years, darted out from behind a parked car on Emily St. The car squealed to a stop; the boy tripped and fell in the path of it. Witnesses said the child was not struck by the car.

FIREMEN ANSWER THREE ALARMS

A rubbish fire at the Pine Street public school; an overheated stove on Turnbull St., and a false alarm to the Lanning Leather Goods factory on Coleman Street, resulted in three runs for the fire department last night and this morning.

A pedestrian passing the Queen Victoria School reported that he heard a "bang" and looking back a minute later saw smoke coming from behind the school. He promptly turned in the alarm but firemen found only a rubbish fire, presumably set by the janitor.

No damage was reported as result of the overheated stove, while the false alarm to the Lanning factory was caused through the sprinkler system activated by dust or ashes.

NEW FOUR-INCH WATER MAIN BEING LAID IN COURTHOUSE

Carrying out the recommendation of fall inspectors who asked that better fire protection be given the building, a new four-inch water main is being laid for the Hastings county court house.

Jail inspectors noted that the present one-and-a-half-inch main leading into the building was insufficient to provide the necessary protection in case of fire and ordered the new main was ordered by the county finance committee.

The trench for the water main is being dug by jail inmates and the actual pipe laying by waterworks employees.

MAMMOTH ELM TREE IN COURTHOUSE YARD BEING CUT DOWN

The mammoth elm tree, which for years has shaded the rear parking lot of the county courthouse is no more!

The trunk of the old tree was becoming hollow and was a menace with the danger of limbs falling or the tree being blown over increasing with the years the old landmark was ordered down.

City waterworks employees failed the old elm and the limbs and trunk have been sawn into convenient. The stump of the old tree will be removed from the ground as soon as the roots are completely rotted.

Fire Hose Conversion Plan Part of Civil Defence Program Speaker Tells Luncheon Guests

The importance of civil defence and the place it would take in keeping industrial production rolling should this country ever come under attack in any possible future war, was stressed here yesterday by R. J. Cudney, Q.C., deputy secretary to the Ontario government.

Mr. Cudney was speaking at a luncheon given in honor of visiting officials from the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department this week carrying out fire hose conversion program to standardize all hose couplings and fire hydrant connections to meet with an Ontario standard.

"The hose conversion program is part of our civil defence program," Mr. Cudney stated. "Civil defence is a civilian responsibility rather than a military one."

He noted there were now 97,000 persons taking training in Ontario in some phase of civil defence work. One of the most important phases of this program was fire protection services. "Standardization of hose fittings will be a great help even if analogue war never comes," he said.

Mr. Cudney expressed appreciation to local city officials for their co - operation in the hose conversion program and noted his department was particularly thankful to the police and fire commission for doing its own hydrant conversions. This enabled the job of standardization to be completed more speedily.

MAYOR REPLIES

Mayor J. Both, in reply to Mr. Cudney's talk, said waterworks associations had started the ball rolling for standardization more than ten years ago and noted co-operation from fire departments and public utility commissions, along with the governments paying the bills had now made conversion a reality.

Alderman Angus Duffy rejoiced to standardization as a "valuable and practical step" and one of vital importance in civil defence, or in any catastrophe.

Local utilities manager O. H. Scott assured the utilities were happy to have been able to cooperate by doing the conversion work on their own hydrants. He brought up the question of the possibility of "fire" control valves being erected with no "consumption being used in the installation of standard fire fighting equipment. He suggested this trouble might be eliminated if the valves were being approached to have them specially constructed to suit the particular province or community in which the building was to be protected.

WOULD BE REPAID

Edward Bexvis, chief of the fire service division under whose direction hose conversion throughout the province is being carried out, said the cost of standardization, expected to run slightly over a million dollars would be repaid in lower insurance rates in the municipalities and in lower equipment costs.

He noted standardization of fittings was only part of the scheme. He mentioned that Fire Chief Gerald Vance had been named county fire co-ordinator for Hastings and on completion of hose conversion would have authority to seek approval from the various municipalities and arrange for mutual aid in case of fire.

This would lead, he felt to a reduction of fire insurance rates for the small municipalities.

Standardization of hose fittings would enable fire departments from any centre in Ontario to use their own equipment in fighting fires in any part of the province.

Hose conversion in Ontario was started two years ago and is expected to be completed some time next year. One third of the cost is being borne by the federal government, with the other two thirds by the Ontario government.

Bill Gault Wins BCI Five-Mile Race

Bill Gault, 17-year-old grade eleven student of C.I.C.I. easily across the finish line approximately 200 yards ahead of his nearest competitor late yesterday afternoon to win the annual five-mile cross country run and the Ken Colling trophy.

Gault traced the course in 32 minutes and three seconds, just eight seconds off the record set by George Ewald in 1950 and the second lowest time in the ten-year history of the event.

Graham Beeby, who took second place, and Gault, put on one of the keenest battles yet with both boys setting the pace at the start. At one point, according to spectators who followed the 5 entries, the two and show pair were almost stepping on each other's feet. Gault drew ahead in the concluding two upper bridge and gained his biggest lead to finish going away on the long Church Street hill.

Sixteen of the named eighteen starters left the school campus at 4.30 p.m. on the bright but cool afternoon and by 5.20 all sixteen had crossed the finish line, some slowed to a near walk while others looked to be in a near sprint.

The two boys who were scratched from the race were Don Harris and Ron Donaldson.

Ron Redner and Bob Galway staged a dash battle for third position with Redner edging through the wire several strides in front. Galway was followed by Glen Maracle and Gerald Hill, with the latter two also very close.

The Ken Colling Memorial trophy which goes to the winner in memory of Belleville's late sportsman, was not presented at the end of the race because Mr. Ken Colling, who was to present the trophy is out of the city on a business trip. Bill Gault will receive the cup at a later date.

The 240, which was split up among the top six finishers went as follows: Bill Gault, $13.50; Graham Beeby, $8.40; Ron Redner, $7.50; Bob Galway, $5.00; Glen Maracle, $3.00 and Gerald Hill $2.00.

Eastern Ontario Kiwanians Enjoy Inter-Club Tourney

Our Welcome Kiwanians to you;
It's hello and how-do-you-do?
Glad to see you and how be you?
Have you heard anything of late?

The "Welcome Song" of the Belleville Kiwanians swept the rafters of the Club Commodore last night as the club played host to Kiwanians from all Eastern Ontario.

Nearly 120 Kiwanians were on hand as President Lawrence Kells extended Belleville's welcome to members from Oshawa, Port Hope, Lindsay, Trenton, Peterborough, Cobourg, Picton, Dunbarton, Kingston, Madoc, Tweed and Tottenham, Lindsay. A round dozen. Count 'em.

One of the highlights was the presentation of the Cobourg annual inter-club award to the Gold Centre Kiwanians by Lindsay club. The Seagram trophy for the best individual performance was taken by Clark Crawford of Oshawa.

During the evening announcement was made that the Kingston Kiwanis had been awarded the Lt.-Governor's trophy for the first-quarter of 1954. Incidentally, it was Kingston's first win in 1954, the largest out-of-town representation.

It was an evening over-flowing with camaraderie and littered with prize-giving and innumerable draws.

Just about everything from a baby-scooter to a case of outboard motor was happily raffled off.

Feature prize of the evening, a radio, went to Kiwanian Ron Ball.

Vic White and Harold Carruthers were chairmen up for the throng, leading in the song-spiels that spattered the roof intermittently through the night.

VARIED PROGRAM.

Minded back for an encore was clever young Dood Asselstine, who specializes in zany mimicking to phonographic records.

A vocal quintet, the "Rockefellers" also gave out with a harmonized selection.

Guest from furthest out of town was Lethbridge, Alberta, druggist Jack Stokes, son-in-law of W. C. Pepper, of Belleville. He was on his way back from the International Kiwanis Convention, held in Miami last week.

Last night's rollicking "19th hole" at the Commodore was the end of a perfect day that began at the Quinte Golf Club, soon after noon when the various clubs teed-off for the trophies.

Lindsay's foursome clicked for the main Carby Cup with a net total of 284.

Belleville, 1953 winners, came second with a net of 292, Oshawa third with 293 and Kingston fourth with 294.

Oak Crawford of Oshawa, with a gross total of 78, plumped for the Seagram trophy for the lowest gross score. Clark was the initial presentation of the trophy.

Miniature trophies also went to the victorious Lindsay team.

Bill Riley of Belleville turned in the highest gross score of 140 while the award for the lowest nine-hole gross went to Ken Ross, Belleville, with 48. Lowest nine-hole net was taken by Charlie Smith of Kingston with 36.

Awards for low gross scores went to Ken Ross, Kingston 80; Harry Gay, Oshawa, 85; Pete Atman, Lindsay, 86 and Don Crawford, Oshawa, 78.

Low net scores were: Lou Walker, Lindsay, 69; Frank Mathews, Kingston, 71; Al Garden, Lindsay, 72; Jack Langmaid, Oshawa, 72; Ray McCoy, Madoc 73; Ken Conklin, Oshawa, 73; Norm Armstrong, Trenton, 73; Fred Brightwell, Belleville, 73.

In closing the awards past Lt.-Gov. Bruce Lattimer extended thanks to the Belleville members and the various firms who donated the prizes.

Rare Tribute to Sea Cadets Follows Colorful Inspection

Immaculate in trim rigs of navy blue and white, 130 cadets and Wrenettes stood at attention at their "ship," RCSCS "Quinte" last night and received one of the best, if not the best, inspectional tributes ever paid to a Belleville armed services organization.

While hundreds of applauding spectators looked on, the corps heard the annual inspection parade and demonstrations and everything pertaining to the inspection, called "Excellent" by top naval "brass."

"In all my years as inspection officer, I have seen many things, but none as remarkable as I have seen tonight," Lieut. Commander G. J. Manson, CD, RCN, Toronto, inspecting officer told the corps and its officers following the evening's events.

"It is true," he said, "I have seen things tonight that might not have been and I saw things that might be better, for I am a hard man to satisfy. I have to be. But only one word fits the outstanding performances I saw, and that word is "Excellent."

FAR ABOVE YEARS

' Lieut. Commander Manson told the corps that its armed guard performances and drill department "were far above their years, and age." He paid fine tribute to the new corps of Wrenettes, on their first appearance on parade. "It amazed me to see young ladies taking this type of training." The band came in for outstanding praise as did the corps as a whole.

Lieut. Commander Manson also paid tribute to the parents and friends of the corps for their turnout at the inspection. "You will agree, by what you have seen," he said, "that these young men are receiving splendid training, something that augurs well for their future."

The corps was inspected outside the ship shortly after the arrival of the official party. With Lieut. Commander Manson were Lieut. Commander K. W. Wise, area officer; Lieut.-Col. R. H. Widdifield, "Quinte" area; and Major E. S. Fairman, 9th Anti-Tank Regiment, representing the city reserve army units; Addison Lloyd, chairman Sea Cadet committee; Dr. Jack Guthridge, president, Belleville branch of the Navy League; District Scout Commissioner Archie Lewis; J. E. Hand, Toronto, chairman Ontario Sea Cadet committee, and Mr. Charles Shaw, Toronto, managing secretary Ontario Navy League.

MANY SPECIAL GUESTS.

Among the special guests were Lieut.-Col. F. H. Wills, Mr. W. H. Morton, J. N. Yanover, Kenneth Foss, secretary Navy League here; Lieut.-Col. J. Tatham, and Mrs. Tatham, and Kay Smith, representing the Belleville Yacht Club; Ross Silver and Jack Watson, former officials of sea cadet and navy league organizations, Mayor Jack Both and others.

Following the inspection, the corps under its non-commissioned officers headed by CPO P. Brown, and the Wrenettes under Wren. B. Semark, Kingston, swung past the saluting dais off the ship entrance where Lieut. Commander Manson took the salute.

The gleaming white belts, hats, leggings and other trappings contrasted sharply against the dark blue of the round rigs of the fine trumpet and drum band under P. O. Bradshaw, as it swung past the reviewing stand in the van of the parade.

Came a division of cadets, bayonets flashing the gleams of a westering sun as they strode smartly by, with all the precision of seasoned troops. Then a division of younger cadets, arms swinging smartly, followed by the wrenettes neat and trim in white middies and blue skirts. They were the last.

Twice the corps paraded by the stand first in column of route and then in divisions. Rounds of applause greeted the marching columns as they swept over the crowd-lined route.

FINE DEMONSTRATION.

An expert rowing demonstration was that given by an armed precision squad under Leading Seaman N. Robinson. They executed various phases of rifle drill with no commands given. A physical training display supervised by Marcel Joe Meldrum was also well done.

The corps went through sailing, cutter-rowing and boat hauling exercises on the water. Later they fell in and attended evening quarters featured by "Taps" and the lowering of the colors.

The bugle drum and trumpet band, with its two glockenspiels came in for much outstanding tributes both official and otherwise.

HOLD RECEPTION.

Following the inspection receptions were held in the wardroom upstairs where Lieut. Harry Mackenzie, officer commanding the corps, and his officers entertained many officials and friends and on the bottom floor "deck" where the youthful cadets and wrenettes played host to a large crowd of parents and friends.

Sandwiches, cake, cookies and coffee as well as soft drinks were served by the blue-clad hosts to their guests.

Officers of the corps are Lieut. Mackenzie, officer commanding; Lieut. R. Watson, executive officer; Sub Lieut. C. E. Richards and Midshipmen N. Judge. Civilian instructors include Messrs. Stanley Shadraw and Ray Fletcher. The corps chief petty officer is D. Brown.

It was stated that 92 cadets were on parade with seven officers comers also in attendance. Wrenettes number 32.

Mayor Burtt Denies Industrial Expansion Picture Grim As Painted

TRENTON (Special) — Speaking to 180 members at the Trenton Industrial Bowling League last night Mayor Ross Burtt asserted that Trenton's industrial expansion picture looked as grim as Industrial Commissioner ex-mayor K. J. Couch had painted it.

He indicated that there was no reason to be alarmed over loss of the precision tool industry to Cobourg. He said that he had been informed that Cobourg was also a loser because the principals of the firm had been unable to import necessary tool making machinery from Germany. He said he had been given to understand that the heads of the company had moved from Cobourg to work in Montreal.

Mayor Burtt dropped another bombshell among the bowlers contradicting Mr. Couch's statement concerning the loss of the Bardon Steel Corporation. He said that the chairman of the board of the steel company had advised him by letter that company officials had not yet decided on a site and that a location in Trenton would be seriously considered before the final approval was given.

Mr. Burtt claimed he had no axe to grind but deemed his answers fair since Mr. Couch had reported his side of the story.

Earlier in the evening the playoff winning Trenton Dyeing and Finishing team was presented with the O'Keefe trophy. The Trent Cottons team champions of the regular season's session received the Industrial League trophy.

Executives elected for the 1954-55 bowling season were: Sonny Harrison, Ambrose Smith, Bob Slight, Eustace Ormshaw and Charles Ireland. Past president is George Cronkhite.

The election was conducted by Mayor Ross Burtt and ex-mayor R. E. Whitley.

WORLD HOUSING SHORTAGE

"If seven maids with seven mops swept for seven years . . ."

Was it the Walrus or the Carpenter who voiced that plaintive query about the possibility of clearing away the sands on the seashore?

Well, no matter, we cannot keep the Carpenter here debating about the subject. He has work to do and there is just the possibility that the maids with the mops will have finished their chore before he is through with his little task.

UNESCO reports that David A. Morse, director-general of the International Labor Organization, has prepared a report showing that the world's housing shortage is a little more extensive than most of us believe.

All we need, it seems, is 180,000,000 new homes. There are that many families in the world today which lack adequate housing. We do not know what is the average-sized family on a world basis, but at a guess we should suppose it would be at least half a dozen people, since families in the most populous sections of the world have a tendency to be large. We therefore arrive at the conclusion that over a billion people are poorly housed. That estimate is not too far out of line, for Mr. Morse says that the housing shortage affects more than one-third of the earth's population.

"Oh well," we may say, "most of those people live in Asia, where they are used to living in mud hovels or bamboo huts."

A lot of them do. But a lot of them do not. There are, according to Mr. Morse, 30 million families without adequate housing in the industrially advanced countries.

The Carpenter had better get busy. His trouble is that there is no sandpiles in those quarters, that the Walrus has been directing his operations.

A HOT SOLUTION

If Jeffrey Ellis Aronin ever learned how to win friends and influence people, then we must conclude that Mr Aronin is not interested in numbering John L. Lewis amongst his friends. Mr. Aronin, we suspect, is likely, that it is possible to build houses which require no heating in winter or cooling in summer. We will let the latter part of his contention slide while we concentrate on that heating business. As you might have guessed, the secret lies "in the proper use and conservation of the sun's heat to maintain a comfortable winter temperature."

Mr. Aronin says it can be done. You may be a little dubious about his claim when you learn he is employed in New York—but that scepticism is unjustified.

Yes, he knows all about our Canadian climate —studied at McGill and bases his theories on his experiences in an Arctic blizzard during Operation Muskox in 1946.

What's more, Mr. Aronin is prepared to produce. Has a one-storey eight-room house already designed for you . . . The cost? Only $22,000.

Looks like the sun's heat is not going to cost you more than $8,000 to $10,000 or $160 to $200 a year for your fuel bill as a householder, plus interest charges on the mortgage, of course.

Are not scientists wonderful!

BREAD CRISIS AVERTED

Congratulations are in order to the officials of the Canadian Wheat Board and Great Lakes Shipping operators.

They have just decided that they do not wish to imitate Marie Antoinette.

From Winnipeg comes the announcement that an agreement has been reached by which the shipping cost of all grains between the Lakehead and Montreal has been reduced by 1½ cents a bushel.

That may not seem momentous news, but the fact is that, while the Lakehead elevators were bulging with grain, a number of large milling firms in Montreal and elsewhere in Eastern Canada were running short of No. 3 and 4 grades of wheat, which are used in blending with higher grades of wheat.

For a time it appeared as if the wheat board and the shipping operators, for less than two cents, were prepared to let this situation continue unremedied. It was their failure to reach an agreement on shipping rates that was preventing the needed wheat reaching the millers.

No shipments, no wheat for the mills. No wheat for the mills, no flour. No flour, no bread. No bread and, if somebody had merely whispered a remark about that "eat cake" routine, the Wheat Board officials and the shipping operators would have been prime candidates for a Marie Antoinette role. But it is all settled now. So you can return that guillotine to the attic.

GETTING AND GIVING

Getting and gaining are weary tasks;
Giving and lending delight us more.
Much the strife for possession asks,
Leaving us battered and bruised and sore.
He that labors for selfish gold
Soon grows old.

Taking and keeping are duties stern,
Sapping the strength of us day by day;
Fiercely the fires of our ardor burn
Eating our glorious youth away.
He that fights for a selfish prize
Soonest dies.

Having and holding exhaust us all;
Deeply stamped are their lines of care.
Ceaselessly for our strength they call,
Stripping our souls of their garments fair.
He that battles for self-enjoyment
Soon breaks down.

Giving and lending are joyous tasks,
Keeping us youthful and blithe and strong.
Kindness but little of courage asks
And its days are fair and its life is long.
Not he that gains, but he that gives Longest lives.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

May 20, 1934.

Mr. Elias Ketcheson of Wallbridge, Sidney township, observed the 96th anniversary of his birth yesterday and he was happy to receive the congratulations and good wishes of neighbors and friends throughout the district. He was born near Moira in Huntingdon township and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Roblin Ketcheson; his mother, prior to her marriage, was Miss Jane Jones, daughter of Thomas Jones, a prominent resident on the front of Sidney Township, near Jones' Creek. Mr. Ketcheson's father was road superintendent for Huntingdon township for over forty years. His grandmother was a daughter of Captain Myers, well known in the history of Myers Creek, now Belleville. He has lived on the farm where he now resides since he was 22 years of age and helped to build the house and clear the land and fence the fields. There was plenty of wood on the farm and in the early days he chopped trees by hand and after cutting the wood to the proper length he hauled it to Belleville where he found ready sale. The Bank of Montreal was one of his best customers and on one occasion he had cords a year at $2 per cord. Dr. Stewart and Mr. George Stewart were two other regular customers among the many prominent Belleville residents he supplied. Mr. Ketcheson was secretary of the Sidney Town Hall cheese factory for more years than he can remember. He was one of the first patrons of the factory after it was built in 1872; a year later the first cheese was made at the factory. Shortly after settling on the present farm Mr. Ketcheson married Mary Rudson, daughter of Charles Rudson, who lived farther in the Roslin district. They had four sons, Charles William, Ketcheson of Davidson, Sask., Elias Allen, of Lone Tree, Sask., and Clem, who resides on the homestead. There are also eight grand children and two great grandchildren. Mr. Ketcheson is in good health and insists on helping in the chores about the farm.

30 YEARS AGO

Cricket caught on with a popular game here years ago and for the benefit of older citizens we here give the names of the team which played at this time in 1894 in a match with Campbellford: Culler, Arnold, T. S. Clark, Claude Armstrong, J. B. Wallace, John Brasier, W. Thomas, H. T. Thomas, Joseph D. Clarke, Harry Smart and Frank Lewis. (Note 1954—the first three mentioned were members of the Bank of Montreal staff and the fourth mentioned was a member of the Dominion Bank staff. The others were local men.)

Dogs have been running at large in town and many flower beds and lawns have received much treatment from them. The city council is considering devising some means to stop the nuisance.

The city council at a meeting last evening approved the proposed plan to place the management of the Belleville General Hospital under the control of a board of governors. The council will be represented on the board.

Mrs. M. Farley, Everett Street, who is retiring from the office of secretary of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary in connection with the Tabernacle Church after giving efficient and loyal service for seventeen years, was visited at her home last evening by members of the auxiliary and presented with a life membership in the auxiliary as a slight token of the members appreciation of her excellent work. An address was read by Mrs. Esmond and Mrs. Sanford presented Mrs. Farley with the life membership pin and also a bouquet of beautiful roses.

40 YEARS AGO

A convention of decorators and painters will be held here in July.

It is expected that the steamer Alexandria will arrive at this port Monday morning on her regular trip.

Mr. H. Freeman Ketcheson went to Toronto today.

Mrs. C. W. Sadler and Mrs. J. W. Hughes of Montreal are the guests of Mrs. Robert Young, Bridge Street.

Mr. B. A. Holgate of Edmonton has purchased a carload of purebred Holstein cows from his brother, Mr. Thomas Holgate of Thurlow township. The cattle have been shipped west.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Henry are spending a few days in Deseronto.

Mrs. Phil F. Cassidy of Edmonton, Alberta, formerly of this city, has left for her home after visiting relatives here.

50 YEARS AGO

Mr. Charles J. Atwell of the Daily Intelligencer is attending a convention of newspaper men in St. Louis, Mo.

A meeting of the Belleville Historical Society will be held in the officers' quarters at the armouries tomorrow evening.

The popular steamer Varuna will run an excursion from here to Picton on the Queen's Farm round trip 50 cents.

A lot of good Belleville money will be spent elsewhere on May 24th, owing to the fact that the celebration will be held here. The town will be exceedingly quiet on that day.

Mr. Will Hicks is home from Toronto on a short visit.

Mr. Victor Wensley is answering acquaintances in town.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE LAST BATTLE

The fact has often been pointed out that nations frequently lose battles and win wars, and, conversely, that nations win battles and lose wars. It is not the battlefield but the peace table which often decides a war.

So too in the case of the Lord's great battle against hostile forces. It is not the battlefield but the hard-won victory which determines ultimate victory. Humanly speaking, the triumph of good over evil has to be measured in terms of centuries, and ultimately, Divinely speaking, the final victory will not be won until the heavenly legions descend upon the earth and the kingdoms of the world become the kingdom of our God and of His Christ.

Just remember that the Lord always wins the last battle. He wins it in the case of every individual that ever lived or that ever will live. He wins it in the case of every race and every nation. Individuals, races, and nations are in Him. Nations and despots fly in the face of His providence.

But to what avail? God always wins the last battle. We read accounts in the newspapers sometimes which convey the impression that evil has been victorious. Deplorably speaking, the final victory will not be won until the heavenly legions descend upon the earth and the kingdoms of the world become the kingdom of our God and of His Christ. Humanly speaking, the triumph of good over evil has to be measured in terms of centuries, and ultimately, Divinely speaking, the final victory will not be won until the heavenly legions descend upon the earth and the kingdoms of the world become the kingdom of our God and of His Christ.

North American Snakes

(Ontario Road Bulletin).

In North America there exist four types of poisonous snakes: the coral snake, the water moccasin, the copperhead and the rattlesnake. The first two mentioned are not found north of the Mason and Dixon Line. The copperhead ranges as far north as Massachusetts and central New York. Only the rattler has penetrated into Canada.

Snakes have no body temperature. Therefore, frost is fatal to them, which explains why the farther north one goes the fewer species of this genus one will find. There are 132 different species of snakes found in North America while only 18 are known to be extant in Ontario. In areas where frost is rare the snakes must seek a Winter den, well below the frost line, in which to hibernate. Since swamp areas accord the number of snakes that pile into a limited space would shock any sociologist. It is interesting to note that this overcrowding occurs without discrimination as to species and, further, that it is by no means uncommon for rat and poisonous varieties occupying the same den in their mid-winter sleep. Ophidiologists, or snake-loving fellows, a display of herpetological zeal rarely shocking to any rattler. With the coming of temperate weather the snakes emerge from their dens and but most of them do not range beyond two miles from the den in which they return at the approach of winter.

Of the poisonous snakes in North America the rattler is far the most ubiquitous as well as having been subject to the greatest number of mutations. Sixteen sub-species of rattlesnake have been classified. Among these the diamond-back rattler reaches the greatest size, the largest is, roughly, the Gulf States. Its length has been known to exceed eight feet.

Three types of rattlesnakes are found in Ontario. The banded of the Pacific rattler, a name not derived from the subject's temperament, has drifted into British Columbia. The Prairie rattler inhabits the dry, hot prairies south of Medicine Hat. Finally, we come to the last of the triumvirate, the Massasauga, or swamp, rattlesnake, which is found in the Niagara peninsula. The latter is, of course, "Great Lakes" and not "Ontario" are synonyms. It might be added that occasional specimens of the timber rattlesnake are still found in the Niagara Glen.

In Ontario, the swamp rattler may be encountered along the shores of Lake Erie, Lake Huron and the Georgian Bay. The odd one is sometimes reported to have been seen along the Lake Ontario littoral as far east as Prince Edward county. Its habitat is low-lying, damp areas, but it does forage into neighboring farm land. The frequency of its occurrence lessens proportionately with distance from the lakes. It is most numerous in the Bruce Peninsula, the Wainfleet Swamp in Welland county, near the Western river and in some parts of Parry Sound district. Actually, the rattlesnake is by no means rare in these areas.

Its numbers must not be judged by the above. The traditional remedy sold yearly in the province. Fortunately, too, the Massasauga is a sluggish fellow who prefers hiding or retreating to attacking. Nor is it quite as dangerous as that of many other of the species. Dr. Bruce Peniston has recently read on this subject stated that while there is no question of something of a nuisance on front lawns it should not be destroyed when encountered in less inhabited places. It eats rodents, the paper continued, and hence future generations will enjoy seeing it in its natural state. Well and good.

If bitten, an incision should be made immediately at the point of entrance and as much as possible of the poison sucked out. Serum, we devise, the Cutter Compak, has been produced expressly for this purpose. Even when the bite wound or abrasions in it the mouth may be treated with iodine. It is also stated placed above the bite will slow the spread of the venom, but only if applied at 15 to 20 minute intervals to permit circulation. Get rid to a doctor as quickly as possible and if possible take an injection of anti-venom. Spirits, contrary to superstition, are actually deleterious, though there is no reason the victim should be teetotaler. Amputation is not one them to prevent shock.

In encounters with this reptile, sportsmanship should be forgotten. Attack is the best defence. Never give a rattlesnake the first bite.

Letter to the Editor

Gives' Views on Fence In Parkwood Heights

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I read with some interest the reports of a controversy over a fence in Parkwood Heights and I have begun to wonder just what kind of a city Belleville has become.

One fence must come down because a couple of residents object to it. Other fences don't have to be taken down because there is no objection.

Do the aldermen and mayor like some residents that the other residents of Parkwood Heights may not like the kind of neighbors they have there, even if they did not approve?

Why was there no fuss when the fence to remain, signed by nearly one hundred residents of Parkwood Heights, some of whom can also see the fence, not taken this consideration before the objection of a very few was?

This man built a fence to keep his child off the road until he was old enough to take care of himself; then the fence (and a very neat one) was to be taken down. But his two neighbors have children, too, and they have not allow this.

Now the question to any fair-minded person is this:

The property belongs to the city.

Is it, or is it not, permissible to build a fence on city property or lodge on city property?

If it is permissible, then the fence should remain.

If it is not permissible, then all the fences on city property should come down and this would also include a number of houses and porches in the city which are certainly not eight feet from the sidewalk.

Why should two or three neighbors decide for a community?

It should be one way or the other throughout the city.

A Taxpayer — who doesn't have a fence or live in Parkwood Heights."

Flowers Kill Insects

(National Geographic Society).

In Africa, Japan and Ecuador farm workers are paid to pick insects.

However idyllic it sounds, picking daisies is purely a business proposition. The pyrethrum, a yellow-centered flower is known as pyrethrum, and it yields an extremely potent insecticide. Last year the United States imported almost 8,000,000 pounds of the dried blooms.

Pyrethrum's fluid or powder extract serves a score of uses. Householders spray it to kill mosquitoes, flies and ants. Cattlemen douse their herds to keep ticks and lice off their crops. In flour mills and food plants its liberal use assures sanitary operation.

Chrysanthemum cinerariaefolium, as it is botanically known, is commercially cultivated in Persia where the flowers grow wild. When use of the powder spread to Europe, Yugoslavia became a major source.

For a time, Japan gained a virtual monopoly on the product. In the 1930's production shifted to East Africa and the Belgian Congo, which reigned as the leading growers.

Ecuador's initial exports, in 1935 topped a 10-year research program to develop pyrethrum as a crop and acclimatize plants to a half-dozen Latin American nations with suitable mountain regions.

Pyrethrum was introduced into the United States about 1860. Attempts to grow it commercially, chiefly in California, southern Colorado and around Washington, failed because of excessive harvesting costs.

The yellow bloom spasmodically and the flowers must be picked by hand. Pyrethrum does well in most large-scale operations, drying its done artificially. Fresh pyrethrum drives in a warm, dry climate. Its average yield is 700-800 pounds of dried blossoms per acre. Oddly enough, although the flower is a powerful insecticide, it is not immune from insect attack in the field.

In 1934 the U.S. Department of Agriculture developed a chemical method whereby allethrin which closely resembles pyrethrum. The new product, now being made by two American chemical companies, can be substituted for pyrethrum for most uses but is not expected to displace it entirely.

Both the Department of Agriculture and in Africa have extensive research aimed at increasing the plant's yield and strength. They plan to eliminate costly shipments of bulk flowers.

Personal Health Talks

PHYSIOLOGICAL FUNCTIONS OF CALCIUM

Dr. Brady

A lot of knuckleheads—this is a free country and no one needs acknowledge he is one—still believe I'm nuts merely on a number of subjects, especially calcium. I don't mind this. After all, it's their health, not mine that is concerned. I just keep hammer i n g away on the calcium shortage in Yankeeland—the land of cheat foods — and my conscience is clear when I creep into my palet and say Lord, Lord, I have tried to tell them.

The morbid notion that "deposits" of calcium in or around joints may cause the joint disability called rheumatic or, if you must have a name, "arthritis" or "arthritis", or in the artery walls may cause hardening of the arteries, is strictly for the birds. The deposit of calcium or calcification of tissue occurs only too often, but, as any one with even an elementary knowledge of physiology knows this is a consequence of degeneration, which follows months or years after impairment, deterioration or loss of function has been clearly manifest and either neglected or improperly treated.

These statements apply without reservations to the two questions which are so much misunderstood, namely, high calcium diet and the supplementation of the ordinary diet with an optimal daily ration of calcium and vitamin D.

By optimal daily ration I mean two or three times as much as nutrition authorities consider necessary to prevent nutritional deficiency manifestations. Thus the ration of calcium is 3 pints of milk and the amount of vitamin D in a tablespoonful of standard cod liver oil is an optimal daily ration.

In a series of talks to follow I shall deal with the five physiological functions of calcium, which are:

1) It is essential for ossification of bone
2) It is necessary for adequate contraction of the heart
3) It diminishes permeability of the walls of the smallest blood vessels.
4) It assimilates irritability of nerves.
5) It is necessary for clotting of blood.

TODAY'S TALK

EXAMPLES

From earliest life we have examples placed before us as guides to growth and happiness. The story of any nation is the story of its great and inspiring men and women. Like stars these examples shine with undiminished glory and light.

We know that we can attempt great things because others have done so and succeeded. We also know that others have failed, but through disappointments, struggles and many a defeat, before they "arrived."

Here was a man whose work stood out as an inspiration to the entire world. We can well imitate his example. Edison never got discouraged. He had great faith. In his experiments he failed time and time again but he worked on —tried and tested scores and scores of times. He knew the way was his. He was always studying out some way to benefit people and so to make life more comfortable and livable.

Each one of us is influenced by the thoughts and acts of those about us, and from each we may select the good and thus improve our own lives. Once heard a college professor, who was an American immigrant, state that his great example was Abraham Lincoln.

A handful of death: children and adults alike have been maimed or killed by playing with blasting caps similar to those illustrated above. There are two types—both dangerous in the hands of the inexperienced. The electric blasting cap has a coil of wire attached to it. The other type is detonated by fire from a fuse. Made of aluminum or copper, blasting caps vary in length from one to five inches and are approximately one-quarter of an inch in diameter. They may be mistaken for empty .22 cartridges, firecrackers or pencil holders. If found, they should not be touched. Police or other authorities should be notified immediately.

Teachers Enjoy Watershed Tour By Authority

Education in a conservation program should start with the youngsters, is the thinking of officials of the Moira River Conservation Authority.

This was indicated Wednesday when with the co-operation of the South Hastings Educational Association, 35 teachers from the public schools in Sidney and Thurlow townships were taken on a tour of the Moira watershed to show them at first hand just what is being done to preserve natural resources along the Moira and its tributaries.

The thinking is that the teachers in turn will be better able to instruct their pupils in conservation.

"It was just wonderful, and I was very interested," said Miss Lois Emerson, teacher at S.S. 4, Thurlow, following completion of the all-day tour. "Before today I didn't know anything of conservation or what was being done in the watershed."

Miss Emerson took along her camera and has a picture record of all the highlights of the trip. She says she is now much better equipped to instruct and get her pupils interested in conservation.

H. E. Darling, of S.S. 20, Thurlow, said he was amazed at the growth of trees planted at the Actinolite reforestation area. He said he assisted in planting trees in 1948 and was amazed to now find them towering overhead. He noted there was almost 100 per cent survival of trees in the area.

One of the highlights of the trip in Mr. Darling's thinking was the visit to the old O'Hara Mill site which the Authority has now purchased as a historical site.

TRIBUTE PAID

He paid tribute to Authority officials for the conservation job they are doing. "It's a long range program but the men interested are doing a good job, and some day their goal will be realized."

The group of teachers, along with Agricultural Representative A. O. Dalrymple, Don Bell, field officer for the Moira Authority, and R. H. Macklem, school authority, left Belleville in the morning and stopped off immediately north of Stirling to view the proposed College Street damsite, where an ice control dam is planned to be built.

The group then continued on up the watershed to Tweed and the Actinolite plantation. Later in the morning they visited the O'Hara Mill site where a picnic lunch was enjoyed.

After lunch they visited the Deloro dam, first such structure to be built by the Authority, and then viewed the open pit mining operation of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at Marmora.

On the return home they stopped at Foxboro to view a farm pond and hear how such ponds can do much to solve the water problem for livestock and other uses.

Weddings

SOBLE — GILLESPIE

Tall standards of white gladioli and pink snapdragons, interspersed with ferns, adorned Hillcrest Street United Church on Saturday, May 8th, for a double-ring wedding ceremony, at 2.00 p.m., when the Reverend Sidney J. Larman, minister of the church, united in marriage Shirley Ann Gillespie, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gillespie, 39 George Street South, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Soble, of Amelianburgh, Ontario.

Mr. Clifford Tensmier, church organist, provided the wedding music, and during the signing of the register, "The Love Song" of Edward L. Garr.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her ballerina-length bridal gown of white Chantilly lace and net over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodice, topped with a long jacket having long pointed sleeves. A white, nylon lace hat with seed pearls held the fingertip length of tulle illusion, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses tied with white lacelon ribbon.

Miss Joan Clarke, of Port Credit, Ontario, was maid of honor, attired in a gown of silk green nylon taffeta with a fitted bodice, cling jacket and mitts. She wore a headdress of rosebuds and lily-of-the-valley. She carried a bouquet of rose carnations tied with lacelon ribbon.

Mr. Kenneth Soble, of Port Colborne, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Morris Wesley, of Port Credit and Mr. Norman Gillespie, of Belleville, were ushers.

At the reception, which was held in the orchestra parlors, which were prettily decorated with gladioli and snapdragons for the occasion, the bride's mother received, wearing navy crepe with navy and white accessories and corsage of pink Delight roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and the United States, the bride chose a light blue tailored suit with navy hat and white accessories and corsage of red carnations.

Those who served at the reception included: Mrs. Joan Woodward, Miss Jean Poste and Miss Marilyn Wood.

Out-of-town guests were present from Hamilton, Port Credit, Port Colborne, Bancroft, Coe Hill, Gemenon and Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Soble will reside in Amelisburg, Ontario.

Bridge St. W.A. Sponsors Spring Tea

Lovely as a spring poem were the Sunday School rooms of Bridge Street United Church yesterday afternoon for the annual spring tea sponsored by the Women's Association. The soft, pastel green of the walls made a delightful background for the baskets of spring flowers which adorned the fireplaces in the ladies' assembly room, and occupied pedestal positions round about.

Even the pillars had their spring touch with sheaves of fragrant apple blossoms and lovely pink, bitter almond sprays, while baskets of purple and white lilacs, bleeding hearts, variegated tulips and bridal wreath spires lined the stage front.

Receiving at the door were the gracious receptionists, Mrs. E. S. Fairman and the Reverend Mr. Ian Collins, assistant pastor, and nearby, the treasurer, Mrs. H. Robbins, assisted by Mrs. S. Anderson.

EXQUISITE CENTREPIECE

The tea table with its beautiful basket lace cloth was centred with an exquisite arrangement of graceful sprays of pink bitter almond, intermingled with rose-colored tulips, accented by dainty white candles in crystal candlesticks by silver candelabra with tall, ralph blue tapers and string from lacy collars of white.

Each little guest table had its white cloth, and centrepiece of white trillliums, spring's own flowers, as the emblem of the Province of Ontario.

The tea room hostesses were Mrs. Northcott, Mrs. R. Mowder, Mrs. E. Denyes and Miss I. Dickinson.

Those who presided at the tea table were: Mrs. H. Wray and Mrs. A. C. Hunt, Mrs. F. S. Deacon and Mrs. H. Ackerman. Replenishing the tea pots were Mrs. Anderson, C. Meyers, C. Hyde, C. Cathcart, E. Sutton, A. May, D. McMullen and C. Sandwell.

Mrs. D. Williams and Mrs. S. Gerhoh were in charge of the servers, who included: Mesdames R. Arnott, H. Fetterly, R. Bateman, J. Mitchell, H. McBurney, H. Francis, C. Massey, F. Wright, R. Hall and M. Wake.

In charge of the cup that cheers but INebriates were Mrs. A. Gilroy and Mrs. W. Tice.

MANY GOOD THINGS

The tea table centre piece was replete with many good things to eat which were pleasingly placed. Delicious sandwiches, open and sweet perfume mingled with that of the fine tarty tasting lemon and small; raspberry tarts, apple pies, angel cakes as light as cream, date and nut squares, lemon cup cakes, lemon pies heaped with delicious meringue, rich chocolate cakes, a gem of a marble cake white topped, with chocolate icings on the sides, the whole sheltered beneath a cellophane tent, adorned with silk ribbons in silver tone, bran muffins, pink iced cakes, fruit tarts, Danish pastry that melts in the mouth, sweet pastry, cucumber pickles, pickled beets, homemade bread, fragrant and delicious; vanilla cream, and chocolate fudge.

In charge of these confections were Mesdames C. Morgan, W. McMullen, J. Parrott, H. Allen, A. Clare, J. Demess, M. Tugnett, S. Hibbard, D. Stanton, C. Miller, D. Adsett, H. Parker, J. Kuntze, E. Whitbread, W. Gilbert and Miss Helen Sulman.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Farrar, Trenton, Married 50 Years

TRENTON (Special) — For the last 50 years the 24th of May has given Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Farrar a reason to celebrate.

It was on the Queen's Birthday back in 1904 at the City of Kingston that handsome, Albert Augustus Farrar and pretty Mary Ellen Mosier became man and wife. The ceremony was performed in the Methodist church parsonage with the Rev. G. Crumley officiating.

Early in the morning on that eventful day a half a century ago two young people boarded a train at Tweed headed for Kingston where they spent their honeymoon at Victoria Day. It was a beautiful day and the newlyweds started off with the holiday spirit.

The appreciative 20-year-old son of a Tweed grocery keeper had not yet broached the subject of matrimony to his future bride. But by the time the train had reached Kingston the pretty 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mosier of Madoc had been convinced that marriage was the only answer to a serious fourteen month romance.

Events followed swiftly. In the next few hours Albert and Mary had completed all arrangements for their wedding.

Martha Farrar of Queensboro attended the bride, while Edward Phillips of Madoc supported the groom. The happy newlyweds emerged from the parsonage facing a world filled only with truth and sunshine. They spent the rest of the day sightseeing from a horse drawn carriage.

The groom promised his bride a honeymoon trip to Western Canada. He was never able to carry out the pledge however until 45 years later. "I never could afford it," Albert says he said.

ACCOMPLISHED UNDERTAKINGS

Life in general has been good to the Farrars. They worked hard at a team and as a team accomplished their main undertakings. They finally arrived at the time when they could take things easier and decided to spend a good part of each year travelling: In 20 years they have visited only two winters in the south.

In February, 1921, the Farrars came to Trenton from Oshawa. They opened a grocery on Dundas Street East. Then in 1924 they bought the Union Hotel from a man named Boyce. Famous as a Trenton landmark they operated the place as a hotel and grocery.

In 1934 fire burned out their business but they were able to reopen their grocery. In operation the grocery and good fortune has favored them ever since.

In 1942 the Farrars extended their operation. They had developed a thriving furniture business in Trenton and believed a branch in Belleville would also succeed. Needless to say another successful enterprise blossomed out of their decision in making this decision.

In 1943 the Farrars sold the Belleville branch to their son Bert. The following year the Trenton store was turned over to a son Gerald and a son-in-law, Bob Hamilton, of Belleville.

Mr. Farrar comes by merchandising naturally. His father J. A. V. Farrar was a storekeeper in Tweed for years. It was there that he got his start a furniture and undertaking business from a Trenton merchant and councillor W. J. McNair before the latter moved to Belleville. Mr. Farrar took over a similar business from the late Wesley Saylor.

ENJOYED CHILDHOOD LIVING

Out of the union of Mary Mosier and Albert Farrar came 15 children. Eleven of the Farrar children are still living. Most of them live in Trenton or are engaged in varied occupations. A

Mrs. L. Read, Mrs. J. Loynes, Mrs. W. Jardine, Mrs. S. Hoard, and Mrs. R. Chaplin.

Much credit goes to the convenors, Mrs. J. E. Marsh, Mrs. H. Mott, for an exceptionally fine spring tea, and to all who assisted in its successful culmination.

Miss P. Campbell Honorary Member Of F.W.T.A.O.

An excellent turnout was present at the final county meeting of the "Federation of Women Teachers' Association of Ontario" held at Latimer's on Wednesday evening.

Most of the business was withheld till the end, when it was learned that Miss Pearl Campbell of Belleville, had been made an honorary member of the FWTAO.

Guests at the dinner were Miss and Mrs. Enos David, well known residents of this city. Mr. David gave an interesting account of their recent travels in Mexico, illustrated by a film depicting some of the highlights of the trip. Mr. David is particularly well known to the teachers since he was, not long ago, chairman of the Belleville School Board.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Discusses Business Items

Many important items of business were discussed at the May meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the Belleville General Hospital at which Mrs. J. H. Forrester presided.

Among these, was the recommendation of Mrs. W. C. Mikel that this auxiliary join No. 3 district region of hospital auxiliaries. Mrs. Mikel stressed the benefit derived from contact with workers from other hospitals.

At a recent meeting of the Regional Council of the Ontario Hospital Association, held in Kingston and representing eight East-Ontario hospitals, Mrs. J. E. Buchan, the past president, was elected an executive director and Mr. K. Box, superintendent of Belleville General Hospital, was elected vice-president.

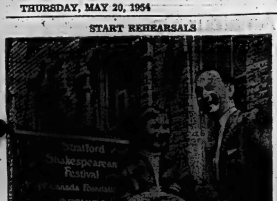
Mrs. C. C. Taylor reported that approximately 600 volunteers toured the building on Hospital Day and many came to the Nurses' Residence for tea. She thanked all those who had helped with this enterprise.

WELCOMES NEW MEMBERS

Mrs. Forrester welcomed new members, and announced the appointment of Mrs. B. C. Burley as convener of the membership committee to relieve Miss Dickens. Mrs. E. L. Scott will convene the secretarial committee assisting the Building Fund campaign.

Mrs. C. E. James, a representative of the nurses' alumnae, announced that Mrs. Rutherford of that organization had made an emergency list of workers who would be willing to help fill vacancies on the staff of the "Coffee Snack" during the summer months.

The Hospital Auxiliary supplies bursaries to several student nurses at Belleville General Hospital.



FAVORABLE ACCOUNTS

Favorable accounts were given of the "Coffee-Snack" and "Opportunity Shop". Children's clothes are needed, and as space is limited, a request was made to previous donors of the latter shop to collect their articles that have not been sold.

Mrs. Forrester reported on a meeting in Shannonville at which Mrs. Buchan and she had spoken at the request of a church group there. They supplied information regarding the hospital. This material was largely available to visitors on Hospital Day. Similar requests on such talks are anticipated.

The proposed revisal of the constitution was discussed, and will come up for a final reading in June, in its successful culmination.

START REHEARSALS

Frances Hyland, Saskatchewan-born actress who returned recently from a successful career on the London stage, arrives at Stratford, Ont., to begin rehearsals for this summer's Shakespearian festival. She talk with Cecil Clarke of London, artistic adviser to the festival, who will direct "Measure for Measure," in which Miss Hyland plays opposite James Mason, British stage and film star. Other plays to be presented are "Taming of the Shrew" and Oedipus Rex." (CP Photo).

Wedding Reception Third Installment

As Conducted by Mary Moore

In giving you help with your wedding plans in 1954 I'm getting excited over plans for Marianne's and Herbie's wedding in 1955.

We've just heard the startling news that he is posted to a unit which is thousands of miles from our home—so, it looks as if we have to by Pollyanna-like about it, console ourselves with the thought that the extra time spent on trousseau preparations will make it all that much lovelier.

Last night Marianne and Herbie cut out a 10-yard length of linen tea-towelling (on the living-room floor) to make 12 tea towels. So at least they will be able to dry the dishes—and what's more they have dishes!

But to get back to your 1954 problem.

I promised you quantities for making sandwiches.

SANDWICHES.

(Amounts are for 50 2-slice sandwiches).

In most cities in Canada you can buy a 2-lb. sandwich loaf. This slices into 22 slices, and if it is what bakeries call a "steam sandwich loaf", when crusts are cut off the loaf is not drastically reduced in volume.

These amounts are for 100 slices of bread made into 50 2-slice sandwiches.

Bread—4½ 2-lb. sandwich loaves.

Butter—1½ lbs. (room temperature) to spread half of the slices.

Mayonnaise—1 pt. or part to spread the other half of the slices.

Chicken—4 5-lb. fowl (dressed weight) will yield 1½ lbs. white and dark meat if you have an expert slicer. (There will be surplus unsliceable chicken leftover —so plan to use this in chicken salad.) Allowing 2 ounces thinly sliced white and dark meat of chicken per sandwich, you will need 100 ounces, which means you will have to buy 6-lb. fowl (dressed weight) and boil it.

Note 1—If you treat the chickens the yield will be lower for the chicken is drier.

Note 2 — Chickens should be chilled after cooking, and sliced very cold with sharp knife.

Ham—4 lbs. thinly sliced boiled or baked boneless ham will make 50 2-slice sandwiches.

Egg—Allowing tablespoons (1½ ozs.) per sandwich of chopped egg sandwich filling (mixed with mayonnaise etc.) you will need slightly less than 4 Imperial pints for 50 2-slice sandwiches.

Lobster or Salmon — Same amounts as for chopped egg above—slightly less than 4 Imperial pints for 50 2-slice sandwiches.

Note on Thickness of Slices — If sandwich bread is sliced on slicing machine dial may be set to slice the bread thinner and you can get 30 slices to each 2-lb. loaf, but this does not affect amount of filling.

ASPARAGUS ROLLS.

You may use either freshly cooked and chilled asparagus or well-drained canned asparagus. Cut a slice of brown or white bread. Spread with well-creamed process of white cream cheese which has been moistened with Mayonnaise. Place 3 asparagus tips, end to end, with tips at each corner of bread. Roll slice cornerwise, and cut roll at centre. If necessary skewer the roll shut with toothpick until time of serving, then cut in half.

Next week I will give you more wedding data—miscellaneous this time.

When you are painting steps and want to keep the stairway open for traffic, paint every other step first, and when dry, paint the others.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LETTERS AND ANSWERS DON'T STAND ON CEREMONY WITH YOUR SON'S FIANCEE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a son 30 years of age who is in service and won't be home until Christmas.

Recently, the girl he has been going with for three years paid him a visit, and he wrote us that they had decided to get married when he gets home. We have had several letters from him telling of the plans.

This girl comes to visit us often, and I would like to know if we should break the news to her or let her place to tell us first. — O.H.

Dear O.H.:

When you ask if you should "break the news" to this girl, I assume you mean, should you tell her that you have already heard that she and your son are planning to be married at Christmas.

I don't think I'd wait for her to mention it, if I were you. No doubt she assumes that your son has written to you about this, and she may be wondering why you don't speak of it.

Since this girl comes to see you often, you are probably on very friendly terms with her, and the natural thing would be for you to express your happiness over the fact that she is to be a member of your family. By all means tell her that you have heard the news from your son and that you are delighted.

A PICK-UP IS A PICK-UP WHETHER OVER THE PHONE OR OTHERWISE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl 18 years old. Two years ago I went to a convention in Washington, where I met a fellow of 23 who has been in the Air Force four years. I have never seen him, as we met over the telephone, but he sounds very nice and we have talked a lot over the phone since then. I also written to each other.

My parents do not know anything about this fellow. Do you think I should tell them? Also I'm going to the same convention soon, and I would like to know if I should tell him I am coming to Washington again, and go out with him if he asks me.

M.H.

Dear M.H.:

I wish you had told me how in the world you met this chap over the telephone. This sounds pretty casual to me, and I think you should be very cautious about following up any such acquaintance unless there was some mutual friend somehow involved in this very informal meeting of yours. It's not very wise to make a friend of a man about whom you know nothing.

Certainly I think you should discuss this with your parents before making any plans for seeing him when you go to Washington again. If they approve, that's their responsibility. But you would be very foolish indeed to have any dates with him without anyone knowing anything about it. A pick-up is a pick-up whether it's over the phone, at the movies, on the street or wherever, and you might find yourself in some very uncomfortable situation if you went out with the young man without any trustworthy information as to what sort of person he is.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

GROOM'S PARENTS TO GIVE REHEARSAL DINNER.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am the mother of the prospective bridegroom, and I would like to entertain for the bridal party (outside of my home) following the church wedding rehearsal.

(1) How should I invite the guests to this rehearsal dinner?

(2) Would the bride's parents be invited?

(3) Would my husband and I both be there? If so, should we be there to receive the guests as they arrive?

(4) Should the wives of the ushers be invited, even the two who are sisters-in-law of the bride-to-be?

(5) Should I make the seating arrangements at the table?

(6) I am not planning to have any entertainment after the dinner. So when the dinner is finished do we all just leave?

Bridegroom's mother

(1) Invite the guests by telephone (the simplest way to do, since then it is easy to explain the occasion, place, hour, and so forth). Write notes or telegraph to those not available by telephone.

(3) Yes! The bride's father has a most important part in the rehearsal . . . rehearsing giving his daughter in marriage. And naturally the bride's mother, hostess of the wedding, is invited. P.S.: Before you make any plans, you should talk over your plans with the bride and her mother.

(2) Yes, . . . you and your husband are the hosts of this occasion. You sit at the head of the table, your husband opposite you, at the foot of the table.

(4) This is not necessary. Best to invite only the members of the wedding party.

(5) Yes. . . . the seating-arrangements are your responsibility.

(6) Not necessary to have any post - rehearsal - dinner entertainment Guests are expected to leave soon after the dinner is finished.

CONCERNING THE WHITE TUXEDO JACKET

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer this question for several of us brides-to-be?

At about what date is it correct for the men in a wedding party to begin wearing the white tuxedo coat? — "Pat."

Of course it depends on the part of the country, or the climate. But since you write from a Northern state, I'd say there the season would start about the first of June. Just in time for June weddings!

But remember, you brides-to-be, that it is absolutely incorrect for a man to wear a tuxedo jacket, white or black, before 6 o'clock in the evening, at the very earliest. A tuxedo jacket is a dinner jacket, for evening wear.

SEE BOY-FRIEND IS ILL

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A boy-friend of mine (we were formerly classmates) is ill at his home, and the chances are that he will be confined to his house for some time. I would like to go to see him, but Mother and I are wondering if it would be the proper thing for me to do, even though of course his mother, whom I know quite well, would be there.

Georgia S.

It would be proper, but the only way to find out if it would be convenient, is for you to telephone his mother, whom you know, and ask her if her son is well enough to have you come to see him. Under the circumstances she will be forthright with you. . . and if she says you may come, you ask her to please set a time most convenient for her and her patient. P.S.: Please don't stay long, so to tire the patient.

ADMIRES CANADIAN FURS

Queen Mother, Princess Margaret Lingered at Canadian Fur Display

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret visited the Commonwealth section of the British Industries Fair and lingered longest at the $200,000 Canadian fur display.

The Queen Mother, accompanied by Norman Robertson, Canadian high commissioner in London, gave close attention to several garments and said she was "much impressed" by Canada's progress in fur breeding.

Behind her, fashion - conscious Princess Margaret was inspecting mink garments ranging from wild mink to a new honey-blonde color called champagne. She has been photographed several times this year in a full-length mink coat.

LIKES FOX FURS

The pearl platinum shading of a fox fur called opaline came in for special attention from the Queen Mother, who has shown a love of fox fur in her fashion choice over many years. Her Majesty said the skins interested her because it was the first time she had seen this particular shade. She commented also on palladium fox, a silver-white shade originally called platinum.

A cerulean sapphire mink coat with up-to-date narrow fullness, small collar, soft shoulders and three-quarter, cuffed sleeves, worked in pelts that encircled the arm, held the centre of the stand. Both royal ladies mentioned its delicate color and varied fashion points.

Last year, 12,627 overseas buyers visited the British Industries Fair and this year's figures are expected to equal, or better, that. The Canadian stand, located at one side of the main entrance, is drawing admiring glances.

Women of all ranks, many of whom can not hope to own a mink coat, are entranced by the rich wood-smoke shade of a short coat in lutetia, an Aleutian mink which is the loveliest and most expensive of the furs on show. With fullness rippling from a smooth 'shoulder' yoke of narrow pelts showing little more than the dark backbone marking, the coat has a round stand collar and wide sleeves caught into a narrow cuff.

The ranch fur industry is represented by six mutation mink and four dark mink garments, including a silverbii "Breath of Spring" jacket, a full-length silverbiu coat and a sapphire stole. Also on show are a full-length beaver coat, a muskrat coat and squirrel jacket.

A fox garment that drew the Queen Mother's attention is a ground-length evening cape with deep curved collar, composed of complete skins separated by pleated silk.

Canadian furs hold special place too in the retail fur markets of Britain. The most expensive coat on display this month is a Canadian sapphire blue mink costing £5,500 (about $15,125). Styled by Britain's National Fur Company, the coat is comprised of 70 skins and 6½ miles of cotton and required 224 hours of skilled craftsmanship.

In the big department stores there are Canadian dyed squirrel coats, £345 for a full-length, and ranch mink stoles at 1190.

Marie Dionne To Take New Religious Name

By BERTRAND THIBAULT

QUEBEC (CP) — The growing separation among the world-famed Dionne quintuplets will be emphasized once more Monday when one of them will put aside her given name and replace it with a religious one.

On that day, Marie Dionne will don the habit of a novice in the Roman Catholic order of the Servants of the Blessed Sacrament and thus take another step toward separation from her sisters.

At a morning service in the outdoor chapel of the yellow - brick convent here, the other four sisters, Yvonne, Annette, Cecile and Emilie, will watch through a forge-at-iron grillwork as their sister and two other postulants put on the white wool tunic, the scapular and the white cotton veil of a novice.

After a two-year novitiate, Marie will take vows of poverty, chastity and obedience if she decides to remain in the order.

Meanwhile the four other sisters go about their own lives. Yvonne is studying fine arts at a Montreal convent of the Notre Dame Congregation while Cecile, Annette and Emilie are learning domestic science at the Model, Sees, convent run by the Sisters of the Assumption.

The order of the Servants of the Blessed Sacrament, which the 18-year-old girl from Callander, Ont., entered Nov. 3 last, is consecrated to adoration of the blessed sacrament and to working in silence.

For Marie Dionne she now is called behind the cloister walls, Monday will mark the end of a six-months postulate. But it will not change the kind of work she does or the rules and regulations she must follow.

The black robe and cape she now wears will be put aside to be worn at a future date by some other newcomer to the order.

Marie, herself does not yet know which of the five names she will submit to the convent's superior general, she will receive. Like the rest of the Dionne family, she will find that out only during the religious ceremonies.

Sally Ann No Amateur On Subject of Rehabilitation

TORONTO (CP)—A silver-haired 59-year-old grandmother says one of the biggest jobs in dealing with women ex-convicts is "helping them back to a place of self-respect and gainful employment."

Senior Major Marjorie Woolcott of the Salvation Army is no amateur on the subject of jail and rehabilitation. She has spent many years at her work of goodwill.

"Even after the law has exacted its penalty, the jail stigma often makes job-hunting a frustrating experience," says Maj. Woolcott. She claims that work is the best method of rehabilitation.

Maj. Woolcott came from Southend-on-Sea, England, to work with her late husband, Joseph, in prisons across Canada until his death eight years ago. They spent five years working with prisoners at Guelph reformatory. Now she carries on at the Don jail and Mercer Reformatory for Women in Toronto.

Maj. Woolcott, who takes an occasional week-end off to visit her five grandchildren, was asked what makes women wind up in police court?

She replies that after 30 years' police work she is convinced liquor is responsible "for 90 per cent of all the trouble that women get into."

In her work Maj. Woolcott has caused some raising of eyebrows.

She tells of a recent Sunday afternoon when she was seen on a street-car, equipped with Bible, prayer book and an open bottle of whisky.

"No matter how incriminating this evidence may seem, there's an explanation.

"A young man was loud and boisterous. I knew he could be arrested for having the open bottle on the street-car so I asked him to sit beside me.

"He did. He gave me the bottle and quietened down.

"Then," says the uniformed grandmother, "I could hardly get home so I could pour the stuff down the drain. I'm down four-square on booze."

Aikens W.M.S. Gives Dialogue On 'Church's Missionary Work'

Mrs. Perry Hamilton was at home to the ladies of the Aikens Auxiliary for their regular May meeting. Fifteen members and two Baby Band members were in attendance.

With Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton presiding at the piano, quiet music was rendered as a fitting opening to the worship service, the theme of which was "The Gospel According to You." The program convener, Mrs. Murney Jeffrey, presided for the worship service giving the call to worship, "To seek the reproduction of Christ's mind in the mind of the community is the greatest aim we can cherish," by Phillips Brooks. The hymn of consecration and discipleship was sung.

A series of Scriptures from four chapters of the Bible were read by Mrs. A. McComb, Mrs. A. Latta, Mrs. F. Scrimshaw and Mrs. R. Conner. These passages revealed to us the meaning of the singular love God had in making us His sons, that we may persevere in Christian love." In a short meditation, thoughts of Thomas Curtis Clark's book, "Today is Mine" were discussed. He points out that it is essential for people to discover that complete commitment and obedience to mean conflict with accepted standards and patterns of personal life, the church, the political and economic life of the nation and of the International order. Christians must be willing to pay the price that obedience to God demands.

THE GOSPEL—YOURS

A minister once reminded his congregation that "you are writing a gospel, a chapter a day, by the deeds you do and the words you say. Men read what you write, whether faithless or true—for that is the gospel according to you."

The president, Mrs. F. Moon, read information pertaining to the missionary for prayer, Miss Rebecca Varley. Miss Varley was married last January to Rev. Mr. Osman, who is working as a social church mission secretary. As the political situation is tense in their new mission field in Uganda, Africa, they ask for prayerful support.

At this time, Mrs. Everett Hubble led the auxiliary in a sincere and personal prayer for this missionary and indeed all those who are giving of their talents.

Mrs. F. Moon continued with the usual business. After thanking the hostess and program committee, a short discussion on the supply work was held. All those having good, clean, used clothing and children's shoes were requested to have them ready for packing by the first of June. The June meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Orlif Pearson. The offering was taken and dedicated by the president, who used the following lines, "No offering of my own I have, nor works my faith to prove, I can but give the gifts He gave, and plead His love for love," by John Whittier.

The program committee took charge of a short dialogue entitled, "The Missionary Obligation of the Church." This was based on the 1953 Willingen report, representing artists were: Mrs. L. Chard, as a delegate from India; Mrs. Ernest Kells as a missionary from Japan; Mrs. Gordon Wilman as a member from the audience and Mrs. Murney Jeffrey as the leader of the auxiliary meeting which was the setting for the dialogue.

The delegate from India explained to us what Willingen was. In reality it was an enlarged meeting of the committee of the International Council held at Willigern, Germany, for 12 days in July, 1952. It consisted of 190 people, representing 50 countries, of whom 40 were nationals of the younger churches. The missionary from Japan, after seeing the whole picture of the work there, was keenly disappointed and deeply concerned over the fact that in all these 1900 years, the Christian church had achieved so little in the task to which it was dedicated — making Jesus Christ known and loved in all the world.

The delegate from India continued by saying that the most important statement of the whole conference came from the committee on "Calling the church to mission and unity. She said: "While unity may be desirable in the lands of the older churches, it is imperative in those of the younger churches."

In answer to the question of how and who could help make the work abroad more effective, the reply was that young men, regardless of profession, if a leader at home, could act the same abroad, sharing in the community life to which he may be stationed. If ordinary lay men and women took their religious convictions into their daily work at the home base they would naturally become unofficial ambassadors of the Christian way, wherever they were posted.

Every church member should at all times assume one definite responsibility in the church. At the conclusion of this play, two members were won to be ambassadors for Christ.

After singing the concluding verses of a suitable hymn, Mrs. Moon closed the meeting.

Mrs. Hamilton, with her assistants, served refreshments during the social hour which added to the fruitfulness of the afternoon's activities.

U.S. Congress Will Probe Trade With Red China

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Styles Bridges (Rep., N.H.) said today that his appropriations committee will make a "searching inquiry" into the extent to which Free-World allies have agreed to relax bans on trade with Red China.

Bridges' plan for an investigation of this issue came after Senator McCarthy told the Senate Wednesday that it would be "criminal folly" not to cut off United States financial aid to countries which ship "the sinews of military and economic strength" to the Communists.

McCarthy had barely finished his floor address before the foreign aid administrator, Harold E. Stassen, shot back with a statement that what the Wisconsin Republican senator said was "fantastic, unbelievable and untrue."

Stassen, who has tangled with McCarthy before, said "we are steadily building for peace under President Eisenhower's leadership." And in an obvious reference to McCarthy's now-recessed televised tangle with army officials he declared McCarthy "is frantically reaching for diversionary headlines after the sorry spectacle of his record in recent hearings."

"PAINFUL" DISCUSSION

McCarthy, in what he said was a "painful and unpleasant" discussion of his own party's "shortcomings," called for the listing by Stassen of "every type of material which we have agreed that our allies can ship to our enemies."

Bridges said in an interview that the appropriations group, which passes on foreign aid funds, "already has taken cognizance of Stassen's statements indicating a weakening of the ban on trade with the Reds."

"We will want to go into this matter very thoroughly and see that the aid we are giving, or its equivalent, is not directly or indirectly filtering into Communist hands."

Federal Control Extended For Another 2 Years

OTTAWA (CP)—Legislation to extend federal control involving the rail and ship movement of goods in bulk for a further two-year period was approved Wednesday by the Commons despite opposition protests that the powers are too wide.

Members gave third reading to the legislation. It was introduced because the government plans to permit emergency powers to expire May 31.

Transport Minister Chevrier said the powers contained in the legislation are necessary to ensure the movement of bulk commodities such as grain to meet export requirements. It gives Federal Transport Controller Roy Milner authority over the movement of grain and grain products, ores and minerals, ferrous metals, iron and steel scrap, sand, stone and gravel, pulpwood, woodpulp, poles and logs, coal and coke and sulphur and phosphate.

'Peasant Pope,' Five Others, To Be Canonized

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — A Solemn Consistory of 23 cardinals and 100 archbishops and bishops today approved the canonization of Pope Pius X, the "Peasant Pope," who died in 1914.

Pope Pius XII, in white silk robes with train and red shoulder cape, presided over the ceremony seated on a raised throne under a red canopy.

The "Peasant Pope," who died of a broken heart at the failure of his attempts to avert the First World War, will be proclaimed a saint at an open-air rite in St. Peter's square May 29. The last pontiff to be so honored was Pius V (1566-1572). He was canonized in 1712.

The consistory also gave assent to the canonization of five other saints—a French missionary, three Italian priests and an Italian nun. They will be canonized together at ceremonies June 12 and 13.

Chiang Requests More Support For His Regime

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Chiang Kai-shek today began his second term as president of Nationalist China with a call for more military and moral support and a strong alliance of anti-Communist Asian countries.

In a brief inauguration address, Chiang said his Nationalist armies can recover the mainland of China if given a "reasonable amount of moral and material support from the Free World and an adequate supply of the implements of war."

He also called on all Asian countries facing a threat of Red invasion to "establish an anti-Communist periphery a strong collective organization capable of collective action."

German Shipping Firms Welcome Seaway Plan

HAMBURG (Reuters)—The five West German shipping companies operating direct cargo services between Europe and the North American Great Lakes are unanimous in welcoming the St. Lawrence seaway project.

They are especially interested in the possibility of carrying ore and grain by sea direct from the heart of the American continent to European ports.

The companies concerned are members of the Hamburg-Chicago Line and the Hapag-Lloyd group. The Hamburg-Chicago Line comprises the two Hamburg companies A. Kirsten and Sartori and Berger; the Hapag-Lloyd group consists of the Hamburg-American Line, the North German Lloyd of Bremen and Ahrenkiel and Bene in Hamburg. These five companies joined this year to form one general service.

Atomic Powers Meet Again On Disarmament

LONDON (Reuters) — Representatives of the major atomic powers—the United States, Russia, Britain, France and Canada—conferred in private today on world disarmament, including a system of control.

They are meeting as a sub-committee of the United Nations disarmament commission. Today's session came after a two-day break in the meetings which opened here a week ago. The sub-committee must report to the full UN disarmament commission by July 15. The Western powers are seeking a general agreement on arms limitations.

In the past, Russia has pressed for a universal ban on atomic weapons, but without conceding inspection and control rights that the West considers sufficient.

Highways Probe Called Off Until After Court Hearings

TORONTO (CP)—A sudden halt to a three-day session of the legislature's select committee investigating alleged highway department irregularities came Wednesday after a hurried interjection by Attorney-General Porter.

The minister interrupted questioning of J. D. Millar, former deputy minister of highways, to say the testimony he was giving might prejudice the crown's case in forthcoming court proceedings against contracting firms and officials.

Mr. Porter made his interjection after a whispered committee-table conference with H. A. Colonia, provincial auditor.

ENOS HEARINGS

It ended the hearings until after the trials of four former employees of the department at Fort William, starting June 7 and until the trials of three contracting firms and 11 persons in Toronto, Whitby and Fort William.

The committee during the next month will visit the United States and tour highway construction projects in northern Ontario. It will hold a two-day session June 3 and 4 in Albany, N.Y., with New-York highway officials. On June 9, the committee will travel to Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury for a two-day inspection tour and on June 16 will leave for Bismarck, N.D., to meet North Dakota highway officials, then travel north to the Lakehead. It will return to Toronto for further meetings the last week of June.

WENT "ARMADED"

Albert Wren (Lib-Lab.—Kenora) said he was "amazed" by Mr. Millar's testimony that he had been interviewed only twice—for a total of 35 minutes—by Duncan Gordon, of J. D. Woods and Gordon Ltd., Toronto management consultants appointed to draft a new organization in the highways department.

A $1,000-report was read by Mr. Duncan during the first two days of the hearing.

Mr. Millar said he met Mr. Duncan for 15 minutes in January and for 20 minutes in February.

"Are you saying that was 35 minutes in all and at all times you were the senior official of the department?" asked Mr. Wren.

"... that's an amazing statement."

The witness said the original investigation which began last fall was the result of routine checks within the department itself. During the investigation Mr. Millar was in constant touch with the provincial auditor's department which launched the full-scale inquiry.

Police Close Drug-Peddling Trap on Ring

TORONTO (CP)—In simultaneous moves in Toronto and Montreal Wednesday the RCMP closed a drug-peddling trap they said may smash a narcotics ring with Canada-wide and international connections.

Nine persons, including two women, were arrested in raids in the two cities. Officers said other arrests are expected shortly.

Months of work by an RCMP undercover agent, who fraternized with those in the drug racket to gain their confidence, brought about the arrests. The agent spent thousands of dollars buying heroin from peddlers to get evidence.

RCMP Commr. F. P. Cruickshank said here the arrests will be a big blow to drug peddling rings across Canada. In Montreal, officers said the development was a "solid dent" in the drug peddling rings across Canada with their international connections.

HELD HERE

Arrested here were Max Beaver, Toronto used car lot operator, his brother, Louis (Red) Beaver; Donald Fox and Helen Jeffries. All are charged with selling drugs.

Arrested in Montreal were Walter Ward, 46, of Montreal, described by police as a key figure in the ring; Maurice Dufour, Montreal, and Jack Duchin, Sidney Short and Laurette Rochon, all of no given address. Miss Ward and Laurette Rochon are charged with conspiracy, possessing and selling narcotics. The others are charged with selling.

Those arrested in Montreal pleaded not guilty Wednesday and preliminary hearing was set for May 26. All were released on bail; Duchin on $1,000, Ward on $2,000 and Dufour, Short and Miss Rochon on $1,000 each.

Inspector Cruickshank said Henry Stefaniuk, now serving a three-year term in Kingston penitentiary, has also been charged in connection with the case and will be brought to Toronto.

Meanwhile, it was learned that United States immigration agents in New York arrested a Toronto man and were holding him on $5,000 bail pending deportation proceedings in connection with the narcotics ring. The suspect's name was not available.

Identify Victims

DETROIT (CP)—Police said today they have tentatively identified two drowning victims as Mrs. Gladys C. Woodward, 29, and Kenneth Anderson, 47, both of Detroit.

They are believed to be the woman and the man who set out in a boat with Harold Deline, 34, also of Detroit, Sunday. All three are thought to be drowned.

Ten other persons were drowned in Lake St. Clair Sunday in other mishaps. Five bodies have been recovered.

TIMELY GAIN

LONDON (CP)—Nearly 4,750,000 clocks and 2,300,000 watches were manufactured in the United Kingdom last year, about one-third of the total going for export. Before the Second World War Britain imported all watches and most of its clocks.

Consul-General Says Canada House Assured

NEW YORK (CP)—Ray Lawson, Canadian consul-General in New York, said Wednesday night the financial future of a Canada House in New York is assured and sponsors are studying possible sites for the building.

In a speech to the Dalhousie Club of New York, the consul-general said his original call for financial support had been oversubscribed. He had hoped for 18 offers of $100,000 and had received 22.

"Each of these sponsors will offer the Canadian government a long-term option to purchase his interest at cost, plus a small interest lower than the bank rate," Lawson said.

Because of the additional sponsorship, original plans for a $5,000,000 project are likely to be expanded into an $8,000,000 building.

RENTALS TO CARRY

The sponsors hoped prevailing rentals would carry all costs and that eventually the building could be turned over to the government without cost to the taxpayer.

The consul-general said it is planned to set aside space in the building to the government and to Canadian companies and American concerns with interests in Canada.

Lawson originally proposed Canada House in a speech to the Canadian Club of New York in October, 1953.

Senator Against Shorter Hours, Five-Day Week

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator R. B. Horner says shorter hours and the five-day week aren't of any real benefit to Canada.

The Saskatchewan Progressive Conservative said Wednesday in the Senate that he knows he will be criticized for stating that as his opinion. But he still believes that young people don't need long week-ends.

Senator Horner, a farmer from Blaine Lake, Sask., spoke during debate on a motion to ratify the Japanese-Canadian Trade Treaty signed earlier this year. He said he deplores the use of arguments about grain surpluses in the West in support of the treaty.

He said he doesn't believe there is a bushel of grain in the West Coast outlets for want of storage space. In his own town, he said, the elevators could hold 300,000 bushels. No business in Canada received as much unfavorable publicity from the size of surpluses as did the farming industry.

French Planes Hammer Vietminh Moving to East

HANOI (AP)—French fighters and bombers today maintained a steady hammering of Communist-led Vietminh troops moving from Dien Bien Phu eastwards towards the vital Red river delta.

French army spokesmen said their planes blasted fresh gaps in the key road east of Nam Diao. If miles northeast of the fallen French Union fortress.

Fighters concentrated upon hitting big Molotov truck convoys carrying troops, war equipment and ammunition eastward.

Meanwhile more helicopters and Beaver planes flew into Dien Bien Phu to evacuate French wounded. The French hope to complete in less than two weeks the removal of the 153 wounded the Vietminh said they would release.

Rotarians Hear County Assessor

CAMPBELLFORD — Mr. Garnet Shields, assessor for the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, spoke to Rotarians on Monday on the subject of the new system of "equalized assessment" under the new county system.

The speaker told the club that the principle of equality between assessments in the same area is of primary importance in the over-all picture of tax collection. As long as there is a common basis of assessment in the 23 municipalities in the counties, it will matter little how much of an increase there might be in any particular area.

There are two methods of arriving at the value of a property; depreciation from original cost or rental and capitalization method. The latter is computed on replacement cost. Formerly there was a great variation between municipalities. Under the new set-up, there are five zones under urban assessment ranging from the largest town where all services are offered by the municipality, to the small village where no services are provided. There are six zones in rural Northumberland and Durham. The amount on which the taxpayers of the county will pay has been increased from about 35 million dollars in 1950 to more than 52 million in 1954 under the new assessment.

DRASTIC REDUCTION

This, said the speaker, will mean a drastic reduction in the mill rates throughout the counties, and the over-all effect will likely be to provide for a fair and equitable basis on which to collect the county levy.

In former years, municipalities which had a low assessment and a high mill rate profited when it came to paying for county services, but this condition will be remedied by a single standard of practice in assessment throughout the counties.

Mr. Shields said that assessing is a profession, requiring a great knowledge of the law, the building trades and the duties of an assessor. This knowledge, together with common sense, makes for a good assessor.

See British-U.S. Difference One of Timing

LONDON (CP)—British reaction to President Eisenhower's latest statement about a southeast Asia security pact clearly shows the divergence of views between Britain and the United States on Far East policy.

At a press conference in Washington Wednesday, the president said the proposed security pact for southeast Asia might be formed even if Britain refused to participate.

Diplomatic sources in London feel the main difference in approach is one of timing. The U.S. wants to go ahead quickly with plans for an anti-communist alliance; Britain wants to go slow.

FRESH POINTS OF VIEW

British press comment today emphasized the importance of timing.

"The president's words suggest that there is now a potentially serious divergence of view between Britain and the United States," says the Daily Telegraph, a Conservative newspaper. "Unless this can be corrected there is a danger that the Geneva conference might prove positively damaging to the Western cause, in addition to being merely non-productive."

The Times, independent, also says that the discrepancy in views seems to be in timing.

The Times adds that British policy, though it may seem dangerously unhurried, is "paying the two important dividends of winning the confidence of opinion in southeast Asia and retaining some chance, however remote, of a settlement at Geneva."

Arrest Two Boys In $16,000 Theft

NORTH SYDNEY, N. S. (CP)—RCMP officers today arrested two teen-age boys in connection with the beating and $16,000 robbery of a 70-year-old candy store operator here Wednesday.

The boys, arrested on warrants charging assault and robbery, were identified as Gerry Flander, 16, a son of the robbery victim, and 17-year-old William Banfield.

The RCMP said they were arrested in a taxi at St. Peters, about 30 miles from here, and that $3,000 was found. The taxi driver, who was not identified, had $700.

Police said the two will appear before a magistrate later today.

Clarence Flander was blackjacked in his store in downtown North Sydney. He is in an oxygen tent in hospital, and is severely mutilated about the head.

Union Applies To Represent Outside Workers

TORONTO (CP)—The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL-TLC) has applied to the Ontario labor relations board for the right to represent about 2,200 outside workers who in Ontario hydro-electric power commission.

If the union is successful, its Canadian membership will be boosted by some 80 per cent. The brotherhood now has a membership of about 31,000.

The labor board will hear the application for certification June 2. The brotherhood will ask for a vote among outside Hydro employees to choose between it and an employees' association which now bargains for virtually all Hydro workers.

However, the brotherhood is not asking to bargain for construction workers on major Hydro projects. These workers are represented by a council of 18 international unions.

'BURNED,' SAYS WOMAN

DALLAS (AP)—A woman has sued a variety store for $2,800, charging she was "burned" by a set of "artificial rubber bust forms." She claimed the articles contained chemicals which became soluble when she perspired and caused her to become "poisoned, burned and injured."

—UN WATER RATIONED

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States delegates' dining room is not serving water with meals unless a thirsty diplomat asks for it. Because of a threatened water shortage New York city officials recently asked the restaurants in the city to omit water unless it is requested. Coalition Forces Opposing De Valera Forge Ahead With Two-Thirds of Returns In

By TOM SCHLITZER

DUBLIN (AP) — Coalition forces opposing aged Prime Minister Eamon de Valera forged ahead today as returns for more than two-thirds of the seats in the Republic of Ireland's parliamentary election were announced.

Though de Valera's Fianna Fail (men of destiny) party remains the largest single faction, the four-party bloc behind former premier John Costello has a good chance of winning a majority in the Dail (parliament).

With 144 seats at stake in the voting, the count by mid-morning had given 66 to the coalition, 58 to Fianna Fail and four to Independents. This was the standing in the coalition: Costello's Fine Fael 42, Labor 15, Clann Na Talmhan (farmers) 5, Clann Na Poblachta (republicans) 3.

There are 147 Dail seats, but polling for three of them was put off until May 26 following the death of one of the candidates.

Observers now give de Valera's party practically no hope of gaining enough seats to give the 75-year-old statesman even the precarious two-vote control he held before the voting.

DECLINE IN STRENGTH

The tabulation showed a gradual decline of Fianna Fail strength both in Dublin and rural areas. Running against the field, de Valera's men in the early returns dropped five seats, three to Costello's Fine Gail (united Ireland) party and two to Labor.

Both de Valera and Costello were re-elected personally, but the vote for the grand premier was only 12,679—1,171 under his 1951 total.

The prime minister's son, Maj. Vivian de Valera, held his seat in the Dublin north central constituency, but his popular vote was 3,337 less than three years ago.

The campaign was waged largely on domestic issues. Costello charged de Valera had not pursued a sufficiently vigorous domestic policy to improve the republic's economic lot.

OPPOSE BEAUTY CONTESTS

OSLO (CP)—The National Council of Norwegian Women which represents 600,000 members has condemned beauty contests. The council said such contests are a "degradation" of womanhood.

Students Admit Brewing Mash In School House

EDEN GROVE, Ont. (CP)—Police said Wednesday they have admissions from two 18-year-old high school students that they "cooked" home-brew mash in the belfry of a little red school house in this community 20 miles southwest of Owen Sound.

The students told police they made the brew "for their own use."

The four-gallon batch of beer mash, "burping" from heat supplied by a lamp, was discovered Tuesday by three boys sent to the belfry of Eden public school during the school's annual spring cleaning.

Samples of the mash will be analyzed to determine whether it can be classed as an "experiment" or contains enough alcohol to warrant laying charges.

Will View Operation

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian doctors will watch actual operating theatre techniques at a Vancouver hospital on color television during the annual convention of the Canadian Medical Association there June 14 to 18.

Announcing this Wednesday, CMA headquarters here said the two-day showings of operations and clinic discussions, for doctors only, will make first use in Canada of a TV screen measuring more than four by six feet, allowing a viewing audience of more than 500.

The CMA said it is expected to prove that color TV is the best method yet devised for medical demonstrations and clinical instruction.

BUSH EXPERT

NELSON, N.Z. (CP)—Searchers went looking for the body after Ernest Schroder, 78-year-old beachcomber, was lost for three days in bitter weather in the Maitere hills forests. They found him alive, having kept up his strength by the juice of wild plant roots.

Farmers Intend To Cut Wheat, Rye Acreage

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers intend to cut their wheat planting this year by almost 1,000,000 acres to 24,597,100, lowest in six years.

They also intend to cut rye and potato acreage, but boost acreage for oats, mixed grains and flaxseed, the bureau of statistics reported Wednesday in the first 1954 report on planned crop production.

Farmers indicated they expect to increase summerfallow.

The major reduction is intended for spring wheat acreage in the Prairies. Prairie farmers reported they intend to cut spring wheat acreage 23,791,000 from 24,648,000 last year.

Meeting Will Organize Air Crime Prevention

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec, scene of one of aviation history's most sensational crimes is to be the seat of an international meeting to organize air crime prevention.

The relations committee of the International Association of Chiefs of Police has placed the question of air crime high on the agenda of sessions to be held here May 31-June 3.

In 1949 Quebec was the scene of the time-bombing of a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane. Twenty-three persons were killed, including the wife of the man who had master-minded the plot so he could marry a pretty waitress.

The man, J. Albert Guay, along with a crippled watchmaker who made the bomb device and the woman who delivered it to the plane were all convicted of murder in the affair and hanged.

MANY READERS

OSLO (CP) — The Norwegian press now has a total circulation of 1,700,000 copies among a population of 3,375,000. Current reports show Norway has about 300 newspapers including 90 dailies and 60 which appear every second day. The total circulation compares with 900,000 before the Second World War.

30 Specialists For Seaway Work Needed at Once

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government, anticipating an early start on the St. Lawrence seaway, today will call for engineering specialists to apply for jobs on the navigation end of the $900,000,000 project.

The government's civil service commission—which hires federal employees—will be issuing job announcements to electrical, mechanical and civil engineers.

The immediate need is for about 30 specialists. Salaries to be offered range up to $12,000.

Those employed would take part in the federal government's construction of the Canadian part of navigation works, which on present indications are to be undertaken in conjunction with the United States.

$75,000 Fire Loss at Stratford

SEAFORTH (CP) — A spark which danced across a 30-foot conveyor belt touched off a $75,000 blaze that levelled part of a large feed mill Wednesday at this town 30 miles northwest of Stratford.

Men manning two trucks of the Seaforth fire department fought for three hours to control the fire in the new feeds division of the Top Notch Feeds Limited plant. That section, including a three-storey elevator and large storage bins, was undergoing a $60,000 renovation job which was almost complete.

The fire was said to have started in a faulty switch in a motor which operated a conveyor belt moving grain from the milling plant to the feeds section.

Workmen were able to carry tools, filing cabinets, kegs of nails and bags of grain from the fire.

Dense smoke rose hundreds of feet into the air. The pall could be seen as far away as Mitchell, 11 miles east.

TO STUDY PROBLEM

LONDON (AP) — Lord Lloyd, home office undersecretary, told the House of Lords Wednesday night that homosexual crimes in Britain are four to five times as common as before the Second World War. He said that a commission planned to study the problem.

Windsor Will Make Centennial Year One to Be Remembered

By ART REYDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor is out to make her centennial year one to be remembered.

The city is marking her second century with 19 months of activity designed to make 1954 the most memorable of the 100 years since the community was incorporated as a village.

More than 300 parades organized into busy committees bustled into action late in 1953. The official celebration opened Jan. 1 with a civic reception and parade. June 30 will mark the opening of an intensive period of summer celebration. The official observance ends Thanksgiving Day, Oct. 11.

MANY VISITORS

Innumerable conventions, each with a dash of centennial flavoring, have already started. Doris Crawford, a part Windsor brunette, was chosen Miss Centennial Jan. 27 and reigns as queen at all official events. Topping the list for Miss Crawford will be the Miss Canada pageant July 19 to 24 in which she will be a contestant.

Mass religious services and fireworks touched off by Detroit residents June 20 will open the summer celebration. The day will feature roaring centennial outboard motorboat races.

In the week starting June 21 an historical pageant with a cast of 300 treading a 118-foot stage will picture Windsor history and provide a glimpse of the future. The Century of Progress parade July 1, studded with 40 bands and about 50 floats, will give an animated peek at the past.

The big centennial carnival with rides for adults and youngsters, side shows and free variety entertainment will set up its midway June 28. "Singing Stars of Tomorrow," a radio show featuring the best of Canada's young singers, will broadcast from the city on July 8.

EMANCIPATION FESTIVAL

An outstanding observance for colored people, held in Windsor each year, is expected to attract thousands from the United States and Canada July 31 to Aug. 12. The Freedom Show itinerates emancipation and includes a parade, an international Miss Sepia beauty contest and a combined inspirational and cultural program. A Mardi Gras-type celebration will mark Old Home week Aug. 9 to 14 as sons and daughters of Windsor flock back to recapture some memories. Graduates of Patterson Collegiate will have a preview of this activity May 21 when they stage their own reunion. The school celebrates its 100th anniversary with the city.

The transportation show Aug. 13 to 15 will ring the end of a competitive run for antique cars and display of new cars, buses, trains and ships. An historic train display is expected.

The best of the traditional county fall fairs will be collected in Windsor Oct. 1 to 10 for the Centennial Harvest Festival. Each Essex county fair is expected to make its contribution to the new type of show for the city. The next day, the celebration ends.

HUGE INDUSTRY

Windsor's growth is the story of automotive expansion. Fifty years ago, the Walkerville Wagon Works was undergoing a transformation: a front page item in the Windsor Record in 1904 announced the Ford Motor Company of Canada had applied for incorporation.

Ford of Canada last year paid $58,000,000 in wages and salaries to 14,500 employees who rolled more than 150,000 trucks and cars through its assembly lines.

On the other side of town, remote from the riverfront location of the old wagon works, the Massey-Chalmers Motor Company of Canada was incorporated in 1925 as the Chrysler Corporation of Canada with 181 employees. Chrysler now employs more than 9,000 with an annual payroll of about $21,000,000.

The two firms, aided by huge counterparts in the Detroit area across the international border, dominate the industrial scene in Windsor. As Ford's medal A began to nudge the workhorse model T off Canadian roads, Chrysler jumped and unions became more powerful.

BIG EXPANSION

Chrysler plans to spend about $1,000,000 to double its present production facilities for passenger cars and engines. A big chunk of the program is for building and tooling an engine plant addition estimated at $21,000,000.

Ford is spending $52,500,000 to modernize its Windsor plant, increased foundry capacity and other projects. Centre of company operations will remain here but the company already has its new assembly plant at Oakville, Ont., swinging into operation.

The new plant means a temporary reduction of Ford operations in Windsor as passenger cars and truck lines are transferred. Company officials say employment at Windsor will be higher than ever when the program is complete.

The Ford Windsor operation is the centre of production for the British Commonwealth. Cars and trucks from the Canadian plant or wholly-owned subsidiaries are operating in Madagascar, the Fiji Islands, South Africa, Australia, Malaya and New Zealand. The company recently suspended production operations in India.

GREAT INDUSTRY

Oil represented 13 per cent of Canada's total mineral production in 1953, compared with 11 per cent in 1952.

COMMON AILMENT

Migraine headache may be a form of neuralgia involving the optic nerve.

CELEBRATE WINDSOR CENTENNIAL

Windsor, Ont., is marking its centennial year with ten months of activity designed to make 1954 the most memorable of the 100 years since the community was incorporated. Part of the wide range of activities will be a transportation show displaying antique models like this 1904 Ford Model C, the 21st. automobile to be built by Ford of Canada. In the car are Bill Woodley of the Ford Company, in the Campeau, in the Miss Centennial. In the background is the Detroit River and Detroit skyline. (CP Photo).

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — Mr. and Mrs. Don Sutton and family, of Toronto, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Barlow.

Mrs. M. McInroy is a patient in Kingston hospital.

Mrs. W. J. Barlow returned home on Sunday after spending the past week with Mr. and Mrs. D. Sutton.

Friends were sorry to hear of the death of Delbert Fleming, on Thursday after a lingering illness.

The ladies of St. Mark's W.A. held their recent meeting at the home of Mrs. George Wellman.

The card men of Rawdon township are straightening and lowering a dangerous hill on the 12th concession of Rawdon, and widening the road.

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Barlow motored to Guelph on Sunday where they attended the graduation of their son, Hedley Barlow at the Ontario Agricultural College on Monday.

The funeral of the late Delbert Fleming was held on Sunday afternoon. Interment took place in Mount Nebo cemetery, Springbrook.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma made a swell looking cake for the bridge ladies, and I was watching her put the last of the icing on when I said, What can I have a peece, ma?

When the ladies have had a chance to admire it, and when we see how much is left over, ma said I said, Well why cant I have the first slice instead of the last?

Do you expect me to spoil the appearance of the most professional looking cake I ever made? ma said, and I said, Well gosh, ma, bewty is only skin deep, so you better let me try it for you, because if it happens to have a funny taist you wont forgive it just because it's pritty looking.

Why should it have a funny taist for land sakes? ma said, and I said, Oh, no special reason, only cakes are tricky things, that's what you always say, if you want a mutual opinion, I'll take a little taist for you, I said.

Well, it's true that cakes are unpredictable, said ma in a little worried about that brand of vanilla extract, but never mind, I'm not going to cut into this bewtiful cake, ma said, and I said, Well dont worry, the ladies would probably be too polite to tell you anyway.

Goodness what a thought, ma said. Oh well, I'll just cut you a tiny sliver and fill in the space with icing, she said.

And she cut me the thinnest slice she could cut, being pritty thin on account of her being a perfect slicer, and it tasted great, and I said, Do you want me to try another thin slice on the other side so you'll know it's the same all over?

I'm quite satisfied, thanks, said you better be too, ma said.

Which I was.

Neighboring Circuits Pay Last Visit to St. Paul's Centennial

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

St. Paul's United Church, Sterling, was filled to capacity with an overflow in the gallery Sunday evening when Rev. W. E. G. Dovey, of Sidney pastoral charge, and Rev. E. J. Kersey, of Plainfield pastoral charge, with members of the congregations of Aikens, Scott's, Stone, Wallbridge, Bethel-Zion, Roslin, Mt. Pleasant, Tyendinaga and Plainfield paid their fraternal visit in centennial year. A group from Marsh Hill also attended as well as representatives from Salem, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, Halloway, Carmel, Frankford and other points.

A lovely vase of tulips graced the holy table which were later given to Mrs. M. Faulkner, who is 90 years of age, and was in attendance at the service.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, ATCL, presided at the organ and rendered as a prelude, "In Deepening Shadows". She also gave a selection from Markel, also A. S. Kvaal's "Postludium."

COMPOSITE CHOIR

A composite choir of 30 voices from Sidney circuit, occupied the choir loft with Mrs. Charles Fair as pianist, and Mrs. B. Johnston as choir director. They contributed two anthems, "Father Lead Me" and "The Master's Call," and also led the processional, "My God and King" and used a good Methodist missionary hymn for their recessional; this latter was a special innovation in centennial year.

The Plainfield quartet, composed of Misses Gladys Kerr, Joan Kerr, Beverly Gow and Mr. Wayne Gow sang "Dear Spirit Lead Me," with Mrs. Harry Harrison as piano accompanist.

Mr. Baker welcomed the large group of worshippers. Rev. E. J. Kersey, B.A., B.D., brought warm greetings from Plainfield circuit and paid tribute to the pioneers of 100 years ago and to Rev. and Mrs. Baker for their wonderful leadership. He also offered a prayer that St. Paul's United Church would continue to serve the Master and carry on its traditions.

"THE BETTER WAY"

Mr. Dovey also extended greetings and read the 40th chapter of Isaiah. He based his message on "The Better Way," and quoted the last word, in Micah, "and nations shall not rise up against nation, neither shall there be war any more." He said war is a public enemy to all and yet it is the method used to settle international difficulties and problems.

The speaker graphically pictured the past 35 years with two world wars, all the men and money contributed for the appalling sacrifice, with the hope that the world would be better. Yet here in 1954, the world is in the midst of turmoil with the threat of another war. He asked the question, "Is this the result of our Christian civilization for the sake of democracy?"

Mr. Dovey suggested a better way would be to incorporate Christian principles and ideals to national life. He gave a true picture of the horrors of war and narrated true experiences in the lives of soldiers in Korea and in Indo-China.

The speaker spoke of the poverty and degradation in Africa where the black man is suppressed and said, "surely there is a better way." Interested Christians must strive to find a solution to our national problem."

He also told a true story of two men quarrelling over a simple matter and quoted that familiar poem, "When Jesus Came."

Mr. Dovey closed with a challenge that each individual strive to promote "The Good Samaritan" idea and he made a strong plea that Christians everywhere study world conditions and strive in every possible way to promote world peace.

Mrs. Walter T. Elliott, a commissioner to General Council, voiced the thanks of St. Paul's and all other guests to the visiting delegations. She commented on the highlights of the evening service and felt all in attendance had been richly blessed.

Following the service a fellowship hour was held in the Sunday school hall. Mrs. Edwin Warren and members of St. Paul's W.A. served light refreshments to approximately 150 people.

Mr. Baker conducted an informal program when a large number of people spoke briefly and voiced greetings from their respective church homes.

A geographical quiz brought to light some informative facts and everyone enjoyed a brief chat with friends. The service closed with "The Friendship Circle," and Rev. W. S. Irwin pronounced the benediction.

CENTENNIAL SERVICES END

The centennial services of one year's duration close next Sunday, May 23rd.

Dr. Harold B. Neal, of Lindsay, will address both services, morning and evening. Councillor Ernest Saries will present Ridge Road public school pupils with their religious award pennants.

The centennial will close its year of special activities with Holy Communion at 9 p.m. The services one year ago began with a gathering at the Lord's table and this solemnized the work of centennial year. It will remain for folk in the surrounding district to assess the great value of a year of special services and many ministers and individuals in this area marvel at the ability and energy of Rev. and Mrs. Baker to plan and carry out all the vast ideas of the past year with the help of their centennial committee.

Rossmore

ROSSMORE — Mrs. Wes Mason, of Lindsay, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. Empey for a couple of weeks.

Sorry to report little Mark Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Mitchell, is a patient in Belleville hospital.

Mrs. J. Empey is in Winnipeg for a few weeks.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. M. Steer on the birth of their daughter.

The regular weekly euchre was held at the home of Mrs. Root last Wednesday night with five tables in play. A pleasant evening was enjoyed and prizes were awarded according to score.

CAR OUT OF CONTROL

Disaster struck again. A car went out of control, Saturday night at the Redneersville - Picton corner and ran into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, partially destroying the sun porch. Luckily no persons were injured. Suitable signals to warn speeding motorists would be appreciated by the residents in the vicinity of this curve, and maybe save a recurrence of accidents which have proved tragic in the past number of years.

Rev. V. T. Mooney, B.A., D.D. Gives Centennial Message

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

STIRLING —On Sunday morning, Rev. V. T. Mooney, B.A., D.D. treasurer of the United Church of Canada, was guest speaker at St. Paul's centennial service. He chose as the theme of his message "Our Church," and gave the large audience of worshippers a vivid picture of the value of the United Church, first to those who profess to be members, then to the community around, and lastly to the world.

Canada's largest Protestant family is "The United Church of Canada," and according to the 1951 census, it is responsible for 2,867,271 people. At the present time there are 1,750,000 people in Canada who say they are United Church and yet they gave no church affiliation. These people, situated all over Canada, depend on the church for baptisms, marriages and funerals yet they are not supporting the work. The church must not neglect nor ignore the value of its influence on these people and its ministers must be ready at all times to give what assistance they can to them.

The Board of Evangelism and Social Service is attempting to face problems and social responsibilities, and help to correct the evils of today.

NO CHURCH AFFILIATION

These people with no church affiliation are being spiritually devitalized, and they fail to enjoy the great heritage that is theirs to bear a challenging witness to the gospel of Christ and to stand firm on social principles. Good Christians must have good community conditions in which to live.

The United Church board firmly believes that people must be made to feel that they belong, they must have the followship and warmth, and friendliness must be increased if the Christian work is to continue and thrive.

The United Church stands behind every moral issue and strives to enlist more and more Christians to be good soldiers on the front line in every community.

The speaker briefly pictured the redemptive work of the church, the homes for elderly women and for senior citizens, the Cedarvale school for girls, and the six redemptive homes, all of these are great community benefactors.

SCOPE OF INSTITUTIONS

The general public has little knowledge of the great scope of work carried on by such institutions as the Fred Victor Mission, Toronto, and the "All People's United Missions." Then, there is the vast amount of medical care given by various hospitals all across Canada. The R. W. Large Memorial Hospital at Bella-Bella, B.C., and the Bella Coola General Hospital, as well as all the others across Canada strive to maintain a Christian staff, and do a worthy example to the patients, as well as to the community at large.

The speaker said: "The white people are the best hated folk, because they have exploited thousands of underprivileged people, and stolen their resources.

In many lands the missionary of the United Church is standing alone, the only person that is responsible for a light of hope which shines along the way. Human well-being must be based on Christian principles, and the slogan "Christ is the hope of the world," is surely the answer to man's need.

Rev. A. E. Baker presided over the service and graciously thanked Mr. Mooney for his message, and he also conducted the children's quiz.

Mrs. A. E. Baker gave organ selections from Bryson, Kuhlan and Rheinberger.

The Royal junior choir sang "The March of Days," and vocal selections were rendered by Douglas Warren and Carolyn Belcour. The youth ensemble delighted with a festival selection. The senior choir rendered an anthem, and Mr. Jack Bush contributed a vocal solo.

The service closed with a hymn of consecration.

Who's been eating my Corn Flakes?

Even with wide-awake little goldilocks like this around to keep an eye on the supply, more families ran out of Kellogg's Corn Flakes this morning than any other cereal. It happens every day, because Kellogg's Corn Flakes just naturally taste best to more people. Always have. Still do. Is it any wonder so many women pick up a spare package of Kellogg's Corn Flakes every time they buy any cereal of any kind?

Buzz Beurling, Canada's Top Airwar Ace, Died 6 Years Ago

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — What you always remembered about George Beurling was his eyes. They were blue and cold and at the centre of the pupils were icy pin-points like the tips of daggers.

Six years ago today George Frederick (Buzz) Beurling, Canada's greatest fighter ace of the Second World War, died in a pasture near Rome's Urbe airfield when his small Norseman plane crashed from 700 feet. Then only 26, he was on his way to Palestine to fight for Israel against the Arabs.

Beurling, always a "loner" and a killer, shortly before his death told an interviewer: "I'm a fighter pilot. I will drop bombs or fire guns from a plane for anyone who will pay me. And I will fly for the one who will pay me the most. Except the Russians. I don't like the Russians."

HERO OF MALTA

If ever the right job fitted the right man at the right time, it was flying for Beurling in Malta in 1942. All of Beurling's young life had led up to those six months on the George Cross island. After them, life was a restless, unhappy seeking for Beurling.

Born in Verdun, Que., Beurling learned to fly at 14, soloed at 16. He went to Germany, Orc, to learn aerobatics from the great German flier, Ernst Udet. When war came in 1939, he tried to join the RCAF and was turned down because he didn't have enough schooling. He then went to Britain on a cattle boat and joined the RAF.

He destroyed his first enemy plane while flying from England, then volunteered for Malta. Only 20, he added 28 planes to his score in six months and won the Distinguished Service Order, Distinguished Flying Cross and Distinguished Flying Medal and Bar. He received the DSO for his last sortie in which he knocked down four planes out of 30 attackers and dealed out minus part of one head.

Later in England, he shot down two more to bring his final total to 31 destroyed. His record was never threatened by any other Canadian fighter pilot. Sqdn. Ldr. H. W. (Wally) McLeod of Regina had 21 kills; Flying Cmdr. J. E. (Stocky) Edwards of Battleford, Sask., and Sqdn. Ldr. Don Laubman of Edmonton 15 each.

"Combat flying is the only thing I can do well," Beurling used to say. "It's the only thing I ever did I really liked."

TRANSFER TO RCAF

Beurling transferred to the RCAF when the RAF kept him instructing instead of letting him return immediately to operations. The RCAF shipped Beurling home for a Victory bond tour. He hated it.

Beurling never took to discipline He knew he could fly and that he could shoot. Anything that stood in the way of his doing that was an annoyance.

He returned to civilian life in 1944. He was popular, especially with women. He was six feet tall with blonde hair and a lean, hand some face. He neither smoked nor drank.

Popularity and fame couldn't have mattered less to Beurling. He wanted to fight. He tried selling insurance. He barnstormed as a stunt flier.

He even tried marriage. Before he was married, he told his bride-to-be that he couldn't love any woman, that he loved only flying.

"She didn't believe me then but she did later," Beurling said. They were divorced a few months before his death.

Yankees Home From Triumphant Road Tour, Set Sights On Top Position

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

OOM PAUL BOOMS

Paul Richards, manager of the Chicago White Sox, is a young man with a pronounced yen for a pennant—a profound dislike of a threatening hotel from the canyons of Manhattan called the New York Yankees—and an equally profound hope that the old Yankees will be as extinct as a roc insofar as baseball is concerned, by the time the World Series chimes are carolling. "Has Anybody Seen That Old Gang of Mine."

Young Mr. Richards, in fact, made the statement to a current magazine a piece back that the "Yankees are through; Casey Stengel has lost his managerial wizardry and the White Sox are driving all the way." "Just wait," cherries the happy guy from Chi. "Just wait until the end of September. This analysis of the Yanks will hold up best at World Series time—when Chicago is playing." Wofy, Mr. Richards, how could you?

That's better, moderate ii a bit. You say you should not be misunderstood on what you say about the end of the Stengel dynasty? That the White Sox show a greater improvement over 1953 than any other team in the American League and the Yankees have deteriorated the most? Them's harsh words, Paul.

Ah, you say the Yanks are capable of fighting down to the wire and you expect their deterioration to be hardly noticed by the average fan now. They did not look exactly "deteriorated to say extinct, Paul, on Tuesday night. Remember, they beat your little ale Sozies, fah-three, nah?

Ah, Paul, you admit the Yanks can still beat any ball club in the world in three ways, battling, fielding and team speed. They have the best outfield in the world, you say. The best catcher and infield power and speed, and in a relay race they could beat the rest of the league put together.

Then how do you plan to beat them this year with your White Sox, Paully, me buckoo?. H . . . mmmm, by outpitching 'em, eh? Listen, sonbre, you'd bettuh start talkin' —and smile when yuh say sumpin unpretty.

What's that? You will have to outpitch them forty per cent to lead them to the wire? Well, if you already are 35 per cent better on the mound than the Yankees and your lopsided advantage will grow with the August dog days, whatinell are you grousing about?

So you think your Billy Pierce and Virgil Trucks, American League strikeout leaders, will compare with or surpass any two New York hurlers, and Connsegra and Bob Keegan will back them up. Pierce, Trucks, Connsegra and Keegan each held Chi opposition to less than three earned runs per game average last summer. Only Ed Lopat could do that. Based on 1953 showing the White Sox mound staff was seven to 39 per cent better than the Yankees, you say.

Stengel is desperately in need of a relief pitcher, you think. With Raschi gone and Reynolds and Lopat soon giving way to age miseries, the Yankees must fatten on two front line hurlers, and a promising relief artist from MacDonald, Kuzava, Murphy and Mel Wright.

Well, you say that the Yankee farm system has failed to come up with dependable power; that Rizzuto is slowly failing prey to age, and Billy Martin's departure to the services weakens Stengel's structure at infield shifting.

Just keep cool, Paulie boy, and don't inflate that 43 chest. You started to say that the White Sox has Ferris Fain back at his best in the battle for league supremacy. Your catching with Lollar is toughening into pennant-contending shape; your batting order is stronger now than any time in four years, but—whatnist?—you're pulling out all stops on base-running?

So the 1954 White Sox are going to be remembered as one of the most daring hit-n'-pitching teams of modern times—notwithstanding the long-legged Cards of 1942 who whipped the Yanks with their running game in the series?

You admit the Yankees do have the fastest squad in baseball, man for man, but got when it comes to base thievery. Although five servicers, Mizuse, Rivera, Johnny Groth, Fox and Carrasquel, can outdo Stengel's entire team and his entire farm system in clever baseball speeding, you say.

And you quote: "Mantle led the Yanks in stolen bases last summer. He attempted 12 and got away with eight. The entire Yankee squad was able to steal only 34 bases. (Siege whisper, Paul, "Why steal 'em when there are three .300 batters following you?) Minoso and Rivera together attempted to steal as many bases as did the entire Yankee squad, 78. Minoso and Rivera stole 47.

And Paul, you say you are planning to unleash some surprising strategy in your hit-run batting attacks. You cannot give it away but it will consist of brazen baserunning, enough to bowl Cleveland, New York and Boston out of our way. There's harsh words, stranger.

And Paul adds: "Thirty-five years is a long time to wait for a pennant. I figure we don't have to wait any longer."

This is the way he picked 'em to finish — Chicago, New York, Boston, Cleveland, Washington, Detroit, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

PRACTICE!

Herby Henn is whipping his Electrics into shape for the league opener at Point Anne next Monday evening. The Electrics practice tonight and tomorrow night at 6.30 at the Alemite Field. Point Anne goes to Cobourg Saturday for an ex-game.

Alderman Bryson Reid wants all baseballers possible out to a practice at the Fair Grounds Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. The fate of the District Baseball League rests on the Reid entry, and if enough players are forthcoming the team and league will operate. Remember, you baseballers, turn out, if possible, at 2.00 p.m. on that week-end date.

WIN TROPHIES

WINNIPEG (CP)—Albert Ford, president of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, said Wednesday night that two British Columbia swimmers have copped the Plaw Trophy for their achievements during 1953 awards as Canada's outstanding swimmers of the-year.

Ted Simpson of Vancouver was awarded the Sir Edward Beatty Trophy and Lenora Fisher of Ocean Falls received the Beatrice Plaw Trophy for their achievement.

Beat Western Teams 8 in 10 To Finish Game Behind Tribe; Cards Grab National Lead

By SEN PELEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The world champion New York Yankees came home today from a triumphant tour of the west, where they beat the strongest teams in the American League on their home grounds eight out of 10 times.

With a dozen games immediately ahead against the eastern tailenders, this appears to be the big Yankee push to the top.

The champs are one game behind Cleveland at the moment, but now it's the Indians' turn to take on the western powers. New York is the only team in what the league calls east—Baltimore is grouped with the west—whose sixth place.

The western teams have showed power in the National League, too, the big Yankee push to the top.

St. Louis grabbed the national league lead Wednesday on the combination of a 3-0 victory over New York Giants and clouting by Brooklyn and Philadelphia Phillies. The Chicago Cubs swamped the Dodgers 14-3, with all nine runs coming in the eighth inning. Milwaukee edged Philadelphia 4-2. Pittsburgh shaded Cincinnati 3-2.

The Yankees made it two straight over the Chicago White Sox 3-2. Cleveland won its seventh in a row by trimming Baltimore. Boston beat Washington 5-3 and Detroit edged Philadelphia Athletics 4-3.

The Yanks collected six runs on placement to stick with the Yankees this season, and Philadelphia National League shutout and his fifth consecutive victory over Brooklyn. He retired the last 15 Giants in order. Red Schoendienst and Rip Repulski each got two Magile.

The Dodgers continued their inept hitting and erratic fielding and shaky pitching in losing to the Cubs. Chicago scored its nine runs with only five hits.

Pitcher Warren Spahn led a 11-hit Milwaukee attack as three Philadelphia hurlers with two doubles and a single in winning his fourth game. Eddie Mathews helped out with his seventh home run.

GOT THE GOAT

Chico Carrasquel, the White Sox shortstop, got the shakes against the Yankees in the last two outings and the Yanks came from behind to win. In the eighth with a man on—Rizzuto at bat Hank Bauer's double-play grounder rolled through the shortstop's legs before he scored the tying run on Yogi Berra's single.

In the ninth, with one out and runners on first and third, Carrasquel's throw to Bauer's relay, who had the choice of throwing to the plate or trying for a double-play. But he fumbled the ball and the winning run came home.

Bob Lemon picked up victory No. 6 for Cleveland as he allowed the Red Sox just four hits Al Rosen hit his sixth home run in the last five games.

Detroit overcame the Athletics in the ninth when Al Kalin singled after Gus Zernial had loaded the bases without a hit.

Admits Hiring 'Private Eye' To Tail Player

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bob Carpenter, president of the Philadelphia Phillies, admitted Wednesday he had employed a private detective to tail second baseman Granny Hamner.

The ball player suspected he was being tailed after the Phillies-Milwaukee Braves game Tuesday night. He called police who arrested the driver. He identified himself as Charles Leland, 36, a private investigator. He was held in $500 bail for violation of the Fire Arms Act.

Carpenter said in a statement: "This was no case of mistaken identity. It was a case of my employing a detective agency to check on some of my players.

"Most major league clubs follow the same policy. Each year I have checked on my players both at home and on the road, so that I could be assured that our rules of midnight curfew after the games, and 2 a.m. curfew after night games would be observed."

The suspension followed an incident Tuesday night when Scala previously benched by the International Baseball League manager, demanded his release.

Bell said: "A difference of opinion between us over Scala's playing brought a protest from him that I would not take, and his suspension followed." Bell intimated that he is through with Scala and there is a possibility that he may be sold or traded.

Video May Give Canadian Football Nod Over American Type — Talbot

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—If one gets around and keeps his ears open he can learn something new about athletics almost every day. The latest authentic information gathered in this manner appears to prove that certain professional football players think more of performing before the television cameras than they do of making money.

We might never have known it but for the fact that the NBC has arranged to telecast games of Canada's Interprovincial Rugby Football Union on nine Saturdays during the coming season in a sort of battle to the death with the U.S. colleges' "game of the week." An official of the TV firm observed that, as a result of the pact, the Canadian clubs would sign more top players than ever before.

"They'll all want to go up there now," he explained, "the biggest trouble the Canadians have had getting the super-stars to play with them in the past was the fact that their home folks wouldn't get to see them play, so they would if they signed with a National league team.

CAST INTO OBLIVION

"Maybe the Canadians worked offer a player $9,000 against the $7,-000 he could get here. The player would say 'O.K.,' but if I go over there I might as well be at the moon—nobody'll know where I am and my name will be forgotten by the time I'm through."

As for the rules, I don't have seems little reason to doubt that it will prove as immediately big with American audiences. A large group of local football writers and execs shown a color film of last fall's Canadian final between Hamilton and Winnipeg voted more or less unanimously that the swift-moving contest was a real pleasure to watch.

The absence of time-outs, in particular, drew appreciative comments and the differences in the Canadian rules never were noticed. If anything, they were liked, and some members of the trial panel came away wondering out loud if the U.S. football fathers shouldn't be hustled and forced to sit through a showing of the film.

LIKES YARDAGE RULE

Our own special favorite among the Canadian "improvements" on American rules is the one which provides that no tackler must come closer than five yards to a punt receiver until he has caught or picked up the ball. This gives the man a chance to get started and, the Canadians say, practically eliminates injuries on the play. The rule that kicks over the goal line must be run back also supplies thrills and action missing from our game.

"What we have tried to do," explained Lew Hayman, general manager of Montreal Alouettes, "is provide a game that the fans will like, without worrying about what the coaches like. We think that's important, because if the fan likes what he sees he might go away and tell somebody else and we'll get another customer."

From what we saw, the boys above the border have gone a long way toward achieving their goal. If things keep getting worse around here, somebody will get the idea of asking a few American fans what they like.

Elgins Blank Terriers 12-0

GALT (CP)—St. Thomas Elgins went on an 18-hit spree Wednesday night as they blanked Galt Terriers 11-0 in an exhibition Intercounty senior baseball game.

The Elgins shelled two Galt pitchers, banging lefty Matt Gumenuk for five runs and 11 hits in seven innings. Mel Duncan, who took over in the eighth, was the victim of a six-run uprising.

Jim St. Louis paced the Elgins with three hits, including a two-run homer over the right field fence in the seventh. Jack Cuffery, Toronto hockey star, pitched superbly for St. Thomas, allowing only six hits.

Hamilton Signs Yank Line Star

HAMILTON (CP)—U.S. college football's lineman-of-the-year has been signed by Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

J. D. Roberts, 205-pound Oklahoma guard, has rejected offers made by Green Bay Packers who obtained him in the 1953 college draft and will play in the Big Four in 1954.

Last year the 20-year-old was named Associated Press, United Press and Fox Movietone "lineman of-the-year" and winner of the Outland Trophy, given annually to the outstanding guard or tackle in college football by vote of the Football Writers' Association of America.

Rosen Nails Bat, Bat Nails Ball, Umps Nail Bat

CLEVELAND (AP) — Umpire Charley Berry ruled Al Rosen's favorite bat was illegal Wednesday after finding that it contained several small nails.

The bat became an issue as Cleveland Indians' first baseman stepped to the plate in the fifth inning of Wednesday's game with Boston Sox.

At the urging of Boston catcher Sammy White, umpire Berry took Rosen's bat, found the nails in a checked section at the heavy end, and tossed it to the Tribe slugger.

"I knew someone was going to catch up with me sooner or later, but I was going to keep it as long as possible," grinned Rosen later. "I've used this one practically all season."

Rosen's 38 runs batted in and his nine homers are reasons enough for his affection for the old bat.

"I'll be started to check it short while back, and I put the nails in," Rosen explained.

Sport in Brief

HAMILTON (CP) — Glasgow Rangers touring soccer team Wednesday night loosed overpowering attacking power in the second half and defeated Hamilton district All-Stars 6-0.

A crowd of 10,000 saw the floodlight contest at Civic Stadium.

The All-Stars defended stoutly in the first half and held Rangers to a lone goal by Willie McCulloch. In the second half, however, John Hubbard scored and Willie Paton, Willie Simpson, George Young and International All-Star Willie Fernie, ton added to the count in steady succession.

Rangers, never defeated in Canada, toyed with the All-Stars in the second half, thrilling the crowd with dexterous displays of foot and head work.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. National Boxing Association Wednesday called for an elimination tournament to name a champion to succeed Jimmy Carruthers of Australia, who has vacated the 118-pound title.

DETROIT (AP) — Philadelphia Athletics' Bobby Shantz has decided to take a Sunday rest. The pitcher's sore left shoulder has failed to respond to various kinds of treatment. He injured it in the season's opener.

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Jockey Johnny Longden reached another milestone in his long horse racing career Wednesday.

The veteran rode his 4,400th winner, scoring a double at Hollywood Park. He hit No. 4,399 aboard Sun State, the favorite, in the third race. No. 4,400 came in the fifth race when he won aboard Real Hope, for a $6.50 payoff.

Longden has been riding for 27 years and admits to being 44.

Bisons Swamps Royals 19-4; Cubans Beaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons have their sights on first place in the International Baseball League after rolling up the largest score in a single game this season.

Buffalo, only three games out of first place, trounced Montreal Royals 19-4 Wednesday night while the league-leading Havana Cuban Sugar Kings had an eight-game winning streak snapped by Ottawa Athletics, 5-4 in 11 innings.

In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs pounded out a 11-4 victory over Rochester Red Wings, Richmond Virginians rallied for six runs in the ninth inning for a 7-6 decision over Syracuse Chiefs, whose losing streak now is extended to 10 games.

Buddy Hicks, former Brooklyn Dodger farmhand, slammed out a single, triple and a grand-slam home run in five attempts to drive in six runs for the victorious Bisons. Harvey Zernia hammered out a single and a bases-loaded homer accounting for four runs.

A single by Joe Taylor in the bottom of the 11th gave Ottawa the win over the Sugar Kings. Luke Easter, playing his second game for the A's since being optioned by Cleveland Indians, hit a double to drive him with a two-run homer and a long fly. Clint Hartung did his homers for the Kings.

The Maple Leafs pounded out 20 hits, three pitcher pitchers, including home runs by Lew Morton, Sam Jethroe and Elston Howard.

Drums Beating For Welter Bout

HALIFAX (CP)—Fight fans here have started beating the drums for a Canadian welterweight title bout between champion Claude Fortin of Montreal and Dick (Kid) Howard of Halifax.

Fortin isn't too happy about the idea and at the moment is being roasted by sports columnists, and even his manager, for his last-round defeat by Howard here Monday night.

Howard, Maritime lightweight titleholder, won a unanimous decision and had little trouble with Fortin in the non-title match.

But Fortin has asked the fight if he would like to do it again, replied bluntly:

"Why? I can't get near him. He crouches, and he's almost to the foot. He makes me look like a prelim boy."

Even Sylvio Mirsault, Fortin's manager, wasn't pleased:

"I agree with many fans who said my boy didn't look like a Canadian champion. They are right, he didn't. But he can fight better than that. . . ."

REMEMBER WHEN

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pete Latzo dethroned Mickey Walker as world welterweight boxing champion by winning a 10-round decision over the "Toy Bulldog" at Scranton, Pa., 25 years ago tonight. Walker then won the middleweight title from Tiger Flowers and lost it in a return bout in 1931. Latzo held the welter crown only a year before losing it to Joe Dundee.

ENDS WIN STRING

DETROIT (AP)—Carmine Flore, a savage left-hooker from Brooklyn, scored two knockdowns and won his eighth straight fight Wednesday night with a unanimous 10-round decision over army-bound Jed Black of Jamesville, Wis. Flore weighed 146½, Black 144½.

Flore floored Black for eight-counts in the third and seventh rounds with surprising but solid left hooks to end Black's unbeaten string at 27 fights.

Wanted; Some Good Billfooters

TORONTO (CP) — Financially speaking things don't look at all good for sending a big squad of central Ontario athletes to the British Empire Games track and field trials at Vancouver July 9-10.

In fact, treasurer George Denniston of the central Ontario (AAU) branch said Wednesday, only 39 of the needed $2,000 has been collected so far to send the proposed 25-man team.

"It's the same old story," Denniston said. "Plenty of people want to criticize but not many want to help."

By making a direct appeal to the public, Denniston said it was hoped to nullify any criticism that the best athletes don't get a chance to attend the trial. The bigger the amount collected the—more athletes that can be sent.

Leafs Option Bobo Hollaman

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League announced Wednesday night that pitcher Alva Lee (Bobo) Holloman has been optioned to Columbus Red Birds of the American Association.

Big Bobo, who hasn't had much luck with the Leafs in a no-hitter with St. Louis Browns in his major-league starting debut last year, will join the farm club of the St. Louis Cardinals on option.

BROOKLYN (AP) — Chicago Cubs Wednesday purchased 39-year-old Walter Cooper on Waivers from Pittsburgh Pirates. Cooper will fill in for injured catcher Clyde McCullough.

Famous Jockey May Miss Epsom Derby

SALISBURY, England (AP)—Sir Gordon Richards may be forced to give up his mount on the Queen's horse, Landau, in the Epsom Derby June 2 as the result of injuries suffered in a spill Tuesday.

Richards, who at 50 years of age has ridden more winners than any other jockey in history, was knocked out for 30 minutes when his horse, Misty Night, fell during the running of the Devizes Handicap. He suffered a severe concussion.

"He really had a bad knock," a hospital spokesman said. "Completes rest and quiet are essential. He might—and emphasize might—have to rest and not ride for a fortnight. No bones are broken but he has some bad bruises."

Dresden Opens Harness Season

DRESDEN, Ont. (CP)—A field of 31 western Ontario trotters and pacers opened the harness racing season here Wednesday in one of the earliest starts on record.

Vi Hy paced the fastest mile of the meet—2:13 3-5—in the first race of 2:18 pacers. Grey Direct won the second race with Vi Hy second.

Argyel Grattan, who finished third in the first of the three-heat, trotted home a winner at 2:13 4-5 in the second.

Jimmie Champ was the only double winner of the meet. The horse, owned by Norm McIntyre of Charing Cross, took both events in the 2:25 pace.

Girl Is Badly Bruised, Shaken Up in Accident

CAMPBELLFORD — A girl was badly bruised and shaken up and a car careened into the east ditch of Highway 30, near the Wark-worth turn as a result of a spec-tacular accident on Sunday.

Approaching the highway from the west, a Campbellford dentist, Dr. Owen C. Watson, 73, was in collision with a southbound ve-hicle driven by Douglas C. Tre-vail, 20, of R.R. 2, Marlon. The impact sent the Trevbell car into a ditch and injured the passen-ger, Miss Alice L. Wright of Mal-lon.

Damage to both cars was ex-tensive. Mr. Trebell estimates his damage at $700 while the dentist's car will need $175 repair.

CHARGE IS LAID.

A charge of operating a vehicle with defective brakes was laid against Frank Bedore, 56, of R.R. 2, Havelock, as a result of a col-lision on the Healey Falls-Hast-ings mile north of Campbellford Saturday morning.

Driving south across the bridge, Mr. Bedore had just reached the other side, when he was in head-on collision with Harry Dicken-son, 48, of R.R. 1, Bonarlaw. Both cars were extensively damaged about the front and a charge was laid against Mr. Bedore.

This accident was investigated by Constable Archie Eadie of the Campbellford detachment of the OPP and Constable Douglas Ross of Peterborough. Constable Ross is on temporary loan from the Peterborough detachment to re-place George Rose, now Campbell-ford Police Chief. Normal OPP complement in Campbellford is two constables.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Lately the papers have been full of reports about famous American army privates with special privileges. Here's one who claims he got none—singer Vic Damone.

Congressional probers have been looking into charges of out-of-the-ordinary treatment for sports stars, hotel heirs, etc., who have been drafted. There have been whole some show-business figures also who have been favored in the army.

"Not me," says Damone. "I re-ceived no special privileges. I went through four months of basic training, just like anyone else. I spent a year in Germany. Then I came back and stayed eight months at San Antonio. I was doing re-cruiting work part of that time.

"During my first five months in Germany, I did no singing at all. . . . The USO shows which were being given cost the taxpayers money. They could have had me for a bargain—$80 a month."

GIVEN ROUGH TIME

The singer said he sometimes had a rough time in the army be-cause he was a celebrity. Once he had to resort to fisticuffs to pre-serve his reputation. In a crowded post exchange another soldier made a slurring remark about him in show business. All eyes were on Damone, who had to call the oth-er's bluff. The singer challenged him to a boxing match in the gym.

Fortunately, Damone had trained six months for a fight picture that never was made. He kept up his lessons for two years and learned one sure-fire punch from an ex-pert.

"I knew I had to beat the guy or the word would be all over the army in Europe," he said. "So I waited for an opening for my left hook and then I gave it every-thing I had. He went to the floor with a dazed look and said 'Okay.'"

DECLARE EMERGENCY

NAIROBI (AP) — Sir Edward Twining, governor of Tanganyika, said Wednesday a state of emer-gency has been declared in dis-tricts around Mount Kilimanjaro because of an "armed and des-perate" Mau Mau gang which moved in from Kenya.

AT THE BELLE—Tempestuous couple — Farley Granger and lovely Jeanmaire (ex-Paris Opera ballet master she a ballerina) in Samuel Goldwyn's lavish Technicolor produc-tion "Hans Christian Andersen" starting today at the Belle Theatre. In the title role, Danny Kaye, brilliant comedian ex-hibits a new and heart-warming personality, singing with dim-plicity the many recitals of Andersen. The picture is spectacular on the Belle Huge Wide-Vision screen.

AT THE CAPITOL—Will Rogers, Jr. and Nancy Olson are teamed romantically in Warner Bros' "The Boy From Ok-lahoma", which opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre for its First Belleville showing. The WarnerColor production concerns the sheriff of Bitterroot County who never carried a gun yet finds himself in the middle of a range war. Also starring in the picture, Nancy Olson as the girl who finally corrals the bashful sheriff. On the same program the musical in Technicolor "On Moonlight Bay" starring Doris Day and Gordon MacRae. See them both on our new giant panoramic screen.

AT THE CAPITOL THEATRE — Doris Day has the leading female role in Warner Bros' "On Moonlight Bay" at the Capitol Theatre. The musical film in color by Technicolor, co-stars Gor-don MacRae with Doris Day. On the same program is the Technicolor musical "The Boy From Oklahoma" starring Will Rogers, Jr., and Nancy Olson.

AT THE McCARTHY— Rock Hudson's plea to permit Apaches to punish Apaches meets with resistance from the cavalry com-mander, Robert Burton, and Gregg Palmer, his aide, while guide Richard Cutting looks on, in a tense scene from Universal-Inter-national's Technicolor adventure, "Taza, Son of Cochise," starting today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Barbara Rush is co-star-red with Hudson. Douglas Sirk directed.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

An extra trick may be lurking in every bridge deal. Noting in the bidding may tell you to ex-pect it. Not even if you saw the hand your partner has would you know it will turn up.

Not always is the extra trick actually there. Sometimes it is handed to you by a lucky lead or a freak division of cards. These are when it falls into your lap because opponents discard wrong.

There was the spread you see here:

NORTH
♠ 8 6 5
♥ Q 6 5 4
♦ A J 8 5
♣ K 9

WEST
♠ 9 7

♣ 7 6 4

SOUTH
♠ K 4 2
♥ A J 3 2
♦ 9 7 6
♣ A J 3

South became the declarer at a contract of three no-trump. He had to stretch some to get there. He was influenced by his pair of jacks, hoping they would be lucky enough to take tricks.

The opening lead from west was club five, fourth from his best-est of his longest suit. Dummy's nine covered and won. A heart from the dummy was successfully finessed with south's jack.

Diamond nine was led with in-tent to finesse deep. But west went on it with the ace and the jack lost to east's queen. A club return was taken with dummy king and a heart got south in again with the ace.

On this trick west elected to throw one of his three spades. On a diamond south led, west re-fused to cover and it rode. The ace of clubs was cashed and a dummy heart was stuffed.

Another diamond from south was finessed in the usual shape and east stuffed a spade thereon. Now the ace of clubs was cashed and the east hand was determined he would take two hearts.

So, east stuffed a club on the diamond ace, leaving him with two spades; the same num-ber as his partner now had. This let the declarer take three spade tricks for a total of 11 tricks.

Had east slutted a heart on the diamond ace, dummy would have led a heart and declarer would have taken two spades and a heart. Just give opponents a chance and they may make a mis-take.

Soccer Results

RCAF United defeated Northern Electric 4-1 in a scheduled Bay of Quinte Football League fix-ture last night.

The airmen led 2-0 at the half-time'line and added two more in the second half to Electric's lone tally.

Nolan, Ultine, A. K. Jones and R. J. Jones scored for the winners with Eric Carter counting for Northern Electric.

Tired, Draggy, Worn-Out Full Of Aches And Pains

Also troubled with Stomach Headaches, Dizzy Spells. This Woman tells of Grand Results She got by Taking Syntona.

"During the past year I have suffered from stomach and kidney trouble and constipation and my entire system became rundown", said Mrs. Eleanor Farris, 103½ Briscoe Street, London, Ont., in a recent statement.

"Almost everything I ate gave me gas pains and I felt tired and heavy, had no feeling of appetite, had attacks of headaches and a sick nauseated feeling in my stomach. Sometimes I would get up-in-the-joints and muscles and many days I just tired, dragged and worn out and full of aches and pains. I was also troubled with dizzy spells.

So Much Better Now!

"A few weeks ago I decided to try Syntona and after using only a few bottles I felt so much better. I can eat what I please and have no trouble with stomach distress afterwards. My bowels are more regular, I sleep better at night and am free from headaches and dizzy spells. Also the aches and pains have left me."

MRS. ELEANOR FARRIS

Get back and health you don't feel tired and worn out as I did before."

Thousands of men and women are using Syntona for relief from common disorders of the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. In addition to helping restore health and vitality, Syntona is a mild but effective laxative to relieve constipation of some acid impurities from the system that cause headaches, biliousness and sour stomach.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

MEMBER WANTS EUROPEAN AIR STRENGTH CUT

Says it Would Slice Millions Off Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF Leader Coldwell has suggested cutting Canada's air strength in Europe by one wing and troops in Korea by a third.

The two proposals, placed before the Commons Thursday, were among a list of suggested economies which he said could slice "several hundreds of millions of dollars" from a $2,000,000,000 defence program this year.

He was one of several opposition members who made economy remarks as the defence department's 1954-55 estimates came under consideration.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes VC, Progressive Conservative military critic, said that a sincere desire to cut down the budget should mean a $100,000,000 cut in defence estimates. He urged a detailed study of departmental operations by non-government efficiency experts.

Mr. Coldwell made the cuts and said economies should not be made in defence and defence spending. Spending could be reduced five per cent by teaching service commanders how to economize.

They spoke after Defence Minister Claxton outlined the government's defence program and, in particular, joint efforts with the United States and members of the North American continent.

Attack Possible

Mr. Claxton said the primary aim of continental defence is to make the attack's capacity for massive retaliation, the U.S. strategic bomber force.

The defence against Russian air power could destroy nine out of 10 attacking planes. That percentage still was not good enough. However, any "no doubt additional" steps will be taken from time to time" to strengthen continental defences.

Canada's plan of radar, communications and jet fighters to intercept attacking bombers would be in complete operation by the end of summer, he said. If it had reached the stage where a Russian fighter force began flying for U.S. targets might choose some other route than over the Canadian Arctic.

Mr. Coldwell said Canada left the United Nations command in Korea when she sent 12 RCAF squadrons to Europe. Canada's contribution should be returned, to save money and give Canada better protection.

Mr. Pearkes said the Korean force should be reduced by one wing instead of a third.

Gen. Pearkes said he isn't sure North America's defence warning system is effective as Mr. Claxton indicated. Canada should have a more broadened force for home defence and despite whether thinking Canadian cities were exposed to air attack.

Mr. Claxton said he doesn't believe there will be a general war in the near future. But the basic aim of the defence is to avoid war. Imperialism and aggrandizement and Canada's defence spending could not be reduced if her forces were to be kept at present levels.

Keep 24-Hour Vigil in B.C. As Creeks Near Danger Level

VANCOUVER (CP) — Anxious residents and emergency crews are keeping a 24-hour flood vigil in the British Columbia interior as swollen streams creep to the danger levels.

Cooler temperatures prevailed in the area Thursday, helping to slow down the runoff from snow-clad peaks.

Public works officials at Victoria reported that the situation throughout the province was "fairly steady" during the day and localities were in a serious position.

A special snow report issued by the government Thursday, consolidating surveys taken up to May 15, expressed "cautious optimism," while warning that the critical period was still to come.

The report said that between 30 and 30 per cent of the snow pack had melted already in the areas of the major rivers, Columbia, Kootenay and Fraser.

The worst region in B.C. was along the turbulent Similkameen river, which burst its banks in six places in the area south of Princeton.

BRIDGE WASHOUT

Side roads were cut off and small bridges swept away, while CPR crews worked round-the-clock bridging a washout on the Kettle valley line near Manning, 15 miles west of Princeton.

In the Kootenays, flood control officials at Creston kept a close watch on the Kootenai river which flowed over its banks and inundated 3,000 acres of farm land upstream at Bonners Ferry, Idaho.

"It's all in the lap of the gods now," said Cyr Constable, secretary for the Creston water district. "The high water which struck Bonners Ferry was only the run-off from local snow.

"We still plenty of dynamite left in the hills, masses of ice and snow which, if a big dam should come by, could cause a very serious situation here."

LONDON (CP) — As the free world grapes for a way to stop Red spread in Asia, The Times in a long editorial today assesses the part that may be played by the various Commonwealth countries, including Canada.

Its general conclusion is that military action by itself is a dangerous and political action may be more decisive than military measures.

On Canada, The Times makes this comment:

"Canada is far enough from the scene of immediate danger [Communist China] to take a detached view, though her interest in Asia's early fate is by no means new. She sent a brigade group to Korea . . . and has kept closely in touch with the Asian members of the Commonwealth.

"It is doubtful whether the claims of her own continental defence will permit her to play a major part in the Asian defence, but her contribution would permit her to play a more active role in Southeast Asia.

INTEREST SMALL

"Her direct interest in Malaya is small. Where her interest is clearest is in her desire to strengthen all movements which make for economic consolidation throughout that southern and Southeast Asia."

The Times, an independent newspaper, also sums up the interests and possible contributions of other Commonwealth countries. It adds:

"What is required is a strategic survey of Commonwealth thought in the widespread ramifications of its economic and political action can play a great part—greater, perhaps, than air squadrons and divisions—to ensure that the nations gathering in the Commonwealth threat have been most heavily and recently independent, sovereign and at peace."

The lengthy editorial broadly reflects the British Socialist opposition thinking about a politico-military alliance in Southeast Asia. This pact, which would be a long-term strategy distinct from the present Korean showdown is likely in Washington, has caused a potentially explosive split between Britain, which wants to go slow in Asia, and the United States, which sees the Far East problem primarily as a military one requiring quick and decisive action.

NO SIMPLE SOLUTION

British caution is induced partly by the deep feeling that there is no simple solution in the East—the war in Communist China has an infinitely complicated background—and partly by the desire to maintain the countries closely with whatever new strategy is evolved.

It appears probable that Canada finds herself much more sympathetic to the British attitude. The leading Canadian ministers would be glad to see the talks have expressed today by The Times editorial:

"The powers of the free world have always to remind themselves that they are not facing a simple case of military aggression in the style of Korea. Instead they are facing are movements that are carried forward first and foremost by nationalism, but are largely exploited by communism, and that, in Indo-China at least, receive invaluable material help from China."

COAL INDUSTRY SAID IN DANGER OF EXTINCTION

Try to Woo Domestic Customers Back to Coal

By IRVING C. WHITNOT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—Nova Scotians face the cruel choice of paying more to buy more coal or the province stands to lose the 300-year-old industry which employs 12 per cent of the population.

They were warned bluntly that the coal industry is on the brink of disaster and in danger of extinction.

And they were told its loss would be the ruin of a $22,000,000 annual payroll which supports 70,000 persons directly and affects thousands more indirectly.

These warnings, and others just as grim, came at a meeting kicking off an intensive campaign designed to woo domestic customers back to coal from oil and other heating mediums.

The campaign, a joint provincial-company affair, has as its main aim the conversion of 10,000 part-time domestic heating market.

President L. J. (Larry) Forgeth of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation SAID:

"The industry . . . which contributes each year $62,000,000 to the Nova Scotia economy . . . is on the brink of disaster."

VITAL FOR EXISTENCE

He said the success or existence of the industry to place in its home market every pound of the product it can. "This market is ours by right—there."

He said oil had knocked 500,000 ton of coal a year off the Nova Scotia market during the last 15 years.

President Freeman Jenkins of United Mine Workers (CCL) district 26, with 12,000 members depending on the mines for a living, said 1,000,000 tons were lost in the Maritimes during the same period.

Premier Hon. Maurice Frederic Hamm said:

"There is good reason to be alarmed."

He said the cost of coal is the issue.

"To put it crudely the industry has almost priced itself out of the market." But he said he thought the situation could be licked through co-operation.

Police, Truckers 'Comrades,' Senator Davies Is Annoyed

TORONTO (CP) — Senator W. Rupert Davies charged today that there is an unholy "comradeship" between police and truck drivers that permits trucks to menace lives on Ontario highways without apparent immunity.

In a letter to Mr. J. E. Nickle, chairman of the Ontario legislature committee on traffic safety, Senator Davies called for a crackdown on commercial drivers, especially in the Toronto area.

Mr. Nickle, Progressive Conservative member for Kingston, is directing the province's first legislative enquiry into the accident toll.

He said he agreed with the views of Senator Davies and with the Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans, Anglican Bishop of Ontario, who appeared before committee chairman expressing his views.

Mr. Nickle said he planned to read both letters into the record when the committee meets next Tuesday.

VIOLATIONS SCORED

Senator Davies, who is president of the Kingston Whig-Standard, said that in his opinion there is "a great deal of sympathy on the part of both provincial and municipal police to check up on commercial drivers."

Trucks passed on the wrong side and into the path of traffic in Toronto. On the highways it was almost as bad, he said, and "there seems to be a comradeship between police and drivers of commercial vehicles which prevents the police from cracking down on these violations."

Senator Davies said that on a recent drive from Brantford to Toronto he was going 50 miles an hour and was passed by two huge transports "going so fast that they were gone before I had even appeared from sight."

"I am sure that one must have been going 75 or 80 miles an hour," he said in his letter. "And I am also sure that makes our highways so dangerous and we will have a terrible toll of lives if laws are enforced and the penalties are made severe."

Bishop Evans, in his letter, noted with alarm the appalling number of accidents that have happened, take place on highway No. 2 in the Kingston area. He said "driving fatigue" of transport and other drivers going from Toronto to Montreal may be a factor in the Kingston area.

He suggested Ontario should intensify a study of traffic fatigue and should establish "rest areas" in the Kingston area where drivers could conveniently stop and rest. Such areas have been provided for highways department operated on the "pull-in-be-buttoned-up" policy that left "death alleys" on the highways.

He thought that from the point of view of hazardous driving No. 2 highway, blazoned the number of high way fatalities, should be posted on the highways and kept up to date.

New Hopes Raised Of Ending Geneva Parley Deadlocks

Meetings by West Diplomats Provide Reasons for Hope

GENEVA (CP) — Two western meetings on Korea and Indo-China today raised new hopes of breaking deadlocks strangling the Geneva Far Eastern Conference.

At one, the West agreed to call for individual committees to tackle armistice proposals for each of the three Indo-Chinese associated states.

At the other, South Korea was reported showing a more flexible attitude on the key problem of all-Korean elections. A British Commonwealth source said today's meeting of the 16-nation Korean group was the "most encouraging" since the Geneva conference opened April 26.

The western decision to call for separate Indo-China committees came at a conference of experts before the main Indo-China group met for its fourth session of warfare.

PROCEEDINGS DEADLOCKED

Proceedings on Indo-China are deadlocked on plans publicly submitted by France and the Vietminh rebel regime in Viet Nam.

The Communists say it's a bad time for a new peace pact while pressing for an armistice settlement in Viet Nam. No other two states of Laos and Cambodia as well as Viet Nam.

France insists there is no strong rebel movement in Laos and Cambodia. But it has conceded, the French say, is the withdrawal of Vietminh forces from the two states.

If agreement is reached on the three-committee plan—and well-placed sources think it likely—work will probably begin immediately on drafting armistice terms based on earlier French and Vietminh proposals.

At the Korean meeting, according to the commonwealth source, South Korea showed definite signs of adopting a more flexible attitude on the issue of all-Korean elections.

IMPORTANT

But he stressed that the U. S. and Korea are still "some distance" apart on the main issues. Any delegations on the extent of concessions the UN should be willing to make.

The full 19-power Korean talks resume tomorrow.

External Affairs Minister Pearson postponed a trip to Paris and Ottawa to attend today's meeting.

The American delegation reported to the meeting on the latest developments in the Korean negotiations with President Syngman Rhee in South Korea on a proposed compromise plan for all-Korean elections under UN supervision. Rhee has said he is willing to accept elections free of "foreign interference."

DISCUSS TACTICS

Experts of the six non-Communist powers attending the Indo-China phase of the Far Eastern conference met this morning to discuss tactics. Foreign ministers this afternoon's resumption of the regular closed-door sessions on Indo-China.

Both the Korea and Indo-China talks are breaking toward the crucial stage of negotiations. The Indo-China conference has "reached a stage where the text of military terms for an armistice, much less a political settlement and whether the West nor the Communists have given ground.

Police Break Up Gang Fleecing Italian Workers

BARI, Italy (AP)—Police have broken up a gang reported to have fleeced 21 Italian workers out of more than $13,000,000 lire ($21,000) by promising to arrange their immediate entry into Canada.

Police gave this account of the case:

After paying 650,000 lire each, the 21 were taken to Rome and sworn to silence.

Nothing happened for several days. Then the leader of the gang told them the money he had been "taken in" by "Antonio of the Canadian legation" and there would be a delay into the Ukraine.

The denial came after the Soviet Union vetoed Canada's admission to the United Nations on the UN air force.

Poor Fish in Tire-Shaped Treadmill Swims Miles in Interest of Science

LONDON (Reuters)—A goldfish swam contentedly for miles on a "fishy treadmill" here Thursday night while some of Britain's leading men of science looked on in evening dress.

And the goldfish, like humans on a treadmill, got exactly nowhere.

It happened at the Royal Society's annual "conversazione"—one of the highlights of the British scientific year at which some of the most advanced theoretical and practical findings of science are demonstrated.

The "fishy treadmill," one of 31 exhibits, was a miniature model of transparent plastic and shaped like a tire. The tire revolved in the opposite direction to the swimming goldfish so that the fish actually remained stationary.

Since the speed of the tire was measured, the device enabled scientists to tell how fast the fish would have gone had it not been wasting its efforts in the cause of science.

Spain Attempts To Refute Answer By Churchill

MADRID (Reuters)—The Franco government claimed today that Sir Winston Churchill promised during the Second World War that Britain would help Spain regain her past glory as a great power as a reward for neutrality.

The British leader also offered to discuss the return of Gibraltar to Spain, a Spanish foreign office communique said, quoting alleged wartime statements in an attempt to refute Churchill's statement in the House of Commons in London Thursday that Britain made no promise during the war to cede Gibraltar to Spain.

Churchill made his statement in reply to an article written in a recent issue of Spain's official magazine Franco under a pen-name, which accused Britain of a breach of faith.

Students Riot In N.Y. Subway, Porter Beaten

NEW YORK (AP)—High school boys and girls by the hundreds rioted in the subway Thursday, surging in the crowded movie cars and smashing all before them. A porter in Belle park was beaten.

There was no apparent motive beyond sheer rowdyism.

Twenty-four boys and 18 girls were taken in five questioning by police. First reports had said police rounded up 40 youths.

Most of the students slithered off the grasp of cops and vanished.

The young vandals smashed windows, doors and seats and even hurled them from the trains, broke light bulbs and wrecked vending machines. They pulled emergency cords and help open train doors to disrupt travel schedules.

The riots started after about 1,200 students from four high schools massed in Van Cortlandt Park in the Bronx, Manhattan. Police said they thought the gathering was for a picnic or athletic event.

Carelessness Cause of Many Forest Fires

WASHINGTON (CP)—Four out of five forest fires in Canada are due to public carelessness, Edward C. Wood, president of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada said today.

This destruction costs each person in the country $1 yearly, he told the annual meeting of the National Fire Protection Association here.

Each year an average of 5,000 fires destroy 2,000,000 acres of forest land and burns enough timber to build 55,000 five-room bungalows, he said.

Stressing that "individual responsibility is needed to prevent forest fire losses, Mr. Wood said a pattern of public indifference existed in early school grades—as practised in Scandinavian coutries — should be encouraged.

Afraid to Gamble With 15-Cent Find, Italian Workman Misses 'Fortune'

NAPLES, Italy (AP)—Walking to work with three companions, Giacomo Pennarolo found a 100-lire note (worth 15 cents) on the street.

"We will buy a lottery ticket with it," said Giacomo. His friends agreed. They decided on a number and left it up to Pennarolo to buy the ticket. The number the four picked—450,000 lire (more than $700)—a fortune for a Neopolitan workman.

The court heard the sad ending after Pennarolo's three companions charged him with pocketing the prize.

Pennarolo dolefully told the court he had decided not to push his luck any further. He never bought the winning lottery ticket.

"The fates have punished you enough," the judge said. "Case dismissed."

Only Few Feet Of Burial Grounds Being Purchased

Purchase of part of the St. Thomas' Anglican burial ground as a right-of-way to allow unloading and loading of school buses at the south end of the collegiate instead of on narrow John Street, has been arranged by the Bay of Quinte district high school board.

Church wardens Gordon. Miller and George Rosang appeared before the high school area board at their regular meeting this week in connection with the sale of the property and stated that the sale had been formally approved by the Church Synod.

The property to be sold to the school board is the north few feet of the old burial grounds and will necessitate removal of two or three graves.

"Only a few feet of the burial grounds is being purchased but in the view of the school board it is the best solution," said Rod Roy Dulmage, secretary of the board.

The property will allow passage of school buses bringing in students from the rural areas. Children will be able to leave and enter buses on school property close to the school, thus eliminating stocking traffic on John Street.

Lieut. Done of district military headquarters at Kingston attended the board seeking affiliation of the cadet corps at the new Quinte High School.

Mr. Stu Robb and Miss M. Moult sought approval of the board asking for the possible use of the collegiate auditorium for the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival.

The tender of the Moira Schuster Coal Company for the supply of stoker coal for the collegiate was accepted.

The resignation of John Field, social studies and history teacher, was accepted with regret. John Field will go to Hamilton as instructor at the provincial teachers' college.

The resignation of Wilbur Countryman, head of the science department at the collegiate has been accepted with regret.

Mr. Countryman will become principal of the Hanover High School.

The meeting broke off at 11 o'clock and a special meeting will be held Tuesday evening to complete the board business.

Angler Proves There Is Good Fishing in Bay

A fisherman is a fisherman no matter whence he gets his wall. Take the hall from Ashley, Mount the Gold Coast, Picadilly or Broken Arrow, Arizona, and it gets the urge, current environment pictured a thing.

Take the case of Jack Whittet, New York City, who is spending business week here. Back home in Gotham, he is a confirmed angler.

He may be a Giants' rooter, a Flatbush fusilier or a solid supporter of the Dam Yankees, but always he is a fisherman.

Back, up had line on his hands the other day strolled towards the bay via the Wills Marine, South Front Street. He sighed wistfully as he eyed the waters of Quinte. His fingers itched for the feel of the rod. He even made a few imaginary casts.

He talked with Pete Wills and Harry Semark, and these worthy gentlemen did not pass up the opportunity to get in the "plugs" for Belleville, Quinte, and local fishing in particular.

A few hours later they saw their verbal advertising vindicated.

Harry escorted Mr. Whittet over the reaches of the bay after equipping him with the necessary gear. The New Yorker was in his element and when a ten-pound plus pike measuring 34 inches in length gobbled his lure, he almost flew out paddle of Canadian citizenship.

But that is not all. The next nibble was a seven-pound pike. And by the time the duo decided to call it a day, seven pike had been boasted, ranging from the ten-pounder down.

The result? New York-Belleville relations have been strengthened; the fishing honor of the Bay of Quinte has been vindicated, and New Yorker Jack Whittet has the proof his pike-pursuit was not a fisherman's dream.

Punch Boards Prove Expensive For 3 Merchants

Having punch boards at their places of business proved expensive for three Hastings county merchants who yesterday in county magistrate's court were each assessed $50 fine and $15 costs. The men pleaded guilty before Magistrate T. Y. Willis on charges of keeping a common gaming house.

Provincial police said that it was illegal to possess or distribute punch boards but noted it was possible the merchants fined were not aware that they were breaking the law. Police said the check for punch boards would continue in the rural areas.

Believe Twister Responsible For Two Capsizings

The banshees could be haunting the waters of the harbor off Wills' Marina. There are strange happenings going on down that way, it is said.

For instance, last Wednesday three brim craft lay at anchor in midstream, two of them at one end of the harbor, the other at the opposite end a quarter-mile away.

Suddenly one of the two boats capsized, the other remained "topside". Later the boat at the other end of the harbor turned turtle in the water. There was nary a human within hundreds of yards of the craft.

Ghostly hands may have been at work. But it is believed a miniature "twister" developed out of the atmosphere, up-ended the craft and went on its way.

Someone suggested a big "wash wave" from a large craft was responsible for the twin capsizing, but this theory is dispelled with the fact the latter craft remained where it were ten feet from the one capsized.

BOUNCES BENEFIT BABY

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — A bouncy ride in a fire department rescue squad car Thursday night apparently dislodged a 16-inch metal rod from the throat of a six-month-old baby who was being rushed to hospital. Firemen said Gail Klepper was choking on a metal rod she had apparently unfastened from a play seat and jammed into her throat, when the 25lb shock it loose.

Couch Resigns As Industrial Commissioner

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton is without the services of an Industrial Commissioner.

Last Tuesday night ex-mayor K. J. Couch accepted the job in a written notice to council. Earlier he had expressed concern about the lag in Trenton's industrial expansion boom. Mayor Ross Burtt on Wednesday night contradicted statements made by Mr. Couch. Mr. Couch resigned Friday.

Mr. Couch indicated that his decision to resign was prompted by the mayor's speech. He made no further comment deciding it was better to keep quiet and leave no room for controversy.

Mr. Couch worked with Senator W. A. Fraser to bring a number of new industries to Trenton last year.

26 Assessment Appeals Settled By Town Council

TRENTON (Special) — Judge Gerald Smith, sitting on the court of appeals for assessment yesterday, welcomed the town's decision to settle all 26 cases. Another appeal under a different section of the Assessment Act concerning the assessment on Gerald Weaver's new home on McColl and Henry Streets will be dealt with at a later date, the court decided.

Mayor Ross Burtt and four council members approved the settlements on recommendation from special counsel Alan Sprague of Belleville, hired by council to act for Trenton in these appeals. Councillors Gerald Weaver and Claude Graham were absent from the special council meeting because both of them were appealing for reductions in their assessments. The Court of Revision earlier had confirmed all 1953 notices, with minor adjustments in some instances.

Appellants receiving sizeable reductions because of the settlements were: F. J. Asix, Gilbert Hotel, Graham's Garage, Jean James, Hugh O'Rourke, Reginald Parks, Helen Sutcliffe, Robert Weddell, Gerald Weaver, Winnifred Weaver and R. J. Whitley.

The town's representative, Alan Sprague noted in his address to the judge that it was his opinion that the decision to settle the appeals should be a bright and happy augur for the future of the assessment problems in Trenton.

"As special counsel for the Town of Trenton for the '53 assessment appeals to you I am pleased to associate myself with Frederick L. Ward, Q.C., to make an announcement which I feel sure your honor will be pleased to hear and which in my opinion should be a bright and happy augur for the future of the assessment problems in Trenton, which problem for the past year has not been a happy one for all concerned," he said.

He continued: "The 26 appeals, up to par, have all been settled without the need of any lawsuit which has the effect of saving the town and the applicants thousands of dollars in costs."

Mr. Sprague added: "all will be spared the bitterness which sometimes follows litigations and best of all this has paved the way for a sound assessment policy in Trenton.

"For your information, sir, the town employed the services of Mr. George Lister, formerly a member of the Ontario Municipal Board and a former member of the Rental Administration during the war, to advise on the valuation of appraisers in Canada, and a most careful and thorough survey and investigation and adjustment of the properties under appeal was made and accepted by the parties concerned.

"Mr. Lister was high in his praise for the ability and character of Mr. Hall the new assessor in Trenton. I would like to add my own praise. I feel that Trenton is indeed fortunate to have obtained the services of such an able and conscientious man.

"With these appeals as a starting point and with the service of Mr. Hall and Mr. C. W. Larry, whom I am told no matter where I go is one of the most efficient clerks and treasurers in Ontario, and with the co-operation and assistance of all citizens the assessing department will eventually succeed for the most part in settling the assessment problem which has haunted Trenton for some time."

HELICOPTER CRASHES

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)— A United States Air Force helicopter crashed and burned in a field about half a mile north of the air force base at Niagara Falls airport Thursday. Two air force officers were injured. Witnesses said the helicopter seemed to be hanging about 10 feet off the ground when suddenly it rose about 50 feet into the air, then dropped and burst into flames.

Ameliasburg Farm Buildings Are Destroyed

Sparks from a burning brush pile set fire to the driving shed, pig pen and hen house on the farm of Arthur Adams, 3rd concession of Ameliasburg Township, late Friday morning. All three buildings were destroyed.

Mr. Adams, who moved onto the farm last fall, had been clearing up brush and was burning it near the barn and other buildings. The fire had burned down to ashes and, believing it safe to leave it, Mr. Adams went inside the house. Looking out a few moments later he saw the driving shed, pig pen and hen house, which were located together in one group, were ablaze.

There were no pigs or chickens in the building, but a large three-furrow tractor plow and a set of sleighs were destroyed. A hay baler was safely removed from the driving shed.

Because it was evident that it would be impossible to save the burning buildings, no alarm was turned in to the Belleville fire department when the fire was first noticed at 11.30 a.m. Later, however, a shift in the wind sent sparks showering in the direction of the barn, 150 feet distant, because of fear that this building might also catch fire, the Belleville firemen were called. However, the barn is entirely metal-covered and this prevented it from igniting.

The loss is covered by insurance.

AN EXERCISE IN CHIVALRY

Are the French and the Vietminh too civilized to fight a real war?

That sounds like a stupid question, having in mind the gallantry of the Union forces in Dien Bien Phu and the ruthlessness which has characterized Communist-led armies wherever they have fought.

But, since the fall of Dien Bien Phu the French and Vietminh have been vying with each other in an exhibition of chivalry which does them both credit.

First there was the agreement by the Vietminh to permit the French to evacuate the most seriously wounded among the men captured when the fortress fell.

This agreement was marred when it appeared it might have been just a ruse to provide a bomb-free route down which Vietminh forces might move to the Red River delta. The French threatened to resume bombing this "hospital-corridor" unless the airstrip at Dien Bien Phu was repaired, so as to speed up evacuation of the wounded.

And then they made their own chivalrous gesture. If this were done, they offered to remove the more seriously wounded rebels, provide them with medical treatment—and return them when they were healed.

The Vietminh rejected the French request and the French are bombing of the "hospital-corridor."

But the Vietminh, finding it their turn to be chivalrous once more, permitted evacuation of the wounded to continue.

Now only were the rebels ready to free the wounded but they also announced that the only woman at Dien Bien Phu, Lieut. Geneviere de Galard, would also be freed.

It was the hope of the French again—and Nurse de Galard did not miss her cue. She told Vietminh officers she preferred to return to Hanoi with the last helicopter of wounded.

The Vietminh promised she could leave Dien Bien Phu any time she wished.

It looks like the next move is up to the French—and if this sort of thing kept up the over-optimistic might be led to hope that they might run right out of war in Indo-China, while the Geneva Conference is still trying to figure out a way to end the war.

Unfortunately, in the light of the Communists' past record in many lands, one cannot help suspecting that there is some motive behind the present exhibition of sweet reasonableness. One explanation, which would seem to meet most of the facts, is that this chivalrous attitude is designed to lull the French into a false sense of security. This would retard the present efforts of the United States to arrange an international accord providing for intervention by other powers if such action is necessary to prevent the Communist-led rebels from gaining control of all Indo-China.

TWO SIDES TO THIS QUESTION

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, Progressive-Conservative member of the House of Commons from Hamilton West, thinks that persons who live in their own homes should be able to deduct municipal taxes from income for federal tax purposes. She argues that owners of businesses and farmers are allowed to do this. So are those who receive an income from rented property.

The argument would seem to need a better chance of passing inspection if she had not mentioned "those who receive an income from rented property." For that is the key to the situation. The man who lives in his own home is really receiving an income, just as if he were renting the house to somebody else. If he is allowed to deduct municipal taxes from his taxable income, then he must also expect to have added to this income the amount which he would otherwise pay in rent if he did not own his own home. For that is the amount of "income" he receives from the house.

A few years ago, if memory serves us right, "Saturday Night" dealt with this question of home ownership. Then from an opposite point of view. It argued that if a man had $10,000 invested in bonds, he paid income tax on the interest he received. But a man who lived in his $10,000 in a home paid no income tax on the benefits he derived from this ownership. "Saturday Night" maintained that the homeowner was getting unduly favorable treatment.

Fortunately for homeowners the Federal Government ignored this argument. It is difficult to see how it could, in fairness to tenants, continue to ignore it if homeowners were permitted to deduct municipal taxes from their incomes. Mrs. Fairclough is trying to give the homeowner "a break." Perhaps the kindest thing she could do for them is to forget about the whole subject.

GLOOMY READING

A news report says: "A team of United Nations scientists predicts that although the average human intelligence level is holding up pretty well, there is some evidence to the contrary."

This is gloomy reading.

For, if the average is merely holding up pretty well, it must mean that there are a great many who are getting really dim-witted. There must be, to offset all the smart fellows who are going around making A-bombs and H-bombs and planning space stations—and figuring out "the average human intelligence level."

GETTIN' HURT

Seems like you're always gettin'
Sore about like you had to go hurt,
There an' learn it for yourself
Scarred an' bruised from head to toe;
Never mind! Come on, don't cry!
Comin' in all smeared with dirt,
Yes, I know it hurts a lot.
Sobbin' out your tale of woe.
It will heal up by and by Tried to climb a tree at first,
An' you'll never see the spot
Tried to tight-rope walk a
Just sit here upon my knee;
fence,
Take it easy now, an' when Sailed an'—there, you needn't
It is bandaged up you'll be tell!
Ready to go out again.
I can guess the consequence.
Jus' remember as you go
That your daddy's old an' wise
Never thought your daddy knew
An' with years has come to know
Anything of life at all
All the paths where danger
When he told you not to do lies,
What you did because you'd
Sometime, when he's gone away
Didn't think it could be so.
Where he cannot hear you call,
Did you now, you roguish elf?
You may know his every way
Was to save you from a fall.
Ready to go out again.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

MAY 21, 1934.

Mr. Walker Sayers has returned to his home in Trenton borough after spending a few days here the guest of Mr. W. H. Morton.

Mr. Robert Asselstine, a student at Queen's, University, Kingston, spent a few days here with Mr. and Mrs. George Hawe, James Street, prior to returning to his home in Fernie, B.C.

Miss Beau Dolan left yesterday on a visit to New York City.

Mr. R. McCormick went to Toronto today and will spend Victoria Day there with his home from Toronto to spend the week end.

Miss Alice Connors of Montreal is the guest of Mrs. E. Doran, George Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. F. Dickens are spending a few days in Toronto.

30 YEARS AGO

MAY 21, 1924.

Excursions on the bay were also popular and most expensive years ago. Here is an item from our file dated on this time in 1894: "The steamer Annie Lake ran an excursion to Massassaga Park this afternoon. The return fare was 10 cents."

Mr. Harry Cook has not given any evidence lately of the approach of summer. Today the thermometer at the pump house registered a maximum 57 and minimum 28.

Mrs. Margaret Binniger of Tweedsmuir, Sask., is visiting Mrs. Mossman, Ridley Street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wills and their daughter, Mrs. C. Hayes, are spending a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Lorne F. Green will spend Victoria Day with his home in Hamilton.

Dr. J. A. Moore of London, Ontario, will spend Victoria Day here with his father, Mr. S. S. Moore, Ann Street.

Fashion Note from our file story at this time in 1894: "Some women's bonnets are so diminutive in size nowadays that they approach the vanishing point."

By GREGORY CLARK

We do not think of a fish as amusing. Fishermen do not appear to be much humor in fish. They lead cold, purposeful lives, either basking in the sun eternally in position in fast rushing water, or hovering "motionless" in the shadow of weed, stump or rock, like bass. If they jump a little gaily on occasion, we have supposed they were catching an insect on the surface or perhaps escaping from a pursuing enemy.

One of my friends recently witnessed a very curious disturbance that suggests small fish, perhaps young fish, do enjoy a little fun now and then. A chip of wood was floating slowly on the surface of a stream. As it passed over him, in his cause, he was surprised to see a considerable very small disturbance around the chip. The water was busily engulfed on all sides of it for a foot or more. And when he focussed his attention on it, he was astonished to see a small minow spring of of the water, an inch or two from the chip, lay on it, bounce about for an instant and then flip off back into the water. He paddled very cautiously closer to the chip. The water was flattering and dimpling all around the chip, small fish were leaping and their leaping is the water. And every few seconds, another would leap successfully onto the chip, take a short ride, and then flip off again.

As the chip was drifting towards shore, where some rocks afford a little height for a good view, my friend went ashore and took up a position from which he could look down into the water. There was a school of forty to fifty small fish, which he believes were minnows, following the chip, milling eagerly about within a radius of a foot of it, and jumping onto it for no apparent reason, but from sheer fun.

When the chip grounded, he rescued it and examined it to make sure there were no insects or other bugs adhering to it to account for the excitement of the minows.

It may be a case of fish simply amusing themselves. And why not?

Why Reforms Are Sought

(Windsor Star).

An analysis from London of motoring rates emphasizes the great decline in infant mortality in the United Kingdom. But it contains one significant sentence: "Children of low income families are more likely to be exposed to a diet as wealthy ones."

That, and similar fact, explains the surge for improved medical and social services; for better wages and working conditions and other improvements for those in the lower income groups.

A child in a humble home is just as beloved as one in a wealthy mansion. The demand for social and economic reforms will continue just so long as facts such as this exist. It is a simple explanation of the urge for reforms which has been a feature of this century.

A-Bomb Game Not Amusing

(Christian Science Monitor).

There may not seem to be much connection between a slot machine and an atom bomb...But a New York manufacturer of amusement gallery contraptions has produced a variation of the "try your skill" slot machine that, gruesomely enough makes the connection...the idea is to score points by aiming an "atom bomb" on a moving target—a city shown on a color film strip.

When the machine appeared recently in a Stockholm amusement park: 100 youths demanded that the management remove it. Our symbolism is heavily with the objectors. It would be hard to imagine a crasser, more callous and stupid form of "amusement."

One of the most valid objections to this miserable contraption is that it appeals to the emotionally unbalanced child who may be led to emulate these actions in real life, the normal child (or adult reader) who simply has his sense of humor and values cheapened by a steady diet of them. The unamusing atom-bomb game is, in fact, the same censure, with an added objection to its lack of the American sensibilities.

For many Americans have talked too glibly about dropping atom bombs—without any regard for the fact that they would be dropping under the very shadow of the Soviet atomic arsenal. There are still those in other countries who fear that Americans are living in a fool's paradise, content with thrilly world where the hero's always right and "right is right as the law"—or an atom bomb.

This is a symptom of the deeply concerned thinking of mature Americans. But it behooves us, individually and collectively, to consider the problem. There are 20,000,000 sensational comic books being sold today for its young, and now an atom bomb "game", to make sure that his finer sensibilities are not blunted by becoming accustomed to the thought of violent destruction.

Civil Servants Must Reduce (Edmonton Journal).

That time-honored phrase "reducing the civil service" is about to take on a new meaning in Egypt. The Naguib government has ordered that all overweight officials must immediately take steps to reduce their waistlines.

This is a revolutionary innovation in the Near East, where rulers have traditionally regaled themselves on generous cuts of sheep and mountains of Turkish pastry, and where a man's importance is often measured by his embonpoint. However, the reasons given for this drastic order are perfectly sound. Since the people of Egypt are hungry, President Naguib argues, portly administrators are a "provocation." It may be surmised that the Egyptian leader does not want any admirers around him who might be a threat to King Farouk.

The government will provide "calisthenic institutions" where bulbous bureaucrats are to undergo strenuous exercises. We trust that matters will not be carried to the extremes reported in 1930 when Mussolini required some of his tubbier lieutenants to jump over rope held low down in the air.

If the experiment succeeds, Naguib may go down in history as the man who removed a great weight from Egypt.

They Disagree About Drinks

(Christian Science Monitor).

A few days ago's dairy farmer from Pawling, New York, thought he saw an opportunity to solve two problems with one glass. He noted that there is a shortage of milk and a surplus of beer. Why not he publicly urged a "switch to milk" at baseball games, at the theater, and more plentiful."

The New York suggestion also has to be Governor of New York, and his remarks drew an official protest from Jose Carlos Muniz, Ambassador from Brazil, which produces half the world's supply of Sen-Sen—or Muniz foresaw damage to the economy of his country and a blow to international goodwill.

Doubtless both gentlemen were fulfilling an official obligation. (New York has a $1,500,000,000 industry in milk and Brazil is not neither took himself too seriously. For with coffee prices...where they are, Brazil could hardly afford to have a drink that a change of a penny or two in price will become more effect on either beverage than any official pronouncement.

Nor do we expect any word from us to be weighty. But without reference to any rival product we would like diplomatically to underscore the merits of that nonhabit-forming, wholesome, and delicious food that looks white in a glass.

Peron's Auto Expensive

(Toronto Financial Post).

Roman dictators promised the people, circuses. Modern dictators add a people's car. Takes their minds off their troubles," is the general idea.

Back in the bulldup days before World War I, Hitler promised every German worker a car and he collected advance payments for them which he never did get round to delivery.

The idea moved elsewhere. Juan Peron, dictator of Argentina brought the Argentine to the brink of revolution. Then Peron revived the plan. For the "little man" he promised a car, that would run fast and almost for nothing.

That was two years ago. Now the first of these dream cars is ready.

Mr. Peron's car "for the people" costs about $3,100. This is every bit as much as the average person of the Argentine earns in more than six years. We don't think the Argentine roads will be crowded for a while yet.

Ancients Knew About Drugs

(St. Catharines Standard).

Medicine is a dynamic science, one for which we have the utmost respect, yet it is interesting to note that single, primitive superstition and hand-me-down drug lore from ages past make up some of its important branches—pharmacognosy.

Pharmacognosy deals with the history, collection, identification, and uses of crude drugs. The science, besides putting to modern use drugs known to Pocahontas, Galen, Paracelsus and the early physicians, incorporates techniques used by people for centuries.

Iodine, common as anything around the average house, has an interesting history. The ancient Assyria treated wounds with sea kelp, and goitre with burnt sponge. Both are high in iodine and are used for the same purposes today.

To the present day, centuries-old superstitions about the medical properties of certain herbs have been common. With the press of advertising, many of these remedies were found to be worthless, yet others have been found to contain solid substance.

Thirteenth-century Welshmen note that eagle, primitive symbol, contains digitalis, for heart disorders. Ancient Egypt was acquainted with opium, henbane, peppermint and castor oil. Ephedrine, a drug used for treating colds, asthma, and hay fever, comes from a Chinese herb used for nearly 5,000 years.

The Indians have made many contributions to medicine still in use. The American Indian discovered the drug world and recognized the healing properties of the cinchona bark, source of quinine and curare, a muscle relaxant.

Pharmacognocists seriously regard folklore, superstition or primitive cures. They could lead to important medical discoveries, no matter how fantastic they seem.

This in itself is one of the wonders of modern medicine.

Hip-Hip Or Ip-Ip-Ip?

(Sudbury Star).

Britons do get themselves mixed up in the strangest kinds of national controversies. The latest is more controversial than the latest ado as to whether or not "hurrah" that should precede the "hurrah" when cheering.

The United States wire service which reports this latest pother in Britain says the correct cheer is "hip" and the "hurrah". Our unofficial survey of the truly British cheer is that it goes "ip-ip hurray." Or it is "ip-pip-horray"?

Perhaps the difference is in the pronounciation. Nor is there any unanimity among the Britons. Even the British cheerleaders never give tongue to a "tiger". That is a cheer for Americans, and for excuse to get rid of a little more steam.

Strangely enough the Britons are not certain of the number of "hips" or "yips" that should be the final burst of cheering. Some say there are two, others three, whereas others claim the number should be three.

In any event, it can be taken for granted that the three-hip boys are going to be drowned out by the cheering of the two-hip boys and the yip boys and beyond the two hip signal to precede the "hooray" will be universally adopted. Then the interests of all concerned.

Would Have a Point

(Fort William Times-Journal).

A German scientist has discovered that grouchy dogs become neurotic under the strain of living humans. Gad, what a pipsqueak feeling this is an atmosphere of hydrogen-bombs, Geneva conferences and McCarthy probes! Unless of course, the professor was subtly talking about the dogs of war.

WHO PAYS FOR LIQUOR?

Dr. Brady

In twenty-two months of intership in a 400-bed hospital I saw twenty times as many cases of cirrhosis of the liver as I saw in sixteen years of private practice. Not because one hospital had more cirrhosis or requires hospitalization.

All the patients in the hospital were city, county or state charges. Most of them were alcoholics.

All the patients with cirrhosis of the liver were alcoholics. Not that alcohol itself causes cirrhosis.

All the patients, again, were in the county hospital because they were presumably destitute. They received at least as good medical and nursing care as millionaires could buy, and all free of cost to them or their relatives, if any. Of course there were usually a few patients who demanded and received special consideration. These favorites lifted me—you know how it is — so I cancelled the standing order for drinks.

They consumed a lot of hospital boss about it, the boss instructed the medical superintendent and the latter told me to cut out drinks.

I refused. Ordinarily this would have warranted firing me for insubordination or something, but the big boss didn't want to raise any odor, so superintendent just countermanded my order for me, and I timed of the game and transferred my interest to more things—notably to lovelier thing that ever wore a pink and white uniform.

As stated in yesterday's talk, medical authorities now believe it is not alcohol directly, but the habitual nutritional deficiency of the inebriate's usual diet. Because the ready drinker gets enough calories from alcohol to carry him or her along maybe for ten or fifteen years before the wreck, the daily intake of B-vitamins and protein is far below the minimum requirement.

The boss has little or no appetite for good food. Or it may well be that he or she spends so much for liquor that the cost of real food is prohibitive.

At the institutes in the county hospital didn't pay for care and treatment, who did pay for it?

You did.

No matter whether you call yourself a taxpayer or not, you pay your share for the hospitals, courts, prisons, jails and numerous other public services which the consumption of liquor entails.

The annual cost of these institutions and many others constitutes a large part of the tax burden.

That's all I have to say about liquor except that the cost of liquor in dollars is insignificant in comparison with its cost in decency, love and happiness.

Think about these things when you are paying rent or taxes.

BEAUTY

Little do we realize the power of beauty in our lives. Suppose there were no color in nature. What a drab outlook it would be. No green grass, no colorful leaves, shrubs, flowers, sky, nor bird plumage. So strongly does beauty influence the lives of us that all homes, books, publications, are all planned so as to present the most beautiful appearance to the eye.

The child is early influenced by the color combinations. I love to see the jackets on most of my books in my library for I like the colorful designs. There is a world of beauty in every, oriental rug, even in the saddle bags. And how full of color and design are the rugs that the Indians weave. How we are enamored by every variety of beauty.

The fine bindings of books have always fascinated me—designs of many colors, with gold lettering and of the leather. So many of them great works of art, into which the book binder put much of himself, before submitting the result of the book itself. You can't dress a great book in a binding too beautiful. A beautiful cover is like a beautiful gown, in a beautiful face, no matter what its formation.

Automobile makers are constantly trying to make their cars more beautiful in appearance. They know that beauty has a strong selling effect on the public. Another once said that you could not make a church too beautiful. Yes, for Worship itself is a thing of beauty. Into the rainbow God placed every primary color so that we might scatter them abroad into endless examples of beauty.

During the Springtime, when the year is in its youth, there is a budding and flowering of color everywhere. It is an inspiring time for everyone earth is a great garden and we who are able to appreciate it are its virtual owners. Let us never have put out there to help but live beautiful lives!

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

SIN IS BONDAGE

Cicero in one of his writings warns men against giving themselves over to sensuality: for if you do, he says you will find yourself unable to think of anything else. But Jesus said, "Blessed are is the pure in heart for they shall see God."

Cicero advocated morality; Jesus set forth religion. The great Roman statesman knew what they should not do: Jesus told men what they should do, and he provided this reward, that if purity characterized their thoughts and lives, they would see God.

Sin is and always has been bondage. The people who sin think they are free, but they are slaves. No matter what the sin may be, once it gets into our lives it begins exercising over us a real and persistent domination. People who love money seem never able to get away from this love. People of bad temper are constantly making fools of themselves and raising up enemies whom they cannot control their tongues. The drinking or gets to the place where he cannot control his appetite, and he is a slave to drink. Yes, we see a man lying in the gutter, or read of his suicide, and we know that being someone, we can see that sin is bondage.

But all that may begin in lives as normal as our own. Morality is bondage enough but sin is that bondage; only religion can do it.

Snap Election May Be Called Says Oliver

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said Thursday night there may be a provincial election this fall and suggested Premier Frost might try to win a snap verdict before "the people realize the magnitude of the sins of omission and commission upon them."

Speaking to a meeting of the Toronto-High Park Liberal Association, he said the Ontario Liberals will have a reform platform for that election when it comes.

He described the municipal taxation record as bad and said the municipalities were starved by the puny grants obtained.

"We will give a charter of liberation to municipalities, giving them rights in their own households," he said.

Referring to highways, he said serious consideration should be given to contract types let and to whom they are awarded. No large contractor should be allowed to bid on small contracts such as constructing culverts.

SHOULD ALLOW BIDDING

This is work which they subcontract, said the Liberal leader. Smaller companies should be allowed to grow and, when larger, be allowed to bid on larger contracts.

Mr. Oliver said present highway department investigation covered only 1950 and one division. He suggested 1949, 1951 and 1952 saw the same conditions prevalent and there was no reason to believe conditions at Fort William would not be found in other divisions.

"We are only starting on this investigation," said Mr. Oliver.

"I can and probably will, suggest other departments to be investigated," said Mr. Oliver.

British Crews Suspend Strike For Two Days

PLYMOUTH (Reuters)—British train crews Thursday suspended a strike to bring 15,000 relatives of Commonwealth war dead to the unveiling here by Princess Margaret of a memorial to men killed at sea.

The railroaders passed special trains bringing people to the ceremony on Plymouth Hoe.

Princess Margaret travelled on a line not affected by the strike of an overnight journey from London.

The new memorial, overlooking the English channel is for naval dead of the Commonwealth in the Second World War.

First Phase Of Polio Tests Said Success

NEW YORK (AP)—The first phase of the country-wide polio tests is over—and pronounced a success.

Dr Hart E Van Riper, medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, said 644,138 children in 44 states have received the first of a series of three injections.

"Except for a few scattered reports still due, this is about the total number of children that will be injected," he said.

More than half the children already have received their second shots, with administration of the final third inoculation to begin the week of May 31. It is spaced four weeks after the second.

All records will be forwarded to the poliomyelitis vaccine evaluation centre at the University of Michigan. Its report early next year is expected to show the degree of effectiveness of the new vaccin.

159 Wounded Now Evacuated From Fortress

HANOI (AP) — The French command says it has evacuated 159 wounded from the captured Indo-China fortress of Dien Bien Phu, and hopes to fly out 100 more today.

Helicopters and Beaver aircraft are making the slow but steady shuttle from Dien Bien Phu to the royal Laotian capital of Luangprabang, where the wounded are relayed to Hanoi.

The evacuation was slowed Thursday night by violent monsoon rains which made flying impossible for several hours. As a result, only 20 were flown out Thursday instead of the scheduled 120.

A high command spokesman today said there still is no word about Dien Bien Phu's lone French nurse, Genevieve de Galard Terrabe. He said all that is known of rebel plans to release her was the announcement to that effect by a Communist spokesman Wednesday at the Geneva conference.

Newly arrived casualties from Dien Bien Phu say Miss de Gallard has been "with our wounded working day and night".

Her friends in Hanoi believe the nurse will stay on until the last of the wounded is evacuated. The Communist Vietminh rebels have indicated they will permit release of 753 wounded.

LOUIS WARNED

KIRKENES (Reuters)—The last of seven Norwegians accused of spying for Russia was sentenced Thursday to prison for eight months on espionage charges. Four of five other men earlier were given sentences ranging from two to four years. The fifth was acquitted.

Honor Student At 14 Wins Spelling Bee

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Cashore, a tall, handsome boy who refused to be flattered by a bevy of tongue-twisters, walked off with the national spelling bee championship Thursday.

The 14-year-old eighth grade honor student from St. Helena's School, Center Square, Pa., outspelled 26 slightly sensational orthographers and wound up with the $300 first prize.

After it was all over, William admitted that there were "a lot of them I couldn't spell," but that, lucky for him, those words went to other contestants.

The payoff word was "uncinated," which tripped William Kelley, an 11-year-old Fort Deering, Me. after six hours of rugged spelling.

Young Kelley spelled it "uninated," and Cashore, under the rules, was required to tackle it and then spell the next word correctly. He whipped right on through "uncinated" and "transept."

Afterwards, young Cashore told reporters he had never heard the word "uncinated," before but "I guess I guessed right." He said he was well acquainted with "transept."

Those words, incidentally mean: Uncinated—hooked, bent at the end like a hook.

Transept—one of the lateral members or projections between the nave and choir of a cruciform church.

Kelley wound up with $300 for second prize, while Patricia Brown, 14, Birmingham, Ala., collected $100 for third prize. She missed "miscible," spelling it the way you would think it was spelled, "missible."

Set Up Station

QUEBEC (CP)—A 19-year-old youth, who read news reports and commercials and played record requests for neighbors over a two-watt radio transmitter set up in a backyard shed, was charged Thursday with operating a radio station without a permit.

Judge Lactare Roy reserved decision until June 1 on the charge brought by the transport department against Jean Claude Picard after a neighbor complained the station was interfering with his television set.

Picard testified he set up "station CJCP" along with some friends to amuse himself and "to get used to talking before a microphone," play reading the advertisements in the newspapers."

Ability of Wonder Drugs in TB Cases Overrated

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Significance of the ability of TB germs to learn to "roll with the punches" of anti-tuberculosis wonder drugs has been over-rated, a new study conducted for the U. S. public health service revealed Thursday.

Results of the study, involving almost 600 patients from five of 22 participating hospitals, point "fairly clearly to the conclusion that bacterial resistance has been causing (to doctors) greater concern than it merits," declared Dr. Sumner S. Cohen, director of Glen Lake Sanatorium, Oak Terrace, Minn., one of the participating institutions.

His report—perhaps the most encouraging yet made on a subject that has worried doctors ever since effective drug treatments for TB first started to become available a decade ago—was made at the anniversary meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association.

Dr. Cohen declared evidence of persistance of such resistant germs showed up, for the most part, only in TB cases of long duration and far-advanced lung damage.

TV NEWS

by Gene Hitchon

I still remember the big ads in the American magazines just after the war that shouted in large letters: Now, at last, a big TEN INCH television screen.

The Federal Communications Commission in the States thought that television should be restricted to the few and that only a few stations could be supported in each district. So they set aside only 11 channels, numbers 2 to 13.

They've certainly come a long way in six years. No one makes a screen smaller than 17 inches these days and 21 new channels numbers 14 to 83 are being opened up. They are the new ones called UHF, or Ultra High Frequency.

It used to be thought that big screens needed a big room, but that idea has been changed. Now, in the average room of seven by eight feet was brought possible a few years ago. I've seen some of our residence 21-inch sets beautifully set off in a cozy home study.

To get the right idea of what you'll get for your money, it is a good practice to watch the TV set you're thinking of buying from the same distance back as you'll be watching it at home.

If you've been toying with the idea of TV, you'll be glad to know that with no obligation to buy, a TV set of your own set will suit your home and budget best. The new 1954 Electrohome, with their luminized picture tube, clarity of picture, and Delcraft furniture cabinets have arrived at Hitchon Radio and Television.

VOLLICK — McTERNAN

McTernan and the late Michael J. McTernan, to Maurice Russell Vollick of Belleville, also of Point Anne, son of Mrs. A. Vollick and the late Mr. C. A. R. Vollick. The Rev. Father J. A. Buckley officiated.

The bride was attractively attired, in a waltz-length gown of white lace, and satin, featuring a yedingote of lace with appliqued pleated tulle accented by a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves long close-fitting sleeves ending in points over the hands. She wore a finger-tip veil and matching headdress, and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses. White satin slippers completed her ensemble.

'Topic At Pine Grove W.I.

Pine Grove Women's Institute met for its regular monthly meeting at Mrs. R. Vanderwater's home, with the president, Mrs. G. Bartindale presiding, and a good attendance of members.

Everyone was happy to welcome a former member, Mrs. W. Rodgers and Miss Alice Rodgers.

The programs for the new year were distributed and copies of the Hand Book revisions to those serving Hand Books. It was decided to send for the Canadian Association of Consumers monthly bulletins. A donation was voted to the Salvation Army, and it was decided to again conduct a canvass for the National Institute for the Blind in September or October.

Mrs. Campbell, district director, reported on the district executive meeting held in Belleville earlier in the month.

Mrs. A. Tanner was elected delegate to the district annual convention which is to be held in the White Rose Inn, Picton.

Pine Grove's choice of extension service for this year is "Christian Heroes: Then and Now."

Large envelopes are to be purchased for each of the standing committee convenors to use for their material and to be handed on from year to year.

The Citizenship convenor, Mrs. F. Campbell, took charge of the program. Mrs. F. Pinkie gave the "Current Events," and Mrs. B. Kuglin favored with a piano solo.

GUEST SPEAKER

After a short reading on "Citizenship," Mrs. Campbell introduced the guest speaker, Col. P. Vanderwater, who spoke on the topic of the meeting, "Citizenship." "We live too close to the present to appreciate what citizenship is a country like Canada means. If we refer to history we find that Canada is only about 150 years old. Their living conditions were quite different. Only forty years ago automobiles were a rarity. Time and space are not the factor now that they were then. Hundreds of millions of people in the world would like to have the citizenship which we enjoy. We have many freedoms, for example, of thought, of religion, and of speech.

"In all, three levels of government, federal, provincial and municipal, the rights of the individual must be respected.

"We govern ourselves. However, the whole weakness of the situation is that we don't pay enough attention to party conventions. Many of these are critical, which doesn't help the matter. We seem to be losing our pioneer spirit. Everyone wants a sense of security, and governments seem to want people dependent on them."

In conclusion the speaker said: "We must have a faith and hope in the future, which will give a faith and hope to eternity.

Appreciation of the group was voiced by Mrs. F. Campbell.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served and a social half-hour enjoyed.

The June meeting will be held in the evening on Wednesday, June 16, at Mrs. A. Tanner's home at which Mrs. H. Detlor will report on the Guelph Provincial Conference.

Ladies' Society B.L.F.E. Holds Successful 'Tulip Tea'

Multi-colored tulips formed the floral theme yesterday afternoon in the Y.M.C.A. for the "Tulip Tea" sponsored by the Ladies' Society of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, which was well attended by patrons and friends.

Mrs. D. Brown, the president, received the guests, and cordially welcomed them into an atmosphere redolent with perfume and a happy get-together, while Mrs. R. Turner and Mrs. J. McCormick were busy selling raffle tickets.

PRETTY TEA TABLE

The tea table was prettily arranged with a delicate Scotch lace cloth centred with tulips in mauve, red, rose, yellow, white and dark maroon rising from a crystal holder, with a circle of tulip buds adorning its base. Octagul little serviettes with blue borders, and other tiny blue flowers also added a pretty spring note, as did the little guest tables with their white cloths and centres of pansies.

Presiding at the silver services were: Mrs. G. Hammett and Mrs. W. Gray; Mrs. W. Adams and Mrs. W. Fairbairn.

Those who served were: Mrs. N. Fitzgerald, Mrs. G. Greer, Mrs. J. Milligan, Mrs. H. Trapnell, Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. B. Robinson, Mrs. G. Frederick and Mrs. W. Short. Assisting in the kitchen, Mrs. S. Robinson, Mrs. J. Laney and Mrs. D. Eves.

DELICIOUS CONFECTIONS

The homecooking table had a fine assortment of delicious confections: large white snowball-drenched in shredded coconut; chocolate cake with mounds of soft icing; taffy tarts; many cookies of several kinds; chocker-board short breads.. nut-sprinkled chocolate cakes; custard; lemon, apple, and raspberry pies; fruited tea buns; golden brown and biscuit; brownies; coconut cup cakes; date loaves; cup cakes with ornamental roses in soft icing; canned peaches; tomatoes and raspberries. Mrs. J. Kingston and Mrs. A. Wales in charge of these.

A superior angel cake, cream iced and decorated with silver dots in ornamental rosebuds sat in state, under the careful observance of Mrs. H. Fisher. This was won by Mrs. Wesley Gray, of Dundas Street east.

A number of prizes, Mrs. L. Brisbin and Mrs. W. Spring merit a hearty "thank-you" for a fine tea, which they served, so efficiently, as do also those behind the scenes who contributed the gave of their time to make it so.

Canadian Designers Plan Greater Recognition in Field

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian designers of women's clothes plan to bid for greater recognition in the field of milady's fashions.

Six designers meeting here discussed plans to form what may turn out to be the nucleus of a haute couture fashion centre. Aim of the group will be to agree on distinctive Canadian styles that will attract a national and international clientele.

The conference included Paris-born Raoul-Jean Fouve who has designed in Canada for 32 years and who styled the gown worn by the wife of Prime Minister St. Laurent at the Coronation; Marcel Martel, veteran Montreal designer, and Marcel Pruce, a former assistant to Jacques Fath of Paris.

COMBINED TALENT

Also in the group were France Pare, who designed a skirt for the Queen when she visited Canada, and dozens of designer who was trained at the Chambre Syndicale de la Couture Parisienne in Paris. Mrs. Robert Newsom, Robert Niewsit, a Czech couturier who now makes his home here.

"I feel we can achieve more as a group than by working individually," said Jean Fouve. "We should designers have to go outside the country for recognition? If we are united we should be strong enough to make our presence felt in establishing a Canadian couture."

One objective of the proposed association is a fashion show in the near future. Aim of this and future shows would be to attract customers from Canada and other countries.

Membership in the new organization would be limited to persons making their living as designers. A committee will be established to maintain high standards within the association.

AND FUSSY DESIGNERS

Paris-born Mr. de Montjoye said he feels the association would help young designers trying to become established. He 'himself' came to Canada four years ago and worked with Mr. Fouve before going into business for himself in 1952.

France Davies, who was born in Paris, also worked with Mr. Fouve before opening her own salon in 1950. Miss Davies' greatest triumph as a designer came when the town of Longueuil, Que., asked her to make a skirt for them to present to the Queen, then Princess Elizabeth, when she visited Canada.

The skirt was accepted by the Queen and later a copy was exhibited by the Canadian government at Rockefeller Centre in New York.

50 Friends, Relatives Honor Young Couple

A presentation was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Reid, Front Rd., when about 50 friends and relatives gathered to honor Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Elliott (nee Audrey Purdy) with gifts.

Mr. W. D. Reid read the address and Audrey and Reg were presented with a lovely coffee table and lamp, for which they thanked everyone most graciously.

An enjoyable evening was spent by all.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE KEEPS REMINDING HER HUSBAND ABOUT HIS PAST

"I, your sad a half ago to my husband, because he was acting heartless," writes a very upset wife. "I did this with the thought that it be stopped drinking. I must go back.

"A month later, I returned to the town where he was, by other friend, and from her I learned that my husband was going out with girls. He denied it and asked me to come back to him. I promised, I would, but a few days later he told me he wanted to marry another girl, and when I insisted he took me to meet her. At this time, he was drinking.

"Later that same day, he took pleased and asked to see me. He told me he loved only me, and he called the girl up and said it was all off, so he made up again. Incidentally, when he was with the girl, she told me she and my husband had been intimate. I admitted it, then, but she months later, when I asked him again, he denied it. I know that he also went with another girl during our engagement, but he went with other girls even after I came back to him this time.

"Now my husband does not drink—has not for more than a year—and he tells me that he is very much and that I should forget the past and look to the future. He says he only did what he did when he was drinking, and that now he will always be faithful to me.

"The trouble is, that I cannot forget. It all hurt me so, because I trusted him. I sometimes wonder if there have been things I did not know about, and I have no trust in him.

"I have been so upset for so long, and it has reached the point where I can't sleep or eat. Sometimes I feel very affectionate to wards my husband and then again, I'm very resentful and throw his past up to him. I feel that if I continue to do this he will leave me and start drinking again, but I don't seem to forget.

Please tell me how I can forget. If I should, or should I just leave him? I might add that we have four children."

Now why is it that this woman dwells so constantly on the unhappiness which appears to be past? The answer to this might be that she does not really want to stay with her husband, try to pick up the pieces of their married life and put them together again in as happy a pattern as possible. Down deep in her heart, she may really prefer to include him in the past she wants to put behind her.

To make up her mind on this point—whether she sincerely wants to try and rebuild their marriage or not—seems to me the first thing this woman will have to do.

And the second thing I believe she should consider very carefully is the welfare of their four children. Which does she believe to be best for them—their parents to separate and possibly remarried, or for their parents to separate and expose them to the insecurity of a broken home?

If she believes the children would be better off out of the home they now have, and if she is convinced that the father is no fit person for them to be around, then she would be justified in leaving him. But if, after examining her heart and conscience carefully, she finds herself believing that the children would be better off as they are, then she must work on herself to make the present home a happy and secure place for them to grow up in. This, of course, would make it necessary for her to establish a new relationship with her husband.

If she finds that both her own deepest desires and her concern for her children suggests that she stay with her husband, then what she should do with herself is clear. Instead of telling herself constantly that she "cannot forget," and strengthing this attitude by repeatedly throwing the past up to her husband, she should tell herself, and tell him, that she intends to believe what he says in future and until something occurs which demonstrates that it cannot be so.

Having done this, she must then ignore, so far as she possibly can, any doubts and suspicions that from their way into her mind. At first this will be hard to do, but the technique is, when she finds herself dwelling on these doubts and suspicion, to go and do something, preferably outside the home, that will shift her thinking to other things. If she will get herself some new activities and fresh interests, and put her mind on them, she will not be able to devote so much time and attention to her apprehensions. She also, she will put her mind on making the home cheerful and happy as she possibly can for her husband and her children, this, too, will help divert her mind from unhappy thoughts.

She has much to be thankful for in the fact that her husband has gone for over a year without drinking. This must represent a sincere effort on his part to make things right in his home and encouragement for it. If she will focus her attention on the assets in her life, instead of constantly holding the liabilities up in front of her so that they shut out the assets entirely, she will be far more likely to work the whole situation out.

I hope she will try.

Beauty

NEATNESS AND ORDER

Women who complain that housekeeping is a terrible bore and drudgery should keep in mind the fact that nothing so disorganizes the life of the family as disorder. Coats flung over chair backs. Ashtrays that should be emptied. Piles of newspapers and magazines strewn over the floor, Dust on the piano. Step into such a house and you are at once aware of a sense of confusion.

There's no need of being a demon housekeeper. That's bad too. The home should be a place for work and play but it should be clean and neat. Its mistress is the chief ornament and should be in a pleasing setting, the slovenly housekeeper is likely to be slovenly about her person.

A sense of order makes for a more peaceful existence. It makes one's tasks easier to perform. One rule: pick up as you go. Another: don't handle any object before. If you empty a milk bottle don't stand it on the sink. Wash it then and there, put it outside the door for he milkman to pick up.

The smart homemaker won't put unused utensils away without doing whatever mending is necessary. Then Father won't be growling because the buttons are off his pajama tops or the kids unable to find socks that are all of one piece.

If Sloppy Sally marries a man who is a bear for neatness there is bound to be discord. Such a man has pride in his home, wants it well kept. He also expects to see his wife looking fresh, trim and dainty.

Particiousness begins in the mind as do so may of the qualities which go to make up charm. Orderly living leads to orderly thinking. The thing to do is to run the home base in a business-like fashion and to maintain a regular schedule.

Attention F.D.M.—This is the second time of asking. Send us your best new name and address and stamped envelope. I have been ready to send her copies of releases containing the canned meat and mayonnaise recipes she requested.

Question: I noticed a lady wanted to know how to get lettering out of her sugar bags . . . I do from one bag and it is a time consumer. Camera is not exactly my hand in particular. Kentucky field pumpkin is the only kind I am familiar with.

CANNED PUMPKIN.

Answer: I have mailed you the recipe for the creamy oil-sour-pose mayonnaise that appeared in this column March 18. According to many readers it is one of the best recipes yet.

FRUIT SALAD DRESSING.

Don't put off that dream

Is there a cherished something you've talked about, hoped to do, planned to have "some day" for long? Don't, please don't put it off too long, warns J. P. McEvoy in June Reader's Digest.

Here is his true, if sad, story of a couple who were so practical that they made the fatal mistake of putting off living until it was too late.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHEAM

HUSBAND SHOULD NOT ACCEPT INVITATIONS "ON HIS OWN"

Dear Mrs. Beecheam:

My husband and I would like to have you decide a discussion—it might really be an "argument"—We have. He quite often accepts an invitation for himself and me. I don't like this at all. I think that the hostess should get in touch with me and issue the invitation to me. My husband insists it's too fussy about this and that it's ridiculous to stand on such ceremony with friends. I think our friends should "know better" —and that, if they don't, my husband should tactfully make it clear to them that I'm the one to be given the invitations. What say you, Mrs. Beecheam? — L.C.U.

I agree with you. It's not at all right that for a husband to accept invitations for his wife. . . it's the wife who should be given the privilege of accepting. This is simply standing on courtesy . . . not necessarily standing on economy. Your husband may very easily say, "How kind of you to invite us. We'd be delighted to come unless Lucy (or 'my wife') has made an engagement for us since I left this morning. Will Katherine (or 'your wife') be kind as to telephone to her tomorrow morning, and she'll tell her!"

"THE BRIDE'S MOTHER RECEIVES"

Dear Mrs. Beecheam:

I'm the mother of the prospective bridegroom, and I'm perplexed by a special question concerning the receiving-line. Aren't the bride and bridegroom, as well as the bride's mother, supposed to be in the receiving-line? If so, why is it so often said, "The bride's mother receives"?

The bride's mother is hostess, . . . and therefore she is the first guest (receiver) her guests.

WHICH NAME ON THE ENVELOPE

Dear Mrs. Beecheam:

The other day I had-to write to a woman whom I know very slightly. I have known her as Roberta Robinson (let's say, for these are the initials of her name) and I know that she is married. I hesitated as to whether to address the envelope to "Mrs. Roberta Robinson" or to "Mrs. H. Robinson." In this circumstance, which would you have done, Mrs. Beecheam? — W.M.

I would have addressed the envelope to "Mrs. R. Robinson" . . . I would judge that she would prefer this rather than her first name after "Mrs."

COURTEOUS GESTURE MISINTERPRETED

Dear Mrs. Beecheam:

I'm a man unmarried, and I work in an office with quite a few co-workers, men and women, some married, some not. I went on a 2-week vacation which included Easter week in Bermuda. I sent everyone in the office one of the handsome postcards of the famous Easter lilies. I wrote on each card "Best wishes" and signed my name. One of the married women told me that her husband was "furious" that I sent a card to her and not to him. Was I so discourteous about this?

Dave

No sir! Since as I judge, all the cards were sent to the office, and as you say, all the same "scene" all of such im-

Service Officer Of Legion Says Press Is Right

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of the Commons veterans affairs committee argued Thursday over interpretation by The Canadian Press of a Canadian Legion brief submitted to the committee Wednesday.

The CP story said: "The Canadian Legion today charged the Canadian pension commission with o' them.

"I had my first berth as a skipper when I was 20. I've had several barges since then and the Kitty is pretty as any. Not so big as some, the big 'uns go well over 200 tons, but plenty for an old man and a boy to handle.

"In her young days my wife used to sail with me in the summer," Ebbie continued. "Now her sailing days are over—she's been an invalid for 30 years.

tax administration."

Donald M. Thompson, chief service officer, Canadian Legion, said Thursday night in an interview "that from the information we have that is an accurate outline of the legion's position."

The legion brief cited seven cases of commission "failure to search records, failure to assess property evidence on file, administrative error and unjust presumption being drawn against (pension) applicants."

SAYS MISUNDERSTOOD

Walter Tucker (L — Rosthern), committee chairman, said at the start of Thursday's sitting: "I think every member of the committee would agree that the press misunderstood the brief of the legion."

He said the legion had brought forward the cases not as an indictation of general laxity on the part of the commission but to substantiate its claim that pensions, when granted, should be made retroactive to date of application.

The CP story quoted Dr. C. B. Lumsden, legion president, as saying that the number of cases was small compared to the total number of pension claims handled by the commission.

A. J. Brooks (PC—Royal) told Mr. Tucker: "... I would rather think you have misunderstood, too, the brief for the legion."

ARGUED AGAINST DELETION

He said the legion was arguing against deletion of sections in the Pension Act which would reduce the maximum period for making pensions retroactive to 12 months from three years.

"I do not think we should minimize it (the legion brief) by saying there were only seven cases quoted here. As I understood the evidence yesterday, the witness giving evidence did not know how many more cases there were."

Frank Enfield (L—York-Scarborough): "He did not say that."

Mr. Brooks: "I remember him saying there were only 11 (other) cases that he had with him and he said there were a great many which did not come to their attention at all . . . I do not think this committee should try to correct the press."

All were charged with conspiring to advocate the overthrow of the government by force and violence.

Skipper on Sailing Barge All Life But Never Tasted Strong Drink

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP) — Ebenezer Shrubsall is a sailor with a difference. Never in his life has he tasted strong drink—or coffee, tea or cocoa.

Ebbie is skipper of the Kitty, one of the last sailing ships to trade in British waters. Properly called a spritsail barge, the Kitty is a sea-going ship with all the grace of the days of the windjammer.

More than a thousand sailing barges once plied between the Thames river and Britain's coastal ports. Now only five are left. They too will go to the breaker's yard as their skippers die.

Ebbie told his story as he steered the Kitty down the Thames bound for Dawrich on the east coast with 100 tons of maize. John Burford, mate, deckhand and ship's cook all rolled into one, stood in the bows, tending the fore sail and keeping watch for other shipping.

"I started when I was 12 as mate to my old father," Ebbie said. "His father was a sailorman too. Now I'm 68 so that makes 54 years afloat.

COMPETITION TOO MUCH

"Not so many years ago probably a hundred barges would be going down the estuary on this side. Today we might see a couple —and we might not. Too much competition from the motor barges.

"The trouble is that these days everybody wants everything in a flaming hurry.

"We might get around to Ipswich for instance in a couple of days, given a fair wind. On the other hand, if the wind stays around in the east, we might take a fortnight. And if we do, there won't be much money in it for Ebbie.

"We get paid by the cargo. Half the freight money goes to the barge owners and half to me and my mate. Fair wind and a quick voyage and we're in the money. Foul wind and a long drag and we don't get much butter on our bread.

DOESN'T SMOKE, DRINK

"Still, I don't smoke and I only drink water so I get by all right. I reckon my only vice is chocolate biscuits—I can always eat a few

For Repainting Surfaces in Reasonable Condition Use TITAN WHITE*

A wonderful new warm white with extra Titanium content, giving it greater hiding power. Brushed smoothly over all but unpainted or badly weathered surfaces according to directions, just one coat of Titan White has an opaqueness equalling two coats of ordinary paint, saving you 50% of the work of repainting. By carefully controlled 'chalking' Titan White retains its gleaming whiteness season after season, allowing minute particles of the paint film to chalk away, taking with them accumulated surface dirt and grime.

For New or Badly Weathered Surfaces Use . . .
High Standard House Paint TWO-COAT SYSTEM

For new wood and painted surfaces in poor condition, whether brick, concrete or stucco, this 2-coat system provides beauty plus complete scientific protection. By means of 'Controlled Penetration' specially compounded oils in High Standard 260 Primer seal all porous surfaces, penetrating the immediate sub-surface just far enough to ensure firmness of the prime coat. Enough oil is left on the surface to form a tough, elastic film, providing an ideal foundation for a finish coat of Titan White or Lowe Brothers' High Standard Exterior Paint.

Three Charged With Beating Man, Stealing $16,000

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—A man and two teen-agers, one of them a son of the victim, were charged Thursday with beating an elderly candy store owner and robbing him of $16,000.

The two youths were flushed out of the woods at St. Peters, 30 miles from here, by an RCMP police dog and officers later found some of the money in the area.

Taxi-driver James Rahey, 39, the third person charged with robbery and violence, was arrested shortly after and police said he carried $700.

No pleas were entered by Rahey, William Banfield, 17, or Gerry Flander, 16, son of 70-year-old Clarence Flander who was found badly beaten on the floor of his downtown shop Thursday night.

He remained in an oxygen tent in hospital and doctors said he was badly cut about the head.

Two Seamen Are Convicted

MONTREAL (CP)—Two of 26 British seamen convicted and sentenced Tuesday on charges of failing to obey their captains orders, Thursday were freed on bail of $300 each. They were given their freedom when their lawyer, Marcel Gabourg, gave formal notice of plans to appeal the sentences of the men.

Released were Bernard Lafferty of the freighter Shelldrake and Ronald Barker of the freighter Cibou.

Eighteen men from the Shelldrake were sentenced to 21 days each in jail. The same number of men from the Cibou were sentenced to 15 days in jail and fined six days' pay.

The men were arrested after they went on strike for higher wages. They claimed they could not live on British wages while working the Canadian coastal trade in British ships.

HOPES AT END

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier Thursday expressed hope that employee layoffs by the CNR are at an end. He told the Commons that there have been 600 layoffs by the government-owned railway since he reported in February that 1,500 workers had been made idle.

Up to the time of the supreme court ruling, stories of segregation in the U.S. were effective Communist propaganda.

Belleville Man's Trial Postponed On Fraud Charges

TORONTO (CP)—Officials of the Ontario securities commission said Thursday night the trial of James Dolan, Belleville mining stock promoter facing two fraud charges, has been put over to June 29 to give the crown time to locate a key witness.

Dolan, president of Piedmont Mines Ltd., a Quebec property, was charged in March with circulating promotional material to shareholders of the company with intent to defraud. The second charge was laid by a stockholder claiming Dolan defrauded him of $1,000.

The witness, L. Ferris Kendall-Leicester, served as consulting geologist to Piedmont Mines at the company's inception. Gordon Robertson, assistant crown attorney in Belleville, said he is probably not aware he is being sought as a witness in the case.

Contractor Named

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The United States government Thursday sued seven American citizens and seven Canadians for $50,000, charging fraud in the disposition of surplus U.S. property after the completion of the Alcan highway to Alaska in 1943.

Canadians named as defendants in the suit included William S. Tomlinson Sr., president of the Tomlinson Construction Co., Toronto.

The civil suit specified loss of $34,000 in equipment at Dawson Creek, B.C., and sought equal damages plus penalties.

Driving Tips from B. W. Buyers, Director, Ontario Safety League.

HOW TO PARK SECURELY ON A HILL!

Always use curb as extra "brake"!

- Full hand brake on hard.
- When you park facing downhill turn your wheels to the right. Facing uphill, turn wheels to left. Either way . . . if brakes fail car will wedge into curb and stop.
- If there is no curb where you park, wedge a large stone or piece of wood under one of rear wheels.
- Put gearshift in reverse when you park facing downhill. Put in low for uphill parking. Engine then acts as additional brake.

Cadillac

A General Motors Value

Where a Man is Seen at His Best!

A man has many private moods—and plays, the poets say, as many secret parts. But not when he sits at the wheel of his Cadillac and points its graceful hood at the inviting highway.

For then, to see him is to read his mind. Pride shows in his face as he steps on the throttle and takes the powerful engine through its paces.

He is relaxed and at ease—for his driving is as effortless and as enjoyable as human skill and ingenuity can make it.

Confidence shows in his bearing—for he knows that he will be recognized as a member of the world's most distinguished motoring fraternity. And he is gracious—halting for pedestrians, and to permit his fellow motorists to make their turns.

Yes, a man's mood is obvious at the wheel of his Cadillac. And it's one of his finest moods, and reveals him at his best.

Have you considered letting a Cadillac make its great contribution to you? Your dealer is waiting to show you how economically it can be arranged.

Sunday School Lesson:

One Man Can Try

By Roy L. Smith

There is an old story to the effect that in the midst of one of England's greatest crises Baron Rothschild proposed to throw his vast fortune into the breach in an effort to save the country. A friend, fearful that the good man might lose everything, said, "But one man can't save England"; to which Rothschild replied, "One man can try."

The pressure of modern life upon the individual is terrific. Majorities, public opinion polls, mass advertising, mob hysteria, and a thousand collective forces are aimed to crush the individual and reduce him to submission. In the face of this sinister thing the individual should be reminded again and again that "one man can try."

A Man in the Kingdom

The king of Syria, warring against little Israel, found himself outwitted again and again. His cleverest stratagems turned out badly, and his most carefully conceived plans were rendered futile. The only explanation he could find for the situation was that there was some traitor in his midst who was revealing his cunning to the Israelites, and thus warning them.

The explanation, however, was even simpler than that. There was a godly man inside Israel who had an uncanny way of knowing what the Syrians were up to. Being a man of God he believed that his knowledge was divinely communicated. Whatever the means may have been, the outcome disclosed the fact that this single prophet was worth more to the defense of the land than all the rest of the army. One man, trying, saved the nation.

Defended From within

Cardinal Mercier of Belgium, during World War I, was worth as much to the harried Belgians and became more of a problem to the conquering Germans, than many regiments in the field. In World War II similar figures, churchmen, in Norway, Bulgaria, Hungary, Holland, Poland arose to become towers of strength to their people and stumbling blocks to their enemies. Yet they never held a gun in their hands.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for May 30: "ELISHA REVEALS SPIRITUAL RESOURCES," II Kings 4:8-37; 6:8-23.

History will record that Winston Churchill, during England's blackest hour, defended Britain with a strength that was equal to the might of the German army, navy, and air force combined. Benito Juarez left something of the same glorious record in Mexico, as did also the beloved priest Father Hidago.

Not All Battles on Battlefields

During the period of World War I Lloyd George declared that England was more seriously disgraced by a London slum than by a defeated regiment on the battlefield. The English flag flying over the defeated regiment might be honoring men who had given the last full measure of devotion, but that same flag flying over a slum symbolized the indifference of Britain to the sufferings of her own people.

A woman like Jane Addams, giving her life for the redemption of Chicago's slum dwellers, and Jacob Ellis Riis laying out his life in behalf of the underprivileged of New York City are as worthy of honor as any who have been awarded the Congressional medal for conspicuous bravery on the battlefield.

Who is to say that some soldier on the battlefield has done more in defense of the United States of America than has the beloved and scholarly Father John Ryan, the great Roman Catholic apostle of Justice? And Rabbi Stephen Wise or Rabbi Silver, both inspiring representatives of Judaism, would echo that praise undoubtedly if they had opportunity, as would many a Protestant.

Every victorious army, and every progressive nation, consists of a multitude of individual men who are trying to the limit of their ability.

Costello's Coalition Party Will Push Agricultural Program on Assuming Power

DUBLIN (CP) — Associates of John A. Costello said today that the coalition leader will give top priority to improvement and modernization of agriculture when he takes over as premier of the Republic of Ireland.

Costello's control of the government was assured Thursday night when final returns from Tuesday's general election gave the group of parties headed by him a majority in the new Dail (parliament). Outgoing premier Eamon de Valera conceded that his Fianna Fail (men of destiny) party was defeated and the opposition could form a new government.

The legislature is scheduled to convene June 2.

While plans for formation of the government still are in an early stage, a friend of Costello said the Fine Gael (united Ireland) party chief believes the future of the republic lies in developing her 'only major asset — 12,000,000 acres of arable land.

LAND NEGLECTED

Through the years this most essential element of the economy has been neglected. The land now is being tilled only at 60 per cent capacity. Costello will try to change that—a policy U.S. economic aid experts also have urged the republic to follow.

With three seats still to be decided at by-elections next week, Tuesday's voting gave the parties this representation in the 147-seat Dail:

Fianna Fail 64, Independents 5, Coalition parties 75. These include Fine Gael 49, Labor 13, Clann na Talmhan (farmers) 5, Clann na Poblachta (republicans) 3.

Fianna Fail suffered a net loss of only six seats, but it had held only a slim two-vote control in Parliament, so the loss was enough to topple it from power.

DOMINANT FIGURE

De Valera, 71 and nearly blind, has been a dominant figure in Irish politics more than 20 years. In that time Costello has been the only man to beat him, and now Costello has done it twice.

From 1948 to 1951, Costello was premier of a Coalition government that eventually was ousted by the Fianna Fail.

Economic ills are held largely responsible for the popular old leader's downfall as government chief. The cost of food essentials has jumped since the government withdrew the bulk of its food subsidies in 1952. Taxes have been increased and unemployment has mounted.

County Council Orders Audit Of Home's Finances

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Grey county council decided at a special meeting Thursday night to call off a judicial inquiry into the management of the county home and instead ordered an official audit of the home's finances.

It also ordered the dismissal of Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Gould, under suspension for almost a month, as manager and matron of the home.

The special meeting, closed to the press, was called after a petition by 27 of the 41 council members urged reconsideration of the council's decision May 7 to order a judicial inquiry.

Mr. and Mrs. Gould were suspended April 27, a few days after five employees made sworn statements about alleged misdemeanors in the management of the institution.

ORDERS DISMISSAL

A statement issued after the three-hour meeting said the council ordered the manager and matron dismissed "as their services no longer are required." A by-law rescinding the one by which they were appointed will be presented at the next meeting June 7.

The county solicitor was instructed to retain a firm of chartered accountants for a special audit of the home's finances and administration of the trust fund, a system whereby a portion of inmates' old age pension cheques are held in trust. The inquiry is to date back to Jan. 1, 1952.

Reeve John A. Davis of Artemesia township, chairman of the county home board of management, was given authority to sign vouchers for payment of accounts in connection with the home until a new manager and matron can be appointed.

Red China Reported Air Buildup Causes No Alarm

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red China's air command is reported to have concentrated a substantial force of jet fighters and light bombers along the mainland coast opposite Formosa, seat of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government.

That build-up apparently has been made since the Korean war's end allowed diversion of some of the air strength previously based in Manchuria for Korean operations.

The Red build-up in Chekiang province consists almost entirely of MiG-15 fighters and IL-28 twin-jet bombers, information reaching Washington indicates.

Although the redeployment of planes by the Reds is receiving attention here, there is no indication U.S. officials are unduly alarmed over prospects of an immediate move against Formosa. The redeployment appears to have been gradual, a part of a broader program which has sent even larger number of aircraft to Reds in southern China, close to the Indo-China border.

The United States still is holding fast to its policy of promising sea and air aid to head off any invasion attempt by the Reds against Formosa.

Dispatches from the Far East indicate Red air sorties over islands off the China mainland which have been seized and held by Chiang's amphibious forces, with Nationalist planes challenging these Red air movements. But there has been nothing suggesting direct invasion attempts against Formosa.

While Washington officials are reluctant to discuss details of the policy for the Formosa - China mainland area, indications are that strikes against the...small offshore islands currently held by Chiang's troops would not be considered a reason for involving U.S. ships or aircraft. Most of the island positions now held by Nationalist troops were taken after the U.S. enunciated its Formosan protection policy in 1950, at the start of the Korean war.

Roy Rogers May Not Appear on Grandstand Show

TORONTO (CP) — Cancellation of the appearance of Roy Rogers, Hollywood cowboy actor, and a revamping of the entire Canadian National Exhibition grandstand show appeared likely today after negotiations broke down with a union that has threatened to put the CNE under boycott.

CNE general manager Hiram McCallum reported from New York that he was unsuccessful in attempts to negotiate with Jack Irving, national administrator of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

The Guild and the Toronto Musicians Association, an affiliate of the American Federation of Musicians, have been locked in a jurisdictional dispute here since 300 ex-members of the AVCA joined the musicians' union local. Both sides claim their allegiance.

The AGVA has threatened to put the CNE on its unfair list, thereby preventing Rogers and his troupe from appearing. If it has to appear the same show with the musicians' group.

The exhibition will be held here Aug. 27-Sept. 11.

Richvale Wells Contaminated

TORONTO (CP) — The medical officer of health for nearby Richvale told a meeting of the East Vaughan Township Ratepayers' Association last night that the town water supply is contaminated and is a potential source of typhoid, dysentery and jaundice. ...

Dr. G. M. King said water from 120 wells on three streets has been tested at the University of Toronto and found to be polluted. He believed several hundred wells were in similar condition.

The contamination was caused by the existence of a shallow water table which serves the wells and by the failure of septic tanks to operate in the rainy season, Dr. King said.

The ratepayers voted to study a sewage disposal system for the area, to be submitted to the township council.

Ontario Public Works Dept. Survey Will Be Undertaken By Management Consultants

TORONTO (CP)—A survey of the Ontario public works department will be made, starting next week, by the management consultants firm that recently studied the Ontario highways department.

Announcing the survey Thursday, Public Works Minister Griesinger said J. D. Woods and Gordon Ltd., will look over the department's affairs in line with the policy announced by Premier Frost of reviewing the entire government administration.

(The Globe and Mail said today that the survey will likely be followed by one of the planning and development and possibly other departments. The newspaper story said highways, public works and planning and development will spend about $200,000,000 this year.

Mr. Griesinger said investigators for the firm will move into the public works department Tuesday.

OPPOSITION WELCOMES

Commenting on the announcement, Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver said: "It is apparent such a survey is needed in this as well as other departments and this firm is a qualified one and should be able to present a complete analysis."

CCF Leader Donald MacDonald said "there can be nothing but good come from an investigation of public works too."

Meanwhile, Keiso Roberts (PC—Toronto-St. Patrick), chairman of the legislature's select committee which has been investigating alleged irregularities in the highways department, said the committee will look into United States, British, and possibly German methods of dealing with contracts.

Mr. Roberts welcomed the suggestion by Roy B. Maschino, consulting engineer, that the British system be studied. Mr. Maschino told a press conference Thursday that the British system would save the department millions of dollars annually.

SUGGESTS COMMITTEE

OTTAWA (CP)—The Dominion Council of the Canadian Non-Pensioned Veterans Widows Association Thursday recommended that the government set up a permanent committee on veterans affairs, whose members could deal with the "problems most pressing to the veteran or his widow."

ARABS CLAIM ISRAEL ATTACK JORDAN TOWN

According to Arab reports, on the morning of May 9, mortar shells began falling on the village of Idilu, in the Hebron district of the holy Land, on the Arab side of the Israel-Jordan border. Troops of the Arab Legion and the police were rushed to the spot and in returning the fire from the Israeli side, reportedly killed seven Jewish soldiers. Legion is shown directing the operations of his men. Next day, May 10, another allegedly Israeli attack was reported from the village of Deir-li-Ghusun, Jordan. Above, a Jordan officer shows the body of one of the three villagers killed to Canadian observers, identified as Colonel Cadejay and Colonel Ely. The dead man was identified as Izzat Haj Abdulgader. Nicaragua Breaks Off Guatemalan Relations

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Nicaragua announced Thursday it had broken off diplomatic relations with Guatemala.

Galileo Santino Roman, the Guatemalan ambassador. The Nicaraguan note also charged the Guatemalan government had tried to aid Communist infiltration in other ways.

Nicaragua had hoped that the administration of President Jacobo Arbenz would follow "the Communist line"...of its predecessor, the note said, but the Communist attitude of the present Guatemalan government has been confirmed."

The first theologian seminary, called Alexandria, was founded in Africa and St. Augustine was one of the greatest theologians the church has ever produced. Today, in the Belgian Congo, there is only one Protestant church, called "The Church of Christ."

At a recent volunteer movement conference in Kansas in 1951, Eleanor Mondlane, of Africa, gave a message, and he said "Christianity has the answer to our problems."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was driving me downtown to buy me a new pair of shoes before my old ones had time to wear all the ways out, and she went through a red lite and a motor cycle officer blew his whistle and made her stop, and he got off his motor cycle saying, You seem to be in a big hurry, lady.

And he still had his mouth open to say some more, and ma quickly said, Officer, I want you to know you are perfectly justified in whatever action you decide to take, and if you write me out a tickit in the discharge of your duty, I'm sure it will teetch me to be more careful next time.

Well, I guess we all make little mistakes, and as long as you realize it, I'll let you off with a warning, the officer said, and ma said, Thank you, officer.

And she quick kept on going, saying, Poking his big red face at me with such a rude remark, I almost wish I had told him what I felt like telling him.

G, ma, what where you going to say to him? I said, and ma said, I was going to say, Look here, officer, before you get any more overbearing and arrogant, there are a few things that I'd like you to clearly understand. That's what I was going to say, and I was going to say, In the ferst place I'm a taxpayer and it's supose to be werking for me, so I'll ask you to kindly do your work in a polite and respectful manner, and if it's part of your work to write me out a tickit, please do so quietly and efficiently, and let that be the end of it. That's what I felt like saying, and now that I've said it I feel much better and I still haven't got a tickit, so I feel I've won with flying colors, she said.

Proving it's hellby to express yourself, no matter who dont hear you.

Minor Baseball To Operate Three Leagues

At a meeting of the Belleville Minor Baseball Association it was here last night it was decided to operate with three classifications. They are pee wee, midget, and bantam with a juvenile team travelling with the midgets until play-off time. Five pee wee, four bantam, four midget and one juvenile teams form the organization.

It was also decided that the juveniles will play their games with the midgets instead of entering an entry in the league as was done last year. Too much expense resulted from travelling and the sponsors felt they could not afford this in the cost of entering a team in the OBA playoffs too. If enough sponsors and players can be found to form a separate juvenile league, this will be done but it is very doubtful.

A motion was made that the minimum age for pee wee players this year was eight as due to the greater number of boys registered in the under-thirteen age group.

Those at last night's meeting which was held at the Kiwanis Centre also agreed to open the league during the week of June 15th with the pee wees first game scheduled on Saturday, June 19th.

The pee wee teams are: Point Anne, Goldie's Shelters, Deacons, Avon Jewellers, and the Oddfellows while bantam entries are Schwartz Cycle, Keyes Supply, and the Y's Men. The midget grouping is formed by Robb's, Houston's, Tip Top Tailors and Point Anne with Elliott Motors sponsoring the lone juvenile squad.

Soccer Gossip

Three games were played in the Eastern Ontario Football League last Saturday, Setaws by beating Peterbrough Canadian Scottish by five goals to one took over the leadership in the league standing. Curphey (2), Gandar, Medina and Mocogna were the shoe towners marksmen with Daly getting the lone counter for the visitors.

Peterborough UEW strengthened their hold on top place and also consolidated their goal average by walloping their neighbors, Peterborough Merchants seven goals to nothing. Incidentally, Hoyle with seven and Biddle with six are the league's two leading players so far in the other EOFL game played last Saturday, Kingston United defeated Kingston Koncordia five goals to three in a very keenly contested local derby game.

As this is a holiday weekend no games have been scheduled for Saturday. On Saturday eves of the local soccer fraternity will be turned toward Toronto where visiting Glasgow Rangers play an exhibition against the Ontario All Stars. The Ontario boys have quite a starry aggregation selected and should give a very good account of themselves. Amongst the names chosen is Les Medley, and old English International, who two years ago toured Canada as a member of the Tottenham Hotspur squad. He is now playing in the colors of the Red Sanders (Ulster) from Toronto. Several other ex-pro players, both from England and European countries will also be on view.

The game that will be looked forward to most by all followers of soccer is the game in Toronto on Saturday, June 5th, when Glasgow Rangers take on Chelsea of the English League in the so-called "dream game". This game will surely be a Varsity Stadium with the pride of Scotland and Ted Drake's boys from London in the drawing cards.

Only one game was played this week in the Bay of Quinte League, and in this RCAF United took over second position in the league table on goal average when they beat Bell Telephone in Belleville on Wednesday evening by four goals to one. Dolan, Ufkes, K. Jones and R. J. Jones found the target for the boys in blue whilst Carter was the lone marksman for Northern.

Last evening several soccer players turned out at the Cricket Field for the first practice session for the minors. Everybody is turning out for the juvenile entry in the Ontario Provincial championship and for the Branch 99, Canadian Legion bantam entry in the bantam group of the same competition. Regular practices are scheduled for each Thursday evening at the Cricket Field commencing at 6.30 p.m. Any youngster wishing to try out for either of these teams is asked to turn up for the practice session. Age limits are for juveniles under 16 on April 1 and for bantams under 15.

The Bay of Quinte Football Association are able to provide advance tickets from Toronto for the big game on June 5th between Glasgow Rangers and Chelsea. Any one in the district who wishes to obtain a ticket for this game should contact the secretary, Fred Jones, 52 Graham Street, or at the Northern Electric Company before May 30. No applications will be entertained after that date.

This week's tip to the budding soccer players is to keep fit.

Hamilton-Owned Colt, Collisteo, Solid Fifth Choice to Win Plate

TORONTO (CP) — If a sleek brown colt named Collisteo wins the 82th running of the Queen's Plate June 12, the city of Hamilton probably will have its noisiest celebration since the Tiger-Cat football club won the Grey Cup by beating Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1953.

Collisteo is owned by two Hamiltonians, Walter Fitzgerald and H. G. (Gerry) Burton. Even when they win a cheap claiming race, there is great cheering and shouting.

Fitzgerald and Burton have two candidates for the plate—Collisteo and Pancho. Collisteo, which won $6,660 last year, is the colt which is likely to carry their colors at Woodbine.

A LONG WAIT

The record book shows that no Hamilton horse has won the plate since 1918 when Springside captured the 50 guineas for the late George M. Hendrie. Fitzgerald and Burton nearly made it in 1947 when Burbury was second to Moldy by a half-length.

Turf critics have been almost unanimous in saying the 1953 crop of home-bred horses was the best in the history of Canadian racing. Collisteo was regarded as the most promising of the crop.

The son of the distance-running Fillisteo out of Colleen Pat had been bred by Malcolm Richardson. He was consigned to the yearling sales in 1952 and Burton and Fitzgerald bid to $3,600 before they got him.

"He was for them. Tore crib out of the box." Elated, they entered him in the Clarence Plate and the public made him a hot favorite. However, Collisteo finished fourth to Bens Bunty, Trochanter and Windina.

SUFFERS "BUCKED SHINS"

A week later when he gave the most sparkling performance of his brief career in the Victoria Stakes at five furlongs. He sprinted the distance in 58 3-5 seconds, a track record.

His display of blistering speed in that race put Collisteo in sickbay, from "bucked shins." He will return to competition for three months, and then hadn't required completely for the Plate series.

He completed the campaign by running a smashing second to Winda in an allowance race and then was fourth to King Maple, Sgt. Vince and Hi Laude in the Gendron.

Collisteo is back in top form this spring. He is quoted at 10 to 1 in the future book on the Plate and he is a solid fifth choice among the 42 colts and fillies still eligible.

ROYAL NAME

The twn of Coronation, Alta., was so named at the time of the coronation of George V in 1911.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—The greatest problem faced by any baseball manager is that of trying to superintend the after-hours activities of the group of big-spirited and talented young colts who have been entrusted to his care.

The successful manager is the one who solves this delicate problem in human relationships, who knows when to bend a little in the cases of certain athletes who can "break training" with a minimum of harm and to crack down hard on those who cannot.

The manager who is an absolute martinet, who lays down stringent rules and enforces them inflexibly against all hands, will end up with a store-headed ball club rooted in the second division. The one who tries to be buddies with his boys and puts them on their honor to keep in shape—as a certain freshman manager did some years ago —will fall flat on his face just as surely.

Granny Hamner of the Phills has no real reason to feel jovertah hurt because he discovered that his employers were having him tailed. It's better than as long as we've been around the game, and doubtless they'll be others.

USUALLY COACH'S JOB

Managers know that oh the law of averages they are going to draw a few rapscallions on their squads. They know they'll have to curb these wild spirits lest their addiction to pleasure prove contagious and cost them their jobs.

While we have long heard of clubs, usually at the manager's request, hiring private eyes to check up on their athletes in exceptional cases, the normal state is for the manager and his coaches to take care of the chores themselves. Usually one of the coaches is known privately among the players as the club's "policeman." He "gets around" when the team is on the road and makes some effort to mingle with the athletes, but is very shy as to him his value is strictly limited.

The average manager today does a certain amount of socializing, drinking, himself, and is not shocked to see certain of his players, particularly the veterans, take a cocktail or two before dinner. It is only excessive drinking, in water mains, younger players and "sneaky" late hours that he tries to guard against. The player who asks his manager for an occasional late leave usually will get it.

SCIENTIFIC METHOD

KINGS LYNN, England (CP)—Radioactive isotopes will be used to trace fish in water mains. Geiger counters then will detect any seepage from the main channel.

Birds Win Battle With Pet Monkey

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Joe and the jay birds battled it out for five hours and Joe lost.

Joe, a golden - haired South American monkey, slipped from his cage at the home of Mrs. Mae McGuyri Wednesday and swung up into a nearby tree.

The tree was loaded with bird nests—and blue jays.

Mrs. McGuyri tried to coax her pet down. Joe wouldn't come. He was getting something out of the nests.

A series of attacks by the birds forced Joe out on a limb. He tried to get back for hours but each time the screeching jays dive-bombed him. A crowd gathered.

The birds finally knocked the monkey out of the tree and the fall killed him.

Inspector Cruikshank replaces Supt. J. A. Peacock, 48, of Gehrt, Ont., who becomes officer in charge of the criminal investigation branch of "D" division, Winnipeg.

Remanded for Sentence

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—Norman Young, 22, was convicted Thursday of pointing an offensive weapon at a former sweetheart. He was remanded to May 27 for sentence.

Magistrate Siegfried Atkinson said he has doubts about Young's mental condition. Jacqueline Pilon, 18, told the court that Young came into the Pilon home April 28 without knocking and pointed a big black pistol at her.

The court was told that the girl returned two rings to Young after an argument before the incident.

Surging Cardinals Pacing National League With Tremendous Clouting

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

SOUTH HASTINGS LEAGUE!

For at least three months of the year, there are strained relations between the rood folk living in and about Shannonville, Read, Melrose, Latta and Camnitton. We don't mean by strained relations that those good sons and daughters of the rural communities stuff antiquated saute and sauies or other surplus relative material through a cream separator or a potato sieve, just that something crops up that gives all and sundry that "I-don't-trust-you-look."

Shucks, it's nothing to get in a tizzy over. That bloke in Shannonville can still borrow a hay-rake from pal Jones in Read, or Bucko in Camnitton can continue his courting of Mary Jane up around Melrose way? The Latta Ladies' Aid still hobnobs with their counterparts within the perimeter, and is well, thataway.

But when it comes to baseball—and this is the time of the year the boys and gals, old folks and kids—all take on a turtle complexion and withdraw a bit within their shells. That is when it comes to discussion.

In former years, Camnitton, Shannonville, Read, Melrose and Latta declared baseball war about this time of the year, and knockout blows were struck until the champion was declared. Feelings ran high at times and if any city slicker intervened he was liable to have his winter supply of slabwood cut off.

They take their baseball seriously, do these good people of the South Hastings League. And lookit what they've done this season. As a matter of fact, the heretofore neutral folks of Foxboro must declare themselves... This season they have a home team, and they can either get on Harry Ketchum's throbbing bandwagon with their moral and other support, or forgone well move to whatever district their favorite teams gets its dunning letters.

Yup, that's it. It is a six-team loop this year, according to friend and South Hastings president Bill Evanson of the selfstyled Shannonville Pickerels. And what's more the boys have a couple of new trophies to shoot for. One is the Doctor Bateman trophy, emblematic of the league championship and the other the Curtis trophy, which will be awarded to the team finishing on top of the loop heap at the end of the schedule. Where it is, fellas, drag it away.

Before you go, we might add the league gets under way tonight, according to the latest communique from the Shannonville headquarters of "General" Houston. Says he: —Tonight the Cannifton Sluggers entertain the boys from Read with Ed Duncan at the wheel. Out Latta way the Demorest Mustangs meet the Melrose Sodbusters, while here on the shores of the gleaming Salmon River (brother that's a 'plug' for the home town), the Shannonville Pickerels (Bessie and Bill) entertain the new entry, the Foxboro Foxes. Game times, seven p.m.

FOUR OF 'EM!

There'll be four men sittin' on a prune man's chest, Te Ho and gobble of bubble gum. Four lil tykes, who will do their best to flatten the torso and deflate the chest of one ee Yorker at the midget rassling brawl tonight in Memorial Arena. To those who have seen these small economy size of pachydermis's population, it will be a renewal of a lot of solid belly laughs. To the new fans, don't miss 'em. They are all comedy. They can flash speed, plus, walk a ring rope like a chimpanzee and are as elusive and agile as a butterfly's wing.

For the sterner part of the business, there will be those Gargantuas of gore, Hombre Montana and Fred Atkins, the rock-rib from Austrylia. Take a couple of half starved wildcats scenting a big, fat jack-rabbit and you have some idea of what will happen when these embers clash. Lou Klein and Big Bill Eakins open a highly entertaining, card.

BASEBALL!

"Carley" Alberico, of the Peterborough Petes senior baseball club, phoned yesterday to the effect the May 24 opener between the Petes and our Sodas will be an afternoon game and not a night tussle as scheduled. The game will get under way at 2.30 p.m. instead of 8.30 as first decided. Manager Carson said the Petes will probably push off for the Lindsay City somewhere around noon. Keep dark secret as to what pitcher will be given the opening scrawl. Seeing as how Oshawa is reported to be getting a U.S. college hurler in a lease and-lo contain "no American imports." Coach Vern Goyer might use his dark horse from Fractured Fibula, Arizona.

STOCKS RACE MONDAY

There will be a major sports attraction in the city on Monday, May 24, after all. Stock-car racing impresario Dick Barrowes informs us there will be the strongest card of the season here on at the Fair Grounds on the afternoon of the "24th" and he expects the most thrilling show of the season to date. There will be the special "Demolition Demonstration" as well as the thrilly-spilly regular racing events. The first heat gets under way shortly after two o'clock and one of the largest thrill-seeking crowds of the season will likely be on hand for another card of exceptional stock-car racing.

POINT ANNE PARTY

Owing to wrestling and other desk commitments we must reluctantly "pass up" the Point Anne hockey club banquet being tendered the Trent Valley champions in Ox Point this evening. We understand an appreciative management and company are giving tangible evidence of their feelings towards the boys in bringing the "becon" to Point Anne. The Point Anne banquets are justly famous and the boys should have a "Whale" of a time tonight, for Earle Anderson, Les Bradshaw, et al, are going all out to give the champions the time of their lives.

Stan Musial, Ray Jablonski Lead Hot-Hitting Redbirds; Bury Bucs Beneath Big Blast

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

Can St. Louis Cardinals keep up their tremendous hitting long enough for manager Eddie Stanky to find out if he finally has solved his pitching problems?

If they can, the tight National League pennant race may soon start coming apart at the seams.

The Cardinals arrived home from the east today, a game and a half in front of the nearest of the closely bunched contenders. On the road they won nine of 14 games, including a 17-4 runaway at Pittsburgh Thursday night.

Of even more importance to the Cards was the blossoming of Tom Poholsky as a starting pitcher. He lost a 1-0 heartbreaker in Brooklyn where he allowed only three hits, but went the distance again Thursday night against the last-place Pirates.

PITCHING QUESTION MARK

St. Louis pitching, the club's biggest question mark from the start of spring training, has left a lot to be desired. Manager Stanky has been using Harvey Haddix, Gerry Staley and Cloyd Boyer, but Poholsky closes his eyes, pulls a name out of the hat and hopes.

At one time or another everybody except Haschi, the $75,000 acquisition from the New Yankees, has been blasted. Seven times the Cardinals' rivals have scored 10 or more runs.

But while the pitching has been shaky, the hitting has been amazing. The team batting average is .285 and five of the starters are over .300, topped by Ray Jablonski at .374 and Stan Musial at .367.

Even Poholsky got into the hitting star Thursday night. He singled three times in five official times at bat, sacrificed once and drove in four runs. Musial drove in four with his 13th home run and a triple. Alex Grammas had a triple, Del Rice a pair of doubles.

No other games were played in the major leagues. The Giants were scheduled in Philadelphia but were rained out.

Major League Baseball Crowds On Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball attendance, after hitting the skids the last few years, is taking a turn for the better this season.

An Associated Press survey disclosed today that the 1954 turnstile count is up more than 400,000 over last season, with nine clubs benefitting from the renewed interest.

To date, major league teams have played before an over-all total of 3,001,324 fans as compared to 2,589,235 in a like number of home games a year ago.

Thanks to its new Baltimore entry, which already has surpassed the total paid admissions for St. Louis Browns in 1953, the American League shows a gain of better than 350,000. The Orioles, with a draw of 316,079 at home, are running 216,524 ahead of the defunct Browns.

The National League's gain is negligible—57,436—but five of its teams are up. Those on the credit side are St. Louis, 161,479, Brooklyn 45,210, New York Giants 25,213, Cincinnati 7,327 and Chicago Cubs 2,256.

The spirited play of Detroit Tigers is chiefly responsible for most of almost 15,000 in attendance over last season. Boston, Cleveland, Washington and New York Yankees all are trailing their 1953 attendance figures, with New York the biggest loser, 31,872.

'Wha-Hoppen' Once-Potent 'Bums'? Snail-Like Start Has Alton on Spot

NEW YORK (AP)—Brooklyn's snail-like start in defence of its National League crown has perplexed Dodger freshman manager Walter Alston on the spot.

A batting and fielding slump has engulfed all but a couple of Dodgers, pushing the Brooks one game out of first place, and only one game in front of the seventh-place Chicago Cubs. But for the fact that no other club has been able to put together a sizeable winning streak, the Dodgers might be much lower than their current tied-for-second position. They've won only two more games than they've lost.

When Alston succeeded Charlie Dressen as manager of the, two-time pennant-winning Dodgers he was told he was taking over one of the hardest hitting and smoothest fielding ball teams ever assembled.

NEVER DOUBTED

The front office has never doubted that the Dodgers would win with the 1954 pennant. They hired Alston to win the world series, something a Brooklyn team has never been able to do.

But the Dodger sluggers, with the exception of Duke Snider and Jackie Robinson, haven't been hitting a lick. Junior Gilliam, for instance, went hitless in 27 straight times at bat before he beat out an infield single Tuesday night. Carl Furillo is batting .220, Reese and Gilliam .250, Roy Campanella was hitting a lowly .167 before he underwent an operation two weeks ago for the removal of a chip in his left hand.

"That's the thing that's got me worried," Alston said. "Take out three or four games and we haven't had any power at all. That exceptional power I'd heard about just isn't around."

Phils' Owner Apologizes to Player For Private Detective Embarrassment

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Owner Bob Carpenter of the Philadelphia Phillies apologized Thursday for public embarrassment caused second baseman Granny Hamner by a private detective the club hired to see whether players were observing curfew rules.

He said a press luncheon he didn't blame Hamner for being angry after the player caught a private investigator following him home from the ball park. The detective was arrested Tuesday night after Hamner reported to police he was being followed.

Hamner had demanded a showdown with Carpenter over what he termed the "Gestapo tactics" of having players shadowed by detectives.

Carpenter said he accepted complete responsibility for the hiring of detectives to check on the players and that he intended to keep on making periodic checks. This had been the policy since he bought the franchise in 1946.

HIS MISTAKE

"Hamner is entirely justified in his attitude," Carpenter said. "If I were in his place I would be even more outraged than he is. It was my mistake. I hired the wrong man to do the job. I still have great confidence in Hamner. He's one of our best players."

Carpenter said the check was not instigated against Hamner, but was intended for all 25 players on the roster. "In fact, the investigator believed he was trailing a player other than Hamner."

In New York, Ford Frick, commissioner of baseball, said all major league baseball clubs at one time or another have had their players' habits investigated, but used to be quite a common practice, but I think it has been largely discontinued. It's no violation of baseball law."

Hamner, who is the second best hitter in the National League right now with a .365 average, already has felt the barbs of sharp-tongued fans and opposing bench jockeys about the incident. They let him have it Wednesday night as he went hitless in four times at bat against the Milwaukee Braves.

Canadian Horse Needs Music To Win Derby

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Blue Sail, Canada's second English Derby hope in 174 years, looks more and more like a refugee from a Hollywood film script.

Now they're saying—remember all those grade B movies?—that the Canadian-owned colt can't win the Derby unless heavy music can be heard some soothing music.

The report comes from Ireland, where stories about steeds and the supernatural go naturally together. According to the Sunday Blue Sail is a high-strung horse who is really happy only when he is listening to a good brass band.

LISTENS TO BAND

So his trainer, the story goes, takes Rhu Sail occasionally to Phoenix Park in Dublin, where the band presumably plays music that hath charms to soothe a savage beast.

The Irish report, published in at least one London paper, adds one more incredible chapter to Blue Sail's rather lurid life story.

For one thing, he has won only one race in two years—not in 15 fifth favorite, at 100-40-7, for the June 2 Derby.

The stretch - running Irish-bred colt, owned by Frank McMahon and Max Bell of Calgary, has run five races. As a two-year-old he twice ran unplaced in Ireland and then to England in October and ran a close second to Phalacorg in a mile race at Ascot.

Women Golfers Will Play British Team

TORONTO (CP)—Britain's Curtis Cup team will play an unofficial international match against a squad of Canadian women golfers at Montreal Aug. 26. It was announced here Thursday night.

The British team, composed of eight players, will arrive at Quebec City Aug. 24. After this match against the Canadian team it will fly to the United States for the Curtis Cup engagement.

The Canadian team will be picked after the two Dominion championships in Dartmouth, N.S. —the Canadian Women's Close Aug. 17 and the Open Aug. 9-14.

Bobby Riggs Still Dreams Of 'Tennis Open'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bouncing Bobby Riggs, one of the world's all-time tennis greats, is still beating the drums for his 16-year-old dream of a world open tennis tournament.

But the former U.S. Davis Cup star and professional champion, here in connection with the Jack Kramer tennis tour, says he believes it will take, at least another 14 years to convince amateur tennis moguls the open should be held.

"Amateur tennis officials in the United States are retarding the progress of the game by not having an open," said the 36-year-old Riggs in an interview.

"Why should there be discrimination against tennis pros? It would be the best thing in the world for the game and would help spur interest."

Teaming with Riggs in a formidable doubles attack in all of the open was Frank Sedgman, one of the stars of the touring pros and former stalwart of Australia's great Davis Cup squads.

Sedgman, who has announced his intention of retiring from the pro tennis circuit this fall and returning to Australia, said such an open would provide players like himself with an opportunity to take part in competitive tennis.

"As things are now, it will be about the end of competitive tennis for me when I return to Melbourne," said Sedgman.

Richmond Wins Six of Seven; Cubes Nip Ottawa

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Luke Appling, freshman manager in the International Baseball League, has hopes that his new Richmond Virginians will soon be in the midst of the pennant race in the first season.

A little over a week ago "Old Aches and Pains" had been complaining that his team lacked decent pitching, but Thursday night the Virginians racked up their sixth victory in their last seven games by defeating Syracuse Chiefs 9-2.

The victory moved the Virginians to within one game of sixth place and six out of first. However, the league-leading Havana Cuban Sugar Kings trounced Ottawa Athletics 7-2 in the final of a three-game series in the Canadian capital.

In the only other game, Rocky Nelson blasted a bases - loaded home run in the eighth inning to give Montreal Royals a 4-3 victory over Buffalo Bisons.

Buffalo picked up single tallies from Montreal in the third, fourth and sixth innings before Nelson drove Paul Foytack's second pitch in the eighth high over the centrefield fence.

Havana slammed out 11 hits off two Ottawa hurlers with Clint Hartung and Angel Scull driving out homers for the Kings.

Sport in Brief

OTTAWA (CP)—T. P. (Tommy) Gorman, owner of Connaught Park race track and one of the capital's sports kingpins, confirmed Thursday that he has offered the track for sale to Fred Gypps, owner of Toronto's Dufferin Park track.

In confirming a Toronto report in which Mr. Orpen said a decision on the offer may be made next week after the present Dufferin race meeting is over, Mr. Gorman said ownership and management of Connaught Park by Mr. Orpen could be made "a wonderful thing."

"In his position Mr. Orpen could arrange for a wonderful supply of good horses to be brought here," he said.

Mr. Gorman said suspension of thoroughbred horse racing at Montreal has made it difficult for Connaught." He declined to disclose the proposed price.

Connaught Race track is on the western outskirts of neighboring Hull, Que.

PARIS (AP)—The big four of amateur tennis—Tony Trabert and Vic Seixas of the United States and Australia's Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewall—advanced without loss of a set Thursday into the third round of the French international tennis championships.

Only one upset, the defeat of 10th-seeded Kurt Nielsen of Denmark, occurred during this prime preparatory for Wimbledon. Nielsen, runner-up to Seixas for the Wimbledon crown a year ago, fell before Paul Remy of France 8-6, 6-4, 6-3.

OTTAWA (CP)—Havana Sugar Kings Thursday were given a taste of social life in Canada's capital.

The International League baseball team were among several hundred guests at a reception held by the ambassador of Cuba, Delpalin H. Pupo y Proenza, Cabinet ministers, diplomats, government officials and others were among those received by the ambassador and his mother in the flower-decked rooms of a local hotel. There was Cuban music and dancing.

KITCHENER (CP)—Bryson F. (Spike) Kearns was re-elected president of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen of the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union Wednesday night. He told the annual meeting of the club directors that Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union will play an exhibition game here Aug. 13.

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Officials have announced that the annual Early Birds' golf tournament, which will be played here next Monday, has attracted almost 225 entries.

Outstanding golfers who have entered the tournament include Chuck Kocsis of the U.S. Walker Cup team and winner of the Michigan state open championship; Tom Draper, also from the Detroit area and winner of the Early Birds' tournament last year; and Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener.

Correlation May Be Favorite In Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — Eleven three-year-olds were a step closer Thursday for the 78th and richest of all Preakness Stakes as rain pelted sacient Pimlico and left the track resembling a one-mile oval of Maryland crab soup.

This second jewel of the Kentucky Derby-Preakness - Belmont triple crown lacks the presence of Determine, the Derby winner three weks ago, but the Maryland Jockey Club's great sophomore classic has turned into a whale of a horse race.

Correlation, the long-legged California colt, is expected to be an 8-to-5 favorite of a crowd of some 35,000 at the 5:45 p.m. EDT Saturday postime.

Hasty Road, who finished second in the Kentucky Derby, and the next four finishers are here for the Preakness with a fire over other horses.

Hasty Road is expected to be the 5-to-2 second choice.

Two others given a good chance to win are Woodvale Farm's Gramatan, and Maine Chance Farm's Jet Action—one of the new entrees to the three-year-old classics. Both are listed at 5-to-1 in the early Preakness line.

AT THE BELLE

MANY CAPTIVATING MELODIES ENHANCE CHARM OF GOLDWYN'S "HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN"

Scheduled for twenty initial recordings by top vocalists, the eight Frank Loesser numbers in Samuel Goldwyn's "Hans Christian Andersen" are being followed by a minimum of fifteen additional recordings. All of them highlight the entrancing Technicolor film entertaining large audiences at the Belle Theatre, which is continuing today and Saturday, with Danny Kaye and Farley Granger starred, lovely Jeanmaire, a new star, introduced at the delightful heroine.

MASTER TUNESMITH

Loesser, credited with words and music of the merry melodies sung by Kaye in the film, is one of the top tunesters of the day. His Academy Award winning number, "Baby It's Cold Outside", equals in popularity such previous hits as "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition", "A Bushel and a Peck", and on "A Slow Boat to China." His scores for "Guys and Dolls" and "Where's Charley?" made musical history.

Currently the Loesser numbers range from the hauntingly lovely "The Inchworm" to the swaggering gaiety of "I'm Hans Christian Andersen", from the lilting strains of "Wonderful Copenhagen" to the comedy patter of "The King's New Clothes."

"Hans Christian Andersen" stars Kaye as an eggagingly delightful hero, and Farley Granger as a peppery, temperamental ballet master whose wife understands him so therefore their actions are completely misunderstood. The production is spectacular on our huge wide screen. Regular Belle prices prevail.

AT THE McCARTHY

(Review)

Through blazing battle and historic triumph, the wise ways of a great Chief are made to prevail among the Apache Indians in Universal-International's spectacular Technicolor production of "Taza, Son of Cochise" which opened yesterday at the McCarthy Theatre. And Rock Hudson, starred in the title role is in vigorous command of the exciting sweep of events from the curtain he receives the mantle of Apache rule from the dying Cochise.

Entrusted to pursue the peace that Cochise had fought for, Hudson undertakes the tremendous challenge of rebellious members of his nation. Their plans of a bitter brother, and the ominous threat of Geronimo, who is waiting to siege the normal he receives the mantle of Apache rule from the dying Cochise.

Hudson at first successful in winning the Cavalry over to his plea that 'only' Apaches should punish Apaches. To effect this policy, a reservation police force is formed with Hudson as leader. However, when Geronimo breaks out and mobilizes the insurgent Apaches, the Apache patrol is abolished. Geronimo Rod Hudson gathers his loyal followers and rides into battle against Geronimo just as the Cavalry is about to be annihilated in a trap. With the traditions of Cochise preserved, Hudson begins a reign of peace and Geronimo is hustled off to federal prison.

The heroic tradition established by Cochise continues in a ruggedly etched and sensitive portrayal of Taza by Hudson, one of his finest performances and one that will extend his following.

Barbara Rush, as the Indian girl Oona, gives warmth and understanding to a victim of tribal hate and the object of a hero's love. Bart Roberts makes the role of Naiche, Taza's vicious brother, one of unwavering villainy. And Gregg Palmer, as the cavalry officer who trusted Taza gives an excellent role of sympathy to the story.

Director Douglas Sirk, one of Hollywood's masters at maintaining mood, gives "Taza, Son of Cochise" shading in character and subtlety in story that lifts the picture to a high level of quality. But, above all, he develops the action to its explosive climaxes set against the scenic "location" grandeur captured breathtakingly by the camera of Russell Metty.

Marine Officer Wipes Out Family Takes Own Life

JACKSONVILLE, N. C. (AP)—A hatchet-wielding marine officer virtually wiped out his family here then killed himself, took his own life, police reported.

Capt. Michael P. Carroll, stationed at nearby Camp Lejeune, brutally bludgeoned his three children and wife, then stabbed himself in the throat when a neighbor attempted to intervene, police said.

The captain's wife died about four, was killed at the couple's home at New River, a housing project in the Jacksonville area. The two daughters, aged about six and seven, died within two hours later in hospital. The wife is in critical condition with multiple head cuts.

Police have been unable to determine a motive.

MPs ASK ALLOWANCE

LONDON (Reuters)—A group of Conservative and Labor members of the Parliament Thursday put forward a motion proposing that their £1,000 salaries should be supplemented by a tax-free expense allowance of £500. The government recently rejected a recommendation that the MPs salaries be increased to £1,500 and that there be a non-contributing pension plan for them.

Rev. John Coburn, U.C. Temperance Leader, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. John Coburn, 90, retired minister of the United Church of Canada and veteran temperance leader, died today.

Dr. Coburn, who raised his voice unceasingly against the "liquor traffic," was one of the country's best-known and most-widely quoted temperance leaders.

From the time he was a young Methodist church minister shortly after the turn of the century until his retirement 50 years ago he was a stalwart supporter of total abstinence from alcoholic drink.

From 1908 to 1930 he was general secretary of the Canadian Temperance Federation.

United States-born, Dr. Coburn was a son of the late James and Annie Coburn, of Neeaah, Wis. He was educated at Victoria College and University of Toronto.

In 1933 he received an honorary doctor of divinity degree from the latter university.

ONTARIO CHARGES

He was received as a probationer in the Methodist Church of Canada in 1891 and was ordained four years later. He served several Ontario charges before being appointed field secretary of the church's board of evangelism and social work in 1907.

Five years later, when the United Church of Canada came into being, he was given the same post by that body.

During the First World War he served overseas as a chaplain with the Social Service Council of Canada, in the 201st and 176th battalions, and the 15th reserve draft.

At the Ontario provincial election of 1914 as independent temperance candidate for West Simcoe he was defeated.

ALSO AN AUTHOR

Dr. Coburn was a director of the Social Service Council of Canada, Canadian Temperance Federation and...Ontario Temperance Federation; a member of the executive committee of the Lord's Day Alliance and one-time president of the Toronto conference, United Church of Canada.

He wrote "I'll Keep Sweet Dry," an anecdotal-type book of incidents during his battle-long temperance work.

One of the book's outstanding stories is that of "the battle of Sidebars," an account of the Toronto civic election of 1909, as a result of which temperance forces were successful in having 46 of 138 bars in the city closed.

It was then that Dr. Coburn became, in the words of a contemporary in the temperance fight, "the man to see."

Dr. Coburn was a staunch believer that "liquor traffic has driven influenced Canadian and Canadians."

His widow is the former Susanna Wesley Emmerson, daughter of Joseph Emmerson. They were married in 1897 and had six children: John, Lily, Kathleen, James, Carroll and Frank.

MAYOR'S HOME BOMBED

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Police reported that a dynamite bomb ripped out a section of the wall of the residence of Mayor Robert D. Morgan Thursday night. Morgan, his wife and his two young sons, who were asleep at the time, were uninjured. The mayor blamed "gambling or prostitution interests" for the bomb. He has headed a drive to close both gambling and prostitution houses in the area.

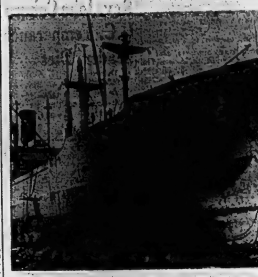
Speeding cost Ernest Gorgerat, of Princes Lake, $15 and costs and Mrs. Ada Stevens, of Ormsmes, paid $10 and costs on a similar charge.

Convicted of driving an unregistered vehicle and driving without a licence, Gerald Monoghan of Coe Hill, was fined a total of $20 and costs.

A Toronto man, Gordon McKellar, was fined $15 and costs for having liquor at a place other than his residence.

TO LANDSCAPE GROUNDS.

A project to make the Red Cross Hospital grounds a suitable setting for the modern building is being effectively dealt with by the current Board, and the regular May meeting was, almost entirely, taken up with problems of landscaping. In the absence of president Clarence Marston, vice-president Mrs. W. L. Martin, was in the chair.



E. G. Thomas reported that turfing of the large circle in front of the hospital was proceeding well and the board agreed to a proposal that flowering shrubs be purchased at a cost of $50.

The president's recommendation that a new power mower be obtained was also adopted.

Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Jack Brown undertook to arrange the purchase and planting of suitable garden flowers.

Sixty trees, collected by the Boy Scouts, have been planted at the side of the building adjacent to the river.

TRAPPED BY KOREAN ROCKY SHORE

The 8,000-ton U.S. merchant ship San Mateo Victory went aground on the rocky beach of Korea's Cheju-Do island in April, and only after a month of salvage work was the ship free enough to be towed to Nagasaki, Japan, for repair. Several holes were ripped in the ship's side and several compartments were flooded, but sufficient buoyancy was retained to float the ship. A channel had to be blasted beneath the vessel's keel before she could be dragged off the beach. Here the ship sits helpless as crew members of the salvage ships survey the situation. MARMORA

Mrs. F. Bobyk Heads H-S Association

MARMORA — Mrs. Frank Bobyk was installed as the new president of Marmora Home and School Association at the month-ly open meeting of that body, held in the Marmora public school on Wednesday evening.

Others on the slate of officers, which with a few exceptions were also present for installation were: First vice-president, Mrs. A. Lorenson; second vice-president, Mrs. T. Pearce; recording secretary, Miss M. Rosaburn; corresponding secretary, Mr. J. Szroul; treasurer, Mrs. J. Vanvolkenburg; executive, Mrs. H. Olsen, Mrs. D. F. Marsh, Mrs. L. G. McGinnis, Mrs. G. J. Melkie-john, Mrs. K. C. McKay; teacher representative, Mrs. K. Manchester.

The installation ceremony was conducted by Mrs. R. Frost, retiring president, who presided for the balance of the evening.

Reporting for the treasurer, Mrs. L. G. McGinnis, unavoidably absent, Mr. J. Trombley showed the past year to have been one of the best, financially, in the history of the association.

James Szroul followed with the corresponding secretary's report. The motion carried that $140 of the balance on hand be set aside as part payment for the swings.

Mrs. J. Heath, in her report as recording secretary, reviewed the highlights of the past year.

Attendance of aunts and grandparents was taken by Principal E. C. Prentice with honors going to Mr. J. Trombley's room.

The retiring president touched on the school picnic which will be held, as in former years, at the end of June, the actual date to be yet decided.

PRESIDENTIAL REPORT

Mrs. Frost, in her presidential report, spoke of the good work of the past year and thanked the executive and members for their fine co-operation. She also said that the two teachers who will be leaving the school staff, Mrs. J. Heath and Mr. J. Trombley, would be greatly missed at the monthly and executive meetings.

Mr. Prentice drew attention to the trip to Waterlown, N.Y., which is being planned for Grade 8 for May 28th.

The installation of officers was then carried out.

Mothers of the scholars of Grade 8 served refreshments.

Saboteurs Blast Railroad Line In Guatemala

Attempt Made to Blow Up Munitions Train, 2 Killed

GUATEMALA (AP) — Guatemala said Friday night that saboteurs have killed a rail line in an attempt to blow up a munitions train. The announcement came as the government of this Central American republic heatedly charged the United States with spreading alarmist reports about arms arriving here from iron Curtain countries.

Interior Minister August Charnaud MacDonald said the explosion occurred Wednesday, killing a civilian and a soldier and injuring three other soldiers.

The saboteurs fought a gun battle with federal troops, he said, and then fled into the hills near the Honduran border. The arms shipment, moving to Guatemala city from Puerto Barrios on the east coast, was undamaged.

(The United States state department, voicing concern over increasing Red influence in Guatemala's government, notified other Latin American governments Monday that the Swedish ship Alphelm was carrying arms from Communist Poland at Puerto Barrios. The state department said they were packed at Stettin, a former German port now in Poland.)

MACDONALD NEAR BORDER

MacDonald said he believed Guatemalan political refugees in neighboring Honduras were behind the plot. The explosion was about 30 miles from the border.

The gang placed about 22 one-pound charges but only two went off. The powder charge was not the kind the Guatemalan or most other Central American armies use, according to the minister.

The foreign minister Friday accused the U.S. of spreading "malicious and unjustified" reports about arms shipments from the Communists. The statement denied that Guatemala had received any guns made in Russia or Poland, and added that it was no concern of the U.S. if it had.

Soviet Steps Up Trade Activities In Canada

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA (CP)—The Soviet has stepped up its trade activities in Canada with the purchase of 4,000,000 pounds of surplus canned pork from private industry, it was learned Friday The price was not disclosed but is believed to be in the neighborhood of $1,500,000

At the same time the Kremlin has boosted its diplomatic forces here with the appointment of a trade counsellor, Alexander Loseichev, who arrived quietly from Moscow a few weeks ago.

Mr. Loseichev, about 40, will spend his time "building up trade" with Canada," an embassy spokesman said.

The canned pork purchase, also a previous one for $1,678,000 worth of rayon woodpulp, is making some Canadian business men take a second look at trade possibilities with the Reds.

And apparently to encourage them, Soviet and Czechoslovakian officials have been moving quietly about, talking to Canadian exporters about "all kinds of goods" they want from Canada.

"We know the Communists need consumer goods and are hard bargainers," one prominent business man said. "But you've got to remember that we're dealing with a single central body that can turn trade on and off. We're trying to see how serious the Russians are in legitimate trade."

S. A. Hay-Smith, president of the Canadian Exporters' Association, said:

"We are interested in trading with the Russians within the limits of our government control regulations."

The Western world maintains a ban on the shipment of strategic goods to the Red orbit. There has been some question in the minds of Canadian officials whether the Reds are more interested in breaking that ban and stirring up differences among Western allies than in boosting world trade.

Canadian officials have not expressed any definite opinion on Soviet trade overtures.

Grants Higher

TORONTO (CP)—Welfare Minister Goodfellow said Friday an amendment to the Charitable Institutions Act will cost the Ontario government at least $377,000 in extra charitable institutions.

The act will be proclaimed June 1. Among other increases will be a raise to 20 cents daily for each child in children's homes, twice that of last year. This increase is retroactive to Jan. 1.

Mr. Goodfellow said 44 institutions will share in the increased allowance.

LIBERALS MEET

OTTAWA (CP) — The fifth national convention of the Young Liberal Federation of Canada will be held here May 27-29, it was announced Friday night. About 335 delegates are expected.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: Sunny weather is expected today and Sunday throughout Ontario except for Kingston and eastward. There, there is rain from a general area over the lower parts of the New England states. This should move out of Ontario quickly. Temperatures in the south will be about 70 like yesterday and Sunday but from Georgian bay north they will be from 45 to 65 on Sunday. Our next rain will have to come from the low pressure area in the central States, but this is moving unusually slowly so that unsettled weather is likely for Monday.

Saturday—Sunny. Little change in temperature.

MEMBER CHARGES PEOPLE MISLED ABOUT DEFENCE

Says Radar Air-Defence Screen Does Not Exist

OTTAWA (CP)—A Progressive Conservative has accused Defence Minister Claxton of misleading Canadians about a radar air-defence screen which, he said, does not exist.

Lt.-Col. Douglas Harkness, Calgary, North, said in the Commons Friday that Canada needs an early-warning system far to the north.

Canada's present radar screen was shadowy, with gaps in certain points, and backed up by no more than three CF-100 jet squadrons, he said, "we are not entirely helpless, but we are very close to it," said Col. Harkness, a former officer overseas in the Second World War.

In other Commons Friday, the government tabled supplementary estimates totalling $411,742,728, including its latest spending program for the 1954-55 fiscal year to $4,334,065,000. The figure would be a peacetime high for expenditure.

Speaking in the second day of House study of defence estimates, Col. Harkness took issue with Mr. Claxton's statement Thursday that practice flights operating had dropped nine out of 10 attacking bombers, and that the plan for a radar and interceptor screen was 90-per-cent completed.

FALSE SECURITY

"I think the minister of national defence does no service to the Canadian people when he gives the false sense of security with regard to the radar screen which exists, or rather which does not exist, which does not exist. . . ."

Mr. Claxton replied later with an amplification of his reference to halting nine out of 10 planes in practice.

He said the figures illustrate an operational capacity and did not suggest that "if the enemy came overhead our planes could get into the air and knock down nine out of 10."

If it was a slight attack, through freezing rain which grounded defence planes, the attack would be successful. Radar-guided missiles from the ground, which could stop such an attack, had not been developed by any country yet.

The preliminary organization on defence estimates, still not complete, ended Friday with announcements for the defence of Canada.

SPIRITED EXCHANGE

The topic touched the reserve army, and produced a spirited exchange between Mr. Claxton and Conservative leader Drew over a secret report on the condition of reserves.

Mr. Drew demanded that the report be produced for the Commons. He said he had been refused detailed estimates on the reserves' air.

Mr. Claxton rejected the demand, and said he would not be prepared later what the report recommends and what action the government has taken.

The report, made by three top officers, including Gen. Charles Foulkes, Kennedy, was completed several months ago after more than a year of investigations at the request of LL-Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of the general staff.

Sergt. Thomas L. Early of Rimersz, Pa., has his temperature taken with a new electronic thermometer at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington. The device produces an accurate reading in seconds and marks the first change in thermometer science since introduction of the mercury column type in 1867. — Central Press Canadian.

Astronomers Plan Trek North To Witness Eclipse of Sun

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — A dark shadow, travelling at 3,000 miles an hour, will sweep across northeastern Ontario and Quebec at dawn June 30.

A black disc set in a pearly glow will hang in the sky, blotting out the sun. The brighter stars will appear.

The towns of White River, Hornepayne, Oba, Kapuskasing, Hearst and Coral Rapids will be plunged into semi-darkness.

And on a grassy knoll overlooking the Mississinli river 40 miles north of Kapuskasing, a team of astronomers will record a rare solar spectacle, the eclipse of the sun.

Not for 1945 has such a heavenly performance been seen in Canada. It won't take place again until 1963. In 99 seconds it will be over. But since last October a team of scientists working in the David Dunlap observatory at nearby Richmond Hill have been planning for those few minutes.

On June 10, an advance party will leave for Mattice, a small village near Kapuskasing, to set up camp being prepared for it by the local public works.

They will be joined by advance parties from two other teams, from the Dominion observatory and National Research Council in Ottawa and the Dominion astrophysical observatory at Victoria.

NO HEAD PARTY

Heading the Toronto party will be Dr. John Heard, dean of the department of astronomy of the University of Toronto and president of the Royal Astronomical Society.

Through the use of spectographs and polarigraphs, the team will record on film the composition of the chromosphere, that ruddy, flowing layer of hydrogen, helium and other gasses that surrounds the sun, the corona and the mysterious 3,000,000 - mile long "streamers" of an unknown substance.

Dr. J. B. Oke, a member of the observatory staff, said the eclipse will consist of four "contacts."

The first contact will begin over the Kapuskasing area at 6:17 a.m. EDT when the moon begins its passage between the sun and the earth. The second will be at 7:10 a.m. when the sun is completely covered by the moon. The third is at 7:12 a.m. when the sun begins to appear once more and the fourth at 8:10 a.m. when the moon moves completely away from in front of the sun.

The eclipse itself is a structure of steel, wood, telescopes and cameras, designed and built by Gerald F. Longwood, the observatory's instrument maker and an astronomer himself.

Canada Will Not Participate In Southeast Asia Coalition

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has made it clear to its allies that it does not intend to participate in a Southeast Asia pact or become involved, for the present at least, in the Indo-China war.

Officials said Friday the government believes it has extended itself as far as possible in making overseas commitments. The armed forces now are heavily committed in Europe and forces for attendance is being paid to continental defence.

It is understood here that when the 25th Canadian Brigade is eventually moved out of Korea it won't go to Hong Kong but home.

Though the government doesn't want to enter the current dispute between the United Kingdom and United States, officials say privately that the U.S. would be foolish to go ahead with a Southeast Asia pact without Britain.

Holiday, Marking Birthday of Two Queens, to Be Celebrated Monday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A double-barrelled holiday marking the birthday of two queens, May 24 will be celebrated across Canada with sports events, fireworks and family gatherings in many communities.

This is the second year in a row that Canada celebrates Queen Elizabeth's birthday at the same time as Queen Victoria's. Victoria Day for many years was observed on May 24, but under a 1952 statute Victoria Day is celebrated on the Monday immediately preceding May 24, to make a week-end holiday.

It happens that this year the Monday and May 24 are traditional May 24 date. Last year, Victoria Day and Queen Elizabeth's birthday were back-to-back on May 25 and 26, because May 24 fell on a Sunday.

It's 135 years since Queen Victoria was born—on May 24, 1819—but it's only 23 years since she died after the longest reign of any British monarch, 63 years. She succeeded to the throne in 1837 and died in 1901.

Since Victoria's death the world has seen two global conflicts followed by the Cold War and the battle in Korea and Indo-China. Victoria's uncle, William IV, once said: "It will touch every subject's heart to have a girl queen after me."

It is appropriate that the first warm weather holiday of the year be Victoria Day, because the birthday of the present queen, who has just completed her great Commonwealth tour.

Queen Elizabeth actually was born April 21, 1926, but the observance of her birthday each year in Canada is fixed each year by cabinet decision at Ottawa.

Apart from the city celebrations there will be picnics outside, the lakes and streams as collage-owners flock to their cottages and other places in shape for the summer.

The traditional fireworks display will be held in many cities. In recent years there has been a growing fashion of holding organized community fireworks under expert supervision to avoid mishaps.

In other parts of the Commonwealth Victoria Day is known as Empire Day, but that observance is celebrated separate from it. In Canadians mark Empire Day in schools on the last school day before May 24.

Moulton College For Girls Closed for Good

TORONTO (CP)—Moulton College, Toronto's second oldest private school for girls and a city landmark in central Toronto for 66 years, will suspend operations at the end of this school year, it was announced Friday.

In a statement, McMaster University president G. P. Gilmour said the decision was reached reluctantly but unanimously by the university's board of governors. Moulton College has been operated as a department of McMaster University.

Principal reason for the school's closing was lack of funds, the president said. The school, first known as Moulton Ladies' College, was founded in 1888 in the Victorian mansion it still occupies. The home was donated to McMaster University by Mrs. William Mc-Master, the widow of the university's founder, to be turned into a school for girls of all denominations.

Bishop Strachan School is Toronto's oldest private school for girls.

40 TO 45 HORSES BURNED TO DEATH AT DETROIT TRACK

Five Stablehands, Grooms Suffer Burns

DETROIT (AP) — A disastrous fire late Friday night destroyed 40 to 45 horses stabled in a wooden barn at the Detroit Race Course track in suburban Livonia, Mich.

The fire, of unknown origin, was discovered at midnight. Within minutes it raced through the 250-foot-long frame barn.

Five stablehands and grooms suffered minor burns in the fire when they were trapped as they led the horses to safety. Only two horses were seen to perish in the fire before it fell to the flames.

The dead horses included Just Made It and Speculist owned by Dr. Harry Lindy of Detroit, president of the Michigan Thoroughbred Owners Association.

Ralph Kelly, general manager of the track, which concluded its 1954 opening-day program scant hours before the fire, estimated total damage at $200,000.

He said today's entrance program would go on as scheduled. Some 1,200 horses are stabled at the track. The 1954 season opened Wednesday.

Kelly said the Detroit fire department was never endangered, as a lack of wind helped to keep the fire from spreading.

Attendants turned loose hundreds of the horses in other barns, fearing the flames would spread. The fire was brought under the fire fighters until they were returned to their stalls.

County System Is Attacked By Delegation

DUNDAS (CP)—The county system in Ontario should be eliminated as soon as possible, since the trend now is toward municipal operation is stripping counties of industrial assessment, F. C. Woodall, reeve of Preston, said Friday.

Mr. Woods, addressing the first annual conference of the town and village section of the Ontario Municipal Association criticized the provincial government for giving Communist-held areas representation.

The setting up of a metropolitan area in York county has resulted in a heavy financial blow to the remaining York municipalities, Mr. Woodall said.

"If the metropolitan system is the answer, as government officials indicate, then I suggest that the counties of Lincoln, Middlesex, Welland, Wentworth, Waterloo, Ontario, Brant, Carleton and others will find themselves virtually stripped of all industrial assessment."

The conference heard Mr. Woodall asking all municipalities within a county to share in the cost of welfare and other charges on an equalized assessment basis. The same rule should be assessed against all municipalities for these road costs.

GENEVA (CP) — South Korea finally agreed today to elections throughout the divided Korean peninsula.

In a speech before the 19-nation Korean peace conference, South Korean Foreign Minister Pyun Yung-Tai outlined a 14-point plan for the unification of his country with Communist-controlled North Korea.

At least two of the conditions he set forth for divided Korean elections were expected to be bitterly opposed by the Communists.

One of these was that any elections must be carried out under United Nations supervision and that the UN must certify the election fair. The Communists contend the UN was a belligerent in the Korean war and have ruled out its role in Korean peace plans.

Another condition expected to be opposed by the Reds is that all Chinese Communist troops must be withdrawn from North Korea at least one month before the elections while some UN forces would remain until "effective control over the whole of Korea is achieved through free and unified government of Korea. . ."

ELECTIONS IN 6 MONTHS

Under the plan, free elections would be held "in accordance with the constitutional processes of the republic of Korea" within six months of the plan's adoption.

Another provision of the South Korean plan would assure control of the unified country by the South Koreans. The plan stipulates that "representation in the Korean legislature shall be in direct proportion to the population of the entire Korea." The population of South Korea at present is about 20,000,0 0 and that of North Korea 9,000,000.

Pyun rejected the earlier proposal of North Korean Foreign Minister Nam Il calling for Communist-style elections to be carried out by an all-Korean commission on which North and South Korea would have equal representation.

"A careful perusal of the Communist proposals reveals that while the Communists set a high value to the withdrawal of foreign forces from Korea, they have carefully avoided to name a time for the elections.

"This means that the Communists seek to perpetuate the division and have no desire for the unification of the country. It unifies the country can be achieved in Communist fashion."

Other provisions of the South Korean plan:

Full freedom of movement would be provided in the whole country supervising the elections.

Candidates, their campaigners and their families would enjoy full freedom of movement and speech.

The elections would be conducted on the basis of secret ballot and universal adult suffrage.

Meeting Wants Figure Raised For Grants

DUNDAS, Ont. (CP) — School boards in industrially-rich areas are taking teachers away from school boards by offering them salary increases as high as $1,500 a year, the annual meeting of the town and village section of the Ontario Municipal Association was told here Friday.

William Forbes, chairman of the Whitby public school board, addressed 60 delegates in this town near Hamilton.

He said the teachers cannot be blamed for accepting such offers but "the whole situation is causing discontent among all other teachers who remain."

The provincial government's original plan to bear 50 per cent of the over-all cost of education has deteriorated to the point where only 34 per cent of the cost was paid by the province in 1953, he said.

This proportion would become increasingly less as teachers' salaries increased, since, for grant purposes, the maximum for basic education did not recognize salaries of more than $2,500. Few teachers were getting this low figure today.

The meeting endorsed a resolution asking the provincial government to raise to maximum figure on which grants are paid to $4,500 from $3,800.

Parents Accused Of Demanding $2,000 for Child

TORONTO (CP) — The unmarried Toronto parents of a 1½-year-old boy they once placed for adoption were fined $2,000 each Friday of demanding $2,000 or the return of the child.

In a sworn statement before the Supreme Court of Ontario, the boy's mother claimed the mother's landlady and intermediary in the adoption between the parents and a Detroit couple, said the parents advised her they would be paid the money once they received $2,000.

A landlady woman started adoption proceedings in November. She has possession of the baby and the case is pending until the case is decided. The Detroit couple was not identified.

Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow, hearing the parents' application for custody of the baby, adjourned the hearing to June.8.

Armadillos, Pythons and Platypuses Grab All Good Headlines in News

By RAY KOHN

NEW YORK (AP) — Here's the latest on animals in the news: Soft-hearted zoo men go for hard-shelled armadillos; more armed dancer picks python over puma; Canada-billed Cecil woos Penelope the platypus.

At Riverhead, N.Y., Sidney Schwartz complained Thursday that he was up to his ears in armadillos. Mrs. Schwartz, who bought in order to write a book on their habits for a New York University doctorate, produced seven armor-plated babies.

Armadillos habitually sleep during the daylight hours and wake it up at night. And they eat like hogs. Schwartz said local pet shop dealers wouldn't take the mothers and sighed hopefully:

"There must be some people who like armadillos."

At the Bronx Friday in Toronto, the Riverdale Zoo said it would adopt an armadillo. And Arthur Wilson, director of Ballomore's zoo, said he'll be glad to take the armadillos and look forward to even pay the express charges. The mayor of Granby, Que., Horace Boivin, said he'd take a pair for his eastern township city's new zoo.

Schwartz feels much better now. Armadillos are nice, "there's nothing final about it yet."

Prancing about in Putnam Valley, N.Y., Friday was a puma, a dancer, some reporters — and a python.

The dancer, Lonnie Young, 26, apparently keeps the puma, a pink-eyed albino, as her hobby animal. Miss Young said she was thinking of the bald-billed Cecil when Penelope the platypus.

At Riverhead, N.Y., Sidney Schwartz complained Thursday that he was up to his ears in armadillos. Mrs. Schwartz, who bought in order to write a book on their habits for a New York University doctorate, produced seven armor-plated babies.

Armadillos habitually sleep during the daylight hours and wake it up at night. And they eat like hogs. Schwartz said local pet shop dealers wouldn't take the mothers and sighed hopefully:

"There must be some people who like armadillos."

At the Bronx Friday in Toronto, the Riverdale Zoo said it would adopt an armadillo. And Arthur Wilson, director of Ballomore's zoo, said he'll be glad to take the armadillos and look forward to even pay the express charges. The mayor of Granby, Que., Horace Boivin, said he'd take a pair for his eastern township city's new zoo.

Schwartz feels much better now. Armadillos are nice, "there's nothing final about it yet."

Northumberland MP at World Health Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — Dr. Fred G. Robertson, Liberal MP for Northumberland, who left Ottawa on April 30 to head the Canadian delegation to the Seventh World Health Assembly, has arrived at Geneva.

The party from Canada is composed of Dr. Robertson as chairman, one other doctor from the Department of Health in Ottawa and the Deputy Minister of Health of the province of Nova Scotia, along with several technical advisers.

The group sailed on the liner "United States" and arrived at Le Havre early this month. The party stopped off in Paris, on instructions from the minister of health, the Hon. Paul Martin, and attended the NATO conference on civil defence.

At the conference a great many things were discussed and Dr. Robertson said that a great deal of attention now is focussed on the operations of civil defence by the various governments. At the international conference on civil defence representatives from many sat in for the first time. Germany is not yet officially a member of the NATO but it is felt that in the near future Germany will be allowed membership. The Germans were asked to review, when they had returned home, the discussions that had taken place at the conference, and were asked to forward certain work in the civil defence line. They will report on this at the next meeting of NATO, which will be held in October this year.

The delegation also visited the offices of the Canadian medical quarantine in Paris and received a review of the work of that office.

Following the NATO conference, the party went directly to Geneva, where the WHO meetings are being held at the Palais des Nations, which is described by Dr. Robertson as "an enormous building, built originally to house the League of Nations. A very beautiful monument to the memory of the late President Woodrow Wilson, the founder of the League of Nations, is one of the outstanding features of the structure."

HELD ANNUALLY.

The World Health meetings go on each year, and technical assistance is sent out to countries to help them to improve their public health services. Dr. Robertson says: "We in Canada are very fortunate, because we are one of the countries that does not require these services, but a great number of Asiatic countries need a great deal of help for many years to come, and this is one of the problems in which we as a member nation are trying to help out, in our duty to other countries of the world."

A day in the life of the delegates is a long one during the conference, with meetings starting early in the morning and continuing through most of the day, with a short break for lunch. In the evening there is a great deal of study to be done, reports to be prepared and briefs to be sent back to the Canadian government to keep them informed. Information from the Canadian government is received by the delegates, and they are kept informed with regard to the government's attitude on a number of problems which are being discussed daily.

Deseronto Buys Police Cruiser

The police department in the town of Deseronto has gone mobile.

At this week's town council meeting councillors voted to purchase a new police cruiser for the use of Chief Ken McTaggart. The car to be purchased as the vehicle was carried 4-3 with Mayor Dr. D. C. McVicker casting the deciding vote.

Previously the town constable performed his duties with the aid of a motorcycle. But the motorbike proved inconvenient when police had occasion to bring in a drunk and councillors called for the purchase of a car.

Police Blotter

All was comparatively quiet on the police front during the night with but routine matters coming to the attention of officers.

A second break-in within a week at the Choy Fish and Chip Shop was reported. However, this time there was no money in the premises and nothing else was touched.

Two Toronto youths were apprehended for having liquor and consuming liquor while a minor.

Children's Aid Society Gives Report on Work Accomplished

A large representation of the board members of the Children's Aid Society met this week at Bridge Street Church for the first time since the annual meeting.

Mr. J. F. Wilson, the president, expressed appreciation of the work of the nominating committee. He welcomed new members to the board of directors, and thanked all for taking time in their days to give to the C.A.S. interests. If it were not for the work of the society, children would often be left to the mercy of the elements. He quoted an appealing remark, that, "no one is taller than when he stoops over them in need."

New members present were: Dr. Edith K. Peterkin, Mr. R. H. Macklem, public school inspector, and Mr. George Whitman, welfare department.

Other members present were: Mrs. Lew. L. K. Daniel, Mrs. Harold W. Ellis, Mrs. H. E. Pierre, of Belleville, and Mrs. O. W. Larry and Mr. V. B. Ryan, of Trenton.

Mr. Wilson announced with regret that Miss Cassell was leaving the staff of C.A.S. She is being replaced by Miss Dorothy Cooper.

Mr. W. J. Elliot, formerly superintendent at Parry Sound, who has been a director for many years, and Mrs. Edith Moodie are also leaving the staff.

After Mrs. Clarence Holmes gave the secretary's reports of regular and executive meetings, Mr. H. W. Ackerman, chairman of the finance committee, read the tentative budget followed by the treasurer, Mr. C. E. Hyde's report.

Mr. Bruce M. Kerr, the superintendent, emphasized in his remarks that the Society must never lose sight of its primary aim "the care of neglected children." Other claims should be referred to proper place for needed service. The first responsibility is the care of children entrusted by the court to the Children's Aid; of which there are 354 at present. This is once only a moral, but a legal responsibility.

Seven children were discharged from care this month. Three went back to their own parents, and eight were adopted.

It was announced that the proceeds from the Trenton tag day amounted to $235. Letters of thanks were read from foster mothers for increased allowance in caring for society children.

Plans for attending the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies annual meeting in Toronto were discussed, and representatives from the Society chosen. This society is one of the 54 C.A.S. in Ontario.

Mr. Kerr stated that the minister of Public Welfare for Ontario, the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow had expressed approval of the revised constitution.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

Go To Dark Gethsemane!

Go to dark Gethsemane,
Ye that feel the tempter's power;
Your Redeemer's conflict see;
Watch with Him one bitter hour;
Turn not from His griefs away;
Learn of Jesus Christ to pray.

Calvary's mournful mountain climb:
There, adoring at His feet,
Mark that miracle of time,
God's own sacrifice complete:
"It is finished", hear Him cry;
Learn of Jesus Christ to die.

Early hasten to the tomb,
Where they laid His breathless clay;
All is solitude and gloom:
Who hath taken Him away?
Christ is risen! . . . He meets our eyes:
Saviour, teach us so to rise.

"GO TO DARK GETHSEMANE"

The Christian who accepts James Montgomery's invitation to share Christ's experiences at Gethsemane will surely feel that he is close beside the Saviour as he goes from one stanza to another of this moving hymn.
